Editorial Notes.

The first Sabbath, Jan. 6, 1884, has been set apart as a day of special service, the centenary of American Methodism.

Says the American Reformer, of New York, on the book edited by Dr. Hartzell, "Christian Educators in Council": "The volume is a compendium of facts and arguments upon every phase of this important question. We know of no other book covering the same range or presenting so much valuable information upon these important topics."

On motion of Mr. Reed, of Maine, and by a vote of 143 to 88, the House of Representatives created a special committee on the Alcoholic Liquor Traffic. Messrs. Vance, of North Carolina, and Randall, of Pennsylvania, spoke in its support, and Mr. Mills, of Texas, against it. He objected to sumptuary laws, but as it was merely a question of granting a petition for the investigation of a subject of great public interest, the House "snowed him under."

Rev. W. P. Thirkield, Dean of the Gamman School of Theology, at Atlanta, Georgia: "Our school of Theology now has fourteen students and more are coming. This year will see a larger number enrolled in this school than has ever been in attendance upon any four Theological schools during their first year. The outlook is bright. The students are doing excellent work. The average of our examinations just completed for this term shows over 95 per cent." The schools are few that can make so good a showing. All the people need is a chance.

There was a bitter and acrimonious campaign, repeated and definite assaults upon the personal and political character of Gov. McEnery. He was renominated, and now good Democratic children are counseled, in fear of a bugaboo held up to them in the shape of a return of the Republican party to power, to vote the straight ticket as a patriotic duty. We are amused therefore to find so astute a political leader as Ex-Senator Kellogg giving expression to the opinion, that if the Democratic free traders in Congress reduce the sugar tariff, Louisiana will go Republican. It is absurd. Nothing short of an earthquake could dissolve the Bourbon power of cohesion. Independent voting is rank heresy on the eve of a presidential campaign. Read the lessons of Danville, Marshall and Yazoo.

Most people seem to be on the look out for bargains, simple justice gives them no satisfaction. They are selfish and this carries them beyond the golden rule. They try to cheapen the article they wish to buy. With an eagle's eye they look for faults so they can reduce the price. They are resolved to make a bargain, but have no scruples as to the means by which it is obtained. Such practices should be confined to the Jews, infidels, and heathen, they are a disgrace to the christian name. God hates a lie whether told in the sanctuary or shop. He makes no allowance for it, and will certainly punish it. In going to the shop or store to buy we need to take God along with us, and remember that He is holy and always hates a lie.

In the United States Circuit Court, Judge Pardee presiding, the injunction suit of the New Orleans National Bank against the Postmaster of New Orleans, for withholding mail connected with the Louisiana State Lottery Company, was called up last week. Hon. B. H. Brewster, United States Attorney General, his assistant, Prof. W. H. Maury, and District Attorney Leonard were on hand. The defense had a strong array of counsel. During the week the sovereign powers of the national government and the duties of its officers, free of restrictions from frivolous proceedings of State courts, were pretty strongly delineated by the Attorney General and his assistants. The defense, impregnated with the States rights doctrines of their ancestors, somewhat reversed by the defeat of the Confederacy, were astounded. They had made the Attorney General the guest of the New Orleans bar, and that he could differ so much from them, and be so unmindful of their hospitality, was absolutely shocking. Let the lawyers have their opinion of legal technicalities, the decent people are pleased to see the government fighting the lottery and its associates with earnestness.

The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE says that the Austin Conference passed resolutions requesting "the General Conference to fix an episcopal residence in Texas; also to change the name of the Freedman's Aid Society to that of 'Southern Educational Society,' and to place the white work on an equal basis with educational work among the freedmen." The request for an episcopal residence in Texas evidently contemplates an enlargement of the episcopal bench by the next General Conference, as otherwise the resolution adopted could scarcely be expected to effect the end proposed. The enlargement of the work of the Church on every side calls for a corresponding increase in the strength of its chief executive. As regards the Freedmen's Aid Society the following facts seem to have been overlooked: the society is a chartered organization; as such it holds a large amount of property; and consequently any change of the society's name must be effected, if at all, through legislative enactment. The process would be somewhat tedious, perhaps difficult, under the existing law of Ohio. No doubt the General Conference will act wisely in the premises. There will be no difficulty in placing the educational work of the Church among the whites in the South on an equal basis with that among the freedmen, if the contributions for the former are equal to those for the latter object.—Western.

Lewisville.—O. Wheeler, pastor is enjoying a fair degree of success. I held the fourth quarterly conference for this charge Nov. 24th, 25th. The pastor made a good report showing prosperity in the church. Bro. Wheeler is a good man and is gaining in popularity with the people.

The qarterly meeting was a great success. I baptized twenty-two infants on Sunday at 11 a. m., making fifty three on this work this year. Sunday evening was a soul's reviving feast. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered, and all felt that it was good to be there. Then came the good-bys, and I shall never forget the many expressions of good-will and the God-bless-yous I received that night as I took my leave of this good people, perhaps never to meet them again till we meet at judgement, and render our final accounts. Monday morning soon after daylight I reached Texarkana, and Tuesday I took the train for Paris, Texas, on the Trans-Continental road, where the Texas Annual Conference convened Nov. 28th. Here I had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance of Rev. L. P. Cushman, Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, I always did like the SOUTHWESTERN, but now since I have heard its editor preach and talk, I love it better than ever. Long may you live, Bro. Cushman, to preach the Gospel of the blessed Jesus.

The conference closed Dec. 3rd; then the farewells, and a hundred preachers go forth to labor in the great State of Texas—to do, dare and suffer for the blessed Master. From Paris, Texas, I took the train for Ozan, Ark., thence on horse-back to Centre Point, arriving there, in company with Bro. Donnelly at 7 p. m., on Friday. Next morning, with Rev. H. H. McAllister and his good wife, went to Muddy Fork where we found a full attendance of the official members awaiting our arrival. The conference was a very pleasant one. The pastor reported great success this year, having had one hundred and ten accessions to the church. Bro. McAllister is one of our best young men in the conference and is beloved by all who know him. He was once a student in Rust University, Holly Springs, Miss., and the training he there received under Prof. Hooper, he uses to good advantage in his work. All the church interest sare in a healthy condition on Centre Point Circuit.

Washington, Rev. G. B. Donnelly, pastor, was nearly broken up by the great riot last August. But notwithstanding the hard times and the riot, Bro. Donnelly has succeeded. I was unable to hold his third quarterly conference on account of the riot, but all is calm now, and I held the fourth quarter Dec. 15th-16th. We had a real good time. It was a feast to the soul. This people love their pastor and appreciate his able sermons. The pastor reports up to date eighty-four accessions to the church this year.

DEDICATION OF GAMMON HALL.

I cut the following from the Constitution newspaper. It is a brief sketch of this transaction. There were a number of visitors in attendance. Mr. Gammon, the liberal Christian gentleman whose name this hall bears, is now in London, England. He has written that he wishes this hall to accommodate all the students of other Methodist families who wish to come thereto, and indeed all other Christian ministers of any and every evangelical order who will enter its halls; he offering to pay the salaries of the professors. This is a long step in the direction of a union of moral forces. May God abundantly bless him for this step in the advance. Who will be next in causing the watchmen "to see eye to eye?" Be assured of one thing, we have entered on the long prayed for period, when obstruction and obstructionists are to be removed; if they will not get out of the way the Lord our God will move them out of the road and make way for the Kingdom of Christ:

The dedication of Gammon Hall of theology at Clark University occured yesterday morning at half past ten. This new hall is located on a commanding eminence about 200 yards east of the original college. The building is 212 feet long, 55 wide, and four stories high. The foundations are of granite, the superstruction of brick handsomely trimmed with light sand stone. The style of architecture is known as the domestic gothic. The cost of the building was about $30,000, and it is all paid for. This is the latest addition to a general system of education, which already embraces the college proper—the school of carpentry and other mechanical industries; school of domestic economy for girls; school of agriculture, and the department of printing. This, it is said, is the only college in the South that has organized these industrial schools as part of their educational system.

The department of theology is under the charge of Rev. W. Thirkield, a son-in-law of the late Bishop Haven.

At 11 o'clock Professor E. O. Thayer, president of the univerity, called the audience to order. After opening hymn, J. B. Williams, of the Savannah Conference, lead in prayer. A Scripture reading by Rev. D. W. Hoges, of Chattanooga, followed. After a beautiful anthem by the choir, President Thayer, in a few chosen remarks introduced Bishop H. W. Warren, as the chief orator of the occasion. Bishop Warren is unquestionably a great orator, and he held the most intense attention of the audience for thirty minutes.

Rev. R. S. Rust, D. D., secretary of the Freedman's Aid society, was next introduced and delivered an eloquent address upon the "qualificaitons of a Christian minister."

The ceremony of formally delivering the keys of the new building to the president was next in order.

J. W. Adams, of Chattanooga, the architect and contractor, delivered the keys in a short and appropriate address which was responded to by Professor Thayer.

Rev. W. P. Thirkield dean of the theological college was then introduced and delivered an interesting address.

He was followed by Rev. J. B. Williams and J. C. Kimball in short, earnest speeches. Mr. Kimball referred especially to the early work in the establishment of the university of two great men since departed, Bishop Haven and Dr. E. Q. Fuller.

Bishop Warren then offered the dedicatory prayer. The choir sang the dedication anthem and the congregation were dismissed.

The French attacked and barried the outposts of Sontay. Loss 70 killed and 180 wounded.

The Savannah Conference.

The Savannah Conference met in Newnan, Ga., Dec. 11. Bishop Foss, who had been kept from us last year by illness, presided and delighted everybody. Our sessions were held in the large brick church built during the pastorate of Bro. Geo. Standing. Nowhere in Georgia are the colored people in better circumstances or more respected by their white neighbors. The people of Newnan give the praise to the beneficent influence of our church. The Bishop was entertained at the mansion of Judge Bigby, Dr. Rust and lady, by Bro. Gardner, a presiding elder in the M. E. Church, South; and other hospitable doors were thrown open to the white visiting brethren. Our colored brethren can testify that the best of everything was provided for them; and doubtless the memory of the "big dinners" will help to digest humbler meals on the circuits.

The usual routine business was carried on with dispatch and harmony. Two brethren, whose characters were under investigation, were acquitted. The reports showed an increase of over eight hundred in membership, and of a hundred dollars or more for benevolent collections.

The SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE was endorsed as the official organ of the Conference. Steps were also taken towards the establishment of a local paper. The great benevolent societies of the church were ably represented at the anniversaries. Prof. Thirkield, with his usual enthusiasm, spoke of the advantages of the Gammon Theological Institute. Three of the presiding elders are, or have been, students of Clark University, and the day is not far distant when its graduates will fill most of the important posts. At the election of general conference delegates, Dr. C. O. Fisher received a majority vote on first ballot. S. C. Upshaw was chosen alternate. The lay delegates chose Prof. W. H. Crogman, and John King, of LaGrange, alternate. Bishop Foss' sermon on Sunday morning was an eloquent, practical exposition of "Bear ye one another's burdens." Never will preachers, and husbands, and parents forget how beautifully they were told the ways in which little burdens could be borne for one another in daily life. Lives patterned after the Bishop's model would be reflections of Jesus' own.

In the afternoon were held memorial services for the wife of Bro. Jones, presiding elder of the Savannah district. Rev. W. O. Lynch, of Kansas, preached at night. During the session Mrs. Dr. Rust represented the Women's Home Missionary Society and aroused great interest in it. The following persons were elected officers of a conference auxiliary: Corresponding Secretary, Hattie W. Robinson, Clark University; District Secretaries: Savannah District, Miss Lottie Myers, Brunswick; Macon District, Mrs. R. T. Kent, Griffin; Rome District, Mrs. R. Crolley, Atlanta, 39 Reed street; Atlanta District, Mrs. Fanny Reese, Newnan. A collection was taken amounting to over $21 to make Mrs. Rev. Dr. Gardner a life member.

On Monday morning the remaining items of business were disposed of. A resolution on the election of a colored bishop was ably discussed and tabled, and the appointments were read.

Letter From Yazoo City.

MR. EDITOR:—Please allow me a short space in your paper, while I make a few remarks concerning the rich, rare and moral treat, which has been ours to enjoy this week, in the form of lectures, delivered by Hon. R. Gleed, late of Columbus, Miss. The lectures were intensely listened to by all who attended them. From what we have heard of the lectures, also from the endorsements which he has in his possession, from our Governor and other prominent men of the State, we believe him to be an honor to "manhood and worth," and an ornament to his race. We are constrained, by his impressive words and great reasoning power, to believe that he has devoted a large portion of his time in fathoming out the needs of the race, and is now willing to devote the remainder to instructing them in branches of industry, economy and "value of virtue," as being the only roads of success. He draws a dark, "but true" picture of our present condition, morally and financially.

We are aware of the fact that there is vast room for improvement and we are not slow in respecting, honoring and aiding, any system intended for our elevation. The hospitality which was extended to Mr. Gleed by the white citizens of this place is worthy of much commendation; and the expressed thought of one of them, we believe, he speaks the sentiment of no few of like mind; it is this, "I am willing to double every cent you (the colored man) put down to aid in elevating your race." Those words are highly appreciated, and friends, let us see to it, that we put forth greater effort to assist ourselves, for, by so doing we may possess many of the luxuries of this life, and have as many societies free for immortality as any other people. We bid ex-Senator Gleed God speed. That he may continue to do good is our prayer, so when he is called from "labor to reward," he may be able to look back on a well spent life. Respectfully.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

E. D. Cameron, Pontotoc: "I am a subscrider to your paper and love its outspoken pages on caste and every other mean and ugly thing. Our pastor, J. J. Harris, of Mt. Nebo church, is highly esteemed, and is having great success. The quarterly conference at Hopewell, presided over by elder Shumpert, showed a marked change all over the charge. Pray for us."

E. L. Gilliam, Jackson: "At the last session of the quarterly conference held at this place the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, This is the last quarterly conference that our beloved pastor, Bro. D. A. Williams, will hold with us, this being the close of his fourth year on this district; and,

Whereas, We feel that under his direction the church has been benefited both temporally and morally; and,

Whereas, His actions toward us have been uniformly Christianlike, and his intercourse with us both pleasant and profitable; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we part with Bro. Williams with much regret, and shall ever pray for his future success; and be it further

Resolved, That in him our church has secured the services of a live, energetic, zealous Christian worker; one whose labors as a presiding elder could not be more acceptably performed, and whose services would be sadly missed.

Resolved, That in our pastor, Bro. J. W. Parks, we find a prototype of our elder, and it affords us much gratification to express our confidence in and appreciation of his efforts in the cause of Christ since he has been with us. Under his guidance our church has prospered in a manner unprecedented, and it is our earnest wish that the next annual conference will, in deference to the desire of the members and congregation, and in the interest of the advancement of our work at this place, assign him to this charge for the ensuing year.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this quarterly conference, and also sent to the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE with request for publication."

TEXAS.

C. A. Curry, Bedias: "My pastor set me to work here last August, and I have done so; have organized a Sunday-school, am teaching it, and procured two subscribers for the church paper. I shall try to go back to Houston Seminary."

B. F. Chase, Morales: The last quarterly conference held by Elder Richardson was a grand session. The Sunday-school address and the sermon were highly appreciated. Our pastor, Rev. Robert Dukes, preached the truth and walked [illegible] meekness. We have a day school with 55 scholars, taught by a young lady from Goliad."

J. T. Jacobs, Eagle Pass. "I am on my last round for this conference year. I have traveled over 2,400 miles by railway and land to reach my appointments. I have met with no little difficulties this year. Through all the Lord has brought me out more than conqueror. I have been compelled to take the ground for my bed and the sky for my covering at times while traveling on the Brackettsville circuit. I have succeeded in raising and building one church at Hondo with the aid of the $150 of Church Extension. Received into the church 23, dedicated 17 children, paid the presiding elder $31.25. If this $31.25 had been thousands we in this Western country would feel ourselves much indebted to Bro. Henson; we may get his [illegible] but not his superior. The people at Fredericksburg could not bear the thought of their leaving them unpaid, so have overpaid. Their pastor [illegible] the head with missionary [illegible] Elm Pass and Bandera [illegible] grandly, and the people [illegible] will settle all claims [illegible] hing prevents. I have no members at Eagle Pass, none at Dellrio nor at Mecimento, Mexico. Mecimento is about 125 miles northwest of Eagle Pass, families 25; Eagle Pass, families 4; Del Rio, families 4; Brackettsville, 15; all of these people are very hard to reach, they being mixed with so many other nations."

TENNESSEE.

J. A. C. Wade: "I was in the vicinity of Murfreesboro, Nov. 29, and was called to attend the funeral of the youngest child of Mr. Robert Butler, burned to death the day before while the father and mother was at work in the field. Near noon the mother came and found her child lifeless, out of doors, with its little sister aged about three years."

C. H. Bullington, McMinnville: "I think I will get along very well this year. My Sunday-school, prayer and class-meetings are good. Temperance people are few, and I would have a better time were it not so. We must train the children differently."

John Crawford, Chattanooga circuit: "Since conference I have been earnestly striving to advance every interest of the church on this circuit. I am glad to say I have had good success so far. Our first quarterly meeting at Harrison, Oct. 21st, was an occasion that will be long remembered. The presiding elder, Rev. E. Provine, preached in a manner that left the people both stimulated and encouraged. The collections amounted to $11. Four were added to the church. I have baptized 5 children and 1 adult, besides I have received persons into the church at each point on the work. The financial and spiritual condition is rapidly improving."

Discourse Building.

BY BISHOP WARREN.

The following is an abstract of a recent lecture delivered before the students of the Gammon School of Theology at Clark University. A series of such lectures is to be given by distinguished men during the year, each to be followed by an informal conversation, between the students and lecturer on the practical work of the ministry. W. P. T.

A discourse may be as grand as a cathedral or as humble as a hovel, or fill any intermediate point between. Though every building cannot be a cathedral, yet every man wants to build one or more cathedrals in his life time. Thoughts may be quarried, shaped, reland, polished and built together as well as stones. No man should attempt to discourse who does not feel that ideas are actual entities, living powers in themselves, master forces and stubborn facts that may be hurled with more force than stones. A man must feel, experience, be possessed of ideas before he can preach. Hence Satan can never preach Christ, or a hypocrite make a good minister.

The first thing to be done towards building, is material gathering. As David gathered for the temple all manner of material from all lands, so must the discourse maker's first work be material gathering. This is not the work of a day but of a life time. As David gathered for Solomon, so our fathers gathered for us. Now we professional students often mistake the quality and kind of material. Materials for popular discourse are to be gathered not from the realms of misty metaphysics, nor from the bloodless dissecting tables of keen criticism. That is good material for students, but for the people the material must be gathered from scenes full of feeling and of experiences breathing with life. It is not what you learn here that is to be heaped up and doled out cold to the public, but what touches you most nearly, and hence will touch others most deeply. They are the soul and not the clothes. The most popular poems and the most eloquent orations have familiar scenes and incidents as their most moving passages. How are such materials to be gathered? Look for them, not with eye alone but with the heart also. Whoever believes all things are of God, will expect to see God in all things. The man that learns to look for high things will always find them. Besides the skill of invention, there must be the economy of preservation. A word about the preparation of materials. I used to think that every sermon must be grand, and of great sweep. Grandeur is very chilly, as grand mountains are covered with snow. The greatest effects I have seen produced by the simplest things. When heart speaks to heart it warms with life. Nothing is puerile or weak when God's Spirit is in it. Finish your sermonic material with care and get God to breathe upon it, and nothing can be small. A lost dog in the street furnished the subject for a most eloquent passage in the sermon of a great Boston preacher. His thought ennobled the dog instead of the dog degrading the thought. Be simple and direct and do not attempt elaborated elegance in your discourses. All I need to say about plan in discourse is, study the scripture addresses; no two alike; all aimed at doing some definite thing, and not for merely exhibiting the plan. I wish to leave you three general directions that apply to every discourse. First, you must please. A lawyer may bulldoze his witnesses, defy the judge and throttle his opponents, but he tries to please the jury. The shortest way to the head is through the heart. Occasionally you see a man pugnacious by nature, and who has not received Christianly enough to make him considerate for polite society, assaulting with great vehemence the representatives of some creed differing from his own. That man only does harm. He never persuades his opponents even if they hear him, and he begets a most unchristian spirit in his friends. He ought to be taken before a justice of the peace and have the riot act read to him. By thus aiming to please men you are freed from that absorption in your subject which often makes it seem as if the preacher had nothing to do with his congregation; as if he were set not for the salvation of men but for the salvation of sermons. I received my lesson in this matter early. I had preached with great earnestness, and I am sorry to say, satisfaction, on "He that sinneth against me, wrongeth his own soul." I thought I made it very clear, and I asked my brother how he liked it. He hesitated. That hesitation was a revelation; said I eagerly: "Did it seem to you that I cared only to [illegible] points, and I was glad on the whole it was so?" He said: "I'm afraid you have hit it." And I went out of that house feeling that the greatest sinner in that company was myself. By keeping the idea before you that you are to affect men, you are saved from many a miscarriage. You came out of your weeks study alive, keen, eager, full of your subject, but you speak to an audience tired, sleepy and full of breakfast. Your danger is that you commence above them, start alone and they fail to follow and do not fail to sleep. Spend a few moments in running your locomotives energies at a quiet pace up and down the side-tracks of human experience and interest, getting every man, woman and child aboard; then slowly draw the throttle valve of your enormous power and move along the iron way, trembling yourself with energy, and drawing humanity after you. After you have suceeeded in pleasing, be sure that you instruct, you are not appointed as a showman, but as a teacher. You have the advantage of a week to get ready. Other teachers go over the same thing to their disgust. You have the breadth and variety of the universe. You are in God's university, fired with the enthusiasm of eternity, to teach what shall never perish. A ministry of mere emotion, destitute of thought, is like the play of children who scare one another with pretended ghosts or tickle into inexpressible laughter. Communities that listen to your discourse must grow wise and broad minded, or your account hereafter will be something fearful to meet. After pleasing and instructing, you must inspire to action. Pleasure and knowledge are vain unless conclusions are reached and actions performed. Men can be pleased every where. Theatres, novels, and a thousand alluring pleasures, ask men's patronage. Knowledge runs to and fro in the earth. If public discourse is to hold any place in the future it must inspire to action. The pulpit is doomed if it contents itself with flowers of rhetoric; doomed if it deals only in the subtleties of metaphysics; doomed if it seeks only to impart knowledge. It is vital and enduring only when it wins men's ears and hearts; stands on the heights of a knowledge above all human knowing, and looking down on the masses of men says with a voice that thrills men like a trumpet: "Come, come up higher!" To that end the preacher must consider what lies most nearly related to action. He will find that they are things that are near, belonging to the affairs of to-day. He must smite the sins of to-day. The most effective preaching is that commended by the merchant woman who could neither remember text subject nor word said, but went home and burned her false bushel measure. Men are moved to action by their appetites and their emotions. We may have sway over the emotions. Kindle the emotion of hate till it burns like the wrath of God against slavery, ruin and all specific forms of sin. Love must also be developed as a tremendous force. Never be content with any sermon that does not make some one, and if possible every one do something.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

A Review.

BY REV. J. MITCHELL, D.D.

Allow me to give you a sketch, as best I may, of the three conferences at which I was present this year, Bishop Foss presiding—the Georgia, Alabama and Savannah. The first met on the 21st of November, in Alexandria; one central figure was wanting, Dr. E. Q. Fuller, who had, as the church knows, passed to his reward on high but a short time before. We felt his loss, and the conference by its action has shown how it appreciated him. We were agreeably surprised to find that Bishop Foss had fully recovered, and was himself again. The conference passed through the usual routine of business, and made the appointments as I see they have been published. The statistics show a slight increase in some things and a decrease in others. In 1876 we separated from our colored brethren and started as an unmixed white conference, with the supposed number of 2811 members, and return this year 3165. One cause of the slow increase is the constant outgo of our people to the West. We have 75 churches worth $40,600; parsonages 5; collections for missions $244, other benevolences $148.79. Let no one despise this small band, they are the standard bearers in the far South. My sorrow is that from some cause or other spiritual success has not crowned our labors more extensively. May it not be possible that the reason is—Our membership and ministry do not give enough to benevolent objects. I have long cherished the conviction that when we are unfaithful in the adminstration of the unrighteous mammon, God will not give us the true riches. By a greater liberality we can obtain the greater grace. Let us try it this one year and mark the results. It may be well in this connection to give the ranks of twenty-five of the Southern Conference deacon from the tables of the last year, and show their interest in Mission. I leave off the older conferences.

This is the estimate each member of these conference places on the the conversion of the nations to Christ. I trust my brethren of Georgia will spring from the ninth place to the first rank. Let me tell you how. Be more careful about the quality than the quantity.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

This conference was held in Edwardsville on the new railroad, the Georgia & Pacific, from Atlanta to Birmingham. Bishop Foss was in his happiest mood, and preached a sermon of great power on Sabbath. The Brethren of this conference were somewhat stirred up about the reflections of the speakers in the Missionary committee last November. Let me remind my brethren of the Alabama and other conferences on this point that "Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy, are deceitful." Prov. 27: 60. And as a remedy to the evils complained of let us say to the Missionary Board, with God's help we will hasten to take care of ourselves, and you can send your money abroad as soon as you please. That's the fire that will tell on the kingdom of darkness. Let us fan that resolution up to the melting heat. Don't you think the critics would be somewhat crossed by such a resolve. Let us try it. I don't believe much in a horse running off with me, especially the war horse, "Bob," it is not agreeable for the time being; but if I can just keep him in the road I have the compensation, that I get over the ground all the faster. I cannot give you the exact returns of this conference. But they are growing. My first acquaintance with this conference was in the midst of the stirring times I trust now forever past. May God bless them and make them one hundred fold more than they now are.

THE SAVANNAH CONFERENCE.

This body as all our friends in the South know commands the colored members and churches of one [illegible] in Georgia—I have known some of these dear Brethren many years and I rejoice in their great success. They commenced in 1876 with a membership of 2811 and now report this year 15,000 probationers and members combined, being an increase of 1121. Like all other Southern conferences there is much room for improvement in benevolent collections, but it will be seen from the above list of conferences that they lead several white conferences. To the members of the Savannah Conference let me say, keep rank with the best, and be not so careful about the quantity of your members, as the quality thereof; carry no dead heads, make each member pay his way, and be careful to take the collections and then return them fully to conference and you can take the banner.

Atlanta, Ga.

A short time ago, at school in the North of England, during a lesson on the animal kingdom, the teacher put the following quesstion: "Can any boy name to me an animal of the order-edentata; that is, a front-tooth toothless animal?" A boy whose face beamed with pleasure at the prospect of a good mark, replied. "I can." "Well, what is the animal?" "My grandmother!" replied the boy, in great glee.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Alabama Conference.

This Conference met at Edwardsville, Cleburne county, Alabama, Wednesday, Nov. 28th. Bishop Foss presided. Bro. J. B. Lovelass was appointed secretary and Bro. C. F. McGaha, assistant.

The Conference then proceeded to examine the character of effective elders: South Alabama District was called and G. J. Johnson represented the work of that district. The Birmingham District was then called and T. R. Parker represented the state of the work therein.

SECOND DAY.

Thursday being Thanksgiving day throughout the nation, the Conference resolved to observe it, and Bishop Foss conducted this part of the service. His address was touching and appropriate. He referred to his own life as giving abundant reason for gratitude. Amongst the most marked of life's mercies was his recovery from a sickness that carried him to the door of the spirit world. Whilst thus speaking of God's grace and goodness, the Conference was melted down by the touching and pathetic words of this man of God.

During the morning of this day, Professor Houston represented Andrews Institute. He stated that this inititution consists of two buildings of sufficient capacity to accommodate one hundred and fifty to two hundred students, and that they have 100 acres of land in small lots. He referred to certain pledges made by the Freedman's Aid Society, yet unfulfilled.

The East Alabama District was called and Rev. J. L. Freeman represented it. He stated that he had held three campmeetings and had a revival throughout the bounds of his work.

THIRD DAY.

The opening services were conducted by J. Mitchell, D. D., and the Bishop conducted the devotional part.

The Bishop announced the transfer of J. M. Rogers, of the Savannah Conference, and of B. J. Halpenny, of the Virginia Conference.

F. C. McGaha and C. P. Davis, (deacon), were admited to full connection.

The Bishop addressed the class on the subject of preaching the Word. The Word is the basis of all law, morals and duty. Some would save by works, but we must come back to the Word, and save by preaching the Word. Well does he remember the effect of the words of God. "To him that worketh not but believeth on him who justifieth the ungodly, his faith is reckoned to him for righteousness." Twenty years ago that has been hanging on the wall of my heart. In this conflict with [illegible] he defeats him three times by the use of the sword of the Spirit. He used no weapon that does not fit that poor hand as well as his. He drew his arms each time from Old Testament Scriptures. He drew them out of Deuteronomy, with the utterance "It is written". He defeated him. I can say that is well as he could. But whilst preaching the Word—present the Incarnate Word—the Son of God, as the germ of life within the outer foldings. He referred to an incident in his own life illustrative of the value of holy family associations, and the power of holy song in wafting the soul upward to God. Whilst stationed in New York, he had been reading the death scenes of Bishop McIlvaine, of the Protestant Episcopal church, and how his great spirit went to heaven on holy song, when his attention was attracted by his own little son, who, whilst playing in his study with blocks, was singing "Rock of Ages cleft for me," he thought, possibly sixty or seventy years from now, when he slumbers in the grave, and this child has grown old, and may be, expiring on some distant shore, his soul may be wafted to heaven on this sacred song. He recalled to memory the death-bed scene of Gilbert Haven. The Conference melted down under the effects of this discourse. He enforced an honrable and manly course in life. He enjoined the regular and daily study of God's word, for personal edification and benefit—saying ministers are but men, and as such, need the daily bread of life. Likewise he enforced the duty of pastoral visits, using the Scottish maxim, "A house going preacher makes a church going people."

When the question on tobacco was asked the answer was made by both the brethren, "I have been a slave to tobacco from youth." Both agreed to be Christ's freemen, and pledged abstinance therefrom."

FOURTH DAY.

The Conference opened by Rev. J. B. Loveless conducting the religious devotion. The Conference then proceeded to business. Last Alabama District called. Bro. J. M. Bowman proceeded with a description of his work. Bro. J. B. Loveless reported the state of his work. J. D. Pierce reported his work as growing in all its spiritual and material interests.

The Conference proceeded to elect a delegate to the General Conference: Bro. W. P. Miller, delegate; Bro. J. B. Loveless, reserve.

In the afternoon Conference met according to adjournment, Rev. W. P. Miller in the chair.

The Committees made their reports.

The Conference organized Board of Education.

EVENING SESSION.

The Conference met at 7 o'clock p. m. Religious services conducted by Rev. T. C. Carter, of the Methodist Advocate.

The session was devoted to the recommendation of candidates for the traveling connection, the reading and correcting of statistics, and the finishing up of the Conference business.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the bishop preached a grand sermon, after which he ordained the deacons.

At 3 o'clock Rev. James Mitchell, D. D., preached, the ordination of elders followed, and the bishop read the appointments.

A Biographical Sketch.

Rev. G. B. Donnelly, pastor of the M. E. Church at Washington, Ark., Little Rock Conference, was born in slavery in 1845, but had the good fortune to be educated by his white friends. He entered the traveling connection in the year 1870, and was ordained elder in 1874, and appointed presiding elder of the Pocahontas District in the Union American Methodist Church. In the year 1875 he was appointed deputy superintendent, and preached over the Southern Confederacy for six years, when, in Dec., 1881, he, with his entire membership of twenty preachers, three hundred and fifty members, with some church property, united with the Little Rock Conference, M. E. Church, they believing they could advance the Master's cause better in the Mother Church than in any other. In Feb., 1882, Bishop Peck appointed him to Marion, and in March Bishop Hurst appointed him to his present charge, Washington. This year has been full of hard labor and trials, owing to the great riot in August that came to our raising the entire charge. But notwithstanding these reverses this has been a blessed year's labor. He has organized two new societies on the work, and has fourteen conversions and forty-four accessions to the Church. During his ministerial life he has received into the church 2,100 persons and baptized 1,100 adults and 250 infants. May the next thirteen years of his life be as replete with successful labors in the Master's vineyard as the past has been. May the spirit of the Lord rest upon us all and give us abounding success.

L. W. ELKINS.

Boards of trustees, traveling preachers and committees should always give the number.

A Gentleman.

Show me a man who can quit the company of the young to listen to the kindly voice of age; who can hold cheerful conversation with one whom years have deprived of all charms; show me the man who is willing to help—as if the blush of Helen mantle on his cheek; show me the man who would no sooner look rudely at the poor girl in the village than at the well-dressed in the saloon; show me the man who treats unprotected maidenhood as he would the heiress surrounded by the powerful protections of rank, riches and family; show me him that abhors the libertine's gibe—who shuns him as the blasphemer and traducer of his mother's sex—who scorns as he would the coward the ridiculer of a woman's reputation; show me the man who never forgets for an instant the delicacy and respect that are due to a woman in any condition or class, and you show me a true gentleman.

The Warring Sects.

It is strange, but nevertheless true, that all sects seem to look upon the Methodists and Baptists as standing in need of more attention than the most benighted heathen. The attempts to convert them have been numerous and uncasing, and usually have been unsuccessful.

But light seems no be breaking, and success appears at last to be crowning the efforts of those who are endeavoring to bring the Methodists and Baptists to see the error of their ways. In the last issue of the Christian Evangelist, an organ of the Evangelical church, we find that the Evangelists of Fairburg, Mo., have recently made one convert from the Methodists and one from the Baptists. The representative at Burt Junction, in the same State, reports that he has succeeded in "Reclaiming one Baptist," while a correspondent in Madisonville, Ky., is in paroxysms of jubilation because of the fact that his "last convert was a Methodist minister." This would seem to indicate that the watchers upon the Baptist and Methodist wall are sleeping, that their lamps are untrimmed, and that "the lights along the shore" are not kept so brightly burning as is necessary.

We cannot but think that it is unkind and unfair at this time, when the Methodists are busily engaged in putting down the "arrogance of Rome," for the other sects to bring proselytizing influences to bear upon them, and more especially to try and win their ministers away from them. Such actions are treacherous, and to be condemned. The Evangelicans should remember that it is "Romanism" that demands their prayerful attention; that it is "Popish ignorance" that is to be overcome, and should call their dogs off of their Baptist and Methodist brethren and confine their attacks to the common enemy.—Catholic Examiner.

Ladies Preaching in Sweden.

Mrs. Nelson, of Norway, was for 25 years a successful actress, and was converted under the preaching of one of our ministers in that land. She retired from her profession and began to read Moody's sermons in public. Her great eloquentiary powers, vivified by her sincere convictions on the subjects presented, soon attracted crowds to hear her. The Lutheran ministers opened their churches and chapels for her use. She began to add a few word of her own, which gradually grew into whole discourses. The Lutheran pastors, finding that she had fully identified herself with Methodism, at length excluded her from their churches, and she resorted to public halls and to our overcrowded chapels. She is very modest, intensely in earnest, and conducts herself with such propriety as to gain the universal approval of the preachers of the Conference. Another lady, Miss. Nelly Woll, who has been a teacher in a Lutheran College, has turned her whole attention to the same work.

Short Answers to Great Questions.

REV. E. T. CURNICK, A. M.

Question. What is regeneration? Answer. It is the new birth of the soul in the image of Christ.

Q. What remains in the heart after conversion? A. Inbred sin; sometimes called original depravity; or, the man of sin.

Q. What is inbred sin? A. A natural corruption of the heart and a tendency to commit overt sin, inherited from Adam.

Q. How is original sin manifested? A. It is revealed to the consciousness of the child of God, and is a seed from which spring unholy tempers, false ambitions, pride lust, etc.

Q. What is entire sanctification? A. The cleansing of the heart from inbred corruption, and filling it with the pure love of God.

Q. Are Christians requested to enter upon this state in this life? A. Yes, by the promises and commands of the Bible.

Q. What is the first condition required in obtaining Christian purity. A. Hungering and thirsting after it.

Q. What is the second condition? A. Making an intelligent and detailed consecration to God. This includes body, soul, spirit, family, possessions, present and all future time, etc.

Q. What is the third requirement? A. To believe that the Holy Spirit now accomplishes the work of holiness by applying the blood of Jesus to cleanse the heart from all sin.

Q. How may one know that he is fully saved? A. By the direct witness of the Holy Spirit testifying to the act of cleansing.

Q. What is the sum of Christian perfection? A. Loving God with all the heart, soul, mind, and strength, and loving one's neighbor as himself.—Western.

In early times the Methodists gave some very staid people a good deal of trouble and in some places they do so yet. An old author, referring to these troubles, proposed a remedy which would most effectually prevent the spread of Methodism. "Let the clergy," he said, "live more holily, pray more fervently, preach more heavenly, and labor more diligently than the Methodist ministers; then will Christians flock to the churches to hear us, as they now flock to the meetings to hear them."

What amazes and shocks me is to see the wine-bottle where it is as flagrantly out of place as a bonfire would be on the floor of a powdermill. No intoxicant has any business to be on the table of a family which contains any boys, or on the table of an miscellaeous social party, or in the cupboard of any professional man, or anywhere else, in short, except possibly in the hands of a very discreet and careful physician. Every bottle that contains alcohol contains a serpent. The serpent in Eden was not a more perfect embodiment of deceit. A bottle of Bourbon or Burgundy will deceive the very elect. I am constantly called to labor for the reformation of persons who began with the most honest resolutions to drink moderately; but their glasses insensibly enlarged and deepened, until they became literally a pit of damnation.—Good Times.

A female miser, eighty-three years of age, was found dead in London a few days ago. She owned several houses, 100 acres of land, and $6000 in cash. She had written the Lord's Prayer on both posts of the garden gate, as a charm against thieves. So afraid was she of burglars, that when she had occacasion to go away from home for a day or two, she carried her scanty furniture with her, even the kitchen utensils. She died of cold and hunger.

Young Folk's Corner.

Heber's Christmas Hymn.

Brightest and best of the sons of the morning!
Dawn on our darkness and lend us Thine aid!
Star of the East, the horizon aporning,
Guide where our infant Redeemer is laid!

Cold on His cradle the dew-drops are shining,
Low lies His head with the beasts of the stall;
Angels adore Him in slumber reclining,
Maker and Monarch and Savior of all!

Say, shall we yield Him, in costly donation,
Odors of Edom, and offering divine?
Gems of the mountain and pearls of the ocean,
Myrrh from the forest and gold from the mine?

Vainly we offer each ampler oblation;
Vainly with gifts would His favor secure:
Richer by far is the heart's adoration;
Dearer to God are the prayers of the poor.

Brightest and best of the sons of the morning!
Dawn on our darkness and lend us Thine aid!
Star of the east, the hroizon adorning,
Guide where our infant Redeemer is laid!

Never Swear.

It is mean. A boy of high moral standing would almost as soon steal a sheep as swear.

It is vulgar—altogether too low for a decent boy.

It is cowardly—implying a fear of not being believed or obeyed.

It is ungentlemanly. A gentleman, according to Webster, is a genteel man—well-bred, refined. Such a one will no more swear than go into the street to throw mud with a chimney sweep.

It is indecent—offensive to delicacy, and extremely unfit for human ears.

It is foolish. "Want of decency is want of sense."

It is abusive—to the mind which conceives the oath, to the tongue which utters it, and to the person at whom it is aimed.

It is venomous—showing a boy's heart to be a nest of vipers; and every time he swears one of them sticks out from his head.

It is contemptible—forfeiting the respect of all the wise and good.

It is wicked—violating the divine law, and provoking the displeasure of Him who will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain.

Laughing at Religion.

Never let your children see you ridicule religion. We, a short time since, read of a mother who had been accustomed to laugh at religion in the presence of her family. At last she was brought to her dying bed. She called for her children. They came. With a trembling voice, choked with emotion, and full of remorse, she said, "My children, I have been leading you in the wrong road all your life; I now find the broad road ends in destruction; I did not believe it before. Oh! seek to serve God, and try to find the gate to heaven, though you may not meet your mother there."

What mother desires to prepare for such a dying message, or such a parting scene as must follow?

Heaven, hell, and eternity are tremendous facts that cannot be laughed out of coutenance: They will meet us when our laughing days are over.

If a man will study hard, and so grow in mental power and vigor from year to year, not giving up the work of a careful student until he gives up life itself; if his studies take a broad range, keeping him out of ruts and abreast of his age; and he realizes that every age has its own peculiar truths to teach and errors to combat; if he will keep his heart fresh, warm and tender, and in sympathy with the young; and if, in addition to this, he will take plenty of out-door exercise, then the older he grows the better he will grow in all that goes to make a desirable preacher and pastor. The churches will seek after him until the angels of God call him home.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

For Overworked Professional Men.

Dr. Chas. T. Mitchell, Canandaigua, N. Y., says: "I think it a grand restorer of brain force of nervous energy."

You Cannot Buy It in the Bar-rooms.

What an absurd idea it is to send a sick man, with an ailing stomach, a torpid liver, and impoverished blood, to a bar-room to swallow some stimulating stuff, and call it medicine!

An enormous amount of mischief is constantly done by men who thus trifle with themselves. Instead of healing their diseases, they make them worse. Instead of gaining strength they only acquire the disgraceful habit of tippling.

It is a point worth noting in connection with Brown's Iron Bitters, that this valuable medicine is not sold in bar-rooms, and will not be. It is not a drink. It is a remedy. It is not made to tickle the palate of old topers. It is made to heal disease. It is not made to promote the good-fellowship of a lot of bibulous fellows standing around a bar and asking each other, "What will you take?" It is a true tonic; an iron medicine containing the only preparation of iron which can safely and beneficially be taken into the system.

NEW YORK TIMES FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

CHEAPEST AND BEST

Newspaper in the United States.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of The New York Times was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents, per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of The Times as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within reach of every class of readers involves no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home or abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other Metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs educational progress, and social, religious, and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties and of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the foibles of mankind.

The Sunday Times, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

The Weekly Times gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 the Weekly Times will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, JAN. 3, 1884.

1884. 1884.

Eight or Ten Thousand Subscribers Wanted.

To all Pastors and Members of the M. E. Church in the Southern States:

It is clearly discerned by all act- workers for the church that a vigorous church paper is ed, at a central point, to di- the way for success on the line pure Christian and Wesleyan principles; and by recording the facts of current history, and giving utterance to the wishes of the membership, to assist the Church and Christianity in general.

We are trying to make the SOUTHWESTERN all that our friends have a right to expect, or that we could desire; but we must remind you that your diligent and steady co-operation is absolutely needed to increase our circulation, give us a living support, and to permit us to convey to you each week, in a convenient form, glad tidings from all the fields of labor.

The SOUTHWESTERN is the only official paper of the Methodist Episcopal Church South of the Ohio River; it has been adopted by special vote in seven annual conferences, and circulates in all the Southern States. While the paper now visits thousands of homes each week, there are thousands of others in which it might be placed, as the pastor's assistant and advocate of the church, by a very little effort on the part of its friends.

Begin at once. Send in single subscriptions, lists of five, ten, fifteen, twenty-five, fifty and seventy-five. We rely upon pastors as our agents, but live Methodists everywhere should feel an interest, and send their money right on; and especially from points where pastor's visits are few and far between.

Only FOUR CENTS A WEEK, or TWO DOLLARS A YEAR, is an amount within the means of all. Let us hear from you. Specimen copies sent on application.

The N. O. Picayune served the sawsboys with an elegant Christmas dinner, at which two huge dishes represented the Times-Democrat. Such deeds are deserving of mention and approval.

The sugar planters of Louisiana are uneasy over the prospect of a reduction of the sugar tariff, as foreshad owed by expressions of Hon. Wm. R. Morrison, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and others of the Democratic party, who do not see why millions of workingmen should go without cheap sugar to protect a few thousand planters mainly in Louisiana. Our sugar planters are inclined to hold to the views of Henry Clay and Horace Greeley—on the tariff question, and some of them propose to invite colored laborers to join with them in an appeal to Congress to keep out the slave labor product of Cuba, and the Coolie imports from the Sandwich Islands. It is a sweet subject for consideration, but why should not such co-operation extended to other interests affecting the public welfare? Why is the Republican party, always true to protection doctrines, counted out and shot down in Louisiana. The State is the loser by not having two great parties contending in the field to do the greatest amount of public good. To suppress one party is to foster corruption in the one that rules," which is compelled to silence its conscience for the sake of self-protection.

As We See It.

At the recent meeting of the General Missionary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New York, when the needs of some of the Southern conferences were under discussion, there seems to have been a free expression of opinion on the part of certain members of the committee as to the condition of affairs in the South, and the needs of the work, that has produced a profound sensation all through the South. As to the condition of things in the South there seems to have been but one opinion on the part of the different members of the committee. As to the duty of the Church, there was a difference of opinion. Bishop Foster, able, honest and conscientious, under the pressure of fearful responsibility, gave a free expression of his convictions, and should be treated with perfect respect. We think, however, that in some matters he was mistaken. The other members, while they mostly agreed with the Bishop as to the condition of affairs as he had described them, did not follow his judgment as to the duty of the church under the circumstances. With reference to the illiteracy of the South there is no question. It is humiliating, but is nevertheless true, that a little more than thirty-two per cent. of all the voters South of the Ohio are so utterly ignorant that they cannot tell the Book of Mormon from the Constitution of the United States. And this is not the worst of it. There are tens of thousands who are not reported among these illiterate who can only manage to scrawl their names, but cannot read so as to understand the simplest words in the primer. The people do not read because they cannot. The circulation of the daily and weekly newspapers in the little State of Maine, where the winters are so long, and the soil so barren, is larger than in the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas combined. While in the single State of Pennsylvania the circulation is larger than in the sixteen Southern States. We do not exactly like this alphabetical test of manhood; it is far from being always reliable, but where there is such a vast amount of illiteracy there will be indolence, poverty, and superstition, whether in Africa, India, or America. We are brought face to face with this illiteracy, the responsibility is upon us, we cannot avoid it if we would. We must educate. Toward this work there is a growing cordiality on the part of the South. It is also true that in doing it we have had a large measure of success. There have been large gains of intelligence in all parts of the South, especially among the colored people. Startling as it may appear, in this battle with the powers of ignorance the Negro has made more advancement than the poor whites, not because he has greater facilities, but solely because he has been more eager to learn.

With reference to our "white work in the South," (an expression born about 1876, and redolent of a spirit which we deplore) the results since the division on the color line have not been commensurate with the investments made. Nearly every year expectations have not been realized. That diversion was unMethodistic, it was a departure from the general purpose and spirit of our work up to that time. It was a concession to prejudice. Conscience is always wiser than reason. And yet, no doubt, we may make concessions so long as we do not betray essential principle, but dynamite, death and hell are under the men who make compromises with false doctrine or sinful prejudice and practice. Nothing has done more to assimilate the Methodist Episcopal Church to the character of the churches already here than this project of the color line. And while we are often told that the increase of the white membership of our church in the South since the war was greater than the entire membership of New England, one or two facts are a little significant. A paper that often made this statement died in the midst of this great membership for the want of subscribers. There must have been, to use a mild term, feebleness somewhere. Then, the wonderful era of prosperity that was promised in 1876, has not come. In all truth and honesty it must be conceded that the great progress promised has not been realized. For this reason, everywhere and forever God can only bless the right. Out of this has grawn that unholy spirit of "sectionalism" and "proscription," to which Dr. Young refers in the Central of Dec. 19th. What are the remedies for this state of things? We may not be able to propose any thing that will be adopted. In the first place prosecute the work. Let nothing more be said about abandoning any part of it. Return to the general purpose and spirit of the Church when she entered upon this work. Make no more concessions to accommodate ourselves to the wicked prejudices of the people. Give a vigorous administration. Let there be a free transfer of educated and consecrated men, who will go through the length and breadth of this land "seeking the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Let the doors of the church stand wide open to all who "manifest a desire to flee from the wrath to come." A word more. We think that this constant berating the M. E. Church, South, is quite out of place. It hurts us more than it does them. It is too much like the strange missile the Australian is said to throw. It is true they have abolished the system of probation in their church. We look upon it as a serious mistake; they do not. It may be true that they have no special record on the question of temperance. But in the great temperance movement that is now sweeping all over the South there are no more earnest and active agents than some of the ministers and members of the M. E. Church, South. The person who thinks that this church is in a sickly, decaying or dying condition is wonderfully mistaken. There is not in all the South a more active, aggressive religious force than the M. E. Church South. There is, however, an awful chasm between that Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church. Most of the older members of that Church and many of the younger, whether in the ministry or laity, believe as truly in the Divine origin of the system of American slavery as in 1856. They also believe in the right of secession and rebellion as firmly as in 1861. With some noble exceptions their patriotism is an ardent love for the South, coupled with a fearful prejudice against the North. He who can seriously talk about organic union between these two Methodisms must have about ninety per cent. of the crank in his mental make up. To us this is the conclusion of the whole matter: The Methodist Episcopal Church is here, and we advise that she concentrate all of her forces and devote all of her energies to the work of spreading scriptural holiness over these lands and rescuing sinners from the grasp of the devil; for churches, like individuals, prosper best who pay the closest attention to their own business.

The New Year.

The beginning of a new year, is a fit time to renew our consecration to and covenant with God. The man is very thoughtless or stolid who, as he passed from the old to the new year, does not resolve to be a better man. The trouble is "we resolve and then re-resolve, then die the same," because we have no definite aim, no detailed plan. We run through month after month, and sometimes year after year, and accomplish nothing, because we have no specific plan. Some six hundred of our readers are ministers of the Lord Jesus; most of these have or will soon change their homes. Would it not be well for each of these to pause and ask himself, what well matured plan shall direct me in my work through the year? What book or books shall I read? For the minister who does not keep up the habit of careful reading and close study will soon pass into obscurity. It is a violation of his ordination vows not to do it. He has promised, the Lord being his helper to be diligent in prayer and in reading the Holy Scriptures and in such studies as help to the knowledge of the same. No manifold care, or lack of time can a man offer as his excuse. When the time comes that he cannot keep his vows let him surrender his parchments and retire from the office and work of the ministry. Every Methodist preacher should be familiar with the history and theology of his church. Whether he read Bangs, Stephens, Watson, Pope or Raymond, is not for us to say. We only insist that he carefully read and inwardly digest all that he does read. It should be a part of his plan to take Jesus along with him in his every day life. He can satisfy all the longings of his nature, meet all its needs, supply all its wants, and completely fill his soul with satisfaction. It should be a part of the minister's plan, by the help of the Lord to have a revival this year. He himself will perhaps need more spiritual power. Then he is there as a leader but he is a hinderance, he does not know the way, so he cannot lead the flock, he has heard of Jesus but does not possess him. As a theory he preaches the witness of the spirit with our spirits and tells how the precious blood of Jesus cleanses from all sin, but he has no fresh personal experience. He, full as much as any member of his flock, needs a revival in his own heart. No man can succeed unless he has a plan of personal and pastoral work, from house to house; with a steady gait and loving heart he must keep moving through all the months of the year. No spasmodic or accidental effort will do. The shepherd must know his flock, and the flock must know him. The babes must have milk, adults meat, and the sickly nursing and medicine. In no field of labor is a definite aim and detailed plan more necessary than in the Christian ministry.

The Colorline Legislation of 1876.

If there be anything upon which our conviction is settled, it is in reference to the mistake of the church in her adoption of the colorline legislation of 1876. The intention doubtless was good, but the means, concieved in the sin of race prejudice, were not, and are not now justified, neither are they palliated by the ends thus far attained. According to our Discipline, "it is the design of the Gospel to bring together in one all who are in Christ." The caste legislation here referred to is manifestly contradictory to this Biblical and Christian principle; and until the General Conference modifies the one or repeals the other, the church stands self-convicted of actual duplicity. This legislation has already done more to alienate the two races in the Methodist Episcopal Church than can possibly be imagined. Laying aside all considerations of Southern policies and expendiencies, and taking the Word of God as the tribunal before which this question must be settled, we ask for the repeal of this obnoxious legislation. In this we believe we are doing God's service. Temparary advantages if any such have been secured, obtained through any departure from principle, are sources of the greatest trouble and weakness in the end. The church is not an institution of a day, waxing and waning with the rise and fall of political parties and local prejudices. Like immortal truth, "the eternal years of God are hers." She can afford to labor and wait. She can, with inspiring confidence, cry out to her faithful standard bearers and followers:

"Perish policy and cunning
Perish all that fear the light;
Trust in God, and do the right"

To say that this caste legislation is unscriptural and contrary to the progressive spirit of the age, is to advance a proposition which every one admits. It is simply an offensive expediency adopted to satisfy an unholy race prejudice, conceived, nurtured, and left as a legacy to the church and this Nation by the cruel institution of slavery. This child of the devil, the Methodist Episcopal Church should not have adopted in 1876. Its influence is damaging, and we ask for its repudiation and expulsion. To shield such a hideous monster, the church cannot afford to keep in her discipline for another four years. Such contradictory and meaningless provisions as the following: "The Arkansas Conference shall include the State of Arkansas," and "the Little Rock Conference shall include the State of Arkansas." Again, "the Blue Ridge Conference shall include the State of North Carolina," and "the North Carolina Conference shall include the State of North Carolina not included in the Blue Ridge Conference." These are only specimens from several such that might be cited. They are the inadequate figleaves covering the deformity of the ghost of slavery, as it seeks to hide itself in the church. Let the next General Conference uncover it, in the immediate sunlight of the Cross and the oneness of all believers in Christ Jesus; and let the church renew her labors in the South in the spirit with which she re-entered this field in 1865. This we consider of greater, and more vital importance to the church, and the pernament welfare of this section than anything we have as yet heard in reference to the time limit, which seems, thus far, to have monopolized the attention of thoughtful minds in the church. This is a serious matter, involving vital interests, and deserves the best thought. In view of past and present experience, and the Word of God, our conviction forces us to urge the church to wipe out this blot upon her name, and prayerfully leave the result to God. They that trust in him shall be like Mount Zion, that abideth forever. The church as well as individuals should trust in God and do the right," and leave results to Him.

More Bloodshed in Yazoo.

A terrible tragedy was acted in Yazoo City, dark and bloody ground in Mississippi history, last Christmas eve. John T. Posey, it is said, was insulted by Job James, a negro butcher. Posey went off, got some of his friends and returned to where James had last been seen. It is asserted that this party was fired upon without warning by a party of negroes, and Joe Posey, Carnot Posey, and Jasper Nicholls instantly killed, and H. D. Haller dangerously, and Fred Haller slightly wounded. Jim James, said to be a leading negro in the difficulty, fired three times and was killed by citizens who were trying to arrest him. This narative furnished in press dispatches was a reversal of the usual order in like affairs, and shows that the example set by lawless whites is being closely followed by negroes.

It seemed to be necessary to make some explanation, otherwise the country would have supposed the affray was caused by bad whiskey and indiscreet conduct, and the following document was promptly appended to the press report of the occurrence:

"The Board of Aldermen of Yazoo City, the Mayor presiding, in council convened this, 25th day of December, 188 upon a full investigation of the causes that led to the deplorable difficulty in Yazoo City on Monday night, the 24th instant, culminating in the death of John T. and Carnot Posey, two of our most respected fellow-citizens, declare that said difficulty was the result of a personal altercation between John T. Posey and John James, and that the friends of both parties were drawn into the conflict, but that neither politics nor race prejudices actuated either party in the affray. A. M. ROACH, Mayor."

On Tuesday, however, a meeting of citizens was called and the following resolution adopted:

Resolved, that the tragedy of last night is fraught with deadly consequence to our community, unless some example is made of the guilty parties, and it is the sense of this meeting that there are parties engaged in said tragedy that have been and will be a disturbing element and fire brand among us, and must be gotten rid of by us; and while we are law-abiding citizens we cannot tolerate the idea of our good citizens being shot down, as was done last night; we therefore suggest the appointment of twenty-six persons to assist the sheriff or other officers in arresting all parties implicated in last night's tragedy, and to advise, or take such measures as may be necessary to visit proper punishment on the guilty parties.

Resolved, That we request of this meting that this committee be continued for the purpose of furnishing to the public a history and explanation of last night's tragedy.

The chair appointed a committee of twenty-six, and this committee usurped the functions of a court by presuming to investigate, hear evidence, and declaring W. H. Foote, Micajah Parker and Bob Swayze guilty. Richard Gibbs, who had escaped to Pickens State, was returned and placed in a iron cage. Following in order the previous lawlessness of white citizens of Yazoo, on the night of the 29th about 300 of them surrounded the jail at 7 p. m. and began the search for the prisoners. Although the public excitement was well-known to the Mayor and council, no steps had been taken to protect the jail, and there was no inconvience afforded in the search for the prisoners. The Times-Democrat special says that Robert Swayze protested his innocence until the rope was thrown over his neck, when he said he fired a gun and reckoned he ought to die for it. His throat was cut. W. H. Foote fought desperately, seized a hot andiron with a towel and struck the first man who entered, but he was riddled with bullets, and sank to the floor in a pool of blood. Micajah Parker made no resistance; he said he carried a gun and used it, and was ready to die. He was hung from the stair bannisters. Richard Gibbs, in his iron cage, could not be got out. A rope was put around his neck, attempts to hang him were failures, and he was pulled against the grated bars and shot to death.

The following negroes are now in jail charged with being accessory to the murder: Ike Judkins, Claib Hendricks, Ris Harrington, Henry Schuler, Octavius Thomas, Lewis Carter and George Williams. A guard was appointed for them by the authorities. Messrs. Hart and Halder, wounded on Monday night are doing well and will no doubt recover.

It seems to be clearly established that a personal affair between Posey, white, and James, colored, grew out of Posey's interference in a personal controversy between two negroes, in a drinking saloon, which James protested against, some words were passed then, and later, at another place. Posey deemed himself grossly insulted by James and Foote. Posey went off and soon returned with some armed friends, and one of these soon became involved in a difficulty with Foote. At this interesting crisis of the proceeding came a volley of shot and missiles from the friends of James and Foote, what had reason to apprehend the lawless attack by Posey and his friends, and concluded to exercise their right of self-defense. The idea of negroes exercising the right of self-defense, by like weapons used by whites, is something so novel in the Yazoo country, that the citizens meeting on the following day had no difficulty in arriving at the conclusion that some dangerous characters among them ought to be removed, and hence the "removal" of those negroes met with no opposition; and there was no law and order sentiment, not enough of the spirit of common decency to restrain the slaughter. There is good reason to believe the negroes in firing upon the whites did so in self-defense, there is none to palliate the cold blooded, deliberate assassination of the imprisoned negroes by the associated whites. And these deeds in Yazoo took place while the world was rejoicing over the birth of the Savior whose message is "Peace on earth, good will to men."

Education in the South.

Nearly all the Southern secular press take the position that the general government should aid the Southern States in wiping out the illiteracy that hangs like a dark cloud upon them. Some of our leading journals, as the Times-Democrat, say "it is beyond the power of the Southern States to accomplish this alone and unassisted." But the reasons assigned for this aid are not altogether sound. It doubtless is true that the enfranchisement of the Negro is the act of the federal government. Perhaps this was done hastily without proper consideration, but it is not true that the Negroes are the only illiterate voters in the South; they are not the only persons in the south who are so utterly uneducated as to be unable to read or write. In 1860 there were over six hundred thousand white persons over twenty years of age here in the south, most of them native born, who could neither read or write, and could not tell the constitution of this country from the book of Mormon. They were the prey of the demagogue, casting ballots whose contents were to them unknown except from heresay. Kentucky has a white population. according to our late census, of 1,377,179, of these there are 214,497 over ten years of age who cannot read. She has a colored population of 271,611, of these there are 133,895 ten years of age and over who cannot read. Here we have in this state 344,392 over ten years of age who cannot write. This State has a school population of 445,161 and pays for their education $917,392 a little over $2 per capita. The state of Georgia has a white population of 128,934 who cannot write, and a colored population of 391,-433, and pays $471,029 annually for educational purposes, a little over $1 per capita for the school population, while California, with a school population of 215,978, pays for their education $2,711,781, a little over $12 per capita, California pays six times per capita as much as Kentucky, and twelve times as much as Georgia. We think it safe to say that the illiteracy is not conferred to the Negroes. Thousands of the poor whites are in ignorance of books as are the colored people, and it is just as evident that the money set apart by these States for educational purposes will never root out the illiteracy prevailing in them. We plead for federal aid in the work of education in these States to be administered by federal hands.

An Awful Scourge.

The social drinking habits of our people are not only embruting the poor and illiterate, but the wealthier and educated classes of society. Not only the men but the women are fast becoming tipplers. In what is known as fashionable circles of society the use of wine by women is nearly as common as its use by men. We have been told of unmarried young ladies who have their favorite brand of wines, and call for them as free from a blush as they would ask for an ice cream. If this habit is formed in early life what can we hope for in maturer years! Of course we do not think this is true of the great mass of our women, and yet the excessive use of wine, and sometimes champagne, by certain ladies in high life at great assemblies is too common to be denied. We think that there is a loud call for an earnest warfare against this vice that is sweeping into its vortex so many of our youth. We think that Christian ministers should lift up their voices against the introduction of the wine cup into any and all festive occasions. Let the pulpit speak out clear and strong, and seek to save not only these young maidens but our young men from falling under the maddening influences of the wine-cup. There is neither honor nor happiness in it, nothing but shame, degredation and death. "Whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Work To Be Done In Africa.

According to Stanford's recent compendium of African geography, there are on that dark continent no less than six hundred and eighty-three different languages spoken. There is a mighty work for missionaries, translators, printers and Bible societies. Each tribe needs to be placed in possession of the Word of Life with a translation of its own. The magnitude of this task will be more perfectly comprehended from the fact that Mr. Stanley, during his journey of seven thousand miles across the continent, says he did not meet with a single person who had ever heard the Gospel. He constantly met with the grandest features of vegetable life, the most powerful and savage and repulsive forms of mere animal life. Uncivilized, wild grandeur, marks its physical features, degration vileness, bloodythirstyness its native human life. On this vast continent it is estimated that there are at present from three hundred millions to three hundred and fifty millions of human beings of different races, languages, and faiths

Stanley, in his journey down the Congo, came to the dominions of King Kasongo, whom he describes as a ruler of bloodythirsty habits and principles. One custom of this monarch's country is that of burying alive a number of wives on the occasion of the death of a chief, so that he may not go into the spirit world unattended. The following ceremony on the death of the king shows how low and degraded the people are: "The course of some stream is turned, a deep pit dug in its bed, the bottom of which is covered with living women. At one end a woman is placed upon her hands and knees, and upon her back the dead king, covered with his beads and other treasures, is seated, being supported on either side by his wives, while his second wife sits at his feet. The earth is then shovelled in on them, and all the women are buried alive, except the second wife, to whom custom grants the privilage of being killed before the huge grave is filled in. This being completed a number of male slaves, sometimes forty or fifty, are slaughtered, and their blood poured upon the grave, after which the river is allowed to resume its course."

Counsel Pethrick tells us that among the "Abarambo people a dead body is put up at auction and sold to the highest bidder. The buyer after getting possession of the body cuts it up like the carcase of a sheep or bullock, and retails the pieces and joints to the people for consumption as food." The religion of most of these tribes is a kind of fetichism or system of charms; the practice of using fetishe is almost universal, they are supposed to guard the wearer from every form of evil. Some of them belong to the person, some to the home, others to the chief and warriors, and others to the towns or roads. Most any man would sooner part with his life than lose his fetish. Witchcraft is strongly believed in by almost every race and tribe in Africa. To the Banta tribes the crocodile is sacred; at Bonny the shark, at Dahomey the elephant, in other localities monkeys, serpents, hyenas, and tigars are worshiped. Any snake that creeps up first to the grave of the dead chief is supposed to be his spirit, and is from that time viewed as a sacred thing, receiving daily offerings of food and prayers. From these brief statements as to the condition of Africa, will be seen her great need of the gospel. During the past eighty-five years the British and American Bible societies have issued the Bible in two hundred and thirty different languages, but here in Africa we have six hundred and eighty-three different tongues waiting for the Word of Life to come to them. One stands almost appalled as he contemplates the magnitude of the work. Africa needs a knowledge of the redemption of the world by Jesus Christ. Some have taken their lives in their hands and gone to labor in their behalf, to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to serve the living God, but still it is emphatically the "Dark Continent" and mentally and morally "gross darkness covers the people." Their heathenism is not like that of Japan, India, or Fiji, but a hundred fold more degrading. There is work to be done in Africa.

Editorial Correspondence.

NOTES AND ITEMS.

The Divine command is, "Knock, and it shall be opened unto you.' This is just what Bro. Jos. Johnson has been doing all this year at Vermilionville—knocking inspired by the promise of Him who gave the command, that "to him that knocketh it shall be opened." The prospects seemed rather unfavorable when he first reached this point; so much so that many less courageous men might have abandoned the task ere they had even attempted it, but Bro. Johnson grew courageous in the midst of discouragements, continued his efforts until first one door and then another opened unto him; and now he has access to the homes of some of the best people in Vermilionville; supplies, nearly every Sunday, the pulpit of the Colored M. E. Church, which is now without a pastor; performs all the ritual services for them, and has the assurances of many to join our church, out of which they were ignorantly and, as I am informed, fraudulently taken, as soon as grounds can be secured and a building erected, or arrangements can be made to redeem to us the present property of the C. M. E. Church. At Scott Station, on the La. Western R. R., in (this) LaFayette parish, about five miles from Vermilionville, Bro. Johnson has gathered twenty-two members, who have joined our church, besides a goodly congregation. These are our first fruits in this parish. Verily, to him that knocketh faithfully, prayerfully and persistently, it shall be opened. A little Church Extension and Missionary Aid is all that is now necessary to permanently and effectively establish our church at both of these promising and rapidly growing towns in this parish. Brethren, work for all our benevolent societies, especially for the Missionary, Church Extension and Freedmen's Aid Societies, they are the bulwark of our connectional Methodism. At New Iberia, Bro. C. Thompson and his people were getting on very nicely. In consequence of the sugar grinding season, which generally has the effect to keep the congregation somewhat scattered at this time of the year, his support for the quarter, and other collections were comparatively small. The grinding season is about over now, however, and the indications are that all deficiencies will now be made up. Bro. Thompson doubtless needs, and certainly deserves his estimated allowance. Here I have $73.50 subscribed to me for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology, but in consequence of my getting there during the sugar making season collected only $5. cash. I have appointed Bro. Robt. Wilkins, president, and Bro. E. B. Richards, secretary of that fund in New Iberia. All those there who subscribed to me will please pay the cash to these brethren, All district stewards at other points are hereby constituted my agents for this fund. St. Martinsville, known as the town without a Jew, is the oldest in that section. Not a single Jew is numbered within her limits. They were all taunted and frozen out, by the intolerant spirit of the prevailing Romanism. This fact will probably account for the apparent commercial inactivity of the place. Our church here has but a very small town membership. Nearly all our members live from three to twelve miles out in the country, making all evening services somewhat unpopular. Bro. R. Anderson, our pastor here, has had many unfavorable things with which to contend, which have had the effect to cripple some of his best efforts. He is laboring to close up his year in good style, however. The officers of this charge have rebelliously refused to comply with some of the legitimate instructions of the district conference, for which they deserve, and will doubtless be called to account. The membership is loyal, however, and deserve much praise for their laudable efforts for the local and general interests of the church. At Thompson and Pecan, Bro. Bolden, has not succeeded in doing much during the quarter; sugar grinding has so seriously interfered. The work is about as at the third quarter. Money is still being collected with which to build at Hubertville, upon the lot bought and paid for some time ago. Bro. W. Brooks, at Glencoe, is a born worker. He drives every man to his work, and does not fail to work himself. The churches and Sunday schools on his circuit, including Glencoe, Cato Blanche and Weeks' Island, are doing well. The result of his year's work shows over $1100, collected for all purposes, over $700 of which were paid on building, and a splendid 36 inch bell of the celebrated Blymer's make. The spiritual interests are quite as flattering. At Glencoe, we have in operation a large and promising mission school taught by Miss Lizzie Kelso, of Alexandria. The school is supported by the Woman's Home Missionary Society of Glencoe M. E. Church, which was organized here a few months ago by Sister Suzan Barksdale, District Superintendent for the LaTeche district. No church is true to its best interests that does not appreciate and foster this missionary educational movement. It deserves the leadership, help and endorsement of every faithful pastor, in fact we are persuaded that no pastor who cares for his flock will sit idly by withholding his enthusiastic help and influence therefrom. Closing up the fourth round, we had a good time at Jeannerette on Sunday night Dec. 23d. Bro. Fields has done well on this work and is continually growing into popularity. Some people, preachers included, grow into popularity, like Jonah's guard, coming up in a night and perishing in a night. They work themselves up in the estimation of their neighbors and people in a lightning-like rapidity, but they slide themselves down quite as rapidly. Such preachers continue in the ascending modes for the first two quarters of the conference year, but they start on the declination with the beginning of the third, and at the fourth quarter they are hopelessly discounted, beyond the hope of recovery. Bro. Fields has made solid growth in the affections of his people at Jeannerette and St. Peter. With the close of last conference year, he was more popular than at the beginning; with the close of this, he is more popular than last year. This act speaks well for him. The financial activity and spiritual life of both churches on the circuit are apparent. Thus closes another year of hard, though successful Christian work. The Lord has blessed us with manifertations of his presence and help; and the end of every quarter's work found me in better health and spirits than its beginning. In the mud and rain; across bayous and rivers, in flat boats, skiffs and dugouts; lying down whole nights on benches in lonely railroad depots, waiting for delayed trains; walking alone in the dark hours before day; going to some appointments in rain and water, with valise in hand, four miles; riding, on carts, breaking vehicles and plow horse and stubborn, tough monthed mules; and at one time stepping out of a skiff, on the head of a ground rattle snake; the Lord has constantly been with me, and no evil has befallen me. Every point on the district has been visited, every interest looked after and encouraged, in church and Sunday-school; a glorious District Conference held, and over 5000 miles traveled over in the prosecution of work intrusted to my hand during the year. Some good I sincerely hope, and feel, has been effected. Thank God for His presence and help, and His promise for the future; and to Him be all the glory, both now and forever. A. Jeannerette, La.

The Christmas eve demonstration on Canal street, New Orleans deserves the censure it received from the press and respectable people. Horns, firecrackers and firework, pistols, etc., contributed to a general riot participated in by thousands of both sexes and all ages. Considered from a sanitary point of view, it was intolerable; and all consideration for public morals demand that there shall be no repetition of it.

J. S. Rivers, stationer, No. 74 Camp street, New Orleans, has our thanks for a liberal supply of calendars for 1884.

PERSONAL.

—General W. T. Sherman has been elected post commander of Ransom Post, No. 131, G. A. R., of St Louis.

—Rev. S. H. Werlein, of the M. E. Church South, has been transferred from the Texas to the Louisiana Conference.

—It is said that all the Bishops of the M. E. Church, South with passibly one exception, were converted under twenty years of age.

—Rev. M. W. Taylor we learn from a letter dated Jeffersonville, Ind., Dec. 21st, is improving in health, but not able to go out very much yet.

—Bishop Merrill and wife arrived at home, in Chicago, from Japan and China, on Thursday, Dec. 20. They had a delightful trip, and return in good health.

—It is asserted by a writer in the Northern Christian Advocate, that Rev. John P. Newman, in a will made after the last General Conference, willed every dollar he was worth to Methodist Institutions.

—Rev. Dr. W. Underwood, pastor of the Methodist Church at Seaford, Del., has been elected a Life Fellow of the Society of Science, Letters and Art, of London, and invested with the special rights of Licentiate in Microscopy.

—Archbishop N. J. Perche died at 9:30 p. m., Dec. 27th. He was an able, and highly esteemed Catholic, eloquent preacher and forcible writer. He served his church in Louisiana for 40 years. He was a native of France. His remains, after imposing ceremonies, were deposited in St. Louis Cathedral, New Orleans, yesterday.

—Bishop Henry W. Warren was married in Denver, Colorado, Dec. 27th, to Mrs Elizabeth S. Iliff, Bishop Simpson officiated. The Bishop and wife are expected to pass through this city shortly to take a steamer for Mexico. The official visitation to the work there will at the same time be an extended and glorious bridal tour. They have the congratulations and prayers of the church.

—Last Thursday Bishop C. D. Foss stopped over a few hours in St. Louis on his way home from the Southern Conferences which he has attended, namely Georgia, Alabama, Central Alabama and Savannah. He says that while our work in those sections is still attended with usual difficulties, more or less progress has been made. During his stay at Savannah he was entertained by Judge Bigby, a member ot the Methodist Church South, in which church the Bishop preached by invitation.—Central.

—The Donaldsonville Chief of Dec. 22 announced the death from small-pox of the wife of Rev. Pierre Landry, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge district Methodist Episcopal Church: also that two of Bro. Landry's children were attacked by the same disease. The children are reported by his son Oscar Ladry, of this city, as doing well, with fair prospect of recovery Of Mrs. Amanda Landry, who died just before day, Dec. 21, the Chief says: "She was a good woman. warmly devoted to the interests of her family, and her loss will be keenly felt by them. All who were acquainted with the deceased will learn with regret of her untimely death." We know the brethren of the Louisiana Conference join us in expressions of heartfelt sympathy for Brother Landry, and his bereaved family.

LOUISIANA.

M. McFrazier, Thibodaux: "Woman's Home Missionary Soc[illegible] attends the sick and buries the dead. We are grateful to Rev. F. T. Chinn for his instruction. The Society is moving onward, and preparing to meet the annual conference. It hopes to be second to none."

A grand concert was given by the Sunday-school at First Street Church, New Orleans, for the benefit of the Freedmen's Aid. The people were pleased, and the affair passed off nicely. The receipts were near $70, and it is expected to to clear about $45.

MISSISSIPPI.

John H. Cook, Summit: "This is my third year on this circuit. I have worked hard. We own two lots in Summit, 50x200 feet; have a parsonage built by me with four rooms and a garden attached. Brick pillars were put under the church house, the walls were remodeled, glass windows put in and good flooring. The value is now $300. At Magnolia I bought a new lot, on which a church has been built. The property there is worth about $600. At Brookhaven we are building a belfry 60 feet high, and on completion with other improvements will add $200 to the value of the church. On the work during my stay about $1000 has been added to the value of the church property. I have learned something about laying brick, as I built 43 pillars and one chimney. When I came I had $150 saved to enable me to attend some theological schooll that is now gone and I have not had an opportunity to attend school. Elder McDonald held last quarterly conference Dec. 1 and the reports evidenced prosperity. We had thirteen conversions, twenty accessions and improved financial reports. Raised for pastor, $234.70; for elder, $40; for bishops, $150; benevolent purposes, $16.70. I have complied with the rule in the discipline that says a minister must spend and be spent."

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. E. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

The Housekeeper.

Kitchen tables may be made as white as snow if washed with hard soap and wood ashes. Floors look best scrubbed with cold water and wood ashes.

Tea stains and many fruit stains may be removed with boiling water; pour the water through the stain in order to prevent it from spreading through the material.

A few drops of hartshorn put into a little water will clean a hair brush very nicely. If very dirty, use a little soap also. After cleansing rinse in clear water, tie a string around the handle and hang it up to dry.

To make good starch, mix with cold water and add boiling water until it thickens; then add a dessert spoon of sugar and a small piece of butter. This makes a stiff and glossy finish equal to new.

To remove the stains of French shoe polish, either from woolen or cotton goods, wash the spot with tallow soap and let it stand an hour or so' then wash it in clean water and afterward proceed as with any soiled article.

Oysters to be fried ought to be gently pressed on a clean towel till almost dry, then immersed in beaten egg then dipped in crumbs, then placed in a pan containing exactly the right amount of very hot lard or butter, or a mixture of both. This pan should be set over a very lively fire and as near the coals as possible. Thus to fry oysters is but the work of a few moments. Fry the oysters too brown and you spoil them. If properly fried the oyster is not greasy.

A few sheep could be kept upon every dairy farm with profit, and would be a benefit to the pastures, eating that which the cows reject, and when in winter quarters they would eat much the cows refuse, and so would be of very small extra cost.

OUTDOOR AIR.—Give your children plenty of outdoor air; let them sniff it until it sends the rosy current dancing joyfully to their cheeks and temples. Air is so cheap and so good and so necessary that no child should be denied access to it.

The best way to harden the body is to protect it well from extremes both of cold and heat, and build up a strong constitution by good food, good sleep and good exercise. The Scotch Highlanders, with their bare legs, are victims to rheumatism.

The best paste for scrap books, preserve jars, etc. is boiled flour paste made with a half-teaspoonful of pure carbolic acid and ten drops of oil of cloves to the pint.

TO PREVENT MOLD ON JELLIES.—A correspondent of The Continent gives the following directions, which, if followed, will no doubt prove effectual, labor-saving, and economical: "In former years it was as much trouble to me to cover my jellies as it was to make them. My plan was to cut numerous circles of paper. The small ones were dipped in brandy and laid over the surface. Then a larger circle was immersed in white egg, and drawn tightly over the cup, bowl or tumbler. The egg produced an air-tight covering, and also served as paste. My husband is a chemist, and one day, upon observing my tedious proceeding, he asked me why I did not lay a lump of paraffine on the top of the hot jelly, and let it melt and spread. The success was perfect. No mold—no brandied paper—no paper at all! If a little doubtful in regard to whether or not the jelly is sufficiently stiff at the time of placing it in the glasses, the paraffine can be melted and poured over the cold surface after any length of time. When the jelly is needed for use, a knife slipped under the edge will remove the whole cake, which can be laid away for service next year. I have followed this plan several years, and neither mold nor sugary surface has molested me."

Among new editions of late publications in elegant bindings, we note the following; Our American Artists, in two volumes, by S. G. W. Benjamin, American Minister to Persia, which contain sketches of the most prominent artists in America, with views of their studios, reproductions of their famous pictures, &c.; Waifs and their Authors, by A. A. Hopkins. A collection of choice poems, which have won their way to fame, regardless of their authors; The Old Oaken Bucket, with drawings by Miss L. B. Humphrey; the series of handsome Birthday Books, Shakespeare, Tennyson, and The Autograph; The New England Story Book, with its thirty-seven tales, by the most famous of New England writers, with excellent illustrations; Christmas Carols, by notable American poets, with illustrations by the best American artists, in a new and elegant edition, furnishing one of the choicest of gift books; Out of Darkness into Light, with exquisite poems and drawings by Mary A. Lathbury, illustrative of the soul's striving after truth.

Among authors who are standard favorites with our boys and girls, Pansy contributes to the new publications of this house Ester Ried yet Speaking, a story which will be as welcome as her Four Girls at Chautauqua, The Hall in the Grove etc. Margaret Sidney, one of the most popular writers of the day, and author of Five Little Peppers, What the Seven Did, etc., furnishes a book of equal interest under the title of Who Told it to me, while Edward A. Rand's new book, All Aboard for the Lakes and Mountains, will be received with enthusiasm by all boys.

The extracts from General Garfield's journal of a four month's trip to Europe, made in 1867 with Mrs. Garfield, which are to appear in the January Century, begin with the embarkation at New York, July 13th.

"What are you crying about?" asked a kind-hearted stranger of a lad who was standing in front of a newspaper office weeping as if his heart would break. "O, dad's gone up stairs to lick the editor." "Well, has he come down yet?" pursued the gentle Samaritan. "Pieces of him has," explained the boy, indulging in a fresh out-burst of tears, "and I'm expecting the rest every minute."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A physician on presenting his bill to the executor of a deceased patient, asked, "Do you want to have your bill sworn to?" "No," replied the executor, "the death of the deceased is sufficient evidence that you attended him professionally."

There is something soft and tender in the fall of a single snow-flake, but it always reminds us to look after our bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup,—our old stand-by in the days of Coughs and Colds,—for we have always found it reliable.

Judge Thompson of the city court of Louisville, Ky., has invented a novel mode of punishment. When a father enters complaint before him against his boy, the judge directs the father to go to the yard adjoining the court room and there apply the rod which he had neglected to do at home. The invention has succeeded finely to the great delight of the judge. In nearly all cases of wayward children the fault is more with the parents than with the children. If they let their boys roam the streets at night and get into mischief and crime, the parents should be punished as well as the boys, and of the two, the former are more guilty.

Indulgent parents who allow their children to eat heartily of high-seasoned food, rich pies, cake etc., will have to use Hop Bitters to prevent indigestion, sleepless nights, sickness, pain, and, perhaps, death. No family is safe without them in the house.

Pittsford, Mass., Sept. 28, 1878.

Sirs—I have taken Hop Bitters and recommend them to others, as I found them very beneficial. MRS. J. W. TULLER.

The Albuquerque Morning Journal says: "The best thinkers all now agree that education is the true solution of the Indian problem. We have tried fighting them and feeding them, and both these plans have signally failed, but education, in the few experiments we have tried with it, has been thoroughly successful, and if we can establish and maintain schools enough to educate the children that are now growing up, our Indian difficulties will be at an end, and the coming generation of Indians, instead of being savages to be hunted down by troops, or 'corraled' like wild beasts and fed at the public expense, will be peaceful and useful citizens."

Alfred Tennyson

has contributed to the Christmas Number of the Youth's Companion the only poem he has written for an American publication this year. The same issue has a bright sketch by Charles Reade, entitled "The Kindly Jest." As this number is a double number of twenty pages, it is full of entertaining stories, sketches of travel and adventure, poems, puzzles, with numerous illustrations. The Frontispeice of the Colored Cover is drawn by Harry Fenn. The publisher will give this Christmas Number free to any one who subscribes now. They are printing 350,000 copies to supply the demand for it. It was ready December 13th.

Consumption of the Lungs. A case of rapid development accompanied by severe Hemorrhage.

The following testimonial to the prompt action of Compound Oxygen in a case of rapidly developing Consumption of the lungs, is given by the writer in order, as he says, that by means of its publication, "some afflicted one may be induced to try your very simple and beneficial remedy."

FOUNTAIN CITY, IND., April 17 1882.

"DRS. STARKEY & PALEN. Dear Sirs:—My lungs have been affected for years, it being hereditary with me, my mother having died of Consumption. One year ago this last winter I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs and finally resulted in a severe hemorrhage. I had a hard, hacking cough all spring; in fact all through the summer, at times. Last fall, as the cold weather came on, my cough increased and I was having night sweats every night and had one or two severe hemorrhages. I was very much reduced in flesh. The color had left my lips and I was expectorating thick, yellow matter, often mixed with blood. Had to lie propped on pillows at night. I had about made up my mind that a few more months would end my earthly career, and my friends have told me since I began to improve that some of them had only given me until next May to live: but if I die before that time now I will have to go in some other way than Consumption. I have not had a single night sweat since I began your Treatment. My cough has almost disappeared and I am rapidly improving.

"Very gratefully yours, J. L. PARKER."

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard St., Phila.

According to President Garfield's definition of a brave man, Temperance people are brave. He said: "If there is one thing upon earth that mankind love and admire better than another, it is a brave man; it is a man who dares to look the devil in the face and tell him he is a devil." That is just what Temperance people do with the liquor traffic. It is Satan incarnate, and we look him in the face and tell him so.

Delicate and Feeble Ladies.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity, driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain are permanently removed. None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters with such good effect that she seems, and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, in Providence.

BRADFORD, PA., May 8, 1875.

It has cured me of several diseases, such as nervousness, sickness at the stomach, monthly troubles, etc. I have not seen a sick day in a year, since I took Hop Bitters. All my neighbors use them.

MRS. FANNIE GREEN.

$3,000 Lost.—"A tour of Europe that cost me $3,000 done me less good than one bottle of Hop Bitters; they also cured my wife of 15 years' nervous weakness, sleeplessness, and dyspepsia."

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

"I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, two years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, and TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have cleaned me out nicely. Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time, the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved, and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

General News Items.

Ex-Gov. Lowe, of Iowa, died in Washington, D. C., Dec. 22d.

The invalid wife of Gen. Rosecrans died in Washington, Dec. 25.

Gov. Butler has declined to pardon Hathaway, the Fall River embezzler.

The impeachment of the New Orleans City Treasurer was abandoned, and he was formally reinstated.

The Atchafalaya bridge on the Texas and Pacific Railroad has been completed, and trains are now running over it.

Elizabeth Clark, captain of the Salvation Army, has been requested by the authorities to quit Neufchatel.

The distillers have commenced their raid on Congress for an extension of time in which to pay the tax on bonded spirits.

Speaker Carlisle had top few committees to accommodate the aspirants for chairmanship, and there are many disappointed Congressmen.

The Orangemen's procession at Harbor Grace N. F., was attacked by a mob and three men were instantly killed and several mortally wounded.

The continued mental depression of Gen. McKenzie, commanding the Department of Texas, has led friends to send him to the Military Insane Asylum, at Washingoon.

The remains of Commander De Long, Dr. Ambler, and Dr. Collins taken from Irkutsk, are en route to St. Petersburg. The coffins were covered with flowers by the townspeople.

In a prayer meeting in Westfield, Mass., a brother arose and said: "I want to hear sung that beautiful hymn, "Split Doors." A ripple of laughter was suppressed by a sister who struck up "Gates Ajar." "That's it! that's it!" the brother shouted, as he sat down to enjoy the melody.

Captain Jas. B. Eads has offered to deepen the water on the Galveston bar to 30 feet for $7,500,000; to be paid by the Government on the same terms as in the South Pass Jetty contract. Thereafter the Government will have to pay $100,000 per annum, for a period of 20 years, to have the 30 foot channel maintained.

Four sons of prominent citizens of Milwaukee, Wis., have been arrested for arson. They confessed their guilt. All were under fifteen years old. They had devoured the contents of dime novels; formed a league which met in the public library had a chief, knights and subknights; wrote threatening letters, "and had planned a regular cowboy campaign for this winter."

In replying to a deputation of Derby workingmen, who had presented him with a service in porcelain, Premier Gladstone said the measure for extending the suffrage would very soon be presented to Parliament, and he felt that the passage of the bill would not only strengthen the throne, but unite all other classes among themselves.

At Washington Judge Wylie rendered a decision in the case of ex-Senator Spencer, charged with contempt of court in failing to appear in the star-route trial. The Judge held that the subpœna was not a subpœna because there was no penalty to it; that it had been improperly served and returned, and therefore he held the case was not one of contempt, and discharged the prisoner.

Near Blakely, Ga., a yoke of oxen ran away while the driver was standing behind them, lighting his pipe. Dropping the match, he started in pursuit of the runaways. The pine straw took fire, and the fire spread, sweeping all before it. Some farmers lost nearly all their fencing, and a Mr. Davis, who was sick in bed, lost every building on his place except his dwelling, and that was saved with much difficulty.

Survivors report that on the steamer St. Augustine, which burned in the Bay of Biscay, terrible scenes were witnessed. Sailors stabbed and drowned themselves in frenzy, and the second mate shot himself. One of the captain's legs was cut off by accident, when at his request a weight was tied to his body and he was cast into the sea. Several survivors have been landed at Dover and Newcastle.

Cured My Wife's Weakness.

From Evansville, Ind., the home of our correspondent, Mr. Jno. R. Patterson, comes the following: "Samaritan Nervine cured my wife of a case of female weakness." It's an extract from Mr. Patterson's letter. $1.50.

A little girl on Long Island offered a rather remarkable prayer a few nights ago, when she said "I do thank Thee, God, for all my blessings, and I'll do as much for you some time."

Young men or middle aged ones, suffering from nervous debility and kindred weakness should send three stamps for Part VII of World's Dispensary Dime Series of books. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Littell's Living Age For 1884.

For forty years The Living Age has been published with uninterrupted success, and has enabled its readers, at small expense of time and money, to keep pace with the literary progress of the age. Frequent in issue, and unequalled among periodicals in amount of matter, it furnishes an unrivalled compilation of a great and growing literature which embraces the productions of the most eminent living writers in all departments of literary and scientific work. And as this literature grows year by year in extent and importance, The Living Age becomes more valuable. Filling the place of many periodicals, it can hardly be dispensed with by any American reader who desires a thorough compendium of the best literature and thought of the time. Its prospectus for 1884 is commended to the attention of all who are selecting their reading-matter for the new year. Reduced clubbing rates with other periodicals are given, and to new subscribers remitting now for the year 1884 the intervening weekly numbers are sent gratis. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers. [dec6-6t

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON I. Jan. 6, 1884. THE CONFERENCE AT JERUSALEM. (Acts XV, 1-11.)

The lessons in the Acts of the Apostle for 1883 concluded with the return of Paul and Barnabas to Antioch from their first missionary tour in Cyprus and Asia Minor. After the conversion of Cornelius the admission of Gentiles into the Christian Church was rapid, and especially on this journey of the apostles large numbers were brought in. Their freedom from the Jew observances—a freedom they rejoiced in and gave noticeable expression to—colnd not but awaken inquiries and feelings of jealousy or disapproval among Jewish Christians, reared as they had been in the formalism of Jndaism, and, as yet, not sufficiently imbned with the new and freer spirit of Christianity either to accept cordially for themselves the freedom which the new dispensation intended to impart, or to permit it to be enjoyed by the Gentile Christians. To the Jew, Christianity was a feeder to Judaism, a scheme through which were to come no Gentile people's salvation and their incorporation into the Jewish Church—which Church was to be coextensive with the Messiah's Kingdom. This view was contested by Paul and Barnabas, in the present memorable council, and though they came ont of it victorious, the tronble rankled on through the life-time of Paul, who unweariedly withstood it to the end.

A Dead Shot.

May be taken at liver and bilious disorders with Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets." Mild yet certain in operation; and there is none of the reaction consequent upon taking severe and drastic catharties. By druggists

MARRIAGES.

At the residence of the bride's parents, Houston, Texas, Thursday, Dec. 6, 1883, Mr. Noah F. Kent and Miss Ella A. Seasums, Rev. J. B. Soott officiating. The bride is the daughter of Rev. John Seasums of the Texas Conference.

In this city, Nov. 29, by Rev. M. J. Dyer, Joshua A. Parker and Fannie Batcher. By the same, Dec. 2, Edward and Pauline Logwpod. By the same, Dec. 8, J. B. Blackman and Emma Brooks, all of this city.

In the M. E. Church, Brandon, Miss., by Rev. A. Handy, Miss Ida Beatrice Brown and Mr. S. B. Dill, Dec. 5, 1883. The parties are highly esteemed in Brandon, and the event is considered a happy one.

In Alleyton, Texas, Dec. 5, 1883, by Rev. G. R. Smith, Mr. J. C. Taylor, formerly of Brenham, and Miss Millie R. Smith, of Colorado. Mr. E. W. Wright and Miss Martha Henderson.

The following persons were united together in matrimony by Rev. H. L. Kennedy: Nov. 28, 1883, Mr. A. Rodges to Miss Lizzie Martin. Dec. 12, Wm. Hodges to Miss Henrietta Smith. Dec. 22, Mr. Clay Tigs to Miss Fannie Adams. Dec. 23, Mr. Lewis Adams to Miss Elvira Stackhouse; all of Copiah county, Miss.

By Rev. H. J. Wright, of Natchitoches, La., Dec. 20, 1883, Mr. Joseph Henry and Miss Mary Stewart.

DEATHS.

Bro. Sam Steward, of the Marlin, Texas, church, died recently; also sister Caroline Oliver died Nov. 3, leaving a husband and child.

In New Orleans, Dec. 21, Sister Mary Dowery, aged 49 years. Sister Dowery was an earnest, active christian woman; a faithful member of Sixth Street Church. She died of heart disease, without a moment's warning. But we trust that to her sudden death was sudden glory. The people with whom she lived and died esteemed her highly, and showed all the attention possible, claiming the privilege of meeting all the expense of her funeral, for which her friends are truly thankful. We mention this to show that a correct Christian life commands the respect of all. M. J. DYER.

Sister Ann August died Oct. 30, 1883. She was a worthy member of the Woman's Homs Missionary Society, Calvary M. E. Church, Thibodaux, La. She leaves a daughter and two sons. M. MCFRAZIER.

This is a free country! sure, but you can't get Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup free of charge, it costs you a quarter every time.

For sale by Phillips & Hnnt, 32 Natchez street, New Orleans.

Guenn. A Wave on the Breton Coast. By Blanche Willis Howard. Boston, James R. Osgood & Co., 12mo 439 pages.

Miss Howard has already made her mark in literature. "One Summer," "Aunt Serena," were good. To these she now adds the present volume, in which she has struck a higher note from another standpoint and in a new line of treatment, one which enables her to discuss certain points more freely than in any other form. It is a French story, has for its heroine a French peosant girl bronght np on the Breton coast. The book takes its name from her, and is mostly concerned with her fortunes. A well-bred, and well-educated New Englander is introdnced, who is represented as having a fondness for art. He had gone to Brittany to paint pictures of the French peasantry along the coast. The sketches are all drawn by a master hand, and while the anthor strikes some severe licks, the sketches are mostly trne to every day life. The heroine is represented as the rudest boldest, and most beantifnl, bnt fascinating girl in Breton village, her lover as cold and selfish. Here we think the author drops a little into extremes. Bnt our eye has not rested upon a line in this book that could raise on any yonng ladies cheek a blnsh. Gnenn uniformly appears as perfectly free from guilte. The book is sure to find a mnltitude of readers in America. The anthor has erected for herself and enduring monument.

Poems for the Fireside. In three parts: Childhood, Youth, and Mature age. Original and selected, by Mary Sparks Wheeler. Waldin & Stowe, 190 West Fonrth street, Cincinnati, O. Price $1.

This is a book that will please all classes. The selections are made with jndgment and taste, they represent the social and domestic characteristics of their distinguished anthors. The original are not all new, some appear for the first time. They need no commendation of ours. As we have read some of these poems a feeling of new pleasnre has been stirred within ns.

Crown Jewels. By Harriet B. McKeever. Walden & Stowe, 190 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, O. Price $1.

Mrs. McKeever has achieved remarkable popularity as a writer, her books are snre to be read. The aim of this story is to trace the history of a family from infancy to mature life. It deals directly with vital points and exemplifies the Bible trnth that as one sows so shall he reap. It teaches that a life lived selfeshly is a curse, that giving help to others makes one grow strong and fits them for good and grand things hereafter. The crown jewels of a mothers life are her children, and only by God's grace can they become crown jewels. This is one of the books we most heartily commend to parents and children. For sale by Phillips & Hunt, 32 Natchez street, New Orleans.

The December nnmber of the Boston Musical Herald announced that with the Jannary number there would be a new cover, new type and a reduced price. Send stamp for a sample copy.

The Sidereal Messenger, published by Prof. W. W. Payne, of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., is an able and interesting journal, It has already demonstrated its right to an existence and is fast winning recognition in the scientific world. No number of this journal has been more replete with valnable information than the number for December 1883. An article entitled, "The Tools of the Astronmer," by Prof. W. W. Harrington, Ann Arbor, Mich., began in the November number and is continued throngh the December number. It also contains a paper by Prof. S. C. Chandler, of Haward College, on "Results of Tests with the Almacanter," which was read at Minneapolis before a meeting of A. A. A. S. It contains an interesting editorial on the Standard Time, with a map showing the New Standard Time. No journal of similar nature can boast of abler contributors than the Messenger.

Woman's Home Mission Work in Texas.

DEAR FRIENDS—We come before yon once more in onr annual meeting with a report of another year's work done by the members of the Woman's Home Mission Auxiliaries of the Texas Conference. Our first dnty is to acknowledge the goodness of God for permitting ns to live and labor in behalf of the needy aronnd ns. We have to record the death of one member; we trust she is safe in our Father's home on high. As we look back we see where much more might have been done, but we trnst, by the blessings of Almighty God npon onr labors, should He permit us to continne onr work another year, that we may be more determined to nse every effort to care for the sonls as well as the bodies of those with whom we come in contact. The work of the Auxiliary has been somewhat retarded on account of the conference secretary not being able to visit them as she would wish, her time having been mnch taken np with teaching both Sabbath and day school.

Notwithstanding this drawback the work is making some progress. Some people in neighborhoods in which we organize onr societies are very mnch pleased with the work. It was said in one place "if it had not been for the H. Mission that man would certainly have died."

There is one part of the work that we have not taken mnch interest in as yet; bnt it is very essential that we do so as soon as possible; we ought to make arrangements for a Primary Industral School, where we conld combine a boarding department for the benefit of children from a distance.

At the aunnal meeting action was taken to that effect, and we believe if the official members will think of the large number of children who are too yonng to be of mnch service, but who if pnt into school and carefully trained, wonld soon become not only intelligent, bnt very useful to their parents, their friends, and to each other.

The amounts raised by the Auxiliary as shown by the reports received is as follows:

Anderson $38.00; Brenham Circuit $30.80; Courtney $5.85; Hempstead $105.30; Houston $13.45. We also received from DeKalb County, Illinois, a box of clothing, school books, papers, etc; these were carefully distribnted and proved very acceptable and nsefnl to numbers of families; we also commenced a loan library, which we have reason to believe will do good service to the young people. We teach them to read, and we think it is onr dnty to place within their reach the best books we can obtain; thus you see dear friends we are trying to benefit all classes and conditions of people, and the Lord has blessed our efforts thus far.

May we show by our lives that we are followers of Jesus, "who loved ns and gave himself for us," and fearlessly go forward depending on the Holy Ghost for gnidance.

Having been kept through the past may we trnst God in the future, whatever it may bring.

Now the God of peace himself give yon peace always by all means." Amen. ISABELLA HOWELLS.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS

The attempt to pass a nickel in the market, City of Mexico, led to a riot, and the troops were called ont to disperse the mob.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society has made an arrangement to publish a paper in its interests. Mrs. L. D. McCabe, of Delaware, O., is to be the editor, and Mrs. S. W. Thomson, of the same place, the publisher.

Fifty well armed masked men came into McDade, Texas, on the evening of the 24th, and took three men from a saloon to the distance of a mile and hanged them to a tree. On the 25th six men, relatives of those hung, came to town, picked a quarrel, and a fight ensned. Two of them were killed, one wounded, and the other three escaped. One citizen was killed. Five corpses were placed in the market house, and more tronble is expected.

Col. Rathbone, who was with Lincoln in the theatre box when he was murdered and was severely stabbed by the assassin, attempted commit snicide in Hanover, Germany. He was insane, thonght his children were abont to be taken away. His wife he killed while she was endeavoring to quiet him, and to protect them from his fnry. The family physician thinks his mind has been affected since the death Lincoln, when he was wounded in the arm by Booth's dagger.

WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND LIME.

Wilbor's Compound of Pure Cod-Liver Oil and Lime. The advantage of this compound over the plain Oil is, that the nauseating taste of the Oil is removed, and the whole rendered palatable. The offensive taste of the Oil has long acted as a great objection to its use; bnt in this form the trouble is entirely obviated. A host of certificates might be given here to testify to the excellence and success of "Wilbor's Cod-Liver Oil and Lime bnt the fact that it is regularly prescribed by the medical faculty is sufficient. Editorial Notes.

The South Georgia Conference, M. E. Church, South, at its recent session received two converted Hebrews, "young men, fully of the Hebrew, "of liberal education and thorough consecration to work." This conference has established a mission to the Hebrews in Georgia, and these young men were appointed to the mission.

The Morning Star, Catholic organ, was the only newspaper in New Orleans to give to the public the full text of Attorney General Brewster's argument in the U. S. Supreme Court concerning the National Bank and Lottery case. The other papers were content to criticise without allowing their readers to judge for themselves.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

W. A. Primus, Stony Point: "I desire to say a few words about the missionary spirit among the few at Stony Point Church. The fourth quarterly conference saw fit to place a few sisters on the roll of benevolent committees. On Nov. 2 they gave a festival and raised $7.15; another will be given Dec. 26. The managers are: Ann Stephenson, president; Jane Tolbert, vice-president; Mary Stevenson, secretary; Clara Simpson, corresponding secretary; Liner Lang, recording Secretary; Rosetta Primus, treasurer."

J. Spears, Campte: "My protracted meeting resulted in 46 accessions, and 29 on probation. The work is gaining spiritually, and we have had a grand time all over the work this year."

MISSISSIPPI.

H. Roundtree, Union Church: "Elder McDonald held our fourth quarter and preached a glorious sermon. Collection for pastor $14.30, for elder, $7. Our pastor, J. Ford, is greatly beloved by his people. I was with Rev. R. Roundtree at Meadville not long since, and he is having great revivals. Collections, $11.70."

L. J. Terrill, Ripley: "A few of our sisters have gone forward and made a great improvement on the inside of our church. The outfit cost $15. Sister Leah Fountain took the lead and deserves great credit."

O. Tolson, Hickory: "The fourth quarterly conference was held by D. A. Williams, presiding elder. The official members were all present. The elder gave a beautiful lecture upon the topic of Christian purity. Sacrament administered to 32. This is my last year. I have served for three years. I can say one thing, and that is I have been well treated as a pastor ever since I have been at this point. No one could be against me, simply because the Lord was for me. We have had three years hard labor, trying to build up churches. We have lumber enough to build one church. We have a certain portion towards building another, and money in the treasury. We have made a great deal of headway with. The church at Bluehill was burned down. There will be plenty of labor for my successor."

A. Bedy, writing from Meridian, says the people are sad at the time approaches to part from their pastor, Rev. J. [illegible]. All claims are being satisfied, the pastor is a good disciplinarian."

L. J. S. Bell, Collinsville: "Elder [illegible] held fourth quarterly [illegible]. ARKANSAS.

B. J. Donnel, Clarendon: Hon. L. Bobo, the state senator, an able lawyer, and a very good and honorable man, has recently giving us one acre of desirable land with a small house on it suitable to our present purpose. He made a good deed to the property. We have named it "Bobo Chapel." We will build on the land just as soon as possible. It is four miles from Clarendon, on the Arkansas Midland railroad. Pray for Mr. Bobo, his family who acquies d in said gift and conveyance, and pray for us."

The Mother in the Home.

Upon woman devolves the duty of making happy homes by attending, each day, to the comfort and well-being of her family. In her relation to home life, she is the source of all good, the root of all domestic prosperity. She has the reputation of having been at the head of all evil as well. Man would fain excuse himself for the part he took in the fall, on account of his fancied weakness in first yielding to temptation, but it took the father of lies to tempt Eve, and he well knew if he could get her, Adam was sure to follow. Man was an easy conquest. However God may have viewed it, He in His goodness gave to woman a place of great prominence in the family circle, where she might make amends, in a degree, for the wrong she did. He gave her the men to mould and train. The men of to-day owe much to women, and the men of the future are around her ready for her instructions. No great preacher ever had such audiences, with ears so open, and hearts so impressible. The mother has rare opportunities to do good. Much of the weal or woe of the world is under her control.

Good impressions, that will endure, are easily made upon the minds of children. Great truths can be taught them with comparative ease, for they do not question as older people do, but they trust.

Although every child's human nature has a downward tendency, it has a conscience that troubles it when it does wrong. Children are easily tempted, and they need something to lean upon and guide them as well as older people. There is no reason in the world why they should not be taught to pray, not only in form, but they may be taught to believe that God hears and answers prayer. The habit of prayer and trust can be formed very early. They cannot be good in their own strength any more than we can. Many adults have tried to make themselves good and have failed. Children are often required to come up to a certain standard, and are punished if they do not, who need to go to God for help, and would if they were encouraged to do it. They are too often allowed to grow up with obscure ideas of God, until their hearts are hard from familiarity with sin.

As we look over the world and see the wickedness that prevails; how men cheat, and swear, and drink, and murder, and how many are not obeying God's laws, we are constrained to ask, where is the trouble? Who is responsible? Has not God done enough for us? What is in the way of the people's obeying Him and being happy? Is it not better to do right and prosper, than to do wrong and suffer?

The influence of habit is very strong in impelling people to do right or wrong. If the first impulse to sin is repressed, bad habits cannot be formed until good habits can gain the ascendency. The habit of seeking pure associations and of right living, give promise always of useful and happy lives.

O mothers, great is your responsibility! Do not neglect the great work God has entrusted to you, lest your children, who are around you in their innocence, get beyond your reach, and everything beautiful in life fades from them, and they seek their happiness in what will only lead to their degradation and ruin.

To-day is Christmas. As I listen to the horns and the firing of guns and crackers, and the hooting and yelling of the boys, I hear no happy, cheerful sounds. They are only reminders of desolation and death, instead of thankfulness for the great gift of God to a fallen world. If many mother's hearts are not aching, they ought to be. Will the boys be any better for their revelings, doing nothing but cultivating low tastes and making everybody uncomfortable. It would seem that this anniversary of peace was devoted to the worship of the evil one, a day of disorder, of hatred and strife.

Mothers, call not home dull and commonplace, while work is to be done there that ought to be dear to your hearts. Awake to the interests of those who are dearer to you than your own lives. Make yourselves what you ought to be, to fit you for your responsible calling. Brighten your homes and make a place for your children in them, where they may feel free to act out natural impulses, so they are pure. Have no carpets in your houses too good for little boots to walk over, and have no easy seats too good for the tired father to sit on when his daily work is done. Make your children feel that they are your most precious treasures and they will be slow to wound your hearts.

Many make their lives comparative failures. They hurry and worry and work and yet are always behind hand, and never make home cheerful. In such places God is kept out. Perhaps the family do not meet every morning to ask His blessing upon the work of the day, and every evening to thank Him for His goodness and care. That is the secret of failures everywhere. God alone can give the mothers strength to be always kind and patient and loving, and although she may not be appreciated as she deserves in this world, her children will "rise up and call her blessed," and her influence may live through them.

The Savior wants to help his children, and wherever He is permitted to enter a home and dwell there, He makes it a refuge from temptation and a place of rest.

Three Minute Talks.—No. 1.

I have no sympathy with that style of criticism which claims that the merits of a newspaper article rests solely upon its length. Some subjects require an elaborate treatment, while others may be happily dispatched by a few simple touches of the pen. A long article, if crowded with ideas, is much more to my liking than a mere paragraph containing nothing but non sense. My request for just three minutes of the readers time may not be any more reasonable than one who writes at greater length and asks an hour's attention. I want to be heard by those who, when thoughtful discussion invites, care little whether the end is reached after a brief walk or after an extended tour. I shall not gossip but try my best to talk profitably, and if my hints do not make some good impressions and arouse some noble impulses, I shall fall short of my aim. But it is time to begin the talk. Suppose we have a word concerning the supply of periodical literature for our church membership in the South? I am glad we have reached a point in our career when it is no longer necessary to argue in support of the importance of the circulation of the denominational weekly newspaper. All are convinced that without such an organ the church cannot be introduced into new fields, nor can it remain permanent where it has already been planted. I look upon the absence of the church paper as an unmistakable sign of narrowness and bigotry, and the sure precursor of early denomination dearth and final extinction. The paper must go to the people to-day or the church will be driven from them to-morrow. Methodism may take root among any class of people, however degraded and ignorant, but it can only thrive and produce its most choice and durable fruits among those who read and keep themselves posted with regards to its past and present history. The main reason why our church shows such feeble indications of a stalwart agressiveness in many places in the South is because the people have to a great extent been slow to appreciate the imperative obligation to take and read an official church paper. Failing to recognize this channel through which Methodistic ideas are communicated, they have, as a matter of course, lagged in Methodist zeal and enterprise. I hope for improvement, but I am of the opinion that it will come only with the adoption of a more sensible method of furnishing our people with the religious weekly. We want a single journal, at present, for the noble field. This must be a representative paper, first-class in every respect. In size it must be sufficiently ample to furnish every desirable variety of matter, and in quality it must be equal, if not superior, to any other journal of the kind published South of the Ohio river. The wealth of our church looks mean, nay, contemptible, when it put an inferior paper into the territory where we have to contend against such peculiar environment. The paper we plead for must be issued from some commanding centre, and it must have at its head an editor who will be paid a salary that will enable him to live decently. The position of an editor is a trying one at best, and it amounts to almost a crime to add to its perplexities by withholding what is necessary for a comfortable support. The bell rings which ends my talk for the present.

Sunday-School Work in New Orleans.

BY REV. A. H. GILLETT, A. M.

Beginning with Sunday, Dec. 16 a series of Sunday-school meetings were held in some of the more central of our M. E. Churches in this City. They were under the direction of myself as the general agent of our Sunday-school Union. Two sessions were held each day, and addresses, conversations, normal class drills made up the daily program. During the progress of these meetings some facts were developed which need the attention of all who are interested in church work. 1st. There seems to be a sad misunderstanding as to the nature and purpose of Sunday-school work. Outside of the teachers, and officers of the schools, very few of the church members attended these meetings. Making all allowance that can reasonably be made for absence of those who ought to be interested in such work on account of their employments, still it would seem that many more might have been present. Church members attend other meetings, they could attend such as these were. The explanation of their absence is to be found we think in the fact that very many think that the Sunday-school is a place for the children merely, and hence only they and such as teach them are expected to attend either a Sunday-school or a Sunday-school meeting. Now the simple truth is that the school is a place for all the Church, every member should be there either as a learner or a teacher. The Church at Berea in the olden time was accounted "More noble than that at Thessalonica because they searched the Scriptures daily to see if these things were so." And so in this time, the church which gives attention to the careful study of the word of God will be strong in every way and able to do most excellent service in the Lord's cause. If it was admitted once, for the sake of argument, that the school is simply for the children and youth of the Church, then the attention given by any church to the work of training these younger ones will at once test its loyality to the cause of Christ, and show its wisdom in looking to the perpetuation of its own life.

The second important fact developed by these meetings is, that the regular attendance of pupils is very much below what it ought to be when the membership of the church, and the number of people within reach of the church building are taken into the account. There are few American cities where there is greater need of Sunday-school mission work than in the city of New Orleans. Here are a very great number of children and young people with little or no Christian training, and unusual temptations to reckless and godless living. Who will care for these if the church does not? If they are not cared for the inevitable result will be moral and spiritual death. Does the Church of New Orleans understand this? If not it is time she did. If she does then there is a fearful degree of neglect somewhere. The children even of church members do not attend Sunday-school. Only one Methodist Episcopal Church in the city has an attendance in excess of its membership, and some of the largest have a regular attendance of less than one fourth of the membership. If these churches of ours were alive to the importance of this work there would be at least two thousand children and youth, to say nothing of adults who would be within reach of the Gospel of Christ. What excuse will the Church have to offer at the last day for this great neglect of duty? Brethren of the ministry, you can do the Church no greater service than by bringing about a revival on this subject. Preach on it, bring it into the prayer meetings. Ask the attendance of your official board to it, press the battle at every point until victory comes.

Woman's Home Missionary Society.

DEPARTMENT OF SUPPLIES.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, believing that very much good can be accomplished by a judicious distribution of clothing, religious books and papers, and household articles in those portions of our country where they are very much needed, have organized a Department of Supplies under the direction of a General Superintendent, and the following regulations and suggestions are published for the information and guidance of auxiliary societies and individuals wishing to furnish supplies for distribution through the agency of this society.

To facilitate the operation of this department, it is desirable that persons or societies wishing to send packages should inform the superintendent of such intention, and what articles they propose to contribute. The superintendent will then inform them where it will be most desirable that the articles mentioned should be sent, and will furnish a printed form to be filled out with a list of articles contained in the packages, and their estimated value, and the name of the auxiliary society or individuals contributing. The lists, when filled out, together with the railroad or express receipt for shipment must be mailed to the General Superintendent, who will record them in a book provided for such purposes.

Much time and expense may be saved, and the delivery of packages to their destination greatly facilitated, by making proper arrangements for through transportation from the starting-places, or shipping-stations nearest thereto.

It is confidently believed that transportation can be obtained at greatly reduced rates, if not entirely free, by a proper representation of the charitable nature and objects of the Society engaged in this work.

All charges and expenses incident to transportation of articles intended for distribution through this agency must, in all cases, be prepaid at the time of shipment.

Communications relating to this department should be addressed to Mrs. John L. Whetstone, Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, O.

By order of the Executive Committee,

MRS. JOHN L. WHETSTONE,
Gen'l Supt. of Supplies, W. H. M. S. E. Church.

Bishop Warren's Bride.

THE ROMANTIC CAREER OF A YOUNG SEWING-MACHINE AGENT.

Denver, Col., Dec. 27.—Bishop Henry W. Warren, of Atlanta Ga., was married to-day to Mrs. Elizabeth S. Iliff, in Evans chapel, in this city. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Simpson, of Philadelphia, assisted by Rev. Dr. H. D. Moore and the Rev. Dr. E. Cranston, of Denver. Notwithstanding that 400 invitations had been issued the wedding was an unostentatious one. The ushers were Secretary of State Edwards, H. C. Lowrie, Truman Bogue, and Prof. Low, of the Denver University. A reception was held at the residence of the bride after the ceremony, and it was attended by upward of 900 people.

About the year 1859 a young prepossessing, modest, and determined girl alighted from the coach in Denver one morning. She was, perhaps, 21 years of age, and it was evident to those who met her on the occasion of her advent in that then rather vociferous town under the mountain shadow that she had gone West with the intention of growing up with the country, as she evinced a remarkable degree of independence, softened, however, by strong, womanly qualities, which soon established her high in the esteem of all with whom she came in contact. She at once made her mission known by canvassing the business portion of the city for an eligible location in which to open a store, and finally succeeded in securing a room previously occupied by the Adams Express Company, in the building owned by the proprietors of the Rocky Mountain News, and next door to the News publication office, Larimer-street. The adventuresome young lady had gone out from Chicago as the agent of the Singer machine Company, and among total strangers, and with but her own shrewdness and strong stamina to back her, proposed to win her support. It appears that when a mere infant she, with several brothers and sisters, had been left without parents. Relatives had brought the children up in some obscure town in Illinois, and when arrived at mature years the girl had struck out for herself in Chicago, by securing a position as instructor in the Singer office in that city. Her duties were to follow up agents and teach purchasers of machines how to operate them. Finally the company decided to establish the Denver agency, and she applied for and was given the place, not without some misgivings on the part of the company, but as she had displayed remarkable business tact they were satisfied to at least let her make the attempt. How well she succeeded in the new and trying field is well known to every old citizen of Denver, and, in fact, to nearly every one who lived in Northern Colorado at that time. With energetic men in rival establishments to contend with, to open new stores and appoint local agents in remote towns, there being then not a rod of railway in the Territory; to keep her own general business going, and at the same time maintain a reputation in a locality where then it was difficult for a single woman, without family support, to do so; these all tried her to the utmost, but she rose superior to all petty and great obstacles, and was soon respected far and wide, as it was conceded she had the right stuff in her, and that of all things, was the one great factor in winning success in those days in Colorado.

Among the foremost—if not the foremost—cattle raisers in Wyoming in those days was Mr. I. W. Iliff. His herds were numbered by hundreds of thousands, and his ranges in Wyoming and Colorado were wide-spread. By some chance—he being a widower at that time—he met the young sewing-machine agent on one of his visits to Denver. Courtship followed, and it was not long before sewing-machines were abandoned for family cares. She became Mrs. Iliff and Cheyenne became her home for a short time. Now the wife of a millionaire, and removed from the cares and vexations of business life, and at best a hard struggle for support, Mrs. Iliff displayed in a supreme degree those high womanly qualities which had, under former trials, brought her so successfully through. In 1876, when United States Marshal Shaffenburg, of Denver, was sent to prison for irregularities in office, Mr. and Mrs. Iliff bought his palatial home and removed to Denver. Here, soon after, Mr. Iliff died, leaving his entire and vast cattle interests to his widow and his two sons, minors. Instead of laying aside these new cares by disposing of her herds, Mrs. Iliff at once assumed these fresh and great responsibilities, and became one of the leading cattle-dealers of the United States. From the moment she assumed charge of this trust fortune has followed every venture she has made, and her income has steadily rolled in at the rate of from $100,000 to $300,000 a year. It quite naturally followed that she should be sought in marriage by adventurers and others, but she has up to the present steadfastly adhered to her determination to remain single rather than become united to some one who sought her money rather than herself. It is to be presumed, therefore, that the good Bishop of Atlanta, who has now made her Mrs. Warren has convinced her that a consort not riches, was his sole purpose. Since her widowhood Mrs. Iliff's interest in the Methodist denomination grew very strong, and she had repeatedly expressed a determination to her intimate friends to devote a large portion of her wealth at the end to the church cause.

The Singer sewing-machine people have never forgotten the young lady who made that bold strike out into the far West, and have always taken every opportunity that presented itself to pay her great respect and attention although their interests were saved when the cattle king came along and claimed her for his bride. Shortly after her husband's death Mrs. Iliff went to Europe and during her long tour Singer representatives in every great centre were instructed by the home company to seek her out and do everything in their power to entertain her during her stay there.

These are but skeleton facts in the romantic life of the once poor girl who is now one of the richest women in the Trans Missouri region or in the entire West for that matter, who by her own industry and active worth, stepped up from poverty to the possession of a fortune estimated above $10,000,000.—New York Times.

The Death of Washington.

An interesting collection of old newspapers and documents has been discovered in a forgotten trunk by G. J. Russell. "I was the administrator of my father's estate," he remarked, "and I put a number of the papers which I found in his desk into a trunk which I brought with me among other possessions when I came to Milwaukee. I had forgotten all about them. But recently, in making a change of residence, the old trunk came from its place of retirement. I ran against it that other day, and on opening it found these things in it." Mr. Russell produced among other things a number of copies of the New Hampshire Gazette, of the dates ranging from 1795 to 1800. The Gazette, which is still in existence, was then a weekly, paper, published Wednesdays at Portsmouth, N. H., by John Melcher, State Printer, and supplied to subscribers for $1.50 a year. The most interesting paper in the collection is the issue for Jan. 1, 1800, containing the news of the death of George Washington. This issue is printed with a heavy black border. The column rules are not inverted, but the dash rules at the conclusion of the different articles are so. The announcement of the calamity is worth republishing as an example of early jonualistic methods. It sets ont as follows:

Respecting the death ot the illustrions Washington.

"Oh Washington! thon hero, patriot, sage,
Friend of all olimates, pride of every age;
Were thine the laurels which the world could raise
The mighty harvest were penurions praise."

The virtues and services of this unequalled mortal having commanded the warmest affections of the people of the United States, his loss is felt with a poignancy of grief which no other misfortune could have caused. The sorrowful citizen pores with anxious curiosity over every sentence which name WASHINGTON—or notes tributes of respect to his hallowed memory. We, therefore, with sympathizing assiduity, search the darkened columns of every paper which reaches us, and carefully select each paragraph which involves the interesting subject.

"For as the stars, which gild the vault of night,
Unnumbered pour effulgence on the sight,
So chiefs and Senators in crowds abound,
But rare as comets WASHINGTONS are found!

On SATURDAY, THE 14TH DEC., 1799
DIED SUDDENLY,
At his seat in Virginia,
GEN. GEORGE WASHINGTON,
Aged 68.
Commander-in-chief
Of the Armies of the United States of America, MATURE IN YEARS,
COVERED WITH GLORY, AND RICH IN THE AFFECTIONS OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

When men of common character are swept away from the theatre of life, they die without the tribute of public notice or concern, as they had lived without a claim to public esteem. When personages of more exalted worth are summoned from the scenes of sublunary existence, their death calls forth a burst of general regret, and invigorates the flame of public gratitude. In obedience to the wishes and the voices of their country, the orator, the poet, and the historian combine to do justice to the virtues of their character, while the labors of painters, the sculptors, and the statuary, in penetrating their likeness, do homage to their memory. But when, in compliance with heaven's high mandate, the HERO OF THE AGE lies numbered with the dead, when the revered sage, the august statesman the father of his country, has resigned his breath—when the idol of an empire, the envy and admiration of distant nations, and the brightest ornament of human nature—when WASHINGTON IS NO MORE let a sense of the general loss be testified by the badges of a general mourning; but, let not the voice of eulogy be heard, lest the weakness of laments, and the expressions of language, do injustice to the lustre and fame of the deceased!

From Warren's Mount, behold the New rise!
Receptacle of arms attend the through the throng!
The shades of war-worn veterans round
And look, convoyed, their honored dust along!
All hail wreath th' immortal Wa[illegible]
An arch triumphal Mercer's hand prepares,
Young Lavinia, erst the weeping belt of war,
With pure majestic guides the glittering car,
Montgomery's godlike form directs the way,
And Greene unfolds the gates of endless day,
While angels, "trumpet tounged" proclaim the six
Deathless honors for the First of Men prepare.

John N. Irwin, governor of Idaho territory, returned to the treasurer of the United States a draft for $650, sent him as salary for the quarter ending October 30, and declined also to receive the salary due him for the quarter ending December 31. He says he has been unable to attend to the duties of his office since July 1, and he does not consider that he can conscientiously accept pay.

The Argentine Government is about to issue 4,000,000 national dollars to advance public instruction in the provinces and for the building of 300 schools.

Young Folk's Corner.

"I Have Drunk My Last Glass."

No, comrades, I thank you, not any for me;
My last chain is riven—henceforth I'm free!
I will go to my home and my children to-night,
With no fumes of liquor their spirits to blight,
With tears in my eyes I have begged my poor wife
To forgive me the wreck I have made of her life.
I have never refused you before. Let that pass;
For I've drunk my last glass, boys,
I have drunk my last glass!

Just look at me now! boys, in rags and disgrace,
With my bleared, baggared eyes and my red, bloated face.
Mark my faltering steps and my weak, palsied hand,
And the mark on my brow, that is worse than Cain's brand.
See my crownless old hat, and my elbows and knees,
Alike warmed by the sun and chilled by the breeze.
Why, even the children will hoot as I pass;
But I've drunk my last glass, boys,
I have drunk my last glass!

You would hardly believe, boys, to look at me now,
That a mother's soft hand was once pressed on my brow,
That she kissed me and blessed me, her darling, her pride,
Ere she lay down to rest by my dead father's side.
Yes, with love in her eyes, she looked up to the sky,
Bidding me meet her there, then she whispered "Good-by."
And I'll do it, God helping! Your smiles I let pass;
For I've drunk my last glass, boys,
I have drunk my last glass.

Ah! I reeled home last night—it was not very late,
For I'd spent my last sixpence, and landlords won't wait
On a fellow who's left every cent in their till,
And has pawned his last bed, their coffers to fill.
Oh! the torments I felt, and the pangs I endured!
And I begged for one glass—just one would have cured—
But they kicked me out doors! I let that, too, pass.
For I've drunk my last glass, boys,
I have drunk my last glass,

At home my pet Susie, so sweet and so fair,
I saw through the window, just kneeling in prayer;
From from her pale, bony hands her torn sleeves were strung down,
While her feet, cold and bare, shrank beneath her scant gown;
And she prayed—prayed for bread, just a poor crust of bread,
For one crust—on her knees my pet darling plead!
And I heard, with no penny to buy one, alas!
But I've drunk my last glass, boys,
I have drunk my last glass.

For Susie, my darling, my wee six-year-old,
Though fainting with hunger and shivering with cold,
There on the bare floor, asked God to bless me!

And she said, "Don't cry mamma! He will; for you see
I believe what I ask for!" Then sobered, I crept
Away from the bed—and that night when I slept,
Next my heart lay the PLEDGE! You smile, let it pass
For I've drunk my last glass, boys,
I have drunk my last glass.

My darling child saved me. Her faith and her love
Are child of my dear dead mother's above.
I will make my words true, or I'll die in the race,
And sober, I'll go to my last resting-place;
And she shall kneel there, and weeping, thank God
No drunkard lies under the daisy strewn sod.
Not a drop more of poison my lips shall o'er pass;
For I've drunk my last glass, boys,
I have drunk my last glass.

A Safe Rule.

Clinton Mills went into his mother's room with a light heart and a bright face.

"Mother," he said, "is it not a splendid day for a drive. I am going to tell John to get out my pony, and then I am going to take my cousin down to the beach. It will be great fun."

Mrs. Mills dearly loved her merry boy, and could not bear to say anything to mar his joy; yet she answered in a very different way from what he expected:

"Have you learned your lesson, Clinton?"

"Oh, no, I forgot," said Clinton. "But what if I do not learn that stupid lesson just for once?"

"Your teacher complained of you yesterday, Clinton."

"Well, what if he did?" said Clinton, hastily. "This charming weather is too tempting. I cannot stay in the house and fix my mind upon my books."

"But it was just the same in the winter."

"I know it. But then there was the coasting and skating; I could not resist them. It is no great matter if I do not get on very fast in my studies; my father is rich, and I shall have plenty of time to go to school."

"And so, because your father is rich you choose to be an idle, ignorant, useless man!" said his mother, sadly.

Clinton looked up grieved and vexed.

"Why, mother," he said, "how you do talk to me! You know that I do not choose to be such a man as that; I mean to be like my father, and to have every one respect me."

"Then you must begin to form such a character now," said his mother: "When your father was a boy he made this maxim a rule of his life: 'Duty before pleasure.' And however rich you may be you will never succeed in any useful pursuit unless you do the same thing. A baby cannot learn to walk unless he uses his limbs, and a boy cannot grow wise unless he uses his mind."

Clinton was a lad of sense; he saw that his mother was right. He took his book, threw himself face downward upon the carpet, and so applied himself to his task that he soon sprang to his feet crying out:

"I know it now, every word of it."

"And there is plenty of time left for your drive," responded his mother, as joyfully. You can now take your pleasure with a clear conscience."

"So I can," said Clinton. "I am so glad that I did not go right off. Father's rule works pretty well, I find."

"Take it for yours, then," said Mrs. Mills "Wherever you are, in whatever circumstances of life you may be placed, attend to duty before pleasure. Thus duties will not seem half so irksome, and pleasure will be doubly sweet."

Temperance Workers.

We clip the following from the Union Signal, organ of the Womans Christian Temperance union;

These great movements have set me at work to the last ounce of my power, trying to utilize, in our capital city, the grand home protection law by which, in our state, we express the real "public sentiment" on the saloon question, through woman's vote by signature, added to that of man.—Mrs. M. A. Cornelius, Pres. Arkansas W. C. T. U.

The temperance cause has almost turned an amateur into a professional worker. The dear friend sit has brought to me make me say, anyhow, "I'm glad I'm in this army."—Caroline E. Merrick, Pres. Louisiana W. C. T. U.

The crusade and its outcome, the W. C. T. U., have caused me to think and feel more for those enslaved by alcohol, and have made me more earnest in prayer for them—Mrs. A. Stewart, Ex-Pres. Mississippi W. C. T. U.

Wake up! This won't do! It is stated that the South sent last year, to the North, $55,000,000 for wheat; $50,000,000 for corn; $72,000,000 for meat; and $25,000,000 for hay. Total, $202,000,000. With the finest agricultural lands in the world, and the best ranges for stock such is the astounding summary of Southern improvidence, laziness and lack of management, with a huge slice of ruinning in old grooves, thrown in. It is about time that this section was awakening to some conception of independentism in wasting $202,000,000 for corn, wheat, meat and hay!—Natchitoches (La) Vindicator.

Ministers, pay your way like any other class of men. As a class ministers receive as good salaries as any class of the laity, and, therefore, should not expect to be treated every where as objects of charity, The clerical dead beat is, of all others, the most odious. The custom of conferences, synods and presbyteries dead-beating their board during their sessions has become very unpopular with most of the people who have to be to the expense and trouble of feeding such bodies, but the managers of these bodies can't see by a "straw" how the wind blows, nor take a hint; they will contine this custom, which is a relic of the crude society of pioneer life, until they are distinctly refused free entertainment.

Mischievous Malaria.

To say that malaria is mischievous is to put it very mildly. It is all that and more It is cunning, deceitful, treacherous, sly, and underhanded. It does its work in the dark, and in such a sly way that much of the mischief is done before it is discovered. It saps the foundations of a healthy system. It robs the blood of its vitality, demoralizes the liver, confounds the stomach, and makes the victim wish he were in his grave. It is sad to see people sit down in their misery, content to be the victims of mischievous malaria, and thinking that nothing can be done for them. The power of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS over the mischiefs of malaria has been so amply proved that there is no reason why anybody who can procure a bottle of this Prince of Tonics shall suffer. Great is the power of malaria, and great are its disastrous effects. But greater far is the beneficent influence of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. The preparation of iron in this favorite family remedy can be taken without ruining the teeth or producing constipation and headache.

NEW YORK TIMES
FOR 1884.
REDUCED IN PRICE.
CHEAPEST
AND BEST
Newspaper in the United States.
FOR 1884.
REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of The New York Times was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents, per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of The Times as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within reach of every class of readers involves no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will coutinne to be, an able, lively and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home or abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other Metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs educational progress, and social, religious, and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications. American and foreign, and its reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties and of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the follies of mankind.

The Sunday Times, in addition to the news of the day contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

The Weekly Times gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 the Weekly Times will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
TO
Kansas and the West.
Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn. and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri, mailed Free.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. COSSMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, D. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, JAN. 10, 1884.

1884. 1884.

Eight or Ten Thousand

Subscribers Wanted.

To all Pastors and Members of the M. E. Church in the Southern States:

It is clearly discerned by all active workers for the church that a strong, vigorous church paper is required, at a central point, to di[rect] the way for success on the line [of] Christian and Wesleyan [prin]ciples; and by recording the [pro]gress of current history, and giving utterance to the wishes of the membership, to assist the Church and Christianity in general.

We are trying to make the SOUTHWESTERN all that our friends have a right to expect, or that we could desire; but we must remind you that your diligent and steady co-operation is absolutely needed to increase our circulation, give us a living support, and to permit us to convey to you each week, in a convenient form, glad tidings from all the fields of labor.

The SOUTHWESTERN is the only official paper of the Methodist Episcopal Church South of the Ohio River; it has been adopted by special vote in seven annual conferences, and circulates in all the Southern States. While the paper now visits thousands of homes each week, there are thousands of others in which it might be placed, as the pastor's assistant and advocate of the church, by a very little effort on the part of its friends.

Begin at once. Send in single subscriptions, lists of five, ten, fifteen, twenty-five, fifty and seventy-five. We rely upon pastors as our agents, but live Methodists everywhere should feel an interest, and send their money right on; and especially from points where pastor's visits are few and far between.

Only FOUR CENTS A WEEK, or TWO DOLLARS A YEAR, is an amount within the means of all. Let us hear from you. Specimen copies sent on application.

Negative and Positive Preaching.

We recently listened to a preacher whose entire sermon consisted in telling the people what they ought not to believe, and what they ought not to do. He had much to say about their degeneracy, covetousness, avarice, love of worldly amusements, etc., but little or nothing to say as to what they should believe, or what they ought to do, or what are evidences of regeneration, a work of grace in the heart. There was no word of comfort to the afflicted, of encouragement to the desponding, of strengthening to the weak. There was no binding up of the "bruised reed," or kindling to a flame "the smoking flax," nothing but sharp reproof or inveighing against their sins. Like Isaiah he cried aloud, spared not, lifted up his voice like a trumpet, and showed the people their sins; but, unlike Isaiah, he failed to comfort, no promise of pardon or cleansing from sin was heard. It occurred to us that while all the prophets and Christ and his apostles did reprove and rebuke, they also exhorted, and their exhortation was with all long suffering and doctrine. Their preaching was negative, but not chiefly so. They were wise master builders. They made their negative preaching subordinate to their positive promulgation of the great truths of the Gospel. The utterances of the prophets are not mainly negative. There is a "cease to do evil," but it is followed by "learn to do well, seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow." We have a model of positive preaching in Christs' sermon on the Mount, and Peter's on the day of Pentecost. The Christian ministry is a ministry of reconciliation. It is a positive persuasive mission. So Paul regarded it, "knowing the terror of the Lord we persuade men." Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us we pray you in Christ's stead be ye reconciled to God. While the minister shows the people their sins, point them immediately to the "Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the whole world."

Work Needed.

After carefully reading the minutes of the several annual conferences in the South we are satisfied that the growth of our churches during the past year has not been what it ought to have been. We know that the fault is not with the Holy Spirit. He is a constant factor upon whose presence we can always depend. The fault, if fault it is, must be with the preachers and people. There is evidently a lack of earnest Christian zeal. Jumping, bellowing, and snorting are no evidence of piety. Those who work for the conversion of men to God, must themselves be on a high plane of Christian living. Salvation must come out of Zion. With each individual worker the old man must be crucified. With the pastor there may be the ceremony, the forms of preaching, without the presence of the Holy Spirit, but there can be no true preaching such as Christ appointed and demands, without the presence of the Holy Ghost. There may be wealth learning, popularity without His presence, but it is a stupendous mistake to suppose men can be converted to God without His presence and active agency. Personal holiness and consistent Christian life will secure success. Thus qualified, organize and push out to the regions beyond. Go brethren, to gather the lost sheep of the house of Israel. Preach, pray, work for souls, work earnestly and carefully. In multitudes of churches during the past three months, not a soul has been saved. The whole church has been asleep and nothing done. Wake up brethren, and go out and gather in the unsaved. Let no man be satisfied with present results.

On the District.

Light and darkness, sin and holiness are dissimilar. They can have no fellowship, Christ and belial cannot affiliate. The believers and the infidel can have no part or communion with each other. Two cannot walk together except they be agreed. We make a serious mistake when we modify the claims of the Gospel to accommodate the passions or prejudices of men. Converts easily made are apt to be sickly and short lived. The first thirty years of missionary labor in China produced only six converts, but if the progress in the future be at the same rate as since these converts were made, there will be in China, at the end of this century a Christian population of nearly one hundred millions. Those missionaries did not seek to make converts by making conversion easy. They did not yield to the prejudice of the heathen, and God honored their word and blessed their work. At Terrebonne Bro. Carr is closing up two years of successful ministerial labor. His conduct through the week always has reference to the sermon he expect to preach on the Sabbath. He thinks that it is best for the people to help themselves, that out of this comes the strength of manhood. Work that others said ought to be done has been accomplished. The church during the last quarter has been ceiled over head at an expense of over $135, and all bills paid. There has been an increase of ten in the membership, there will be a good advance in the benevolent collections. His people desire his return.

The thing most difficult for some people to learn is that the Gospel is the heritage of all men. While the commission sent the apostles into all the world, it was not until Peter had the wonderful vision at Joppa that he learned that he "should not call any man common or unclean." Even after they had been so clearly taught that "God was no respecter of persons," and that "in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness shall be accepted of Him," when the fires of persecution drove them from Jerusalem, there were some among the apostles who would preach only to the Jews. But the hand of the Lord was with those who preached to both Jews and Gentiles.

At Houma Bro. Ford always meets us at the depot with an open hand. He is now closing up the second year of his pastorate with this church and people. But he does not belong to that class of men who enter upon the ministry full grown. He cannot preach without preparation. He cannot teach the lesson in the Sunday-school without knowing where that lesson is before he reaches the school. He believes in God and in the use of good books, and has been able to instruct the people, who have come to discriminate between noise and sense. With a certain class the "holy rhine" is still effective, but it is a fact worthy of notice that there is coming up from nearly all of our churches an earnest request for preachers who have well trained intellects, and well regulated consciences. The process of sifting has begun. During his stay at Houma, Bro. Ford has been constantly growing in favor with the people. Over forty have been added to the church. The congregation and Sunday-school have largely increased, the church property repaired at an expense of over $300, and a good advance has been made in the benevolent collections of the church.

Dulac is twenty miles from Houma, and all railroad communication down the bossy. We have had for a number of years from fifteen to twenty members there, and always an open door. Hon. G. D. Cragin, the proprietor of a large plantation, has been ready to give to our church a deed of a site upon which to erect a church and parsonage, but men loved ease, accepting of the deed and going there involved work, and the opportunity was not accepted. Two years ago, however, Bishop Peck sent Rev. H. C. Armston to Dulac; he found eighteen members, Mr. Cragin gave the deed of a suitable piece of land, the Church Extension Society a donation of $200. The people contributed liberally, and before the year was out Bro. Armston, doing most of the work himself, had erected a nice church and parsonage. No man on the South New Orleans district did a better work. He was removed at the end of the year at his own request. Rev. C. H Claiborne followed him and took up the work where Bro. Armston had laid it down, and wonderfully has the Lord prospered him thus far during the year. He has raised and expended in paying debts and for an addition to the parsonage $290. So now there is no debt upon the property. The membership now is 60, including 43 on probation. The report of the stewards showed $268 collected during the fourth quarter. The class collections were as follows: Class No. 1, $19.50; No. 2, $24.30; No. 3, $28.20; No. 4, $13.40; No. 5, $17.80. The Sunday-school is in a prosperous condition. We give it as our conviction that persons who are inclined to be sluggards, phlegmatics, or drones, have no place in the Christian ministry. They may become successful lawyers or doctors, but they will never be a success in the ministry. C.

Judge Pardee, of the U. S. District Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana, rendered a decision favorable to the New Orleans National Bank in the suit brought by the government to dissolve the injunction restraining Postmaster Merchant from withholding money orders and registered letters under the order of the Postmaster General. Gen. Gresham's order was was issued because he was informed that the business of the Louisiana Lottery Company, itself prohibited the use of the mails, was being transacted through the Bank. Judge Pardee held that the original finding of Postmaster General Key, on which Gen. Gresham's order was based, was subsequently virtually annulled by another order, and the facts were reported to Congress; showing that the satisfactory evidence of a fraudulent lottery was not in the possession of the Postmaster General. After a careful reading of the decision we conclude that it is legally sound. This however should not discourage opposition to the Lottery. Unless the Democracy of Louisiana give some effect to the resolution adopted at its recent State convention, the only hope appears to be in some future legislation by Congress on the subject.

We would remind those colored newspapers that are harping upon the name of Robert G. Ingersoll, the notorious infidel, in connection with the Presidency, that this Christian nation is not prepared to be turned over to the irreligions and infidel followers of Robespere, Voltaire and Tom Paine. We sympathize with all who are oppressed and denied their rights in this country; but can never encourage them in adopting the sacrilegious Ingersoll as the apostle of their rights and liberty. Such a choice on their part would prove the greatest calamity that has yet befallen the race. That exchange is grossly ignorant, or it corruptly perverts the facts, which says:

"If there is one man more than another that the colored vote would unite upon, in 1884, for president of the United States, it is Col Robt. G. Ingersoll."

The colored people, no less than the white people of this country, are believers in the Christian religion, and they resent this insult. They appreciate the help of any who are willing to assist them in securing their rights, but no empty cry of "liberty, for man and beast" can persuade them to support for any office, one who makes it a profession to slander the name and character of the Redeemer of the world. Their reliance for equal rights they are willing to repose in their own worth and work, and the progressing Christian spirit of this nation. They were freed in answer to prayers, and all their rights, now denied, they expect, and will yet secure through Christian agencies, and not through Ingersollism, with all its bluster in the name of "liberty for man and beast."

A Washington dispatch to the New York Times, dated Dec. 31, reports the Hon. Emory Speers, United States district attorney for the Northern district of Georgia, in that city waiting to see whether not the Senate would confirm or his appointment he said: "That Senators Butler and Hampton, of South Carolina, were working hard to have him rejected, in return, for the part he played in undertaking to secure the conviction of the accused persons in the South Carolina election cases. He did not know that accepting employment under the Government and trying as any good lawyer ought, to win his cases was any reason why he should be rejected when nominated for a District Attorneyship; yet that was the sum of his offense. Mr Speer said he was not sorry when he was able to leave South Carolina, but he was ready to go back whenever the Attorney-General requested him to do so. During the progress of the trial the counsel for the defendants talked to the jury about 'the hounds sent down to persecute the good people of South Carolina," with a sweep of the hand toward Mr Speer, and declared that the 'hounds' would be lucky if they got out of the State with nothing worse than broken heads. "I got away," said Mr. Speer, 'without a broken head and so I suppose I can consider myself lucky but I was happy when I crossed the borders of South Carolina and got back into the United States." Mr. Speer was confident of his confirmation, and he has performed excellent service to the whole country, which should entitle him to it. He discloses a most disgraceful public spirit existing in South Carolina, legitimately represented in the Senate by Butler and Hampton, who have always championed election frauds and been the recipients of public positions by virtue of them.

The dispatches say that "the Argentine Government is about to issue four million national dollars to advance public instruction in the provinces, and for the building of 300 schools." This is, as yet, a step in advance of our National Government. Edward Burke says that education is the chief difference between nations. If this be so, and it doubtless is, it certainly deserves the nation's fostering care and support. The floods of the Mississippi can scarcely be as dangerous as the floods of foreign and native illiteracy which threatens this land. National aid, under national supervision, for the one strongly pleads for national aid for the other. The very life of this nation demands such action on the part of the nation. Let every parent vote and pray for it.

There seems to be a revival wave sweeping over certain parts of Kentucky. The work of the Lord is going well in many parts of that State. Rev. J. M. Oliver, of Bowling Green reports 27 conversions, one of whom was over 80 years. At Cloverport over 40 have been converted. At Geigerville our people are rejoicing in the most extensive revival they have ever experienced. Over 80 have been converted and joined the church on probation. At Wesley Chapel, Georgetown, over 20 have been converted and added to the church. We rejoice in these tokens of God's presence and favor. God grant that this revival wave may continue to spread.

The Interior tells of a Presbyterian minister in Iowa who, ten years ago, took charge of two small churches fifteen miles apart, and for ten successive years preached at one in the morning, at eleven, then rode in his buggy fifteen miles and preached at three o'clock, returning home a distance of fifteen miles over bad roads and preaching a third sermon. We want some of our brethren to think of this minister, for ten years preaching three sermons each Sabbath and riding thirty miles in his buggy. Nor was this all the labor of this man. For eight months in each year he rode from his home fifteen miles to attend the weekly prayer meetings. For ten successive years this work was continued without failure, when he was called to another field of labor.

A week or two ago the McTreaver & Helm Dramatic troupe, all colored, gave an entertainment at Vicksburg, Michigan, and were refused admittance to the three hotels, the Franklin, Fremont, and McElvain Houses, on account of their color. They were compelled to take a freight train for Kalamazoo after the entertainment in order to secure lodging. What a burning shame upon the hypocritical Christianity of this nation, and this in the presence of our constitution, which declares that "all men are created free an equal," and of the Holy Bible, which proclaims the unity, equality and brotherhood of our common humanity.

A. P. Albert, Esq., Washington, D. C., has our thanks for a copy of the annual report of the Commission of Pensions. The report shows that there are on the U. S. pension roll at present 303,658 persons, made up of army and navy invalids, widows, minor children, and dependent relatives. To these the Government paid out during the year $60,064,009,81. In this department of the National service are employed 1,537 officers and clerks of all grades. The report is full of valuable information.

PERSONAL.

—Gen. Porfirio Diaz has been appointed commissioner general from Mexico to the Cotton Exposition.

—Rev. Calvin Pickett, of the Tennessee Conference, is now in New York collecting funds for the completion of Seay's Chapel. With $400 more Bro. Pickett thinks he can finish the church without debt. This cause is one that deserves support.

—J. N. Stearns, publishing agent of the National Temperance Society, New York, is convalescent from a severe illness. He will relax in his labors, and probably spend a month or two in the South says the Temperance Advocate.

—J. H. Vincent, D.D., Secretary of the Sunday-school Union and Tract Society, and also editor of our Sunday-school publications, spending a few hours in this city with his son, gave us a pleasant call last week at our home, and words of good cheer as to our work in the South.

—Judge E. B. Mentz, Mayor of Morgan City, reports that place as enjoying a fair business season. The people are in better spirits than for some time past. His administration, as we learn from the Free Press, has made a good financial exhibit for the year ending Dec. 31, 1883.

—Mr. Gould Stockwell, who recently died at Rochester, Vt., has bequeathed $1,500 to the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and $1,500 to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, also $1000 to the Freedmen's Aid Society, and $1000 to the church in Rochester.

—Mr. Joseph Longworth, of Cincinnati, one of the wealthiest and most benevolent of the city's old residents, died recently. He was the founder of the now famous School of Design and one of the chief patrons of the Music Hall. His collections of paintings, of very great worth, are willed to the city and his will makes other large public bequests.

Dr. James T. Newman, a talented and successful colored physician of this city, was some weeks ago appointed by his honor the Mayor of New Orleans, a sanitary physician. Inadvertantly, we failed to record the fact at the time. Dr. Newman ranks high in his profession, has an extensive practice among both races, and is every way worthy of the honor bestowed upon him. We doubt not that he will reflect credit on the profession as well as to his race.

—We are glad to learn from Rev. W. H. Cudley, Jeffersonville, Ind., that Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., presiding elder of the Lexington district, Lexington conference, has so far recovered from his long and severe sickness as to be able to resume his work. Dr. Taylor is having marked success on his district. Recently at Covington, Ky., he has purchased a church property in an excellent neighborhood, of the Presbyterians, valued at $10,000, for $4,000. God will help those who help themselves.

—The Scribners' series of "Campaigns of the Civil War" would have suffered irreparable loss if the date of publication had been deferred a few years. —Bishop H. W. Warren, accompanied by Mrs. Warren and daughters, en route for Mexico, were under the necessity of spending two or three days in this city last week, waiting for the steamer that was to take them there. Early in the morning after their arrival the Bishop called at the office of the SOUTHWESTERN, In conversation with him there, and during his stay in the city, we learned there was no doubt in his mind as to the mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South; he believes that there should be a free transfer of men from the North into all of our Southern conferences; that the work needs to be pushed with more vigor, anything like indolence or sluggishness on the part of Christian workers is disgusting to him. While in the city he visited the New Orleans University. Dr. Bean called the students to the chapel when the Bishop gave a talk replete with suggestions on the value of an education. He expressed himself as pleased with the students, but he half to admonish for the buildings. He left this city for Mexico on the steamer City of Mexico, on the 6th instant, at 3 o'clock p. m. organ has been purchased and nearly paid for. One matter deserves special mention and commendation. Sisters Murrell and Collins, soon after we began to worship in the church, saw the need of some pulpit furniture, and resolved, by the help of the Lord, to secure funds sufficient to purchase the same. Lovingly and faithfully these elect sisters toiled on, sometimes a little discouraged, and then strongly cheered. The pieces of furniture, consisting of three chairs and a marble-top table, had been selected, costing $49 at the lowest possible price. Dec. 31, as the old year was so quietly passing away, these sisters paid over the money, and with their own hands on New Year's morning, at 1 o'clock a. m., placed the furniture in the house of the Lord. They did the work and they deserve the praise.

At Camp Parapet and Kenner, under the ministry of Bro. Johnson, there has been a stirring in the army of drones, a shaking in the valley of dry bones; those inclined to sleepiness or fullness have been kept on the move. Up and doing has been the word all along the line. By his administrative ability and judicious management Bro. Johnson has kept the church on the ascending plane all the year. All the current expenses have been met. The church at Camp Parapet has been repainted at an expense of over $150. At Kenner a new church has been erected, costing near $400. Two new Sunday-schools have been organized, each doing a good work. The current expenses have been all promptly met, while the benevolent contributions will be fifty per cent. more than last year. It is the earnest desire of the people that Bro. Johnson be returned as their pastor for another year.

A Terrible Prophecy.

The Red Sunsets, Cyclones and Earthquakes Foretelling Coming Disaster—How to Meet It.

The recent mysterious appearances following sunset and preceding sunrise have attracted wide attention from students of the skies and the people generally. During the days of recent weeks the sun seems to have been obscured by a thin veil of a dull leaden hue which, as the sun receded toward the horizon, became more luminous, then yellow, then orange, then red; and, as night settled down upon the earth, a dull purple. At first it was thought these appearances were ordinary sunset reflections of light but it is now pretty certain that they are the misty substance of the tail of some unseen comet, in which the earth is enveloped, or a surrounding stratum of world dust or very small meteors. Professor Brooks, of the Red House Observatory, Phelps, N. Y., has turned his telescope upon these objects and discovered what he thinks are myriads of telescopic meteors. If it is unorganized world dust, or decomposed vapors, as the Democrat and Chronicle of Rochester, N. Y., remarks: "How is the matter to be disposed of? Will it settle and form a deposit upon the earth, or remain a partial opaque shell about the earth to cut off a portion of the sun's light upon it?"

Whatever the mystery is, there is no denying that some very strange forces are at work in the upper airs. The terrible tornadoes and cyclones which has swept our own country, and the fearful volcanoes and earthquakes which have destroyed so many cities and thousands of people—the tidal waves which mysteriously rise and fall on coasts hitherto unvexed by them—the tremendous activity which is evident in the sun by the constant revelation of enormous spots upon its surface—all indicate unusual energy in the heavenly bodies.

These circumstances recall Professor Grimmer's prophecies that from 1881 to 1887, the passage of the five great planets—Mars, Neptune, Jupiter, Uranus and Saturn around the sun would produce strange and wonderful phenomena. He says: "The waters of the earth will become more or less poisonous. The air will be foul with noisome others. Ancient races will disappear from the earth." He attempts to prove his prophecy by the fact that in 1720, when Mars and Saturn made their passage around the sun coincidentally, great destruction and mortality visited all parts of the globe. He also found the same results in previous perveltion parades of the planets, and argues that these circumstances always produce epidemics and destructive diseases which will baffle the skill of the most eminent physicians; that the poor will die by thousands, the weak and intemperate falling first; those whose blood has been impoverished by excess of work or dissipation next; and only those who are incomparative vigor will escape to enjoy the era of renewed activity and prosperity which will follow the period of destruction.

Inasmuch as the entire world seems subject to the sway of the heavenly bodies no part of the earth he thinks, can escape scourging. He even predicts that America will lose over ten millions of people; that farmers will be stricken with fear and cease to till the soil; that famine will make human misery more wretched. That hundreds will flee to overcrowded cities for aid in vain. That sudden changes in ocean currents, temperature and surroundings will entirely transform the face of nature and climate of countries; that the air will be so foul with malaria and other noxious gases, that those who suffer ders of the digestive organs. That many who escape other ills will bloat with dropsy and suddenly pass away while others will grow thin and drag out a miserable existence in indescribable agony for weeks. Neuralgic pains in different parts of the body will torment them. They will easily tire and become despondent. A faint, hot feeling will be succeeded by chilly sensations while hallucinations and dread of impending ill will paralyze every effort. "The birds in the air the beasts of the field and even the fish of the sea will become diseased, poisoning the air and poisoning the waters of the globe." We are told on the other hand that those who shall pass through this period of trial will have larger enjoyment of life and health. The earth will yield more abundantly than ever before. The animal kingdom will be more prolific and life prolonged very materially. This prolongation of life will be owing to the healthy electric and magnetic influences that will pervade the atmosphere. It would perhaps seem that the present redness of the sun, and the presence of a belt or veil of cosmic matter, justified, in a measure, the prediction of Professor Grimmer, but disturbing as his prediction may be we are told for our comfort that the strong and pure blooded need have little to fear in these calamites, that those who are delicate or indisposed should adopt means to keep the system well supported and the blood pure, and that the most philosophical and effective method of accomplishing this is to keep the kidneys and liver in good condition. From the testimonials of such men as Dr. Dio Lewis and Professor R. A. Gunn, M. D., Dean of the United States Medical College, New York, and thousands of influential non-professional people, it seems almost certain that for this purpose there is no preparation known to science equal to Warner's Safe Cure, better known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. This medicine has acquired the finest reputation of any preparation that was ever put upon the market. It is a radical blood purifier, which soothes and heals all inflamed organs, strengthens the nervous system, washes out all evidences of decay, regulates digestion, prevents malassimilation of food in a philosophical and rational manner, fortifies the system against climatic changes and malarial influences and the destructive agencies which seem to be so abundant in these "evil days."

It is not our purpose to dispute the correctness of Professor Grimmer's prophecies. As we have said, the marked disturbances of the past few years would seem to give a semblance of verification of his theory. It is certain, as above stated, that we are passing through what may be regarded as a crucial period and it is the part of wise men not to ignore, but to learn to fortify themselves against the possibility of being overcome by these evils. It is a duty which each man owes to himself, and his fellows, to mitigate as much as possible the suffering of humanity and in no way better can he accomplish this purpose than to see to it that he, himself, is fortified by the best known preparations in the strongest possible manner and that he exert the influence of his own example upon his fellows to the end that they, too, may share with him immunity from the destructive influences which seek his ruin.

Orangeburg, S. C., was visited, Dec. 28, with a disastrous fire, destroying six stores and other smaller buildings. Loss said to be $50,000.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON II. Jan. 13, 1884.
HEARING AND DOING. (James i, 16-27.)

The lessons from James are introduced because the author is brought prominently to view in the Jerusalem council, an account of which was given in our last lesson. The greater weight of opinion among commentators is that the author of this epistle was the son of Joseph and Mary and therefore the brother of our Lord. He resided in Jerusalem. As to the time of the composition of this epistle, some place it before the memorable council (Acts xv), others as late as 62 A. D. It was written to the twelve tribes of the dispersion, a phrase not including all Jews, but those only who had become Christians. The object of the epistle is to comfort in affliction, to correct abuses in the Churches.—Western.

A Jesuit missionary named Mauerle, while preaching in the Church of St. John, Vienna denounced the immorality which, he alleged, prevailed among working men. About 20 of the latter arose and denounced the assertions of the preacher and stoned the pulpit. A rush of the congregation for the doors ensued, during which several persons were injured. The police made several arrests.

Among the incidents of the anniversary services in honor of the memory of M. Gambetta was a visit of about 100 members of the Chamber of Deputies and other friends of the deceased statesman to his mortuary. M. Paul Bert delivered an address eulogistic of the patriotic aspirations of M. Gambetta.

The sudden death of Herr Lasker, German statesman, in New York city while on a tour of this country, elicited general expressions of regret in Berlin. An imposing funeral will be prepared.

General Grant is very active in the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Docter now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this paper. n44-14t

PROCLAMATION.

GENERAL GRAND UNITED ORDER OF BROTHERS AND SISTERS OF LOVE CHARITY OF THE UNITED STATES GREAT REPUBLIC OF LIBERIA

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29, 1883.

Whereas, I have been informed by Earnest Lyons, Past Worthy Superior of the Hope of LaTeche Tabernacle No. 2, of Baldwin, La., and Secretary of the convention held at Franklin, La., Oct. 15, 1883, presided over by E. B. Johnson, General Grand Degree Master of the above named Order, for the purpose of organising District Grand Tabernacle No. 1, comprising the States of Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas, and electing the district officers; and,

Whereas, The following named officers were duly elected the first five, and the rest appointed by the District Grand Worthy Superior, viz: Rev. M. J. Dyer, District Grand Worthy Superior; Rev. J. W. Hudson, District Grand Deputy Worthy Superior; Sister Emma Price, District Grand Worthy Vice-Superior; Rev. J. F. Marshall, District Grand Worthy Scribe; Geo. D. Geddes, District Grand Worthy Treasurer; Rev. E. Lyons, District Grynd Worthy Chaplain; Sister Harer Lewis, District Grand Worthy Conductress; Sister Martha Hall, District Grand Worthy Assistant Conductress; Sister Mary Jordan, District Grand Worthy Messenger; Cyrus Kellar, District Grand Worthy Marshal; Lewis Crawford, District Grand Worthy Inside Sentinel; and Bro. D. Smith, District Grand Worthy Outside Sentinel.

Therefore, know ye all men by these presents that I, Graham Bell, General Grand Worthy Superior of the United Order of Brothers and Sisters of Love and Charity, have this 29th day of the twelfth month, A. D., 1883, recognized, set apart and declared that the said district to be lawfully and legally constituted, and the thirty-one subordinate tabernacles in the three States, with their two thousand members, that was heretofore superintended over by General Grand Deputies, will hereafter address all communications to Rev. M. J. Dyer, District Grand Worthy Superior, or Rev. J. F. Marshall, District Grand Worthy Scribe, office and headquarters 220 Erato street, New Orleans, La.

Given under my hand and seal of the Order by the General Grand Worthy Superior.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.
Sixty Addresses by American Educators.
Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.
8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper, 91. 25
Cloth, 1 75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

The Housekeeper.

A CEMENT FOR STOVES.—If the stove is cracked, a good cement is made for it as follows: Wood ashes and salt in equal proportions, reduced to a paste with cold water, and fill in the cracks when the stove is cool. It will soon harden.

STARCH.—If you want good starch, mix it with cold water; add boiling water until it thickens, then add a dessertspoonful of sugar and a small piece of butter. This makes a stiff and glossy finish equal to that of the laundry.

ALUM is one of the best additions to make whitewash of lime which will not rub off. When powdered chalk is used, glue water is also good, but would not answer for outside work exposed to much rain.

To clean a tea or coffee pot that has become discolored inside, put into it a teaspoonful of saleratus and fill two-thirds full of water, and let it boil two hours. Wash and rinse well before using.

TO DESTROY ANTS.—Wrap a piece of gum camphor in cloth or paper to keep it from dissolving, and place it in or about your cupboard or sugar, and it will drive away these pests.

SPICE NUTS.—Beat four eggs, stir in a pound of sifted sugar, half an ounce of powdered cinnamon, a quarter of an ounce of powdered cloves and the peel of a lemon cut as fine as possible. Stir these a quarter of an hour, then add a pound of flour by degrees and two ounces of candied peel. When this is well mixed drop little lumps on buttered tins and bake them in a moderate oven.

BEEF.—The flesh of the ox should be fine and of a crimson red color; the fat is a yellowish white. Cow meat is not so red, and the fat is white. Ox meat is good all the year round, but best in winter and fall. Boiled beef should be always cut crosswise, so that the meat be short; it will by this means appear more tender. A piece should be a little thin, and a small piece of fat put [illegible]

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Union Signal, official organ of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, on Dec. 10 issued a crusade memorial number, to contribute to the interest of the decennial anniversary of the Ohio crusade. All temperance workers should get a copy, and profit by the suggestions of that crusade.

The Charles A. Vogeler Company, of Baltimore, Md., publish an almanac that interesperses the calendar with prize essays by American humorists. This makes it easier to read and almost as agreable as St. Jacob's Oil to the system.

The present year has produced a great mass of writings about Martin Luther, but nothing worthier or more interesting has appeared than an account in The Manhattan for January of "The Luther Monument at Worms," by J. Leonard Corning, who considers it solely as a work of art relating some new anecdotes concerning it. Ten of the statues which form part of the monument are, respectively, engraved, and the frontispiece is a masterly engraving, by Kruell, of the portrait bust of Luther by Donndorf, who designed the beautiful drinking fountain in Union Square, New York. Another illustrated paper is on "Pompeii, Past and Present," in which the text is supplemented by engravings of paintings depicting ancient Pompeian life. A dramatic and thrilling short story is "Piti-Jodi Ba'tiste," the scene being laid in New Orleans in the time of Governor Carondelet. In "Woman in Modern Civilization," by Henry O. Pedder, the vexed question of woman's rights has fair and discriminative treatment. The eminent lawyer, George Ticknor Curtis, in "Creation or Evolution?" lays the foundation for trying those questions by the rules of legal evidence.

The Current, a new Chicago weekly, edited by Edgar L. Wakeman, at $4 a year, is filled with brief and pithy literary notes and observations on all topics of public interest. Its articles are models of condensation, and display much journalistic ability in their preparation.

The Popular Science Monthly was established a dozen years ago to bring before the general public the results of scientific thought on many large and important questions which could find no expression in the current periodicals. Scientific inquiry was penetrating many new fields, extending important knowledge, and profoundly affecting opinion upon numberless questions of speculative and practical interest. It was the policy of this magazine at the outset, and has been consistently adhered to since, to obtain the ablest statements from the most distinguished scientific men of all countries in their bearing upon the higher problems of investigation. Leaving the dry and technical details of science, which are of chief concern to specialists, to the journals devoted to them, The Popular Science Monthly has dealt with those more general and practical subjects which are of the greatest interest and importance to the people at large. Terms: $5.00 per annum. Subscriptions may begin at any time. New York: D. Appleton & Co., Publishers, 1, 3, & 5 Bond Street.

Is Consumption Curable?

An annual death-rate of nearly 100,000 by Consumption in the United States given, as it is the easiest profession is concerned, a most emphatic and distressing negative to this question. But under the new Vitalising treatment of Dr. Starkey & Palen, of 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia, quite as emphatic an affirmative can be declared. This treatment has inaugurated a new era in the healing art. We are speaking within the limit of facts when we say that during the past thirteen years in thousands of cases the progress of consumption has been arrested in its way, and hundreds of lives saved. In many instances where it seemed that the patient could not survive for more than a few days or a few weeks, the vital forces have rallied, and there has been a new life and vitality, and a better and more comfortable health. If you wish to know all about this remarkable treatment write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, and they will send you such documentary evidence as will enable you to be judge of its real merits. Dr. Anthony Comstock's "Traps for the Young" no mention, unmade of old maids and [illegible] Sunday-school [illegible] will.—Ex.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my children. We belonged to Mr. Gabriel Smith, president of a college in Missouri. We were sold to a negro trader and brought to Vicksburg, Miss. Pat Carter and I were sold together, and left Reuben and David and Sulier, their sister, in the trader's yard. I heard that Reuben was wounded at Vicksburg, and in the hospital, and the young ones were left with Thomas Smith in Missouri. The ones left were Abraham, William and Jane Carter. Their father was killed by a negro trader, James Chill, before he would be taken and sold from his family. Address me care of Rev. T. J. Johnson, Carrollton, La. MINCY CARTER.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my brother, Major Carpenter in America, viz., for from my home in Priyestytown, a member of the Methodist church, and a sister in Franktown. I also wish to hear from Nancy Bailey's sister, Judy Patton. There were three daughters, Fredonia and Susan Ann, and a niece, Mary Louis. Husband was Robert Louis, and uncle Bednago had a wife named Winnie. Please address, at 408 Live Oak street, San Antonio, Tex. BANJAMIN BAILEY.

DEAR SIR: I desire to make an inquiry for two brothers of mine that were separated from me when children, we belonged before the war to Widow Fox, she sold me to Mr. William Glenn, and my brother Joe and Green she sent off by her brother, Mr. Joe Moore and her nephew, Mr. Joseph Halion, and sold them to whom I cannot tell. Our mother was named Caroline Fox, and her youngest son was named Franklin Fox; she also sold another woman and two children at that time. The Widow Fox lived at that time near Siloam, Miss., Okitibbeha county. Address me at Holly Springs, Miss.

Susan's sister was sold before Richard Cook died, Susan's sister was named Ellen Green. Janies Green's wife was sold from Richard Cook state if any of Ann Stubbs relations can be heard of. Please write to Yorktown to Ann Washington, I am married now. My mother's name is Lucy Stubb that uncle John Stubb had for his wife. One uncle got drowned one night coming home from Pinter Peatat swamp, he was name Watts Harris, he belonged to Richard Cook, in Gloucester. I want to hear from my relations if they can be found anywhere in the world. ANN WASHINGTON.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my relatives. My father was Andrew Thompson, and his wife Frankie. She had a son Randall when father married her. After father married her she had three children, named as follows: Manuel, Lucy, Lettie, Betsey, William, Squire, Berry, Martha and Sette, who had twelve fingers, the other five children are dead. I left them in South Carolina in 1839 or 1834. I was carried to Fairfield, S. C., by young Mistress Caroline Thomson, who married Mr. Meande. The last time I heard from any of them was just before the war. Some were then in Tennessee, Willis Thompson I here in West Point. He was carried off at the same time I was and by the same lady. Sister Letty was also carried to the same place. I left her in Montgomery, Ala. Address me care of Rev. J. F. Pratt, West Point, Miss.

WILLIAMS THOMPSON.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my sons, Reuben Carter, David Carter, Abraham Carter and Anthony Carter. We belonged to Gabriel Smith, and were parted from each other in Vicksburg, Miss., about twenty years ago. I heard from them since and they were living in Kansas territory about 11 years ago. Address me at Camp Parapet, La. MINCEY CARTER.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 31, '79.

Gentlemen—Having been afflicted for a number of years with indigestion and general debility, by the advice of my doctor I used Hop Bitters, and must say they afforded me almost instant relief. I am glad to be able to testify in their behalf. THOS. G. KNOX.

A New York paper named Father Columbigle Paper advocates for President, Benjamin F. Butler, of Massachusetts, for vice president, John H. Reagan, of Texas. On this line it will receive Hail Columbia from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Bad temper often proceeds from the painful disorders to which women are subject. In female complaints Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is a certain cure. By all druggists.

The "labor problem" will never be adjusted in a way to satisfy the lazy fellow who has in him no element of self help. Let all such go to the tropics and eat bananas. They are not worth a nickel an acre in these United States.—Nashville Advocate.

"It has more than realized my expectations," says Prof. Duncan Campbell, M. D., L. L. D., President Royal College Physicians and Surgeons; Member General Council University of Edinburg, etc., of the Liebig Co's Coca Beef Tonic. Invaluable for debility, weak lungs, biliousness, dyspepsia, female suffering, asthma, malaria, liver complaint, sick headache.

U. S. Consul Packard, at Liverpool, has reported to the State Department the fact that extensive frauds are being practiced upon the United States Government by British shippers, in the under valuation of merchandise shipped to this country.

Delicate and Feeble Ladies.

Those languid, tiresome sensations causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet, that constant drain that is being made upon your system by some chronic weakness, dragging and pain-producing ailment, the nervous strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy Hop Bitters. In the circumstances of your case, it is almost certain to prove a perfect specific, as it is of countless others, relieving the most distressing symptoms and relieved at once, while the special means of periodical pain are permanently removed. None need to suffer a day longer, but those who do will be criminally grateful and show such an intention in recommending Hop Bitters as women.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with neuralgia and a dull, heavy, listless sensation of the whole system, combined with nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. These troubles are all gone, as we say, Hop Bitters with such good effect that the mother, and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady, in Providence.

BRADFORD, Pa., May 8, 1878.

It has cured me of several diseases such as nervousness, sickness at the stomach, monthly troubles, etc. I have not been sick one day in four years since I took Hop Bitters. All my neighbors use them. MRS. FANNIE GIBSON.

$20,000 Left. "A cast of Europe that cost me $2,000 done me less good than one bottle of Hop Bitters; they also cured my wife of 15 years' nervous weakness, sleeplessness, and dyspepsia." E. M., Albany, N. Y.

High Authority.

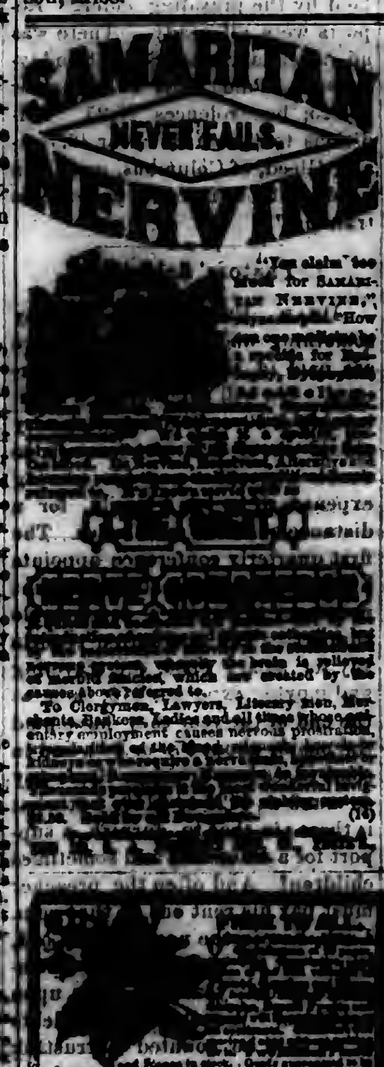
Hop Bitters is not, in any sense, an alcoholic beverage or liquor, and could not be sold for use except to persons desirous of obtaining a medical bitters. GEORGE B. WILSON, U. S. Com. Internal Rev. Fourth District, Ill., May 1, 1879.

Sirs: I have been suffering for years, and I tried your Hop Bitters, and it done me more good than all the doctors. MRS. S. S. BOONE.

Baby Saved!

We are so thankful to say that our nursing baby was permanently cured of a dangerous and protracted constipation and irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents Rochester, N. Y.

Japan's Memorial to the General Conference.



The object of this memorial, a copy of which is at hand, both in Japanese and English, is to petition that the Japan mission may be organized into an annual conference. The case is presented in terse, forcible sentences, and the facts go far to strengthen the petition. This annual meeting comprises fourteen American and five Japanese elders, four Japanese deacons, and six preachers on trial (soon to be eligible to the order of deacon,) ten local preachers and twenty-five exhorters. A total membership of 947, 1242 Sunday-school scholars, 717 day scholars, 21 schools of higher grade having 60 scholars, a mission training school with a prospective Anglo-Japanese University, make a array of statements highly encouraging to the many interested, both at home and abroad, in the evangelization of Japan.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Unanimous Approval of Medical Staff.

Dr. T. G. Comstock, Physician of Good Samaritan Hospital, St. Louis, Mo., says: "For years we have used it in this hospital, in dyspepsia and nervous diseases, and as a drink during the decline and in the convalescence of lingering fevers. It has the unanimous approval of our medical staff."

We have it from good authority, and from the jailer himself, that when colored boys have been arrested and locked up that they have been stretched out and whipped. Now there is no law in this State for a whipping post, and when any officer institutes one he violates the law, and should be held accountable for it. Why is it that some white boys have not been whipped?—People's Adviser, Jackson, Miss.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, Fulness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the kidneys and skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with business, and are perfect.

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, for years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, but TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have restored me to health. My appetite is splendid, food digests readily, and I now have natural passages. I feel like a new man. W. H. [illegible], Pittsburg, Pa.

PARLOR ORGANS

ONE YEAR'S TEST TRIAL. Money Refunded, with interest at six per cent, if not just as represented. Organ shipped same day order is received.

ONLY $88.00

It is by far the sweetest toned and most powerful Organ yet made. The case is manufactured from the choicest of seasoned and kiln-dried Black Walnut, built neat, so as not to absorb dirt or dust. It is manufactured on a new and scientific plan, so as to render sound of reeds PIPE-LIKE in tone. The Pipe Tube Coils enable this Organ to imitate a Church Pipe Organ that would cost from $500 to $1,000. The Scotch BAGPIPE, ALPINE HORN, CHIME OF SWISS BELLS, EUROPEAN FLAGEOLET, ORCHESTRA, BRASS BAND, OLE BULL VIOLIN, MUSIC BOX, the HUMAN VOICE, ANGELIC HARP, NIGHT HORN, CATHEDRAL PIPE ORGAN, are all exactly imitated in "Beatty's Best." Only $88; providing order is given and remittance made within 25 days, $80.00, or if order is given and remittance is made within 9 days, only $75.00 cash will buy this magnificent $600.00 Parlor Organ, including a very handsome Bench (or stool), Book and Music. The reason why this limited time price is given is to induce you to order as early as possible, thus introducing this sweet-toned instrument immediately. IF YOU CANNOT BUY NOW, WRITE, GIVING YOUR REASONS WHY, AS I WANT TO HEAR FROM YOU ANYWAY.

12 FULL SETS GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS, $200 FOR ONLY $88.00. 29-Stops. Warranted 6 Years.

11th Set—ANGELIC HARP Reeds.
12th Set—Weird NIGHT HORN Reeds.

READ THE DESCRIPTION OF STOP WORK. 29 IN ALL.

1—CLARIONET.—A set of reeds that exactly imitates the musical instrument that bears its name. It is one of the most brilliant sets of reeds used in "BEATTY'S BEST"

2—VOIX CELESTE.—The sweet, pure, and exalted tones produced from this Stop are beyond description.

3—CELLO.—A rich and melodious tone is produced.

4—FRENCH HORN.—Imitates a full ORCHESTRA and BRASS BAND.

5—PICCOLO.—Variety of music which makes the Piccolo the most difficult and expensive Stop to build. Producing an effect similar to a MILITARY BAND.

6—SAXAPHONE.—The beautiful effect of this Stop is "Beatty's Favorite." The set of reeds is so pleasing that many have written to me saying: "It alone is worth the price of the Organ."

7—DIAPASON.—Draws a full set of Golden Tongue Reeds.

8—POWERFUL BOX SUB-BASS.—New and original. Its THUNDERING TONES are without a parallel. Imitating exactly the PEDAL BASS of the famous Freiberg (Germany) Pipe Organ.

9—DULCIANA.—A full set of Paris Reeds is drawn by this Stop.

10—VOX JUBILANTE.—When used in conjunction with Stops Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 6 peals forth most delightful music.

11. VOX HUMANA. Tremelant, which, by the aid of a FAN WHEEL, imitates the HUMAN VOICE.

12—OCTAVE COUPLER.—Doubles the power of the Organ. Couples all octaves. Orchestra effects produced.

13—Melodia. 14. Clarabella. 15. Bourdon. 16. Viol Di Gamba. 17. Viola Dolce. 18. Grand Expression. 19. Harp Æolian. 20. Echo. 21. Violina. 22. Orchestral Forte. 23. Grand Organ Stop. 24. Right Knee Stop. 25. Automatic Valve Stop. 26. Mezzo Knee Stop. 27. Mascisco. 28. Percussion, open pan. ned Combination Swell.

29. AEROSTATIC EXPRESSION Compass or Regulator, showing at a glance the amount of pressure upon the instrument; same as a compass to the ship so is this new improvement to the Organ. The last seventeen (17) Stops are operated in direct conjunction with above twelve (12), bringing forth, at command of the performer, most charming music, with beautiful dreamful effect, from a mere whisper to a grand burst of harmony. Its MELODIOUS TONES, while using the full Organ must be heard to be appreciated. To which is added the RIGHT and LEFT Grand Organ Knee Swells, so as to enable the performer to throw on or off full power without removing hands from keyboard. Also a Grand Mouse Swell (patented) gives the Organ a resonant tone not obtained in any other make. Lamp Stands, Pocket for Music, Treble (3) Upright Bellows, Steel Springs, Octave Coupler, BEATTY'S PATENT STOP ACTION and SOUNDING BOARDS. Regular Catalogue Price, without Bench, (or Stool), Book and Music, ONLY $300.00. This Organ is worth to any lover of sweet music, several times its price. $300.00.

If you ever intend to buy an Organ you should order this instead of some other make. Why? Because this instrument contains all the music to be found in an ordinary Organ and is sold at retail for $300.00. Besides, it has many varieties of sweet combinations and stops not obtainable in any other Organ. Why, then, pay more? Because this instrument contains all the music to be found in an ordinary Organ and is sold at retail for $300.00. Besides, it has many varieties of sweet combinations and that is

The Four Stages of Disease.

Few people but will realize the startling truth shown in the engravings accompanying the advertisement of T. P. Childs in this number of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Nearly every family in the land has friends or near and dear relatives who have passed through every stage of disease as described in the engravings—how true to life—how fearfully suggestive of the dangers that may result from careless exposure—how carefully we should heed those warning Coughs and Colds—how fearful are the unseen dangers that surround us on every side, a slight cold or cough neglected may bring us untold miseries; Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption, with death in the near future. Take care of the first symptoms is the lesson read from the pictures, delay may mean death.

To many it will be a matter of surprise that Catarrh is very frequently mistaken for Consumption the symptoms in each being much alike, especially in the earlier stages. No one who recognizes in his own system, or who has friends or relatives with any of the symptoms accurately described, should fail to send a statement of the case to Mr. Childs. There may be hope even in very desperate cases.

The discovery of his cure for Catarrh and diseases of the Throat and Lungs, has attracted great attention. Leading men everywhere, publicly state that Childs' treatment has cured them or their families of Catarrh or Throat or Lung difficulties—among them clergymen, physicians, lawyers, merchants, bankers and business men. All who have personally investigated the facts, are satisfied that Mr. Childs has discovered a certain positive and permanent cure for these diseases, that when properly used never fails even in the most desperate cases. Catarrh is generally many years in gaining a foothold in the system, and attacks so many parts of the body that it cannot be cured by any one remedy or by a single application. It requires remedies that will meet the disease wherever it is located, and fight it inch by inch until a complete victory has been obtained. Rev. T. P. Childs has treated and cured thousands at their own homes never having seen them. In a thoroughly honorable and characteristic manner he publishes the the names and addresses of some he has cured, that any who desire may inquire of the patients themselves what Childs treatment has done for them.

THE FOLLOWING FROM OTHER PUBLISHERS HAS GIVEN US EVERY CONFIDENCE IN RECOMMENDING MR. CHILDS TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

"The publishers and editors of The Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, have known Rev. T. P. Childs for many years, and feel ever confidence in any statement he may make. Our subscribers can feel every confidence in giving their cases into his hands for treatment." "While not supposing that all cases of Catarrh will be cured by the prescription advertised, the publishers of the Illustrated Christian Weekly, of New York, after diligent inquiry, have reason to believe that it has, in many cases, proved effectual." "The publishers of The Congregationalist, of Boston, with multitudes of other people, are somewhat suspicious of patent medicines as a rule, and when we received the advertisement of Mr. Childs, we at first declined its insertion; but on making inquiry, we received such satisfactory replies, and one especially from a well-known Congrgeational pastor not far from Rev. Mr. Childs, the proprietor of ths medicine, that we withdrew our objections." "The publishers of The St. Louis Christian Advocate, after careful investigation, are satisfied that Rev. T. P. Child's treatment for the head, throat and lungs is all that it is represented to be."

None need feel any hesitancy in placing their case in Mr. Child's hands for treatment. We would call especial attention to the advertisement, and request a careful perusal of the facts as set forth.

Many who do not receive our paper would doubtless be very thankful, should our readers call the attention of such to the advertisement of Mr. Childs. Catarrh and Consumpion are the two enemies of the race, and any means of relief is a heaven sent blessing. Child's treatment may be relied on as an effective and certain cure for Nasal Catarrh, Bronchitis and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, and you may recommend it to your friends with every confidence.

MARRIAGES.

On Thursday, Dec. 27, 1883, Hon. M. M. Murray, of Lafayette county, Ark., and late of Wiley University, at Marshall, Texas, was wedded to Mrs. H. Murray. Ceremony by Rev. A. Tony. May tenderness, love and happiness line their path through life.

Moss Hill, Ark., Dec. 29, 1883.

DEATHS.

Sister Fannie McCarty, a member of the M. E. Church, died Nov. 6, 1883. She left a husband and two children, and a special injunction that her children be raised in the fear of the Lord.

O. GILLESPIE.

Shubuta, Miss.

It has pleased Almighty God, our Heavenly Father to summons by death the only child, an infant daughter of Rev. Hampton James. May He bless the bereaved.

C. MONROE.

Clinton, La.

I found Sister Mary Nevils at the point of death from burns. She is now at rest and is greatly missed from the church.

JOHN H. COPPAGE.

Tullahoma, Tenn.

Sister Elizabeth Walker, the dear and affectionate wife of Rev. Frank Walker, pastor of the M. E. Church at Monroe, La., departed this life Dec. 3, 1883. She had endured a long and tedious illness, and as she drew near the banks of Jordan she was prepared to meet her Savior. She was full of the missionary spirit, and a help to her husband in the ministry. Her labors in the Sabbath-school and among the people will long be remembered. She leaves a husband, four children and a host of friends to mourn her loss. The burial services were conducted by Rev. Mr. White, of the Church South, to whom the congregation are grateful.

GEO. WASHINGTON.

On Nov. 20, 1883, Sister Susan Jackson departed this life to meet her Savior, whom she found precious from the age of 12 years upward. A husband and one child are bereaved.

L. J. TERRELL.

Ripley, Miss.

Seven Bell, Sr., was born Aug. 13, 1810, and died at Starkville, Miss., Nov. 24, 1883, aged 73 years, 3 months and 10 days. He was calm to the last, and met death as a hero. His spirit peacefully returned to God who gave it. He was converted when very young, united with the M. E. Church, and was a faithful member thereof 53 years.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 5,000 Beatty Organs Shipped.

During the past three months Mayor Beatty, the enterprising organ-builder Washington, New Jersey, shipped 5,000 cabinet organs from his great factory there, as follows: September, 1600; October, 1,800; November, (two holidays) 1,000—total, 5,000. It is said that this is by far the largest shipment of organs made there by any organ-builder in America for the same length of time, and it is proof that the public are buying Beatty's organs in preference to other makes.

He agrees to ship the organ that is advertised in this issue the same day he receives the order, or forfeit $500 in greenbacks. This is enterprise, and to those who want an organ for a holiday present it is a decided bargain.

The Progress of Disease.

We are unwilling to admit the presence of disease, till a ready prey to the grim destroyer whose insidious approach, subtle progress and unseen workings, develops such fatal results. Let us be warned in time, lest it be "too late."

Are You Sure It Is Consumption?

Many thousands fully believe they or their friends are being hurried toward the grave by that terrible disease Consumption, and are being treated for that disease, when they have only CATARRH in some of its many types; the symptoms in many forms of these diseases are quite similar and can easily be mistaken. Catarrh, unalarming in its character and beginnings, neglected, develops and spreads, and in time poisons the vital organs, until it finally is no longer "ONLY CATARRH," but some disease that gives but little hope of health or life. We do not claim to cure Consumption, but are fully convinced from the results of our daily practice that we can cure and restore to health many who now feel their case to be hopeless.

Danger Signals.

Do you take cold easily? Have you a cold in the head that does not get better? Have you a hacking cough? Is your throat affected? Are you troubled with [illegible] nose? Soreness of the throat? Difficulty in breathing? Have you pain in the forehead between and above the eyes? A sense of fullness in the head? Are the passages of the nose stopped up? Is your breath foul? Have you lost all sense of smell? Are you troubled by hawking, spitting, weak inflamed eyes? Dullness or discomfort in the head? Dryness or heat of the nose? Is your voice harsh or rough? Have you any difficulty in talking? Have you an excessive secretion of mucus or matter in the nasal passages, which must either be blown from the nose, or drop back behind the palate, or hawked or snuffed backward to the throat? Ringing or roaring or other noises in the ears, more or less impairment of the hearing?

If So, You Have Catarrh.

Some have all these symptoms, others only a part. Some of these symptoms indicate that the disease has passed from the head and has attacked the throat and bronchial tubes, and is affecting the lungs and other vital organs of the body, and unless the disease is stopped, its ravages will offset and endanger the life. In most cases Catarrh is only a local disease, and requires local treatment. But in old or neglected cases the whole system becomes poisoned by the disease and then constitutional treatment is necessary to assist in expelling it from the organization.

Some Bad Symptoms.

The long continued corruption of the air that is breathed passing over the foul matter in the nasal passages, poisons the lungs and from thence the blood. The morbid matter that is swallowed during sleep, passes into the stomach, enfeebles the digestion, vitiates the secretions and pollutes the very fountains of life. The patient becomes feverish occasionally, there is less buoyancy of spirits, the appetite is often fickle, the head less clear, it is difficult to keep the energies up to the old standard, and often without knowing why, he is conscious that he is not as well all the time as he used to be. These symptoms indicate that the vital organs are becoming impaired so that they cannot perform their natural healthy functions. Our constitutional treatment is devised to assist nature in removing all poisonous material from the system and to neutralize and counteract its baneful effects on the vital organs and on the blood.

Do Not Trifle With Disease.

We have the only known certain and reliable method for the cure of Nasal Catarrh, Throat and Lung disease; it is regarded by the best of judges as being the most complete treatment ever devised. Indeed, there does not appear to be anything lacking in its perfect adaptation to these diseases in all their loathsome, painful and dangerous developments. Each case is examined into carefully and critically and the [illegible] combined to meet the needs of each individual. To this and alone much of our success is due, and we think no case is incurable when our questions are properly answered. Fifteen years of constant practice with thousands of patients all over the country have enabled us to bring the application of our Remedies to the highest point of perfection. Do not trifle then with some cheap so-called "Cure" which can afford but temporary relief while the roots of the vile disease [illegible] to strike deeper and deeper) but be in earnest and be thorough or do nothing. You have been years in contracting the disease, you cannot be rid of it in a day, or with one application of any medicine.

The Experience of O[illegible]

The result [illegible] guarantee that Childs' Treatment for Catarrh and Diseases of the Head, Throat and Lungs is not an [illegible] but a positive and certain remedy. We, above all things, desire to establish confidence in our treatment, so that every sufferer from Catarrh, Bronchitis, and their effects on the Lungs and other Vital Organs, may feel certain of success in its use.

Only Fair We deem it only fair that every one who wishes should have the opportunity to ascertain whether we are able to accomplish all that we claim; and for this purpose we add a few of the many thousands of unsolicited certificates which have been sent us by grateful patients—almost any of whom will doubtless respond to any inquiry by letter, if be willing to let the afflicted know where they can find certain relief. We have thousands of these certificates from all classes—physicians, clergymen, lawyers, farmers, young women and old, children judges, merchants, bankers, business men, and adults.

Mr. Z. Z. LEE, of Grangeville, St. Helena Par., La., writes: I cannot speak too highly in praise of your valuable remedies which act like a charm in relieving the loathsome disease for which they are recommended.

I have been permanently cured of Catarrh in the head by the use of your Catarrh Specific. I will answer all letters addressed to me in regard to this subject. Yours with thanks,
E. POWELL, Heath, Burke co., N. C.

You may use my name as a reference, as I have been cured by your treatment. I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries in regard to your remedies.
HARRY TRUESDELL, Rock Dale Mills, Miss.

August 8, 1882

You are at liberty to use my name as a reference in favor of the healing qualities of your remedy. It has not only cured my wife of catharrh in the head and throat, but has cured her of dyspepsia. B. S. DUNKIN, Carrol, Ind.

I was thought to have had consumption, and had suffered many years with what was really catarrh, before I procured your treatment. I have had no return of the disease.
Miss LOUISE JAMES, Crab Orchard, Ky.

When I received your treatment I could hardly move about, but before I had used it six weeks I could work all the time, and have been attending to my business ever since.

I shall always recommend your treatment in the highest terms. Yours respectfully,
IRVING C. GLISSON, Mobley's Pond, Ga.

I received your medicine and used as directed, and I now rejoice in saying that I am well.
JOS. A. MARTIN,
Galley Bridge, Fayette co., W. Va.

Your medicines were duly received, and effected a perfect cure. Thanks for your prompt attention, and for the thorough cure of my husband.
Respectfully, Mrs. A. L. FOREland,
Centreville, Texas.

I was terribly afflicted with nasal and bronchial catarrh, and concluded to give your treatment a test. In a short time it cured me. I induced my brother to try it, and he too was cured.
R. C. JONES, Rock River Falls, Wis.

I write to tell you that I am perfectly cured of catarrh. O. P. WISE, Magnolia, Ark.

I would not take a farm for your Specific if it could not be replaced. J. P. ROBERTS, Chicago, Ill.

HOME TREATMENT. Child's Treatment for Catarrh, and all diseases of the Head, Throat and Lungs can be taken at home, with perfect ease and safety, by the patient. We especially desire to treat those who have tried other remedies without success. A full statement of home treatment and cost will be sent on application.

Address, Rev. T. P. CHILDS, Troy, Ohio.

Editorial Notes.

The good things said by the Christian Neighbor, of Columbia S. C., now appear in new type.

The Ohio Democrats nominated Ex-Congressman Henry B. Payne for U. S. Senator, and defeated Senator Pendleton, the author of the civil service reform bill, for renomination.

Methodist ministers in making their reports to the quarterly conference usually mention the number of sermons they have preached during the quarter. They generally average from twelve to twenty-four. This is what we call having an easy time. John Wesley after his return from Georgia preached 42,000 times, more than fifteen a week. His travels on horseback were full 4000 miles each year. The published works of his life amounted to nearly two hundred volumes. He is not of much a Methodist who can content himself with twelve or twenty-four sermons in three months. Better wake up, brethren, this is not our rest. Go out into the highways and hedges.

Evidently the Devil is not dead. He seems to be having things pretty much his own way just now up in Arkansas. According to the Arkansas Mansion, of the fifth instant, there was in that State during the holidays a reign of drunken revelry that baffles description. There were eight murders, one suicide, one robbery, and one rape. We frequently read of the dauntless bravery of the old-time heroes, of their honest hatred of all sin, shame, and mere pretence to goodness. In the conflict that is now going on with him who is going about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may destroy, Arkansas has need of men who fear nothing but sin.

Rev. Peter Cartwright is accused of saying many odd and witty sayings. He thought he could discriminate between the bleat of a sheep and that of a goat. He had in one of his districts a sister more noisy than pious, who would go off on tantrums at every opportunity. At one of his quarterly meetings this sister was present, the love-feast was an animated season, and the sister broke out with, "Praise the Lord, it seems just as though I should fly. O if I only had one more feather in the wing of my faith I would fly to my Saviour and be forever at rest." Brother Cartwright cried out, "Stick in the feather O Lord, stick in the feather; and let her go, for she is of no use here."

The Meridian Mercury upholds the Yazoo murders by lawless whites and says: "And it is a fact that nine out of ten of the intelligent women generally side with the Mercury in its extremist views. They will tell you to say that the Knklux, in their day, were a great blessing to the women folk." The other day the Nashville Advocate ridiculed the reference by Bishop Simpson to Kuklux in Alabama, and much valuable space is consumed by the Southern press in lame efforts to disprove the existence of organized outlawry. The Mercury is troubled with no such squeamishness, and exhibits greater candor. It proves the repeated assertion of impartial observers, that lawlessness is not incompatible with church relations or the best society in many parts of the South.

According to statistics furnished by the Belgian Temperance Association, the drinking habits of the people have been steadily on the increase since 1840. The consumption of alcohol now averages annually seven and a half gallons per head for the adult population. The annual consumption of beer is 225 quarts for each person. The drinking saloons have increased to one for every forty-four inhabitants. In a population of five and one-half millions there is expended for drink the enormous sum of over $95,000,000. Crimes of violence that averaged in 1840 about 11,000 have now reached 36,000. In 1840 the suicides were 240, in 1880 they had increased to 581. There are four times as many persons in confinement for criminal offenses as forty years ago. The reports of the surgeons at the hospitals show that full 80 per cent. of the fatal cases under their care are due to the effects of alcohol. Belgium is not the only country cursed with rum. The drinking habits of our own people are alarming. No section of the country is free from murders, suicides and other fatal crimes to be traced directly to the drinking habits of the people.

The New York Times, reviewing Judge Pardee's decision, asserts that it hinged on a technicality, and did not go into the merits of the case. This was evident, and it was surprising that the eminent law officers of the government did not anticipate it. Following closely the impotency of the government in the star route trials it gives rise to the suspicion that these officials are not as thoroughly in earnest as they might be. Postmaster General Gresham is doing right when he urges Congress to deprive newspapers that print lottery advertisements of the pound rate of postage. Meanwhile, it would seem that Attorney General Brewster should heed the suggestion of the Times, which says: "There is a law (United States Statutes, section 3,894,) which declares that "No letter or circular concerning lotteries shall be carried in the mail." When will this law be enforced? When will the Department of Law and the Post Office Department cease quibbling about "fraudulent" lotteries and executive orders and enforce this law? When this is done, and not before, a gambling institution licensed by State law and supported by local opinion, but prejudicial to public morals, will be denied the use of the United States mails."

Growth of Christianity in 1883.

Gerald Massey says that Christianity is a lie and delusion. A few of our readers may know who Gerald Massey is. We care not to stop and explain. When you are passing along the street, warmed by the genial rays of the sun and guided by its splendid light, what care you that some fellow cries out that the sun is a myth, a delusion? You are satisfied with the sun, and know that but for its blessings he would not be able to complain of it.

While Christianity is in no sense a failure, it has not yet accomplished its work. Eighteen hundred and eighty-three years have gone since Christ came, and yet God's plan of salvation of the world is unfulfilled. His patience is surely exhaustless. He waited for thousands of years until the world was made ready for the coming of the Son of man. He is waiting through a vast period while the world is being made ready for the universal sway of his kingdom. The cry of the watchman upon the walls is that the "morning cometh." But the same cry comes echoing down the ages. It was raised by the shepherds on Judea's plains, and the aged Simeon lingered till he caught a glimpse of its glory. Paul saw it growing brighter, and many of the apostolic fathers thought the day of the Lord's second coming was at hand. If they could have foreseen how dark a period was soon to begin, they might have doubted the power and final supremacy of the light. God knew it all, yet he waited firm in his changeless purpose. We of this age look back to the Reformation for the dawning of our morning. Some of the thick clouds have been swept from the horizon. We see, as the early Christians saw, the first beams. And they are growing brighter. The rosy tints begin to appear, and we know the Sun of Righteousness is to be made manifest to the whole world.

What is one second in the age from the first faint streaks of dawn to high noon? What is a year in God's dispensation? We know that his Gospel is to prevail. We know that it is to be spread by human agencies, with all the delays and the obstructions which human weakness and the obstinacy of sin involve; that there will be advances and retreats, currents of progress and counter-currents of hinderence, growth in one stage and decline in another. How, then, can we measure the gains of a single year? While the Churches are gaining in members, subtle forces may be preparing for disintegration and decay. We know that this is the greatest century for Christianity in our era; but can we be sure that in the midst of the Church's greatest prosperity we are doing nothing to promote an unhealthful reaction? God only knows what trials, victories, and defeats he is yet to bring his Church through, and we have no doubt of the ultimate triumph of the Gospel nor that we are in the period in which this triumph is to be accomplished.

1. The spirit of the nineteenth century Christianity is missionary and aggressive. The Church has never until now understood that the Gospel is for "every creature," and that its duty is to go into all the world to preach it. This is a plain command of Christ, yet the Church has somehow evaded it. Perhaps it was not ready for the sacrifice it involved. It is the sublimest work the world ever saw which the Protestant Churches are now engaged in—attacking boldly in the face of the greatest odds, the overwhelming forces of paganism, false religions, barbarism, and moral and mental degradation.

2. This aggressive missionary spirit is growing. Every year since the opening of this century has witnessed an increase in the number of missionaries and in the voluntary offerings for their maintenance. Country after country has been occupied, until there is hardly an island or a nation which has not heard the missionary's voice. Society after society comes into being, but none die. Millions of dollars come yearly into their treasuries, and yet the call is for more and still more. Missionaries are multiplied, and yet many more are asked for.

3. This spirit of missionary activity does not exhaust itself in foreign fields. It makes itself felt more and more strongly at home. The growth in contributions for domestic missions, from year to year, proves that the "heathen at home" are not neglected while those abroad are being cared for.

4. The breadth, strength, and growth of the missionary activity prove the sincerity of the Church's profession of obedience to Christ. Obedience to Christ must be the mainspring of all the Church's activity. If Christians obey Christ it is because they love him; thus in the fact of obedience lies the test of spiritual life. The sending of the Gospel to Central Africa involves sacrifice, sacrifice in those who carry it, sacrifice in those who raise the funds. Men will not make sacrifices for that which they love not.

5. While the Churches are thus spreading the Gospel among all races in all climes, they are growing at home. It is remarkable fact that we have no declining Churches, excepting, perhaps, some of the smaller sects. They grow year by year. After all the losses in numbers by death, withdrawal, and exclusion are supplied there remains every year of the gross gains enough to show a handsome increase over the previous year. We have, then, in our Protestant churches a steady increase of members, of missionary spirit, of missionary offerings, and so far as human judgment can discern, of spirituality.

The past year, according to our observation, and subject to the limitations we have laid down, has been a year of healthy growth in the Churches. What of weal or woe may have been borne on the bosom of the tides of the controversies of the year we do not undertake to estimate, though it would not be unprofitable to study the tendencies which they indicate. There is the Ritualistic controversy which seems to be waning in the Anglican communion; there is the struggle for place and recognition of the "New Orthodoxy" in the Congregational and Presbyterian denominations; and, to mention another and older question in dispute, there is the relation of the Vatican to various governments, in particular the German. Of notable events in the Churches there have been few. The successful union of the various Methodist bodies in Canada certainly deserves to be mentioned as one of them, and perhaps the final settlement of the question of fraternal relations betwen the Northern and Southern Presbyterian Churches may take rank as another.

We do not at all appreciate the immensity of the interests which Christianity has in the affairs of mankind until we come to consider how it is promoted or hindered by events in the natural, the scientific, the industrial, and the political world. How shall we measure the effects of the opening of Corea to intercourse with Christian nations? It gives another opportunity for the planting of Christian civilization and religion. But how shall we explain the significance of the course of France in Tonquin, in Madagascar, in Africa? France is nominally a Christian nation, yet it is pursuing a career of bloodshed and plunder in these countries, and interfering indirectly with the prosecution of Missions. At the bases of these movements, which statesmen choose to call political, are great moral principles, and the enlightened Christian conscience condemns France for having disregarded them. It will be a great day for Christianity and for the nations when Government affairs shall be administered on the basis of a national Christian conscience, such as Mr. Gladstone has been guided by. The supremacy of the conscience is the condition of individual and national prosperity, and it is the corner-stone of religion. When nations come to feel that this or that question is a moral question, they are sure to settle it right. The American conscience is grappling with the liquor traffic—the English with the opinm. The result is simply a matter of time. Thus Christianity is fighting the battles for mankind, and preparing the way for the universal reign of peace on earth and good-will among men.—New York Advocate.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter From Mack Henson.

MR. EDITOR—Busy as I am, in my new field, it seems almost useless expenditure of time to undertake to contribute the following lines, which I devote to what seems to me a very important subject. The tone of the dear old SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is clear and healthy; its columns are freighted weekly with wise suggestions of vital import worthy the heart, and head of our Methodist people throughout Christendom, but especially here in the South, where the conflict rages most, and where the church needs very pious and brave leaders. Its interests have been trusted very largely into the hands of a few men, who was regarded as the true representatives of our work, and heralds of the progress made, among them soon appeared wise-acres, who has succeeded too well in directing and shaping our Southern work to this age of caste, and race prejudice, their cries have have been long and loud. The above is a preface to what, I am forced to say with regard to the just, and timely criticisms, of the Western, on a resolution passed by the Austin conference, at its last session, in its recommendations to our next General Conference: "To change the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society to that of the Southern Educational Society; and to place the white work on an equal basis with the educational work among the Freedmen." Now Mr. Editor this seems to be very fair, to be sure, it has a very smooth face as well as a bold one. The question is do the needy whites in the South desire to have the church do anything of the kind for them? If so, the Austin conference, is the least capable of championship on the equal base line. Now Mr. Editor, if the Austin conference wishes to occupy tenable grounds on the line of equal basis among white and colored, in the Southern work, and still desires to be regarded as a conference of brain, foresight and integrity, it cannot possibly assume two positions on this line at one and the same time. Of all the conferences within bounds of American Methodism, Austin conference, together with the rest of color line conferences, in my judgment is least capable to advance any such idea, which assumes more the air of dictation than an humble request. The General Conference, no doubt will be burdened with much like the above. We pray that the church will not remain hoodwinked longer upon the Southern work question. We trust also that the church has friends enough among the elected representative host to guard well its interests. This question means to me, to worry the life out of the good people of the North, with the Southern Negro question. Who needs the aid, to fit them for citizenship, and civil society here in the Southern States, the poor whites, as is claimed, or the negroes? Many of the Southrons, however poor, scoff at the idea of being placed on equal basis with negroes, especially in the educational work. These brethren know, or ought to know this, if they hold to know anything at all about the needs of the white people of the South. Does anything in the law making power of this section indicate, or suggest this idea to the getters up of a resolution of this kind? Omnipotent legislation throughout this section, indicates just to the contrary. Our church needs no bolder and newer policy to prosecute this work, than what it has. The only thing remaining for her is to prosecute all work to be done in all lands and climes according to its own policy. And not go down any farther, to plans suggested from the seething pot of vile prejudice. The founders of color line conferences have said all along that our work in the South, could not succed on the equal base line. And therefore, as soon as their plans were effected, they hoisted the black line flag with a loud shout. Now advances the bold argument to form our work over again. How inconsistent? Not to be overmuch tedious, dear sir, let me say with due respect for other men's opinions and plans, that that wing of our church is just as un-Methodistic in spirit on this very question as they can well be, except Methodistic forms. Every one who knows anything about the existing affairs within color line bounds, can, if they choose, testify to this fact. You shall have subscribers from San Antonio.

Meeting of the Book Committee.

The annual meeting of the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held in Cincinnati, commencing Wednesday, Feb. 13, 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m.

HOMER EATON, Chairman.

J. S. BINGHAM, Secretary.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

G. C. Washington, Glencoe: "I hope every pastor who has a charge may impress it upon the minds of the people the great benefits it is to have the SOUTHWESTERN in their family circles. Wherever it is circulated it gives a true Methodist fresh courage to go forward and raise high the banner of Methodism. God prosper the work."

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches: "I held service in our new church seven miles from here, between this place and Robeline, called St. ——. A nice lumbered house is the place of a huge sway-back house that they have used for years for a church. Thus we go."

TENNESSEE.

Jesse P. Price, Brownsville: "I have entered on my field in the West with redoubled zeal for my Master. First quarter at Alamo on Bell circuit was a grand occasion. The people are satisfied with their new pastor, J. W. Hall, and this circuit bids fair. Letters tell me that all my men are at their appointments, and well pleased."

John W. Hall, Alamo circuit: "First quarterly conference was held Dec. 8–9, by Elder Jesse Price, who gave us a stirring exhortation. Two Sunday-schools are in good order, and the circuit is also. Paid elder $8.35; pastor, for traveling and moving expenses, $22.50; benevolent causes 45c. Elder Price addressed us on the nature of benevolency, and preached a rousing sermon, which, I think, will prove a blessing."

MISSISSIPPI.

H. L. Kennedy, Crystal Springs: "We are glad to note that the Lord has blessed us during this year. We have had our revivals and 40 accessions united with the church, 20 of this number were baptized, 19 have been received into full membership. We have done a good deal of improvement during the year. At Crystal Springs we have bought six pair of windows and put them in, at a cost of $30.65. At Little Rock, six miles east from here, we have bought eight pair of windows and have put them in, including other expenses at $47. At White Oak, another point 7 miles west from here, we have bought 2 acres of land to build a new church on, and have bought 8000 feet of lumber. The building to be 30x45 feet. The lumber and land cost $90, and we are fixing to build. Hazlehurst is the next and last point on the work. Here, we are glad to say we have succeeded in building a very neat little church, but have not quite completed it. It is 28x45 feet and 14 feet in the walls and 16 feet 6 inches in center. Vestibule in front and the tower 12 feet from the comb. Much credit is due the members and good friends at Hazlehurst. They have done a good work. We have worked and paid out on the building $390. C. M. Mitchell and Jerry Ratliff give $15 each."

Letter from Walthall.

DEAR SOUTHWESTERN—As we look back over the year passed and see the Divine Providence extended toward us, we can but say, "Thy goodness, O God, has followed us, and thy mercy has been about us through the year." Most of our work for the last four years has been organization. In looking back over those years we sometimes imagine ourselves one of those pioneer preachers of early Methodism. Then again when we think of their hardships and heroic deeds we feel ashamed of our reminiscence. During those years we have received into the old church more than fifty members where we had no membership before; most of these are converts. We have two good church houses, worth more than a thousand dollars, with the land on which they stand. We have ridden not less than three thousand miles each year, and have swam the sloughs in the Big Black river swamp more than a score of times, sometimes discouraged by the speeches of our great men relative to our white work in the South. But receiving strength from the great head of the church, who has said "Go, and I will be with you alway," we go forward. We have many pleasant thoughts while meditating on past events, yet we are made to realize the fact that these are thorns among the roses. We were very sorry to say good-bye to our beloved elder, Bro. Lewis Bradford, who gave many years of his useful life to our conference. But knowing he needed rest we will not murmur. We are highly pleased with his successor, Bro. J. C. Eckles, who has paid us a visit. Bro. E. is a strong preacher, and we hope for him great success in his new field of labor, and pray the Lord to send a score of such men to our State. We need more men and schools in our work. Among the many of our colored people who cannot read are many, very many, whites who cannot. What will we do with them? Hoping you will forgive my long letter, I will close.

On the District.

Sometimes a feeling of faintness comes over us as we contemplate the needs of the district in church building, in Sunday-school work, and in a strong united and persistant effort for the salvation of men. Too many are satisfied with merely "holding the fort." The fearful array of ignorance, unbelief, pride, selfishness, and sin outside "the fort" never disturbs them. They have no idea that the church was organized as an aggressive force, they are only on the defensive. We know of men who are living on starvation salaries because the little patch they are trying to cultivate cannot support them. All around are inviting fields, open doors, wonderful opportunities to organize Sunday-schools and classes, and thus lay the foundation of churches. We do not need less hearers of the word, but we do more doers. O for a shaking in the valley of drones and sluggards! Up brother, up and be doing, stir thyself. Do not neglect thy little patch, but enlarge thy field! At Morgan City Bro. Armston is closing up a year of successful work. Under his pastorate there has been a gradual increase in the membership and Sunday-school, while the benevolent collections of the church will show an increase of more than four fold. We know of no people who give more liberally or cheerfully in the proportion to their number. This is, however, one of those points where the minister for his own comfort and happiness needs to enlarge his field. Thirty-three or four members doing the best they can are not able to give to any minister an adequate support. But here is a good opportunity for enlargement, the minister can hardly go amiss. There are communities in most every direction destitute of the means of grace, where there are persons who are or used to be members of our church, who would with doxologies welcome to their homes and neighborhoods one of our preachers. They are among the "lost sheep." And any man of calm courage, clean cut sense, and the grace of God in his heart, going out into these destitute communities will gather an abundant harvest.

Asbury Chapel, at Franklin, during the ministry of Bro. E. Williams, has enjoyed a season of substantial prosperity. They have not been years free from care, efforts and anxiety, but they have been years of successful Christian and ministerial labor. The Sabbath-school has more than doubled in its membership. Large additions have been made to the church, and full $840 has been raised and expended in repairs of the church and parsonage, and the payment of all debts; for the first time for a long series of years the church is free from debt. The benevolent collections this year will exceed those of any former year. Bro. Williams during his three years ministry has gained a strong hold upon the affections, not only of the members of his own church and congregation, but also those outside of any church. The Methodist minister who may be so fortunate as to be sent to Franklin next year will find a strong, united and happy people. It is said that Kings never make a needless display of thier crown jewels and choice treasures, but rather keep them out of sight, hid away till coronation day comes. It is doubtless true that the great King above never makes any needless display of his jewels, but He does not keep them hid away in obscure and dark places. He never leaves them lying in the dust, or buried in this worlds rubbish. He speaks of them as "a city on a hill," as "the light of the world." He says that "no man lights a candle to put it under a bushel," but "on a candle stick that it may gave light." It may be true that there are persons who are worthy of more appreciation than they receive from this world, that no flaming paragraphs in the papers proclaim their deeds or puff their sermons, but they are not hid away in the dust and rubbish of this world.

At La Teche Bro. Lyon has done two years of hard and earnest work, there has been nothing of dullness or stupidity in his administration. Saints and sinners attending his ministry never return to their homes refreshed by a good sleep, and yet he never condescends to the "holy whine or "whang doodle" style so effective with men who have skulls that cannot, or will not learn. At no point have we had reports more complete than those at La Teche, and at few places has there been clearer evidence of substantial improvement. There will be an increase in the membership, and in all the benevolent collections. No man on the district does better work for the SOUTHWESTERN. In proportion to his membership he has the largest list of subscribers and every one will be paid for.

In nearly all communities there are certain people whom nobody seems to know, and for whom nobody seems to care. They are harmless and useless, willing to be little and unknown. Such people whether in the pew or pulpit are worthless.

At Centerville Bro. Evans is beloved and respected by saints and sinners. He has his convictions of right and wrong, of truth and error, of human conduct and human destiny, and in a manly but Christian spirit, without fear or favor proclaims what he beleives, and the Lord has blessed his work. Believers have been greatly encouraged and sinners converted to God. Nearly $150 has been laid out in repairs upon the church and all paid for. The benevolent collections more than doubled. It is the universal desire of the church and congregation that he be returned another year.

Thus far our observations on the district teach us that we have a liberal and willing people, and that the minister who studies and works the plan of the Discipline will surely succeed, while he who has no plan but works as he "can catch it" is sure to fail. Push on brethren, push hard, let there be no blanks this year. O.

Fare to the Mississippi Conference.

DEAR EDITOR—The following railroads will grant reduced rates to ministers, delegates and visitors attending the Mississippi Annual Conference, to convene at Jackson, January 16, 1884. The Mobile & Ohio will sell tickets at 2½ cents per mile each way; commencing sale January 14, closing January 17, making return conpons not good after January 22, 1884. J. Hardy, Esq., General Ticket Agent of the Vicksburg & Meridian railroad, writes me that agents will be instructed to sell round trip tickets to Jackson at six cents per mile. John A. Webb, Esq., General Passenger Agent of the Natchez, Jackson & Columbus railroad, says that agents at all stations will sell tickets at the rate of four cents per mile for the round trip; and Mr. A. H. Hanson, of the Illinois Central railroad, writes me from Chicago that delegates who pay full fare going will be returned to points on the Southern division at one-third of regular rates, upon presenting at our ticket office at Jackson, Miss., certificates issued by the authorized officer of the Conference, properly accrediting them. The brethren will please take due notice and govern themselves accordingly. The pastors should take great care in making out their statistical reports and thereby assist the statistical secretary in his work. The brethren to be examined should be on hand Tuesday morning, the 15th inst., promptly. Yours fraternally,

J. M. SHUMPERT.

Columbus, Miss., Jan. 2, 1884.

Hot Springs District.

The fourth quarterly conference for Hot Springs was held December 30–31. Rev. W. H. Crawford, the pastor, is closing his third year of pastoral labors at this place. These have been years of hard toil, and heavy crosses, but they have been years of joy and triumph also.

The quarterly meeting services were well attended, notwithstanding the weather was not as favorable as could be desired. Rev. Thomas Mason, president of Philander Smith College, of Little Rock, was with us, in the interests of the college, and preached Sunday evening to the entire satisfaction of all who heard him.

The quarterly conference was held Monday afternoon, at which the pastor reported success in church work. The benevolent collections will probably be larger this year than any previous year at that place. Some improvements have been made on church property this year. The new seats in the church are very handsome.

The spiritual condition is good. The love feasts are excellent—the best I ever attended. The Sunday-school is in good working order. The superintendent understands his business and, judging from the interest he takes in it, loves that department of church work. I think I am safe in saying that this is the best Sunday-school in the District.

We held a "watch meeting" which was quite interesting to all who attended it. As the moments of the old year passed out and the new came in, the entire congregation knelt in solemn prayer and consecration, after which several manifested a desire for salvation. Many had their cup of joy filled to the running over that night.

The good sisters of this charge are to be credited with getting up a thanksgiving dinner, which brought about $100 to the church. I don't know how we would get along with the church work, were it not that the good sisters "come to the rescue" occasionally. May God bless them and all others who extend a willing hand, in the great work of evangelization.

Perfect Human Life.

BY L. W. ELKINS.

That perfect life upon the soil of Palestine, two thousand years ago, has not only been the admiration of all ages since that time, but has transmitted and demonstrated the pure luster of the perfect human soul.

It was not merely that never man spake like this man. It was not that "no man ever did the miracles which this man did." Those who have neglected his precepts, and disbelieved his miracles—Moslem, and Jew, infidel and heresiarch—all have paid homage to the unearthly beauty and dignity of the Scripture portrait, and confessed "Never man lived like this man." Action is the natural embodiment of feeling, and the life is the natural exponent of the heart.

It is only as our principles and affections are called into action, that we can be convinced of them ourselves; and it is only as their free expression is found in word and deed, that men can examine them.

God at the last shall judge us, according to the deeds done in the body. His righteous judgment, assigning to every act and word its significancy of the inward motive, shall mete out our doom. And even as the deeds are being wrought, human judgment in its imperfection, is not generally at loss. Like an angelic messenger who, unseen, has come, and watches above us, but at our invocation is revealed to our unsealed vision, so the heart, that from the seclusion of inactivity, comes into the world of language and action, is concealed no longer. The life is the visible soul. Look then, upon human life and say what is its expressions.

Has it the visage of a spirit utterly abandoned to evil? Take the portrait as history has daguerreotyped it at each successive period, from the infancy of the race until now, and making all allowances for deficiencies of knowledge and slow mechanical civilization, has the course of national and private life been all deformity.

If the rewards of morality have been unevenly distributed, and form no test of character, let us look at once to the actions themselves. Human life covering all ages, is like a great dial upon which is marked the working of the machinery of human nature beneath it: and each separate life is like the second hand, which partaking of the general movement sweeps around a smaller circle. If then, with many intermissions, it is true, some backward impulses, and much friction at times, yet still steadily and with increasing regularity, the hands of action describe that circle of duty, will it not show that the machinery within is more right than wrong, and will become better as time rolls on?

Items About the Presidents.

President Arthur was 53 years old last month. He was born October 5, 1830. Ex-President Hayes was born October 4, 1822. The only other President born in October was John Adams, who was born on the 19th, and was 62 years old when he was inaugurated. Garfield, Pierce and Polk were born in November; Andrew Johnson and Martin Van Buren in December, Millard Fillmore in January; Abraham Lincoln, William H. Harrison and George Washington in February; Jackson, Tyler and Madison in March; Grant, Buchanan, Monroe and Jefferson in April; John Quincy Adams in July; Zachary Taylor in September. As to deaths, Garfield died in Sept; Johnson, Van Buren, Taylor, Monroe, Jefferson and John Adams in July; Lincoln and Harrison in April; Buchanan, Polk, Jackson and Madison in June; Pierce in October, Fillmore in March, Tyler in January, John Quincy Adams in February, and George Washington in December. Grant was our youngest President, having been 47 years old at the time he was inaugurated. Franklin Pierce came next, at the age of 49. Then came Garfield, Fillmore and Polk, each 50. Then Tyler and Arthur, both 51 years old, and both Vice Presidents, succeeding to the Presidency by the death of Presidents. Mr. Lincoln was 52 when inaugurated, James Madison 54, Hayes and Van Buren 55, Andy Johnson 57, Monroe, Jefferson and John Quincy Adams 58, George Washington 59, Andrew Jackson 62, Zachary Taylor 63, John Adams 65, James Buchanan 66, and William H. Harrison 68. Of these men Garfield, Grant, Pierce, Taylor, Polk, Harrison, Jackson and Washington bore the title of General and had military reputations. All of them had been in the Government employ in some capacity before their nomination, and some, such as Van Buren, Jefferson, Monroe, and the two Adamses, had years of training in the cabinets preceding them. John Quincy Adams received a salary from the United States Government for 69 years, and the sum total must have amounted to $500,000. At the close of his Presidential term he had had 52 years of office-holding, and his salary had aggregated $425,000; still he had 17 years of Congress after this, and died at the capitol at a Congressional session. At the age of 14 he went to Russia as the private secretary of the American Legation, and he was in after years Minister to England, Germany, Portugal, Russia and the Netherlands.—Cleveland Leader.

Mistakes of Ministers.

It is a mistake to take down, by repetition, the interest and feeling that have been aroused by earnest and powerful representation of gospel truth.

It is a mistake to repeat the same incident to the same congregation. Illustrations should be selected in the study, where there is leisure for thought.

It is a mistake to quote the same Scriptures very often to enforce any special duty or privelige. The Bible is so rich an armory that new weapons can be constantly tried if the enemy seems obstinate.

It is a mistake not to preach to your congregation. It is not a sin in the abstract, but in the hearts and lives of the sinners before you, that you wish to oppose.

It is a mistake to leave your congregation and go away with your subject. A skillful teacher will not impart more information than he sees the mind is able to appropriate.

It is a mistake to exhort your members to work and then do their work for them. Great efficiency in the parent has often been the cause of extreme helplessness in the child.

It is a mistake to make a long speech at opening of an experience meeting, telling the brethren and sisters to speak short.

Do not call too often for your favorite hymn; you can sing that at home.

Do not under-estimate the interest and faithfulness of the few because the many are careless and indifferent.

Do not hold a hymn book in your hand after you have given an opportunity for persons to unite with the church. Let your hands be free to extend them a welcome. The devil can use a straw to turn the repentant sinner.

Do not expect your crown till you get to heaven. Its jewels are too fair to be tarnished by this earthly atmosphere.

As to the mistakes of the members, they are easily counted by multiplying those of the minister's by the figures reported in the conference minutes—and then you will not have given the backsliders their share. Would that we all made as few mistakes as our ministers!—Zion's Herald

It is the almost unanimous opinion of the temperance people in Kansas, and also many who do not object to the drinking of liquor and voted against prohibition, that if the question was again submited to the people the vote would be made larger in favor of prohibition than it was. The people everywhere see the great benefits derived from prohibition. Except in a few of the cities in Kansas, the traffic in liquor has almost entirely ceased, and at the next session of the Legislature some special laws will be enacted especially with reference to cities, as there are too many loop-holes in the present laws, through which the saloonkeepers in the cities escape.—Milwaukee Christian Statesman.

Mr. H. M. Stanley, the African explorer, expresses his increasing surprise at the vast density of the population in the Equatorial portions of the Congo basin, and says if what he has seen may be taken as representing the state of things generally, there is a population in this river basin alone of 49,000,000.

A Colored Man's Eloquence.

The most thoroughly eloquent and effective speeches ever made in the legislature of Texas were pronounced by two negroes, and both of much the same general import. Both recounted the story of the negro devotion to "old marster and missus." When one of these natural orators, himself an old man, extended his black horny hands and said: "There can be no great race enmity between us. This cannot come while my old master and missus live. No, nor while their children and mine survive. They were kind and generous to me. I knew no want of to-day or care for the morrow when I was their property. Look at these wrinkled rough hands. They tell the tale. They tell how I toiled for them. And the story is not ended. They are old and helpless now, and live as I once did, in a little cabin, and I still toil for them. I send them half of every dollar I draw from the State Treasury, and when their daughter, a beautiful and good girl whom I used to carry when she was a child in these strong arms, was married not long ago, I sent her a check for $1,000. Have I not the right to help one, out of the majesty, most generously with my ease?—Fort Worth (Texas) Gazette.

How to Kill a Prayer Meeting.

1. Forget all about it until the hour arrives.

2. Come ten minutes late, and sit near the door.

3. Drag the music. Slow, painfully slow singing is so appropriate for a dead prayer-meeting.

4. When the meeting is begun, wait for others to speak and pray.

5. When you do take a part, occupy about twenty minutes.

6. Be sure and bewail the low spiritual condition of the church.

7 When the meeting closes, go out as from a funeral. You can speak with your brethren or the stranger at some other time and place.

8. If you mention the meeting during the week, tell how dull it was.

If this does not kill the prayer-meeting, stay away entirely for six months or a year.

Pundita Romabai.

It has been announced that the well-known Hindu lady orator, Pundita Romabai, has accepted Christianity and been baptized in England. About a year ago the attitude of this lady toward Christianity was one of indifference. The chief reason of that was that a gentleman of her own standing, with a thorough knowledge of Sanskrit, was needed to show her the incoherency of the Hindu religion, and to convince her of the strong and irresistible proofs of the Christian religion. She became acquainted with the Rev. Neelkanth Shastree Goray, with whom she conversed and corresponded. The respected Shastree's Marathi book "Is There any Proof of the Divine Origin of Christianity?" was also much liked by the lady Pundita, and as shrewd and thoughtful a woman could not fail to comprehend the cause of the vast distance between her then India and Christian England. This lady is a relative of Mrs. Anandabai Josee who arrived in America last June in company with a party of returning missionaries. Mrs. Josee is now studying in the Woman's Medical College of Philadelphia. She came to America with the intention of remaining a decent Brahman. It may be that if the same influence is brought to bear upon her as has so affected the Pundita, she too may return to India as a professed follower of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The science of politics is simply the science of government. It has its sublimities of thought just as every other science has. Politics means national morals; and politics bear precisely the same relation to national life as individual morals bear to individual life. It is as absurd to say that a man ought not to be a politician as it is absurd to say that a man ought not to be moral. Each man is a part of the body politic; and he is daily dependent on the civil power in ten thousand ways. He can build no home, gather about him in safety no sacred family relationship, hold no property, found no temple for his worship, without the protection of that civil government which is the outcome of the political action of the people. Receiving these benefits, is it right that he should confer none? Is it right that he should refuse to throw into the national polity the weight of his own probity, and truth, and honor? If in this great country party triumphs are sometimes looked upon as superior to what is true and what is right—if the exposure of official immoralities and corruptions sometimes shames the American sense of honor—if statesmen are seen sometimes to substitute intrigue for openness and petty shifts for broad moralities—if there be malversation, justice, waste of public treasure, in any of the high places of this land—it is because so many Americans, whose motives are pure, whose thoughts are high, whose actions are noble, have not thrown, as fully as they might have done, their great energies into this nation's life. A representative system creates as no other system can, individual responsibility.—John Kay Applebee.

God's greatest blessings often come to us in the way of surprises. When the skies are as brass, when the earth is parched, and the flowers are dying, and we bow our heads in despondency, how often does it happen that we are startled from our hopelessness by the patter of sudden rain, looking up, we see the green earth created anew about us. God's mercies in their coming have the freshness of that unexpected rain. When human assistance is impossible, and it seems that even God cannot, or will not help, there comes a sudden change, and the difficulties disappear, and the heart that scarcely dared to hope is filled with the love that is without fear. "He that believeth in Him shall not be confounded;" when his need is direst, he shall find that God is nighest; when his own hand cannot save him, he shall stand still and see the swift salvation of God. —S. S. Times.

In looking over the minutes of the Liberia Annual Conference, recently received, we find the following resolution: "Resolved, That the Conference has enjoyed with great satisfaction the visits of our beloved sister, Amanda Smith, the lady evangelist. We hail her as a messenger of peace, and feel that she has been instrumental, in the hand of God, in advancing and building up the cause of true holiness wherever she has been in this country, and very successful in the cause of temperance."

Lotteries Corrupt.

The lottery business corrupts all who touch. Tens of thousands of dollars are lost to Tennessee every year by means of this gigantic lottery swindle. We hope there will be honesty and backbone enough in the next Legislature to make it an indictable offense for any newspaper to publish a lottery advertisement.—Knoxville, (Tenn.) Chronicle.

A Christian mother, when praying beside her little boy, had mentioned his name in her prayer. Upon rising from his knee he said: "I am glad you told Jesus my name, for when he sees me coming, he will say, 'Here comes little Willie Johnson.'" But Jesus knew Willie by name before his mother prayed for him.

A remarkable revival has broken out in British Guiana, at Georgetown, where among a population of fifty thousand, there are three Methodist chapels, one holding fifteen hundred persons. Two hundred members have been added to the church, and many children brought under religious teaching.

Young Folk's Corner.

THY WILL.

It is so dark, dear Lord,
And yet I know
There is a way that thou
Wouldst have me go.
Oh, may it plainly lie
Before my face;
Grant these bewildered feet
A little space
One ray of light that I
May serve the best;
One step, and I will trust
For all the rest.
There is so much to do;
Yet one by one
These clouds arise. O Lord,
Thy will be done,
By me, in me, through me,
Thy will, not mine.
Dear Savior, help me now
All to resign.
And when, clear-eyed, in heaven's
Eternal day
I cast one backward glance
Along the way
That thou hast brought me, then,
O great High-Priest,
Perhaps where I have seemed
To serve thee least,
There mercy will reveal
Was service true,
Though I but waiting longed
Thy will to do.

A Mother's Prayer.

Samuel Budgett was about nine years of age, when, one day, passing his mother's door, he heard her engaged in earnest prayer for her family and for himself by name. He thought, "My mother is more earnest that I should be saved than I am for my own salvation." In that hour, he became decided to serve God, and the impression thus made was never effaced. Thus began a noble, manly Christian life.

Reader, how is it with you? Your mother is dead; you have heard her pray for you. Has she prayed in vain? We entreat you this hour to cry with the broken-hearted infidel, "God of my mother, have mercy on me!"

The Evil of Idleness.

No man is too noble to have a calling. If iron had reason, it would choose rather to be used in labor than to grow rusty in a corner. By Mahomet's law the Grand Turk himself was to be of some trade. The hour of idleness is the hour of temptation; an idle person is the devil's tennis-ball, tossed by him at his pleasure. Among the Egyptians, idleness was a capital crime. Among the Tuscans, he that lent money to an idle person was to lose it, saith Diphilus. By Solon's law idle persons were to suffer death. The ancients called idleness the burial of a living man; and Seneca had rather be sick than idle. Now, shall nature do more than grace? Shall poor blind heathens be so severe against idle persons, and shall Christians embrace them? Shall they not the rather turn their backs upon them, and have no communion with those who think themselves too great or too good to hold the plough.—Thomas Brooks.

Bookless Homes.

A dreary place is a bookless house, my young friends; see that in founding a home for yourselves you do not neglect the household library. We rejoice in pretty furniture and artistic pictures; but we want to see a new book sandwiched between every two purchases, and newspapers and magazines drifting around so thickly that the very order of the sitting-room is imperiled. We never knew anything worse than intelligent sons and daughters grow out of such untidiness. To go to housekeeping without a family Bible and an unabridged dictionary ought to be elected a criminal offence. Here lies the beginning of wisdom. Then we should add modern history to ancient, poetry to science, Scott, Thackeray, Dickens, Hawthorne, and Holmes, to theory. We should know the opinions of the best minds to-day upon all questions of social life, of philosophy, of agriculture. We have known famous business men, keen financiers, to grow out of bookless homes, but never the great-hearted and tender-souled. So, parents, remembering this, glance over your libraries to see if there be not some vacancy to fill up with the volume which will add to the cheer of the windy winter nights. Get for the boy a book of history or travels; for the girl a copy of Tennyson or Longfellow, or Browning—some sweet poet who sings along the quiet vales of life in notes we all can understand! Win them to read aloud around the evening lamp, and most unconsciously their young souls will be drawn out to follow after those who call, to follow, and sing, and be glad—for great is the power of influence.

Something About Boys.

A wide-awake boy is always a fruitful subject for newspaper talk. The Hawkeye man has this to say on the subject, and we admit that there is much of the real boy about it:

"An exchange says a boy will tramp two hundred and forty-seven miles in one day on a rabbit hunt, and be limber in the evening, when, if you ask him to go across the street and borrow Jones's two-inch auger, he will be as stiff as a meat-block. Of course he will. And he will go swimming all day, and stay in the water three hours at a time, and splash and dive and paddle and puff, and next morning he will feel that an unmeasured insult has been offered him when he is told by his mother to wash his face carefully, so as not to leave the score of the cob and flow so plain as to be seen under the gills. And he'll wander around a dry creek bed all the afternoon piling up a pebble fort, and nearly die off when his big sister wants him to please pick up a basket of chips for the parlor stove; and he'll spend the biggest part of the day trying to corner a stray mule or a bald-back horse for a ride, and feel that all life's charms have fled when it comes time to drive the cows home; and he'll turn a ten-acre lot upside-down for ten inches of angle-worms, and wish for the voiceless tomb when the garden demands his attention. But all the same, when you want a friend who will stay by you and sympathize with you, and be true to you in all kinds of weather, enlist one of the small boys.

Subscriptions made for the payment of Church debts, or the freeing of seminaries and colleges from embarrassments, or for their endowment, constitute a moral obligation which no honest man can disregard. Yet they are often treated with indifference. Though the Bible pronounces a blessing on the man who promiseth "to his own hurt, and changeth not," we find professors of religion, and sometimes ministers, refusing to pay their subscriptions, and assigning as a reason that there was "undue pressure to obtain the subscriptions." The equivalent of that—unless the situation has changed so as to make payments not merely troublesome, but impossible—is, "I am not an honest man, do not intend to pay, and have deliberately invented an excuse." There can be no pressure that destroys freedom of choice. Hence the responsibility remains. It is a pitiable spectacle of moral inconsistency when a man says, "I could not resist the pressure to promise, but I will resist the obligation to pay what I promised."—N. Y. Advocate.

Look up, brother! Take your measures by the stars! The mariner looks not down for wisdom by which to guide his ship across the sea, but raises his eyes to heaven's flashing lights. So may we look up into the heavenly places and from thence discover our bearings amid the troubles and infirmities of this mortal life.—Western Advocate.

Hold faithfulness and sincerity as first principles. Have no friends not equal to yourself. When you have faults, do not fear to abandon them.—Confucius.

Denis Kearney, the Sand Lots orator whose recent attempt to start a labor movement in New York was a wretched failure, has abandoned the political arena and is at present engaged in the lucrative employment of selling pies and kindred refreshments at Ocean Beach, near San Francisco.

What will it do?

Brown's Iron Bitters? Good for what? Well, see what it has done. To begin with dyspepsia. It has cured some of the worst cases.

Then chills and fever. Who wants to shake with cold and burn with heat, when a bottle or two of Brown's Iron Bitters will drive the source of the mischief away?

How about rheumatism? It cured Mr. Brashear, of Baltimore, and hundreds of others.

Those dreadful nervous troubles. Mr. Berlin, of Washington, the well-known Patent attorney, was entirely relieved by Brown's Iron Bitters.

The ailments of the kidneys.—Brown's Iron Bitters cured Mr. Montague, of Christiansburg, Va., and an army of other sufferers.

Debility and languor. The Rev. J. Marshall West, Ellicott City, Md., is one of the many clergymen restored by Brown's Iron Bitters.

NEW YORK TIMES FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

CHEAPEST AND BEST Newspaper in the United States.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of The New York Times was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents, per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of The Times as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within reach of every class of readers involves no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home or abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other Metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs educational progress, and social, religious, and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties and of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the foibles of mankind.

The Sunday Times, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

The Weekly Times gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 the Weekly Times will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

THURSDAY, JAN. 17, 1884.

1884. 1884.

Suggestions to Agents.

All agents of the SOUTHWESTERN will please read the following suggestions and follow them. They have been demonstrated to be sound by several years of experience, and will facilitate a careful canvass:

1. See every old subscriber and sure a renewal for 1884.

2. Get all the new subscribers you can.

3. Write names plainly, and be sure to give correct post-office to which the paper is to be sent.

4. Let us know the time of subscription, whether for three months, six months, or a year.

5. Collect all the money you can at the beginning of each subscription.

6. Give credit for a short time, and only to persons whom you know to be reliable.

7. Do not run in debt, but arrange to receive small payments from those who cannot pay at once, and order us to stop papers when you are satisfied subscribers will not pay you.

8. Prepare to settle your subscription account before the close of the conference year.

Remember that we supply printed lists for use in transmitting subscriptions to us, whenever desired; and we will send specimen copies to assist in the canvass, free of charge, on application.

Address PHILLIPS & HUNT,

We want ten thousand subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN. Subscribe for your Church paper.

From the Wesleyan, Church South: "Bishop Pierce, at the recent session of the Alabama Conference, as the preachers were making their reports, straightened up in his chair, and said: 'It is somewhat remarkable that the best reports come in from that part of the Conference where the severe dronth prevailed; it is worthy of being inquired into.'"

That young preacher, who recently told some of his brethren that they had better quit paying two dollars a year for their church paper, and who advised them to rather spend their subscription money for more "pork and grits," is a disgrace to our church and ministry. Indeed any man that prefers a gluttonous fill of "pork and grits" to the wholesome and elevating Christian literature of his church, is a scapegrace unworthy of the confidence of the church he misrepresents. How a man who has any intelligence could have made such a silly expression is a mystery to us. Such a man, no matter what his pretended qualifications are, has no business in our ministry. He ought to be invited to step down and out.

Rev. J. Mitchell, of Atlanta, has our thanks for a copy of the minutes of the Seventeenth session of the Georgia Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (of the so-called white work.) The Minutes report a membership of 2,791, with 347 on probation. Seventy-five churches valued at $40,067. Five parsonages valued at $1,652. With seventy-five churches they have fifty-seven Sunday-schools. By resolution the Freedmens Aid Society is strongly endorsed—the entire collection, for the same was $6.35. With our brethren in Georgia we "covet a perfect education for the children of all people, white, red, and black, and respectfully ask that an equal care be extended over all the children of our church." But we protest against the division of funds between the white and colored races. This is not the time for the erection of partition walls between the children of God.

Southern Criticism of Our Bishops.

Most of our Southern Methodist exchanges for a few weeks past have been burdened with complaints about something they supposed was said by certain members of the Missionary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at their annual meeting recently held in the city of New York. The Nashville Advocate characterizes it as "Firing under the White Flag." In civilized warfare nothing could be more dastardly. And yet we have no doubt but here Dr. Fitzgerald expressed the general opinion of the M. E. Church, South. Bishop Simpson, so eminently distinguished for his Christian courtesy and kindness, is most unjustly criticised; his reference to the "yells of the Ku-Klux" is treated by the Nashville and St. Louis Advocates as a joke of some boys out squirrel hunting. Seemingly our contemporaries would have the world believe that all that has ever been said about the outrages of the Ku-Klux-Klan is but a draft upon the imagination of some nervous old man. It is, however, a little unfortunate for our brethren, that within thirty days the United States District Court of Georgia has sentenced seven Ku-Klux (or as our Nashville confrere would have it, boys who had been squirriel hunting) to two years imprisoument each; five of the seven confessing their guilt. Judge McCoy, before whom they were tried, in pronouncing sentence upon them said their crime was "one of the very gravest character," that "one could hardly suppose it possible that without some personal malice the heart of man could have been capable of such deliberate, bitter and heartless cruelty as the evidence in the case exhibits."

The reference to Bishop Bowman, and the assurance that when he "comes down again to hold his colored conferences he will be severely let alone," savors more of barbarism than of Christianity. But Bishop Bowman will not be the only person coming from the North who has been "severely let alone." We know of families of wealth and culture that came from the North to avoid its cold and rigirous winter, but those who have presumed to bring their politics and church along with them have most uniformly found this "severely letting alone" more chilling than the Northern winter with the thermometer twenty degrees below zero. Indeed any person coming South and entering upon Christian or educational work for the benefit of those who were formerly slaves will be "severely let alone," not because they are ignorant, ill-bred or bad, but forsooth they are trying to instruct those whose poverty and ignorance ought to excite the sympathy of every good citizen. "Let them severely alone." This is called Christianity. Alas for any man when the light in him becomes darkness!

Dr. Buckley is a man of decided convictions. His contemporaries will find in him a foeman every way worthy of their steel, he will speak for himself. We simply say that we know of no man North or South who has shown more commendable desire to strengthen the bonds of fraternity between the Methodist Episcopal Church and the M. E. Church, South. We make this reference to these men and this matter not to explain or defend what they may have said. We believe them every way competent and trustworthy, and he who has the text before him will find the statements in harmony with the facts in the case. The astonishing thing to us has been this reckless denouncing men of unquestionable Christian character without a hearing. It smacks a little too much of the worst form of papal tyranny to please us.

We have received the minutes of Roanoke district conference, M. E. Church, first session, presided over by Rev. E. H. Vaughan; secretary, Geo. R. Watson.

How to Stop the Liquor Traffic.

Recently there was a mass convention held in Boston, Mass., to take preliminary steps to push the work of Constitutional prohibition in that State. A similar movement has carried the day in Kansas and Iowa, came so near winning in Ohio last fall. Rev. D. Dorchester, D.D., gave a series of facts showing the progress of this movement during the last twenty years throughout the country. The Legislature of Maine has adopted it and awaits ratification by the people. One Legislature in Oregon has adopted it, and it must be adopted by another to be valid. In Texas it lacked only seven votes, in West Virginia it lacked only three votes, in Nebraska, only two votes in Michigan only four votes, in Wisconsin only ten votes; in Arkansas it passed the House but failed in the Senate. Dr. Dorchester, after presenting these facts, argued strongly in favor of the movement from the results of prohibition in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Kansas and the prohibition counties in Maryland, Georgia and Illinois. In these states and counties, where prohibition has been accepted, the condition of things in respect to public order are from fifty to a hundred per cent better than in those localities where license prevails. There may be difficulties in the way of this prohibitory movement, as there is in the way of any great moral reform. Politicians may try to put it down, and out of their way, but it will not stay down. Up it comes and crosses their path. Like the old abolition movement it cannot be scared or sneered down. Nothing will give this country rest but positive prohibition of the liquor traffic. The main theory of those who oppose prohibition is high license. This is the system that has been adopted in Nebraska. The Hon. John B. French, of that State, in a recent speech tells us how it works in that State. He said that, "at the passage of the high license law the State had 1364 liquor shops. Today it has 1721. Not all of them are under the name of saloons. Within two months after the law went into effect, over 400 drug shops were opened in the State, and the penalties of the license law are not enough to shut them up. It is said that the men who pay the high license will help shut up the small unlicensed places, but no such case was ever heard of. Every dealer, licensed or unlicensed, violates the law; and the heavy dealer does not dare to prosecute the small one, for fear that the small one will prosecute him in turn. The licensed vendor is as weak as the unlicensed. The men who are entitled to rank highest in the liquor business are the Germans and other foreigners, because they are honest. They believe it is as right for them to sell liquor as it is for them to sell coffee. Liquor at their saloons was drunk quietly. No gambling or bad women were about them. But high license killed every one of these places in Nebraska. The decent places were forced to close, and the vilest, dirtiest, meanest cut-throats in Nebraska came in their places. The dives all paid their licenses and went on. Houses of ill-fame and gambling were set up in connection with them. When you charge a saloon keeper $1,000 for a license, you put him on his mettle to sell just so much more liquor. People are generally disgusted with this system of reform wherever it has worked. They are dissatisfied with high licenses."

Mormonism.

The stench of Polygamy, the personified embodiment of Mormonism, continues to offend the nostril of the nation. Its continued existence is a blot upon our National character, which the United States Government cannot permit without disgracing itself in the sight of the civilized world. No plea of religious liberty should be allowed to cover this unnatural abomination of wickedness. Let the cancer be cut out at any hazard. Polygamy is a crime in every State in the Union; it should be no less so in Utah, and in all the territories of the United States. Every church, every moral agency, and all classes, have raised their cries against this infamous leprosy. The public conscience is aroused, and nothing short of its annihilation will satisfy the nation. Mormonism has been trifled with too long already, and if indulged further may so intrench itself that nothing less than shot and shell will be required to drive it from the land. The Edmunds' law having proven ineffective, let other and more effective measures be adopted, and rigidly enforced. Let Mormon polygamists hear the thundering voice, and feel the weight of the mighty hand of the law against their barbarous system, and let the country purify itself from this evil. We know of but one man, who moves in respectable society, who has had the unblushing audacity to speak in defense of this loathsome infamy, and that man is Henry Ward Beecher. He desecrated our National Thanksgiving day with a plea in favor of this monstrosity. He prays that the Mormons be let alone in the enjoyment of their religious liberty. Mr. Beecher may be, as he claims, an advanced thinker, but if he is anxious to enjoy such an offensive species of religious liberty, the American people are not, and they spurn his intimation of such a thing. His vagaries, infidelity and inconsistencies in matters of morals, church and State have of late years, become so glaring and numerous, however, that his present expression in favor of Mormon polygamy will amount to little less than nothing. Voicing the popular demand, President Arthur has sounded the battle cry against polygamy in Utah; and recommend to Congress the "stoutest weapons which constitutional legislation can fashion" be enacted for its suppression, and in furtherance of this purpose also, that the "entire political control of Territory" be assumed by the National Legislature. Already several bills intending to carry out these recommendations have been introdnced. Gen. Rosecrans has also introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution forever prohibiting polygamy in the United States and all places under its jurisdiction, and it is highly probable that before many days we will begin to deal practically and radically with this evil.

The Freedmen's Aid Report.

The report of the Freedmen's Aid Society for 1883 is before us. By a careful array of facts and figures it presents to the Church a clear statement of the work done, so far as it comes under the observation of human eye. The large amount of money collected during the past year for educational work in the the South is one of the cheering signs of the times. The collections for the year are greater than for any preceding year in the society's history. The schools have generally been improved in the qualification of the teachers, the attainments of the scholars, and in the methods of instruction and government. The graduates of the schools are most uniformly filling positions of honor. They are employed as pastors, teachers, doctors, lawyers, editors, and are proving themselves useful and honorable members of society in the communities where they reside. The schools, wherever they have been established, have become centers of an elevating influence. Observing men frequently speak of the great change for the better in all the communities where they are located. The managers of the society feel the great need of more money for the enlargement of their work. The field is vast, extending over a territory equal to nearly one-half of the United States, including more than 18,000,000 people; 6,500,000 are freedmen, and over forty per cent. of the voters among these still are unable to read or write. Thus far the society has employed one hundred Christian men and women as teachers, has instructed in its schools over 1,025,000 pupils; these in turn have gone out as teachers all over the South carrying along with them the elevating influence of a Christian education. The society has raised and expended since it was organized $1.24-,610.50, but it needs to-day more than $1,000,000 for the enlargement and enlowment of schools already established. The century of American Methodism is upon us. Our Bishops commend the Freedmen's Aid Society to the liberality of the Church. They make an earnest appeal to the pastors to bring this great charity clearly before the people. In this educational work of the church here in the South we are brought face to face with the spirit of caste, and we are anxious to know just now how our work is to be done. Shall we go to our colored members as beings a little lower than we are and try to lift them up to our plane? Or shall we go to them as our brothers, who have been crushed, and by priest and Levite passed by, and strive to save them and elevate them of Christ's plan—which?

Louisiana Conference, Church South.

The Louisiana Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South, met at the Carondelet St. Church in this city last week Wednesday, Bishop Kavanaugh presiding assisted by Bishop Parker. Rev. C. F. Evans was elected secretary. The usual committees were ordered. Dr. Morton Secretary of this Church Extension Society, was introduced and gave an address on the importance and progress of the work. Funds he said had been been secured sufficient to build seventy-six churches this year. Dr. Ivy, agent of the Southwestern American Bible Society, presented a report and asked the assistance of the Conference in his work. The report of the Publishing House at Nashville made a favorable showing. The New Orleans Christian Advocate was reported as in a prosperous condition. Saturday was Missionary day. Dr. Kelly, Secretary of the Board of Missions of the Church, was present, and as in a number of the appoitments the missionary apportionments had not been met, he called first upon the laymen present to state what seemed to them to be the hinderances. Among those who spoke was one venerable old brother, who was wistfully looking to the past when all the Methodist families had their own servants, and there was no family that could not entertain three or four ministers. Now all was changed, they had no servants, many of them were poor, had to do their own work, and were not able to provide for the preachers. He thought that the churches in the city were not so strong as they were ten years ago. Dr. Kelley then requested the ministers to state what was to them the difficulty. A number spoke, but evidently it was a matter upon which they had bestowed little or no thought, they spoke more from habit than conviction. Here the Docter requested all the ministers who had preached upon the subject of missions during the year to rise and stand, when only about twenty-five arose. Not one-third of the members of the conference had, in all of their preaching during the year, preached once upon the subject of missions. Here Dr. Kelley saw the cause of the deficiency. It was not poverty but a lack of information, and presiding elders and preachers were largely responsible. We listened to Dr. Kelley with pleasure; he is terribly in earnest, he beleives in God, Methodism, mission and success. May God multiply this tribe.

Dr. Braden in a personal note says with reference to the Central Tennessee College, Nashville: "We are full to the overflowing. We want a Vanderbilt, or a De Pauw to do for Ham, what these have done for Japheth. God has them if we just knew. He will bring them to the front in due time."

Louisiana Conference.

Ministers, delegates and reserves to the Louisiana Conference will please take notice that the following rates have been secured for them to the Annual Conference on the Texas and Pacific Railroad: "five cents per mile, one way, from all stations east of Shreveport inclusive, for the round trip, except from Baton Rouge where the rate will be $4.50. Tickets will be on sale January 28 to 30 inclusive, good to return until February 8." Ministers will secure these rates upon presentation of their credentials; delegates, reserves and applicants for admission on trial, upon presentation of duly attested credentials of their election or recommendation signed by their pastors or presiding elders. Brethren will do well to strictly observe these instructions, and thereby avoid any trouble.

Vineland, New Jersey, with a population of 10,000, has not a single liquor shop. At a recent election, the sense of the voters was taken on the question of license or prohibition, and only three per cent. of the votes were given for license.—Ex.

Just how that three per cent. vote for license could be secured in Vineland we do not understand. To us it is one of the most striking illustrations of the total depravity of the human heart since the days of the Inquisition. All around that beautiful city could be seen the misery, wretchedness, and woe, the happiness destroyed, the hopes crushed, and the agony and anquish of human hearts over the loved ones lost by intemperance. This three per cent. vote indicates something wrong in Vineland. "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." This "leaven" of license needs to be purged out. Nothing else but Absolute Prohibition can save that city or the Nation.

PERSONAL.

—The correspondents of Rev. H. W. Simmons will please address him at the Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn.

—William Taylor, the evangelist is elected to represent the South India lay-electoral conference in the General conference.

—Hon. E. P. Wade, colored, editor of the Northwest Review, was elected Postmaster of the Minnesota Legislature.

—The editor is under special obligation to his old friend and Bro., John Baldwin, for a half-barrel of the best granulated sugar. So long as this lasts he promises to keep sweet.

—Mr. William H. Mallock, the author of the famous "Is Life Worth Living?" will stand for Parliament this winter. He is a Conservative and a Romon Catholic.

—Rev. Thomas E. Gilbert, who has for several years been a member of the South Carolina Conference, located at the last session, and will next spring join the Connecticut Conference of the M. E. Church.

—Charles Summer, Rufus Choate, Agassiz, Longfellow, Everett, Charlotte Cushman, and Margaret Fuller are among the dead buried in the small but beautiful cemetery of Mount Auburn, in the suburbs of Cambridge, Mass.

—Mrs. Sabra Phillips, of Norwood, R. I., is 100 years old, lives alone, does her own housework, brings her fuel from the woods on her back, and saws it herself; reads her Bible and religious books without glasses, and expounds the text off-hand and at length to her neighbors.—N. Y. Advocate.

—A highly esteemed and useful Christian lady of Texas, writes to the editors; "I often thank God for the firm stand the SOUTHWESTERN takes, against the different forms of evil by which we are surrounded it would be much more appreciated, if it was more carefully read and recommended by its subscribers. I enjoy its reading more and more, I always read every page and almost every column. May the Lord give you both grace to continue in well-doing until He says it is enough."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

A. Lemons, Pickens: "Presiding Elder Barney held quarterly meeting on the 15th, and reports show that the churches are in a prosperous condition. He preached and administered sacrament to 55."

J. M. Lampkin, Starkville circuit: "We have added 50 to the church, bought $20 worth of Sunday-school books, $10 on hand; have raised something for all causes. This closes my third year."

W. M. Parks, Hernando: "Our quarterly conference was held on the 15th and 16th inst. Our new elder, Bro. Eckles, was received with much pleasure. The weather being cold, but the people turned out. Collection for elder $8.35; church $11, total 19.35. The Lord was with us."

LOUISIANA.

D. Shelby, pastor at Allen, feels [illegible] of the labors of the past year.

Henry Rutherford, Security: "According to your request I came to Little and Black rivers. On investigating the religious status in this section of the country, I found most of the colored people in this country, members of the Baptist church. But from associating with them I find very little true and vital religion among them. It looks like serving God and mammon both. This is a great field for me to work in, but will require time to accomplish much good. Their mistaken ideas of religion will have to be overcome, and we must imbue them with sound ideas of serving our Lord. I will have to be assisted financially as the colored people are not disposed to help me much. I have taken up a subscription to build a Methodist church near Troyville, La., and the white people have subscribed very liberally toward building the church. Capt. R. B. Watters has promised to give the land to build the church on. I can say that I am greatly encouraged so far in my undertaking, and will preach as often as I can, and hold prayer-meetings frequently. I will take up a school soon, and I think I can accomplish much good in that way. I will write you often and let you know my success here."

TEXAS.

S. Coleman, Waelder: "Elder Richardson and Rev. Lee Reed have won the affection of the people for faithful services. Bro. Carper who comes to us this year is a man for God."

G. W. Townsend, Goliad: "I arrived here December 28th. Up to now like my appointment, and find the people glad to have me with them, I send you sixteen subscribers. Mr. Editor I wish to return thanks to Bro. and Sister Bailey for their kind hospitality for our home during conference at San Antonio. Rev. E. E. Cooper, Rev. W. E. Stevens and myself were all well pleased. May God's blessing go with them."

TENNESSEE.

J. T. Henny, Kingston: "I very much desire the SOUTHWESTERN to have a large subscription list on my work. I notice where it is taken the pastor has less trouble in making the people understand the systematic workings of our church."

Notes From Nashville.

The Holidays have come and gone. No doubt many have enjoyed social gatherings in their homes and elsewhere. Christmas trees and festivals in the churches here have been slightly varied, in some cases, and in others, the trees have borne the same kind of crop that has been plucked from them for years past. These Sunday-School celebrations are generally pleasant occasions, especially when each child is remembered with a gift. Sometimes it happens, that some one is overlooked, and the disappointment is too great to be concealed, and that which was intended for good proves an evil. How far the Christmas trees tend to beget a spirit of selfishness, is not easily estimated, and how much they minister to the vanity of a petted few, who receive a large number of presents, and the jealousy of the less favored is difficult to ascertain. Some people are fond of public notice and delight to have their names called out in a crowded house. Some years ago the writer was sitting in a crowded church in this city, during the distribution of gifts from a Christmas tree, laden with its variegated fruits, when the name of a well-known young man was called, and a hat box taken from the tree and passed to him: "The same old hat," whispered a gentleman sitting by me. "What do you mean!" was my query. "Why," replied he, "that hat was on the tree last year, and I think the year before, and it was not a new hat then. The owner likes to have people think he is popular, so he puts this and other things on the tree to have his name announced to the large audience." Well that is not so bad, if it makes him happy at little expense, and does not specially injure any one else. Nashville has had the usual amount of drunkenness, fighting and noisy demonstrations with pistols, guns and various kinds of annoying fireworks. On the whole, the day was spent so as to make the manner of celebrating Christmas on our streets almost a disgrace to our civilization. A distinguished minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, said in my hearing, just before Christmas: "I do not like to travel during the Christmas week, there is so much whiskey drank by people generally it is not safe." I have heard with pleasure, of several places in Tennessee where there was but little whiskey and great quiet prevailed during this season of rejoicing. It will be well when this can be said of this city.

The boarding department of the Central Tennessee College is now full. Students can get board in good families in the city at about the same rates as at the College. There is plenty of room yet in the School and recitation room. The industrial department is putting on larger proportions, and getting organized more thoroughly. The lumber is on the ground to begin a new work shop, that will give increased facilities to this department. The Medical and Theological schools are doing well. The attendance on these is increasing.

Rev. John Seay, the oldest member of the Tennessee Conference, has deeded to the Trustees of the Conference property in Lebanon, which cost him nearly six thousand dollars, the proceeds of which is to be used for the benevolent and educational work of the Church. He also, for the small consideration of two hundred dollars, and the pledge to promote temperance in the college, deeded for the use of the Central Tennessee College, over fifty acres of land in Wilson county, Tennessee, valued at about one thousand dollars. Thus he is being his own executor. He is now 90 years old and is too feeble to have the care of this property and as he has for many years cherished the plan to give his property to the church, for benevolent purposes, he is but carrying out his well matured design in thus disposing of his property while living. The church will rejoice in this liberality, as it is an example that may be followed by many others, who propose to give to the various benevolent enterprises of the church during this Centennial year of Methodism, in this country.

The annual Sunday-School and Theological Institute will be held at the Central Tennessee College, beginning Tuesday, May 5, and continue through the week. The Institute will be under the general supervision of Rev. A. H. Gillett, the general agent of the Sunday-school Union of the other Methodist Episcopal Church. As the need of better preparation for the work of the ministry is an almost absolute necessity to its greater usefulness, it is hoped that the brethren who are able to reach the college at that time will do so, and if possible, come prepared to pass examination on some part of the course of study. The thermometer stood at 10° below zero on the college grounds on the morning of the 5th and 6th inst. and now we have a falling snow that is about 6 inches deep and it seems as if there is: "More to follow." Tobacco and Man.

Of all subjects this ought to interest the Church—the one at the head of this article. In thinking over the matter my mind carries my thoughts back to the last session of the annual conference, which assembled in Alexandria, La. I being a member of the second year was admitted in full connection along with eleven other of my brethren in that class of twelve. There was some of us perfect slaves to tobacco. I was a slave among slaves. I have used 25 cents worth of tobacco in a day often. I have swallowed up a dozen cigars also in a day. I have been an ardent lover of the weed given over to the pernicious habit. On the night of the 2d of February, 1883, I smoked a good cigar, and on the third my class stood before that man of God, Bishop Hurst. We were questioned so closely by him, also by our beloved Dr. Hartzell, that our last smoke was made manifest. I thought I would evade the answer of not using it any more; thereby I would have an excuse that I did not answer the question directly, but lo! to my astonishment, we were interrogated separately, and the consequance was that each one in the class promised the Bishop and Conference, before God, that we would quit. How many have been true to this promise? Thank God I have kept my promise; notwithstanding many has tried to induce me to smoke. I regard my word to man, and more so to God than all else. How disgusting it looks for a preacher to come puffing smoke out of his mouth and nostrils as if his stomach was on fire, and his teeth made to hold the heavy laden bowls. Let the conference question the young prepchers carefully on this subject, that we may not fill the Conference with a young tobacco itineracy, leading the youth of this land to perdition. The first step is a cigarettee, then a chew, then a pipe, then there is whiskey, then there are pistols, cards and everlasting ruination. They tell us let Ephraim alone, he is wedded to his idols. If he is joined to his idols let him stay out of the Louisiana Conference. I have no reference to the old fathers who are already past the Rubicon, but to those who are just entering and who have an eye to the work. We want men of pluck and energy more than hewers of wood and drawers of water. We want them of some intelligence, some qualification, strictly moral habits, with an eye single to God's glory, to raise up the fallen, to mould the mind and train the people; to lead them to conquer; with some thought for the future. For if this world is to be converted to God it must be with a missionary spirit, a clean, plain and simple Gospel, with men devoted to God. Yours,

AN EX-TOBACCO LOVER.

Morristown District Conference.

DEAR EDITOR.—We held our first district conference, Morristown District, East Tennessee Conference, at Morristown, November 22d to 24th. At 9 o'clock a. m., first day, elder S. J. Harris in charge of the district, presiding, opened the session by reading the scripture and singing hymn 772. Prayer by elder C. Boyd. F. L. Donohoo, pastor in charge, was elected secretary. The presiding elder addressed the members of the conference in a very able and impressive manner, which was listened to with marked interest by the brethren.

The several committees were appointed, who seemed to know and fully discharge their duties. The reports were handed in and the indications are that this will be a prosperous year with churches in every respect. Several resolutions were passed among them was one that the conference members present one dozen copies of the Gospel Songs with music, and a copy of the SOUTHWESTERN to the Morristown Seminary. On Friday the conference made a visit to the Seminary, and Rev. B. H. Johnson made an able and interesting address to the students, which in some measure fitted them for more earnest study.

We had the pleasure of inspecting the Boarding Hall, which contains twenty-two rooms nicely and comfortably furnished, and we feel safe to say second to none in the State of Tennessee.

Prof. J. S. Hill, the president of this school, has labored hard for the Seminary, and has proved to be a friend to our people, and we can only pray that God will continne His blessings and preserve him many years in the circle of doing good.

At 11 a. m., Sunday, elder S. J. Harris preached and administered the Lord's Supper to a large number. At 3 o'clock p. m., love-feast was conducted by Prof. J. S. Hill.

There seemed to be a time of general rejoicing manifested by the members of the church throughout the day. During the day the contribution amounted to $15,40. This is the largest collection ever raised among our people upon such an occasion. Thus you can see we are not on the decline.

F. L. DONOHOO, Secretary.

Worthy of Mention.

MR. EDITOR, I would like to make mention of the grace of God bestowed on the First St. Church in this city during the past quarter. The entire conference year has been one of great prosperity to this charge in things spiritual and material, While Bro. Montgomery is with us I want to say that he is a faithful dispenser of the word of life, a watchful and loving shepherd. He has held frequent protracted meetings, and used the good old fashioned Methodist methods, and preached to the people both saints and sinners the Methodist doctrines, urging Christians to live a better life and sinners to get religion, and a large number have been truly, and soundly converted to God through the power of the Holy Ghost. Then good living has been insisted on, and the people have seen in their pastor light (not darkness,) and have felt the force of correct example all the time he has been among us. He does not belong to that tribe who creep into people's houses and are led captive by wicked and silly women. This congregation have always been good. The fourth quarterly conference was held on the ninth inst. All the reports were in order. The following are the collections of the classes No. 1, $26,15; No. $21,30; No. 3, $8,90; No. 4, $15,20; No. 5, $12, 90; No. 6, $26,85: No. 9, 17,70; No. 8, $11,60; No. 9, $13,70; No. 10, $12,20; No. 11, $4,75. The entire collections for the quarter as reported by the stewards was $633,20. It is the unanimous desire of our people that Bro. Montgomery be returned to us another year. We want him, we will take good care of him. The Stewards of the First St. Church want their preacher to be a man among men. The Stewards propose to pay him liberally and promptly so he can be independent, cheerful and happy.

Man in the Home.

We read in the Bible that "the head of the woman is the man." This refers to the position which God gave him. Every organization needs a head, and he is the head of woman in the home, and a capacity was given him to fit him for his position. Also the woman was formed for her special work. Man, on account of his superior physical strength, is fitted for going out into the world and engaging in its conflicts, and as a protector and provider for the family; to woman was given less physical strength, but finer feelings, and a more clinging and affectionate nature, to enable her, the better, to attend to the many little duties connected with the care and training of children. We read that it was said to woman after the fall, "that thy desire shall be to thy husband and he shall rule over thee." Prophecies were often expressed in that way. It was prophetic of what would be the effect of her sin, and it has been literally fulfilled in parts of the world not illuminated by the Gospel. In heathen countries woman is placed in great subjection to man, and viewed as his inferior in intellect, and in some instances she has not the privilege of believing that she has a soul. On the ground of inferiority, education is denied her. Where the Gospel shines, it unlocks the chains of woman's bondage and places her in her proper position by the side of man as his equal; he to do the work that God gave him, and she to do hers. Where she belongs, or to what extent she shall be educated, or whether she shall have the same education that man receives, have been considered important questions for discussion.

In this enlightened age people have almost come to the conclusion that he is her superior in his position, and she is his superior in the place she occupies, and though she may have much mental development she need in no way conflict with man.

Soon, perhaps, there will be a complete victory, and we shall fully realize that the blessing of of God rests in its highest sense upon the people where minds are unfettered. It is in accordance with His plans that the oppressed every where go free, and every yoke be broken.

It is one of the laws of God that people grow wiser and better. It is conjectured by some that in obedience to that law, we may grow into a state on the earth of perfect purity and happiness, that such is not the condition of things now, is evident. While there are many happy homes where children are being trained to become noble men and women, able to perpetuate the great movements of the world, there are homes where joys are few, and where untold miseries are hidden.

Men are not always good heads of the women. Some are intemperate and make their homes the abodes of poverty and wretchedness. Their coming is always sure to bring kicks and blows, added to the cold and hunger from which their families already suffer. All vices but drunkeness have limitations. It roots out of man's heart every atom of tenderness and makes him worse than the brutes. There is nothing bad a drunkard may not do, and if he drags his wife and children down to degradation and ruin, what does he care?

There are arbitrary and exacting men, who are so selfish, that they can never see any one's interests but their own, and whose homes are a constant scene of turmoil and strife, and who think that it is beneath their dignity to speak kind words to the only ones in the whole world who care for them.

Then there are indolent men whose highest ambition is just to exist. Those for whom they should feel an interest are neglected, and want the necessaries of life, and have no means for mental improvement.

There are men who withhold from their families in the hope of accumulating wealth, and make their homes the more desolate, from the fact that they have the ability to do better. They hope sometime to launch out into works of benevolence and luxurious living, and though they may own thousands they seldom get rich enough to be above pinching and coveting more.

I knew a man who began life in a humble way, but whose highest aim was to die rich. He worked hard and bought lands and speculated, and riches increased. He loved money for its own sake and not as a means of doing good. His nature became intensely selfish and the well-spring of joy dried up in his heart, and he became so disagreable that his family could not live with him. His wife had to leave the home for which she had worked so hard, and that she had hoped would be a shelter for her in her old days. His children found employment elsewhere. He possessed land and buildings, and fine stock, and the world called him rich, but he was too poor to own a home, and of "true riches" he possessed nothing. He made his money valueless, because he lacked the ability of knowing how to use it.

What the fathers and mothers make of their homes so the children are likely to be. Refinement does not naturally come from where there are no refining influences. Sad, indeed, would be the condition of those who have not the privilege of proper early training, if God had not made provision for every one in the light of Christianity which may penetrate into the darkest abodes of misery, and by the guiding and elevating influence of the Holy Spirit neglected ones may rise to a higher and better life, independently of surroundings.

The Lord hasten the day, if it may come, when happy homes and peace and prosperity may abound; when hearts may not be saddened by the failures of others, and when sin and its effects may be overcome and earth again be heaven.

CURE FOR CHAPPED HANDS.—Melt one-fourth of a pound of mutton tallow (which has already been "tried out" and cleansed), add one-half ounce of gum camphor and the same of glycerine. Let it boil a moment or two, stirring it all the time. When cold it is ready for use. Before going to bed wash the hands thoroughly and rub in the ointment. If you have them, draw on a pair of old kid gloves with the ends of the fingers cut off.

BUTTERMILK BISCUITS.—To 3 cupfuls of buttermilk, add one of butter, half a teaspoonful of cream tartar, half a teaspoonful of soda, salt to taste, and flour enough to make the dough just stiff enough to admit of being rolled out in biscuits.

After all the arguments about cheapness and quality it appears that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best remedy for the cure of Coughs and Colds ever offered to the public. The price is only 25 cents a bottle and every druggist in the land will feel recommends it.

NEW BOOKS.

"Her Second Love," by Ashford Owen, is a novel, to our mind, of questionable tendency. It treats too lightly or approvingly of balls, wines, dissimulations and swearing. Its references, with apparent satisfaction, to the infidel writings of Hume and Voltaire, and its general spirit impresses us with the honest conviction that it is unworthy of any Christian's endorsement. The book is published by T. B. Peterson & Bros., Philadelphia, and sold by the Crescent News Company. Price $1.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Mr. George W. Cable's, recent readings in Boston have excited much enthusiasm, and are, according to the Boston papers, a distinguished success. He read a number of extracts from unpublished chapters of his new novel, "Dr. Sevier," now appearing in The Century. The Boston Advertiser says of them: "It is impossible to judge from such excerpta concerning the literary coherence and consequence of the whole novel, but of the general freshness and brilliancy of the style of the unique-ness of the diction, of the writer's felicitous originality in description, the roundness of his humor, and the increased refinement of his observation of men and things, no listener could have been left in doubt."

The January Wide Awake opens with a winter morning frontispiece, to accompany Margaret Sidney's naive poem, "A Burst of Confidence." Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood follows with bicycling story for the season, entitled "The Whizzer." Then comes a pictorial article about "The Troubadours," written and illustrated by George Foster Barnes. Another excellent article by Miss Alice C. Fletcher, is about "the Home Life" of the thirty-six Omaha Children she brought on to the Carlisle School last year, and, in the line of solid reading, Edward Everett Hale contributes a To-Day paper, concerning the question, "Shall We Study Greek?" Susan Coolidge has a delightful long holiday story, "Who Ate the Pink Sweetmeat?" and Nora Perry another, "Jim," which all young girls should read. The C. Y. F. R. U. Readings are specially fine this month. Only $2.50 a year, to those who send in their subscription before Feb. 1, 1884. After that date the price will be $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

The Electro for January is a neat holiday number with most readable contents. Send 20 cents to Louisville, Ky., for a specimen copy.

The Ladies Floral Cabinet for January is at hand. New York; 22 Vesey street; $1.25 per year.

The Missionary Review of Princeton, N. J., is always a valuable compend of missionary intelligence. It enters upon its seventh volume with the January-February number.

The Musical Herald of Boston, has a new title page, and is now published by a company. It is more convenient for binding in its present shape, and there is the same quantity of musical notes and news as before. Single copies 10c., per year, $1.

The January number of the Chautauquan is now on our table. Its original articles by able writers, and its choice selections make it a valuable monthly visitor. No one can read it carefully and consecutively without becoming better and wiser. In the present number several articles commenced in previous issues are continued, and new ones equally as valuable and interesting are introduced. Long live the Chautauquan and its able editors and contributors. $1.50 a year. Dr. T. L. Flood, editor and proprietor, Meadville, Pa.

Commenting on a recent tragedy, the result of a drunk, the Chicago News says: "The revolver ought to become the sign of a saloon as the striped pole is of a barber shop, the three gilt balls of a pawn shop or the wooden Indian for the tobacco store."

HOW TO GET SICK.—Expose yourself day and night, eat too much without exercise, work too hard without rest, doctor all the time, take all the vile nostrums advertised and then you will want to know.

HOW TO GET WELL.—Which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters!

Sir Stafford Northcote has been making some very forcible speeches in Ireland, and if the inhabitants of that unhappy isle who listened to him are susceptible to reason, considerable impression must have been made upon their minds. At Larne he said: "In order to develop her resources Ireland needs order and repose and a firm, steady Government, not offers of bribes one day and sensational legislation the next, followed by violent measures of repression." This is unquestionably true, and he will doubtless admit the Government has at times erred in both of the directions indicated. The true policy is to remove all just cause of complaint, as far as possible, and then hold a uniform and steady rein over the whole country, enforcing order and obedience to law. When whisky drinking and shillalah flourishing are banished from Ireland riots will be as scarce as snakes, and the beauty of the land will cease to be marred by the misconduct of its inhabitants.—N. Y. Advocate.

At Death's Door.

Rev. J. H. Richards, of South Haven, Mich., gives us, under date of June 14th, 1883, the following account of what Compound Oxygen did for an old lady seventy years old, who a year ago, was at death's door:

"Compound Oxygen has done a fine work here in the person of a lady near seventy. She had a pulmonary attack, coughed incessantly and became greatly reduced. In fact, was completely prostrated. The physicians said that they could do no more for her, and that her end was at hand. She used after this, one Treatment and was so much relieved that she could endure life. But in two or three months she was again at death's door. Her family were called in to say farewell, and she gave them her dying charge. But not really dying, one of the daughters asked if the Compound Oxygen had ceased to do her good. 'Oh! no', she replied, but I have been without it for some time.' A treatment was immediately procured. This was about one year ago. Now she is doing work for her family and going out visiting in her carriage for miles in the country."

Our trade Treatise on Compound Oxygen containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard St., Phila.

What we need to learn first of all is loyalty to supreme things. There are in human life low, lower and lowest things; there are high, higher and highest things. Food, raiment, art, architecture, the pursuit of the material and beautiful must be subordinate to goodness and truth. "The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment." Righteousness is more than riches; charity is above esthetics; truth is higher than the temple, and how to be like Christ a weightier problem than the pattern of a dado.—J. L. Russell.

Ministers Sound its Praise.

Rev. Mr. Greenfields, Knoxville, Tenn., writes as follows: "Samaritan Nervine permanently cured my son of epileptic fits." Here's food for thought. Sold by druggists, $1,50.

Personal liberty ceases when it reaches a point where another is injured. This point is reached by the liquor-seller the moment he locates and opens his dram-shop. The neighborhood becomes less desirable and property less valuable.

No advanced thought, no mystical philosophy, no glittering abstractions, no swelling phrases about freedom, not even science with its marvelous inventions and discoveries, can help us much in sustaining this republic; still less can godless theories of creation, or any infidel attempts to rule out the Redeemer from His rightful supremacy in our hearts, afford any hope of security. That way lies despair.—Robert C. Winthrope.

Functional derangement of the female system is quickly cured by the use of Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." It removes pain and restores health and strength. By all druggists.

El Mahdi does not want to fight Turkish troops.

Mr. William Muir, (a name well-known to missionaries in India,) said in a recent address on missions that he did not attribute imperfect success to the methods employed by missionaries, but to the utter inadequacy of their numbers. "Look at Central Asia, and Central Africa, with their vast and thickly populated countries, left in gross darkness, or with but here and there a glimmer making the darkness all the deeper. What, again, are we doing in that great and open field of Persia? At most, but one or two missionaries for the whole people. Arabia is left untouched. The northern shores of Africa—once noble seen under a Cyprian and an Augustine, afterward swallowed up in the Saracen invasion, and now once more open to us through European influence—are equally neglected. So, too, with Cyprus and Egypt, gotten, as we are wont to say, with peace and honor, but there is no peace and honor to the church where we obtain a kingdom and leave it without the message of peace from the King of Heaven.

According to the report of Indian Commissioner Price for 1883, there are now 10,157 Indian children in the schools or 1,402 more than last year, of these 5,014 are in the day schools and 5,143 in boarding schools. To maintain these schools the government appropriated during the current year more than a half million dollars. A large proportion of the money is applied to the building of school houses and the salaries of teachers. In addition to the amount expended by the government, the Commissioner estimates that $250,554 have been spent by the churches in educational work among the Indians. The Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church appropriated in 1883 about $6,000 for this work.

Plans are being made for building a chapel in the neighborhood of the original home of Barbara Heck. The beer-saloon now occupied by our congregation is becoming more and more unsuitable as a place of worship. Rev. M. Nippert says "If we only had $500 more we would be able to build a Heck chapel and a parsonage too. In Cassel the congregation has increased four-fold within a year. On the Dillenberg circuit the number of appointments has increased from twelve to twenty-two. These are frequently supplied by students from the Martin Institute, which is prospering, having a class of diligent and earnest students.

A substantial German citizen who has recently himself shifted from the whiskey brokerage to the coal business, said in this office the other day, "The truth is, the whiskey business is dreadfully demoralized. The Western distillers are running at only one quarter of their capacity, and yet even this overstocks the market. More saloon-keepers than you dream of are anxious to go out of the business, but cannot, because all they have is invested in the saloon and nobody will buy them out." "Well" we questioned, "what has brought about this state of things?" "Why partly the overproduction in Kentucky; but after all, I tell you, you temperance folks have made a big hole in the whiskey business."—Union Signal.

When Sir Charles Lyell, the eminent geologist, was in America, he seems to have had some curious advice given to him about traveling on the Mississippi steamboats. "Never pay your fare until you are compelled to," was the first piece of wisdom thrown at him. "And, pray; why not?" he asked. "Because your chances are better in case of trouble." "How is this?" asked Lyell. "Well," answered the American, "when I was traveling up the river last March, somebody cried out, 'Passenger overboard!' The captain hurried to the office and asked 'Has the man overboard paid his fare?' On being answered in the affirmative, he turned to the pilot and said indifferently, 'Go ahead, it's all right.'"

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people whom I left in Alabama in 1852 as near as I can remember. My mother belonged to Lovett Hines, on the Warren river. I had a sister who belonged to Hines also. Mother was Patience, oldest brother Isaac, next Reuben. Isaac belonged to McGowning and Reuben to Woncaus. When I left Alabama I belonged to Wm. Bolden. I now go by the name of Sic Jounson. Address me at Iola, Texas.

As our schools have again gone into active work, it may be well to remind our Illinois readers that the law of compulsory education is now in full force in this State. But little has been said about this new measure and we have not learned that much attention is being paid to its enforcement. The law requires attendance "at either public or private school, twelve weeks in each year, of every child between the ages of eight and fourteen years, who is not an invalid. Parents and guardians who neglect to comply with the law are liable to twenty dollars fine, and it is also the duty of school directors to see that the law is complied with, or suffer a similar penalty. Any person can enter complaint against either parents, guardians or directors, and the State must prosecute."—Chicago Standard.

The government of the Dutch East Indies has sent troops to the West coast of Acheen to compel the Rajah to surrender the crew of twenty-five men of the steamer Nisero, wrecked there in November last.

TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.
From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and, demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.
"I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, two years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, and TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have cleaned me out nicely. My appetite is splendid, food digests readily, and I now have natural passages. I feel like a new man." W. D. EDWARDS, Palmyra, O.

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.
By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.
WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.
A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.
"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Colkins.

The Secretaries of the Treasury, of the lottery company which rules Louisiana, is very wrathful at the audacity of the Attorney General of the United States in coming down there to defend the right of the Government to suppress gamblers from making the mails an instrument of their nefarious business. It treats him as a "bulldozer," and accuses him of insulting the court and assuming lordly airs. It even sneers at his ruffles; but his chief offense is having no regard for the sad fact that "an institution chartered by the Constitution of the sovereign State of Louisiana was being indirectly assailed and its privileges as to the use of the mails denied." It is an unparalleled impudence for the legal representative of the Federal Government to go down to New Orleans for the purpose of aiding in an enforcement of the laws of Congress against an infamous institution which the "sovereign State of Louisiana" has chartered and permitted to debauch the character and sentiment of its people. Littell's Living Age For 1884.

For forty years The Living Age has been published with unitarranted success, and has enabled its readers, at small expense of time and money, to keep pace with the literary progress of the age. Frequent issue, and unequalled among periodicals in amount of matter, it furnishes an unrivalled compilation of a great and growing literature which embraces the productions of the most eminent living writers in all departments of literary and scientific work. And as this literature grows year by year in extent and importance, The Living Age becomes more valuable. Filling the place of many periodicals, it can hardly be dispensed with by any American reader who desires a thorough compendium of the best literature and thought of the time. Its prospectus for 1884 is commended to the attention of all who are selecting their reading-matter for the new year. Reduced clubbing rates with other periodicals are given, and to new subscribers remitting now for the year 1884 the intervening weekly numbers are sent gratis. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers. [dec6-6t

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only two days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! That's remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."

Over 30 persons are under arrest in connection with the Orange riot at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this paper. a14-14t

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON III. Jan. 20. THE POWER OF THE TONGUE. (James iii, 1—18.)

In the last lesson the apostle dwelt on some of the temptations to which the Jewish Christians were most exposed; the present dwells chiefly on the sins of the tongue, too many of the brethren desiring to be teachers instead of hearers.

The present lesson is one of great importance, not only in those days, but also in the present state of things.

The apostle while condemning their sins, still called them brethren, of the same blood and of like passions with himself. They were Jews, so was he; they were now Christians, so was he, all exposed to the same peculiar temptation. Through the improper use of the tongue, brethren are often offended and God dishonored. In this epistle the brethren are wisely admonished not to assume to be teachers, while they should be scholars. In the synagogue every one was allowed in turn to teach or expound the scriptures. (1 Cor. 14: 26). The apostle guards them against eagerness for speaking, when they might more appropriately give attention to hearing.—Golden Censer.

MARRIAGES.

At the bride's home, Nov. 22, 1883, Miss Fannie Colton, of Love Station, Miss., to Rev. J. L. Wilson, of Coldwater, Miss. The bride is a student of East University. W. M. PARKS.

On Dec. 4, 1883, at Pinkena, Miss., by Rev. A. Leland Bass, Jeff Brown and Miss Caroline Robinson.

By Rev. Charles Monroe, Clinton, Louisiana, Oct. 14, 1883, Mr. Jordan Haynes to Miss Emma Hickman.

At the M. E. Church, Enterprise, Miss., Dec. 6, 1883, Mr. Charles King and Miss Mahaffa Jones. At the residence of the bride's father on the 5th of December 1883, Mr. William Hamilton and Miss Josephine Wright, Rev. P. Bize officiating.

The publishers of the Beaver Falls, Pa., Tribune, John F. Porter, some time ago contracted a severe cold. He says he used half a dozen remedies ineffectually but upon recommendation of a physician I gave Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup a fair, square trial. It relieved me immediately and cured my cold and catarrh entirely. It is a remedy that should be used in every household."

DEATHS.

Rev. Henry Kilgo came to our town about two months ago, professed faith in our Lord and joined the church. He left in South Carolina a mother and brothers, one a preacher. He leaves here a host of friends. Sister Jane Steward's little daughter Lizzie died Dec. 11, 1883.

G. C. HARDEN.

Rawrenceburg, Tenn.

Bro. John J. Johnson died Nov. 29, 1883. He said there was nothing between him and his God. He was a Sabbath-school superintendent and steward, and will be greatly missed on the circuit.

Sister Lizzie Parker died Nov. 5, 1883, sister Lizzie Hamilton, Nov. 14, 1883; Sister [illegible] Nov. 11, 1883. All were willing to meet their Savior.

JOHN EARNS.

New Albany, Miss.

Sister Amelia Hatlen departed this life Oct. 24, 1883, aged 14 years, after a serious illness of 6 weeks. She was a beloved and faithful scholar. She died in the triumph of faith, and hope of eternal bliss, leaving a mother, father, and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

Alfred Andamson, aged 25 years, died Nov. 22, 1883. Brother Alfred did not profess religion, until on his death bed; then and there he made peace with God, and his dying words, were "all is well."

May the God of peace comfort their bereaved relatives. Our loss is heaven's eternal gain. JOHN H. READ.

N. O. University, Dec. 22, 1883.

Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. No cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. By druggists.

NEW BOOKS.

The Life of Paul. By D. H. Taylor. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price $1.50.

In this volume we have a popular history of the life of St. Paul. There have been other larger and more important biographies of the great apostle written, but their size and cost have kept them out of popular reach. Their style has been too learned, and the historical portion too much cumbered with theological discussion to meet the want of the general reader. Mr. Taylor understood this and as a result his book is free from these objections. He has divided the contents of the volume into five parts. The first takes up and describes the youth and schooldays of the apostle. It tells the story of his conversion, and of the six years which followed it. The second part describes his first missionary journey, the third and fourth are devoted to his subsequent journeys This portion of the work is illustrated by a map which will be of great service to the reader. The fifth part narrates the incidents of his arrest, trial and imprisonment at Rome, and gives an account as gathered from tradition, of his work in later years. The author has taken care to secure historical as well as exegetical accuracy, and his book deserves place among the standard works of religious biography. In addition to the map it contains [illegible] important illustrations. It is handsomely printed and bound.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Littell's Living Age begins its one hundred and sixtieth volume this month. Foreign periodical literature, especially that of England continue to grow both in extent and importance. The Living Age presents with satisfactory freshness and completeness the best of this literature, and cannot fail to become more and more valuable to its readers. The first weekly number of the new year has the following table of contents:—The Literature of Queen Dido, National Review; Wraxall's Memoirs, Temple Bar; In the Workhouse, Spectator; Twilight, Spectator; The Daisy's Grandmother, a story, Blackwood's Magazine; A Florentine Tradesman's Diary, Saturday Review; A Dancing Epidemic, Chamber's Journal; The Clerical Caste in Scotland, Spectator together with choice poetry and miscellany. This number is a good one with which to begin a subscription. For sixty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,900 pages a year) the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10,50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $4,00 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Co. Boston, are the publishers. We heartily commend the Living Age as an excellent repository of foreign literature, by which at a moderate subscription price students and lovers of literature can keep well informed on all the foremost topics of the time.

The Boston for February has been received from the International News Co., New York. This profusely illustrated magazine may be found at the newsstands. Price 30 cents per copy.

The English Monthly Magazine for January (New York; MacMillan & Co.) has an engraving of Matthew Arnold for its frontispiece, and an article on Mr. Arnold by Henry James. Archibald Forbes writes of the Emperor and his Marshal; and A. J. Hipkins of the Pianoforte and its Precursors Prof. Geike has a paper on Rivers and River Gorges. Yearly $1 50; single copies 15 cents.

The Penny for January (Boston: D. Lothrop) is at hand to delight the little folks. Single copies 7 cents; yearly 75 cents.

The Pulpit Treasury, is a valuable and interesting evangelical monthly. It has no superior and few equals of its kind. Its numerous sermons, sketches, helpful hints selections, editorials, etc., are of a high order and contributed by some of the most eminent ministers and writers in the country. The January number has a portrait of H. C. Potter D.D., Assistant Bishop of New York, and a sermon of his; subject, "The Rock-Foundation;" and other sermons. A paper on African Methodist Missions, by J. M. Reid, D.D. Illustrative selections, etc. Subscribe for it. New York: E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway. Yearly in advance $2 50. Clergymen $2. Single copy 25 cents.

The Second Volume of the American Reformer opened with the issue of January 5. Among its interesting contents is an editorial review of and reply to Dr. Dio Lewis' argument against Legal Prohibition; an article from Hon. Neal Dow, on "The Republican Defeat in Ohio;" one from the Rev. O. H. Mead, on "Moses, or Political Reform Work Among the Colored People"; one from Rev. O. P. Gifford, on "The Ideal Saloon;" one from J. D. Rice, on "Municipal Reform"; one from Mrs. M. S. Robinson, on "The Republic and the Indians." Also, a reprint of Mrs. Mary L. Dickinson's poem "Aunt Sally and Hopping Joe," with an original poem and other matter from the same popular writer. Sample copies mailed on application. Subscription price $1.00 a year. Address: The Reformer Publishing Co No. 59 Tribune Building, N. Y.

Those of our subscribers who have produce to send to market, or who desire to make purchases in New Orleans, will find it to their advantage to communicate with P. P. Albert, 20 Toulouse street, whose advertisement appears in this paper. He is reliable and we cheerfully recommend him.

A convention of sugar planters met in New Orleans on the 15th, to take action in support of a protective tariff.

The Confederate Soldiers' Home of Louisiana has been named "Camp Nicholls," in honor of the ex-Governor.

The senate of France is discussing a proposed law for the better protection of the interests of the family and the marriage relation.

What's the use of a Church paper? It is as useful to a Church as a railway time-table is to the managers and patrons of a road; as the publication of the laws is to a State; as a trade paper is to those who are in that line. A Baptist without a Baptist paper is a poor Baptist; a Presbyterian without a Presbyterian paper is out of sympathy with his brethren for lack of knowledge. But a Methodist without a Church paper is worse off than any of the others, for our Church is many, yet one; in general the same but full of details and always moving. He who says, "What's the use of a church paper anyway!" is probably himself of little use to a Church anyway.—Christian Advocate.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

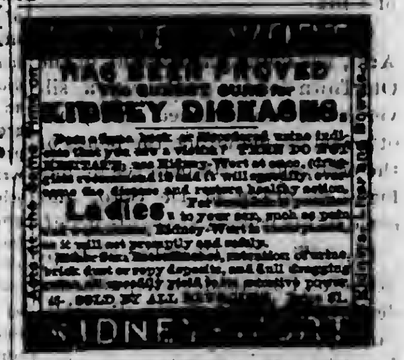
P. M. CARMICHAEL, P. E.

West Point, Texas, Dec. 22, 1883.

The Convent of the Immaculate Conception, at Belleville, Ill., was destroyed by fire Saturday night Jan. 5. Twenty-seven of the sisters, including the Superioresss, and young ladies attending school perished in the flames.

Dr. Vincent advises that parental authority be used in the matter of studying Sunday-school lessons at home, as is done to compel attention to arithmetic and grammar. At any rate, the lesson should be studied and then committed to memory.



ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. je14-1y

A well-known clergyman, Rev. N. C. Cook, of Tranquilean, Wis., says, "I find Kidney-Wort a sure cure for kidney and liver troubles."

"Last year I went to Bagnes," says Henry Ward, late Colonel 69th Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., now living at 178 West 84th Avenue, J. C. Heights, N. J., "only to return worse from chronic liver complaint. Kidney-Wort, as a last resort, has given me better health than I've hereto enjoyed for many years." He's cured now, and consequently happy.

"I will recommend it everywhere," writes Jas. B. Meyer, Carriage Manufacturer, Myerstown, Pa., "because it"—Kidney-Wort—"cured me."

"Mr. Walter Cross, my customer, was prostrated with rheumatism for two years, tried, in vain, all remedies; Kidney-Wort alone cured him. I have tried it myself, and know that it is good."—Portion of a letter from J. L. Willett, Druggist, Flint, Mich.

Editorial Notes.

Maine, under the Maine liquor law, has one convict in its penitentiary to each 3,200 of its population. California, under the license law, has one convict to each 600 of its population. In the face of such figures who will dare say that prohibition does not prohibit?

The New Orleans Christian Advocate says: "Church extension is already one of our most popular collections, and soon will command the largest liberality of our congregations. The collection for the year (Louisiana) exceeded $1,100 about 70 per cent. of the assessment."

Echoes from Birmingham, Danville, Marshall, Yazoo, and other sections of the South indicate that a general revival is in progress throughout this section. It is a revival of the Knklux spirit of the reconstruction period. This murderous spirit should be put down. Where are the friends of law and order in the South?

Among the regulations of a newly formed church among the Zulus in South Africa is the following: "No member of this church shall be permitted to drink the white man's grog, or native beer, nor touch it with his lips." What do you say to this, Christians at home?

The Savannah Morning News is a four page, nine column daily, published at Savannah, Ga., by J. H. Estill, editor and proprietor. It was established in 1850, and the subscripton price is $10 per annum. It carefully summarizes the local news of the three States of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida; is full of short pithy paragraphs and concise editorials, and it is a good specimen of skillful typography. Read the prospectus in another column.

The opinion prevails that the Republican State convention of Louisiana which meets March 5, will nominate a State ticket. Such a decision would be a wise party measure, and be conducive to the general prosperity of Louisiana. The State suffers from the control of a party which by peculiar methods holds a monopoly of the offices and dictates politicies in defiance of the popular will. Two distinct parties, each vigorously contending for popular approval are essential to good government under Republican forms; and a party without confidence in its principles, or energy to contend for them, will justly merit contempt and be speedily dissolved. Not one loyal citizen can be apt forth against putting a Republican State ticked in the field. Republicans of Louisiana have waited like Wilkins McCawber a long time for "something to turn up;" and may continne to wait until doomsday without success on that line. Men with conrage of their convictions established the Republican party, and had grit enough when once defeated to rally again, and again, never despairing of a final trinmph. That spirit commands the respect of opponents and the confidence of friends. Beside there is snfficient Democratic disaffection and maladministration, on which to bnild a local platform. Sugar planters need Republican as well as Democratic votes in Congress to maintain the desired tariff, and may be indnced by virtue of strong pecnniary interests if nothing more to stay the hands of ballot box stuffers and bulldozers, and allow a fair election to be held. It mnst be borne in mind, however, that none of these advanages could be availed of by a ticket of weak or vaccillating men, men who possess disreputable official career, or Democrats in principles put on a Repnblican platform in the vain and silly hope of catching Democratic votes. Decent Democrats and Repnblicans would alike reject and despise snch a ticket, and its election, if possible, would be a pnblic calamity.

The Congregational Association, at its recent session at Chattanooga, took no stock in color line legislation in the church, bnt rather emphatically denonnced the hideons monstrosity, and passed resolntions, advocating eqnality among Christians of all races in religious commnnion, and strongly condemning the present system of separate churches for white and black Christians. This is a move in the right direction which our next General Conference would do well to profit by; and as a result wipe ont its retrogressive color line legislation of 1876. Every Christian precept and principle demands such a course. The church does not claim infallibility, and if the legislation of 1876 is found to be a mistaken expediency, engendering and cultivating the anti-Christian spirit of caste, as it certainly does, the church should retrace her step and repeal the objectionable legislation. Christians should not be known by the accidental color of their face, no more than by the color of their coats, bnt rather by the measnre of their faith and work. The church was in error when she adopted any other standard.

The Negro makes a great hullabaloo now and then about the glories of Emancipation, while the truth is that emancipation is what he needs above all things else. No driver in the old plantation times ever popped his whip with the degree of assurance of the political whipper in at an election, when the interests and fortunes of "de party" are involved.—Southern Christian Advocate (M. E. Church, South.)

That is strange talk for an advocate of Christianity. The Negro certainly does need emancipation from the old slave drivers of the South, who alternately use whips, revolvers and tissue ballots. Loyalty to the party of one's choice, is quite as commendable in Negro Republicans, as it is in white Democrats. The whites should not be popping their whips about, as if all virtue were in their breeches pocket, and they were lords of all creation.

Radical Men and Measures.

Few things are more unfortunate than for a man to be nnder the necessity of explaining himself. His life and declarations of principles shonld be consistent, clear, plain and explicit, so that all who see and read can understand what he means. It has never been the custom of the SOUTHWESTERN to interpret or explain itself. All who read it understand where it stands. It does not propose to be conservative. It could not be. It is a Christian paper, and mnst of necessity be radical. Christ was radical in all of his teachings, he was extremely so. He was in no way bound to forms and thread-worn methods. "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth, I came not to send peace but a sword. For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law." He came to seperate the righteons from the wicked. Whenever, and wherever right goes forth into a world of wrong there mnst be war. Each principle will rally its own, under its own banner, and the struggle between right and wrong, heaven and hell begins. Right is at variance with wrong. Truth would annihilate error, and holiness battle sin. There is no conservatism here. The one great aim of Christ is the radical cnre of the disease of sin, and he does this by the use of the most radical measures; conservatism clings to the past, and looks with jealonsy and distrnst on any bnt the old stereotyped measures of past ages. The church of to-day is hindered by her conservative members in every department of church work. There is a loud call for radical men and measures in doing the work of our own church here in the Sonth; men who will be co-workers with him who, when he came into this world, came "not to be ministred to, but to minster and to give his life a ransom for many." He was no cold pitiless conservative, but intensly radical in all his words and work. We need men who will stand by the cross and doctrine of the Lord Jesus, and find what to do and how to do. Old and favored ideas must go, many of them have already gone. Never in any country were there such radical changes in the current opinion as to the education of the negro as there has been here in the South during the past twenty years. One of the bnsiness men of the city of New Orleans, who is a gradnate from one of the South Carolina colleges, and was all throngh the war, referring the to the qnestion of the education of the colored people, said to the writer: "No person can tell how strange it all seems to me. I used to own negroes, I bonght and sold them; I valned them for the money that was in them; I never thonght that they could learn, but as I go into the schools I see that the children of the negroes learn as easily as the white. I see young men in Latin and Greek and higher mathematics, and I cannot see the least difference between the colored and the white in their recitations." This change is going on through all the South, and all who have sense see it, and some rejoice in it. It is no time now to falter, we believe that we must push this work with more energy. It must be done in Christ's name and for Christ's sake. Callous men, conservative measures may do elsewhere, but not here. We mnst have men of sonnd jndgment, solid piety, who have a radical religious experience, and deep convictions.

The Treaty Between Chili and Peru.

We have before ns the text of the treaty signed three months ago by the Chilian Plenipotentiary and the representatives of Gen. Iglesias. It contains nothing calcnlated to startle or discourage the friends of peace, for all of the sacrifices made to Chili have long been known, and the only unpublished clanse involves a concession to Peru which will prove highly nseful in the present depleted condition of its treasnry.

The territory ceded in perpetnity is, as was originally reported, the littoral province of Tarapaca, whose northern bonndry is defined to be the ravine or river Camarones. To appreciate at their right valne the disingennons attempts to impeach the moderation of Chili and the patriotism of Iglesias, is only to bear in mind that the land indemnity thus yielded after three additional years of nseless warfare does not exceed by a sqnare inch the amonnt demanded by the successful combatant at the Arica conference, and then refnsed throngh the intrigues and unwarrented interference of diplomatic representives of the United States. Chili also asked at Arica for an extra compensation to be paid in money, as security for which she was to be permitted to retain provisionally Tacna and Arica. The dispositiou now made of these provinces is the following: They will be snbject to the Chilian anthorities for the term of ten years, but at the expiration of that period their inhabitants shall decide by a plebiscit whether they will continne definitely nnder the dominion of Chili or that of Peru. The country to which, in conformity with snch a plebiscit, Tacna and Arica shall be finally annexed is to pay ten million dollars to the other party to this treaty. This is as if Prince Bismarck, after nnconditionally annexing Alsace, had occupied Lorraine provisionally, covenanting that in the event of its transfer to Germany by a popular vote, a money indemnity shonld be paid to France instead of by that country. If these broad facts are kept in view, no reasonable person will fail to recognize the temperateness and even liberality of the conrse which Chili is now pursuing toward her vanqnished enemy.

The action which Chili binds herself to take in regrad to the gnano deposits on the Lobos Islands—which have now been for some years in her possession—is marked by even more forbearance and magnanimity than she has been credited with by the reports of the treaty hitherto received. The present convention reaffirms the decree issned by the Chilian Executive on Feb. 9, 1882, ordering the sale of 1,000,000 tons of guano, bnt stipnlating that the net proceeds shonld be equally divided between Chili and those creditors of Pern whose claims were originally gnaranteed by the Lobos Islands deposits. Bnt by the tenth article of the compact entered into with Iglesias the Santiago Government agrees to turn over to Peru, from the day when this treaty is constitutionally ratified and exchanged, that moiety of the net proceeds of the Lobos Islands guano which, under the stipulation above qnoted, was reserved to Chili. This generons concession will enable the world to jndge which of the two parties to the treaty is more sincerely considerate of the claims pnt forward on behalf of the Peruvians bondholders. If Peruvian of the Calderon-Montero faction really feel the acnte sense of obligation to the foreign creditors of their conntry which they have professed with so mnch nnction, they will, of conrse, insist that the moiety of the net sum acoruing from the Lobos gnano which General Iglesias has secnred to the national treasury shall be at once transmitted to the Enropean holders of Pernvian bonds. We shonld mention in connection with this branch of the treaty that even after the 1,000,000 tons specified are sold, the Chilian Government binds itself to go on paying to the foreign creditors ot Peru one-half of the net proceeds of all sales of guano until the debt is paid or the deposits now worked are exhansted. Should, however, any new deposits chance to be discovered hereafter in the ceded territory, they will, properly enongh, be treated as Chili's exclusive property.

The snpplemental protocol signed at the date of the treaty merely adjusts the conditions on which the Chilian army of occnpation is to remain in Pern, pending the constitntional ratification of the main instrnment. None of the six clanses embrace anything likely to offend any citizen of Pern who honestly favors peace. The provision for the monthly payment of $300,000 toward the snpport of the army of occnpation is in strict accordance with precedent, and is bnt a meagre eqnivalent for the relinqnishment of the Custom Honses of Callao and Trnxillo. Inasmnch, moreover, as this payment will cease, and the receipt of money from gnano will begin, as soon as the treaty has been sanctioned by the new Congress, the Peruvians have a double motive for dispatching this business with the utmost possible promptitnde.—New York Sun.

Prof. Carr's Reception.

MR. EDITOR—After an absence of four years G. Wiley Carr, the eldest son of Bro. Sebe J. Carr, sr., of this city, returned from Missouri from his labors as teacher in the pnblic schools of that section for a week's recreation, where he is trying to diffuse knowledge to the colored yonth and misses of our land; in which service the brother has been engaged for eight years, and 2000 yonng men and ladies can rise to-day and greet him as their former preceptor with honor to themselves, to Bro. Carr and to their conntry's God, and say gladly and with honor, "May God be with yon, and long may yon live and urge the good work in preparing our yonng people for our colleges and nniversities." The word was narrated that Prof. Carr would make his arrival on the South bound train, Tnesday, Dec. 25, at 2:30 o'clock, and nearly 250 of Corinth's best citizens were on watch at the Mobile & Ohio depot for his arrival, and a cordial reception to this his old home, where the greater part of his yonthful days were spent. We were greatly honored on the following day by an invitation to the residence of the Professor's father, to partake of one of the most notable dinners ever given in this city by a colored citizen. The most distinguished society, white and colored, in Corinth, consisting of Capt. C. G. Fields, Col. John Drowne, E. Morgan, Esq., ex-county tr[illegible]nrer; Rev. John A. Mask, of the E. Church; Rev. W. H. H. Galli[illegible] and wife, M. E. Church; Mrs. Emma Gray, Mrs. Henderson and daughter; Hon. A. F. McDonald, assistant post-master; Dr. R. M. Young, President Board of Health; W. R. Barroum, wholesale grocer; Col. F. E. Whitfield, attorney for Southern Express Company, made np the list of the invited guests, and I thank God that throngh His goodness and infinite power he has spared me to see the lion and the lamb lie down together, and having the privilege of meeting with such, to see the white people accept of an invitation to a dinner given by one of the colored citizens in the South, above all to attend it with that felicity and enthnsiasm that they do with one another. These are men of some prominence in the South and among the highest in the State of Mississippi. What gives me cause to feel proud and happy is to witness such changes in the Sonth, and above all to know that it is the seeds of Methodist work taking root and bringing forth fruit.

Mr. Carr is a young man of great ability, made of Methodist Episcopal timber, nailed together with the grace of God, and is a tormenter to the devil and his army. Go on, Bro. Carr; yon have my prayers. May heaven bless you and crown your pathway with flowers of honor and glory. We regret exceedingly to lose you. Come and see us again.

W. H. H. GALLION.

Bro. John Jefferson.

In official meeting, Rev. H. J. Wright in the chair, npon a motion Bros. G. W. Duncan, T. Mitchell I. Shepard were appointed to draw np a set of resolutions upon the death of Bro. Johu Jefferson, a local preacher of Asbnry M. E. Church. They reported as follows:

Whereas, Onr Heavenly Father has seen fit in His all-wise providence to remove from us Bro. John Jefferson, a faithful and hnmble servant from onr midst, a man in whom the most implicit faith was maintained, and we are now deprived of his presence on earth; and while we snbmit to the allwise Creator, and bow in humble snbmission to His divine command; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we cherish a mark of deep humiliation for the deceased brother, and while we lose he gains, and heaven maintains another soldier of Christ; and we extend to the bereaved wife and brother a Christian prayer, a heart full of sympathy in this their sad hour, and point them to the Lamb of God that takes away the sin of the world. Be it further

Resolved, That our pastor request these proceedings to be published in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, our dear paper, and that the thanks of this church be, and is hereby extended to the Rev. L. P. Cushman, editor, and Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B.D., assistant, for all favors shown to us heretofore; and that onr prayer is that they shall be reappointed to fill the positions that they now fill so ably.

Yonrs respectfully,
GEO. W. DUNCAN,
THOS. MITCHELL,
ISRAEL SHEPARD,
Committee.

The steamer City of Colnmbns from Boston for Savannah, at 3:45 a. m. on the 18th, ran ashore on Devils Bridge, Gayhead and commenced to break and fill with water. Over 100 lives were lost; life boats and a revenue cutter saved about 21 persons. A gale was blowing west by north at the time.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches: "Christmas eve was a night to be remembered in this church. We had the largest, finest and richest tree of the city. Our church was nicely decorated with red, white and blue chains hung in loops with Chinese lanterns. The tree was full, and all enjoyed themselves nicely."

MISSISSIPPI.

R. Hays, State Line: "During protracted meeting there were four conversions, and two were received by letter from the Baptists, seven on probation. Elder Campbell visited us but was unable to preach. Have made good progress during the year, though the people are poor. Sunday-school, T. Pierce superintendent, has 70 scholars."

TEXAS.

Dennis Edmonds, Rossville: "The people have Christmas in their heel, but not Christ in their heart at present. I got back to the work in time to do good. Pray for me this year, that I may do better and more work for the Master."

J. C. Mays, Cuero: "I've only had time to make a short visit to part of my work. I went to Victoria December 27 and found the friends eagerly awaiting my arrival. The 27th, was a pleasant day there, whose topic was the Masonic parade. The procession (in uniform) passed off gently, and as far as I know gave satisfaction. At night there was a fair given, the result of which amounted to near $100. There being quite an indebtness of the new school building which must be settled in a short time, our people are now looking to that greater than anything else. I met the Sabbath-school Sunday morning, listened well to the recitations, gave a lecture. Rev. Wm. A. Fortson, who devotes his time in reformation is working in their midst. I preached Sunday afternoon to quite an audience, and Bro. Wm. H. Stephens preached for us at night. Monday night the weather was very unpleasant but I met the official board and entered the work. We also held watch meeting which ended in joyous praises. I find that there is work yet to be done and nothing can assure it but love and honesty. I expect to move down this week. Pray for us at Victoria."

NORTH CAROLINA.

This is an excerpt from the Bennett Seminary Visitor of Greensboro: "During a two years' busy residence, in casual, street, political, and business relations, our treatment has been most considerate and cordial, our vote being as heavy, and our gold as yellow as any. In fact a few country farmers have so esteemed our worth in the latter as to lead them to "ask and receive" any price for their produce they choose to name. One countryman in particular need never feel that the Scripture is personal when it is read "a stranger and ye took me not in." Beyond this episode, rarely if ever have we met a merchant in at his store without being begged to call on him again there. In these respects everything is lovely. But as to social and ecclesiastical treatment, with some notable and conspicuous exceptions, we have only to refer to the alleged reply of a prominent ex-Confederate Boniface to his Northern guest: 'We treat Northerners well enough, if they only let the niggers alone.'"

TENNESSEE.

J. E. Bradford, Clifton: "I arrived Dec. 24 with my family, and we had a hard time to get to the work. As we failed to get money enough to move by way of the river, we had to move in wagons a distance of about 50 miles, in the mud, and sleet, for nearly two days and nights. As we had to ford the Tennessee river on a ferry boat we came very near losing our horses and all. We had to get an ax and cut poles and run them under the wagon behind, and stand off on the bank of the river and lift the hind part of the wheel on the boat. After we crossed the river we got stalled under the bank of the river just where we drove off the ferry, the horses not being able to carry the load up the hill. I had to get a white gentleman to pull it out. After cursing aronnd awhile he agreed to pull the team and wagon ont of the mire and up the hill for 25 cents, and as it was very wet, muddy and cold, we were in the night getting to Clifton. We were very glad to meet the SOUTHWESTERN here. My wife had got uneasy about it, as we had been delayed in moving for a week or more, and had not seen it in all that time. The Rev. G. Hardin and family passed through here a few days ago to his new work at Lawrenceburg. Rev. D. Collier and family left here yesterday morning for his headquarters at Waynesboro in this county, 16 miles from this place. Clifton is quite a business little place, as it is one of the main shipping points of two or three counties. Our members received us very kindly, and the whole work seems to be on the look up. The pastor, Rev. E. M. Manson, left every thing in good order, Morristown Seminary and Normal Institute.

This, our only school within the bounds of the East Tennessee conference of the M. E. Church, was established in the fall of 1881, having for its object the higher education of the Freedmen, the training of teachers for the colored schools and preachers for the churches. The property cost $500, with one building 40x60 feet, one story high, and a good spring of first rate lime-stone water, which adds much to its value, to say nothing of the improvements made on the old building since the purchase. The property is worth from $1,000 to $1500. In addition to the above named building, a large boarding hall two stories high, 58x57 feet has been erected. It contains 22 rooms with accommodations for fifty or sixty students. each room is furnished with a bedstead, table, chairs, lights, stove, washbowl, pitcher, etc. Students will be required to furnish their own bedding. The entire property as it stands to day with its new building and the old one improved, cost, including furniture for the same $3,200. There is a debt of $400 yet, who will help pay this debt off at once? We must have more help. Our friends have helped most nobly. Bishop Waiten has given over a thousand dollars, and Rev. J. S. Hill, the principal of the Seminary, has traveled, lectured, preached, prayed and presented the claims of the Seminary, and to him more than any other one person is the success of this school attributed. Rev. W. C. Graves and other white friends have given very valuable assistance. Dr. Rust aided some, and the East Tennessee Conference and other colored friends have given $300. If 2,000 people would give twenty cents each the debt on the property would be paid at once, and nobody would miss that small amount. Send all monies to Rev. J. S. Hill, Morristown, Tenn.

The faculty is composed of some of the most devoted Christian teachers it has ever been my fortune to meet. Their motto is work! Not how much, but how well. Rev. J. S. Hill, principal, is from New Jersey; Miss Nannie McGinley a graduate of Maryville College, Tennessee, is assistant principal; Mrs. A. H. Stearns, originally from New Jersey, is in charge of the primary department, and Miss Mammie Brown, of Maryville, Tenn, teacher of music. There were enrolled last term 140 students. The prospects for this term are very flattering. The moral and religious influence that pervades the institution has yielded an abundant harvest of many precious souls who have been happily converted to God and our Savior Jesus Christ. I am requested to say that if any of the preachers in our church, or from any other conferences, desire to attend this school for three or four months during the present term they can get help by applying to the principal at Morristown; all information necessary will be furnished. This is certainly an offer to be appreciated by all who can spend three or four months in school during the winter months to a better advantage than being on our circuits, for many are compelled to stop traveling during the severe cold weather, and why not go to school then? It would give new ideas to the mind of the preachers, give freshness and zeal according to knowledge to their work of saving souls. Brethren think, pray, act.

The entire expenses will not exceed $6.25 per month for any of the departments. The faculty and school extend their many thanks to the Morristown District Conference for their donation of one dozen Gospel hymns, Nos. 1, 2 and 3 combined, with music. Also the principal for the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Let each one do something for Morristown Seminary. We need a good library for the school. I suggest that each pastor give, or get some one else to give a good useful book to help form a library for the use of the students. Truly your brother in Christ,

Mission Work that Must be Done in Homes.

The rapid changes which time has wrought, both in the population and spiritual needs of our Union, Southern States, and especially Louisiana; there has arisen an imperative demand for enlarged plans and increased efficiency in the working of our Conference missions. The duty of Christian women, genuine Christian workers at home, to take up this department of work beside the other conference work, ought to impress itself upon every Christian woman's heart in the South. Our people are not yet out of the "wilderness;" could many of you visit the homes of your sisters you would be appalled with the ignorance, abject squalor and superstition. All this abounds; it is rank. This is a work second to none, and it is a work to which woman is especially adapted, and most forcibly appeals to her sympathies and love. This is a work of lifting woman from degradation into the bright light of Christian intelligence and purity. One of the greatest needs in the home is religious knowledge which will instruct its inmates as to their duty to God and man. This is woman's "sesame." We think this truth is universally accepted, that a home cannot be raised above its mother, or a race above its type of womanhood. Since Christian women recognize this fact, they ought to be aroused to a consciousness that a great responsibility is staring each in the face; that in no small degree is committed to them the weal or woe of this nation within a nation. Very much has been done all over this land for the mission cause in foreign fields, to spread Gospel light and knowledge among the heathen; money and missionaries have been sent; all of which is right. But in doing this should our own homes need be left uncared for? Among the fifty millions of this people there is found six millions of a freed people of the South in a degeneracy as deep, a slavery as bitter, and ignorance as dark, a helplessness as complete. We know it has been said enough has been done for the freedman, and that they ought now to be able to help themselves. We have been giving for twenty years to the freedmen's aid. The Freedmen's Aid Society has helped and is still helping us—that is, as far as it goes—it helps to sustain a few schools, and the Church Extension builds and assists in sustaining some of our churches; the masses do not come within the reach of the influence of our schools, and as a consequence are left uncared for wholly. The State school does not even reach all under consideration. There are plantations from New Orleans to the Jettys; on many of these plantations are found from thirty to fifty families on each, and from fifty to one hundred children; many are not within reach of the public schools, and the religious training is of the whoop, bawl, whine and superstitous kind. Look at this picture: On the cotton, rice and cane plantations men, women, boys and girls go in promiscuous gangs to their daily toil; it is late when they return to their cabins; they find nothing that would remind even a half-civilized people of home; poverty, dirt, ragged, hungry children. Husbands who do not know their duty to a wife must be taught; wives must be taught their duty as respects their homes and children. Our people number six million in the United States; nearly three million are women; a vast majority are the embodiment of ignorance and superstition; one-third are girls under twenty one years of age, receiving their training amid these helpless surroundings. This work should present a strong appeal to every Christian mother in the land, the State, North, South, to help turn this great tide of evil into the channels of Christian purity and Bible instruction. Dr. Kincaid said: "I have lived twenty-five years in Burmah, and Gospel truth and teaching is not needed there, more than among the freedmen of the South. If the deep degradation of women in Asiatic heathenism lays special claims to the sympathies and efforts of the Christian women of America, does not that which exists in our own land present an equal claim upon them? Mathew Vassar, in his reason for founding Vassar College, said fittingly: "I consider that the mothers of a country mould the character of its citizens, determine its institutions, and shape its destinies." Next to the influence of the mother is that of the teacher who is employed to train young children. Still it is impossible for teachers to do the work that is so greatly needed in families. This work must be done by Christian women, for women alone can raise women and lead them to a higher life. Unless the mother is elevated the education of the children is almost lost, the influence of home destroying all.

Brethren, please return the books containing the subscriptions for Houston Seminary. Those who know where any of the books are will do us a favor to notify us. It is important that this be attended to at once. If any of the brethren have taken collections for the Seminary since conference, please send it at once, as we have received nothing from conference, and our insurance is over due. If we wish to continue the school we must keep the building insured. Let us hear from you soon, brethren. The school is filling up more rapidly than it did last year after the holidays. Everything is in good working order. Class in Theology meets at 3 p. m. Thursdays. Brethren in the ministry are all invited to attend it. All the classes are doing good work, nor is the religious feeling, so manifest at times last year, wanting now. Bros. Reddick, Roberts and Logan are each hard at work in his respective field of labor. All the interests of our church in Houston are in good condition so far as known.

Russian Cruelties.

The Richmond (Ky.) Herald prints the following letter from Gen. C. M. Clay in defense of Russia and the Russians:

In your journal of Dec. 12, is a paper which is a type of the malignant calumnies of the anti-Russian press for a century or more. I lived in St. Petersburg for near nine years, and made Russian life a study, mingling with all classes for that purpose. I dined with the Emperor and imperial family, and took cabbage soup and black bread with the woodmen who came from the interior on boats and rafts. Perhaps there is no American living or dead who can speak with more authority than I can on the real character of Russia. I believe there is no more charitable and humane nation on earth than Russia. I give the proofs. There are no deaths by absolute poverty in Russia, as in the great cities of Paris, London, New York, and other European cities. Besides the charitable associations established by law the first nobles in Russia, men and women, yearly, by organized societies, collect funds by gifts, needle-work, and other methods, for clothes, soup-houses, and bread, which are distributed all Winter in St. Petersburg; and such methods are pursued in other cities. The infants that are drowned and thrown into sewers in Europe and America are taken at a day old, if need be, and brought up at the public expense in St. Petersburg, Moscow, and other cities. These children when grown up to a suitable age are put to service and may make a generous living. Russia liberated her slaves not by war and gave them lands. America did neither. I dined with the nephew of Prince Dolgorouky, Governor-General of Moscow, (Viceroy,) and a liberated serf or slave was at the table as a guest, and made the best dinner speech on the occasion. The Russians open all their pleasure-grounds beside the public parks to the whole people. They never bar the gates and close the doors against the "rabble" as in England and America. In Summer the yards are opened and the windows without blinds, that the humblest peasant may see and hear the music. On all great occasions of a private nature all the poor are feasted or otherwise entertained by suitable means. In England and America even house servants are treated with contempt, and my own family remonstrated on my return because I said good morning, as was my habit in Russia, to them. The Russian noblemen speak kindly always to their inferiors; the Englishmen and Americans out of the South rarely ever. The Russian Empire is large and sparsely populated, so that the means of subsistence do not at all press upon the increase of population. In the large cities, as I said, no absolute suffering for the necessaries of life is possible.

Now as to prisons. There was at no time while I was in Russia, so far as I know and believe, one equal in its infamy to the Kentucky penitentiary. And Gov. Blackburn deserves not denunciation, but eternal honor, for his manhood and philanthropy, against the barbarian clamors of the press, for his reform. When I was in St. Petersburg the cholera was several times in that city of 600,000, and there was no more sensation than if the measles or whooping-cough prevailed. Every subject of the disease was taken at once to wholesome hospitals, well attended, and then, when convalescent, returned without charge to their homes. The streets of St. Petersburg were a hundred times cleaner than the streets, alleys, and back yards of Richmond. They never burned down the pest-houses in Russia, as they did the other day in Madison County when small pox prevailed. As to prisons and Siberia, I am glad to have an opportunity to refute some of the world-wide calumnies of the anti-Russian press. Siberia is not so vile a country as the French penal colony of Cayenne, nor the original Australia of England. Three Siberian-born ladies married nobles in St. Petersburg: one the Prince Suwarrow, the grandson of the Prince Suwarrow of Napoleon's times; the other sisters married well, one an officer in the staff of the Emperor. I have heard them speak of the "Fatherland" as would a German. And these were descendants of Siberian exiles. I do not hesitate to say that of all the people I ever knew the Russians are the most genial and hospitable. It is true the ranks in Russia are very distinct and marked, but the humane spirit of Russia thaws all coldness, breaks all conventional barriers, and fuses the whole into one national feeling as no other land. That is the reason that Russians never emigrate. That is the reason of the invincible courage of the Russian Army. What calumniators call "stolidity" is unshaken and heroic patriotism. I could fill a book of similar proof, but I hold:

"Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us'
To see oursel's as ithers see us!"

C. M. CLAY.

WHITE HALL, KY., Dec. 14, 1883.

The Christian Armor.

Paul, in writing to the Ephesians, has in mind the whole panoply of an ancient soldier—the breast-plate—the shield—the helmet—the sword. He knew if he wrote in this similitude he would be understood, for he was writing to brave young men who were acquainted with the art and science of war.

The letter to the Ephesians has been handed down through intervening ages, and now comes to us, bidding us put on the armor of God, and taking the sword of the Spirit, go forth to battle against the power of darkness.

We need the breast plate of righteousness to defend us from the assault of Satan. We need the shield of faith to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked, and on which we may receive the arrows of the foe. We need, too, the helmet of salvation, that it may protect us in the day of spiritual conflict, and guard us from the blows of the enemy. But the armor is not yet completed. The last, and truly the most important part of the armor which we need, is the sword of the Spirit. It was with this weapon that the Saviour met the tempter in the wilderness. It is only by this that Satan can now be met. Error and falsehood will not put back temptation; nor can we hope for victory unless we are armed with truth.

We profess to be soldiers of the grand army of Jesus Christ. We acknowledge him our Captain, our Leader; if so, we need to put on the whole armor—offensive and defensive—not a part, a breast-plate, a helmet or a shield—no, but the whole, such as God has directed for the achievement of victory. If we go into the fight lacking even one weapon, defeat may be the consequence; if we go with some point unguarded, that will be sure to be the point of attack of the foe. So David was tempted, and Peter denied his Lord. So Judas was assailed, and many a man who thinks he has on the Christian armor is smitten for the want of the armor of righteousness.

"Restraining prayer we cease to fight;
Prayer makes the Christian armor bright,
And Satan trembles when he sees
The weakest saint upon his knees."

GENTS—I desire to express to you my thanks for your wonderful Hop Bitters. I was troubled with dyspepsia for five years previous to commencing the use of your Hop Bitters some six months ago. My cure has been wonderful. I am pastor of the First Methodist Church of this place, and my whole congregation can testify to the great virtues of your bitters.

Very respectfully, REV. H. FRERER.

Mexico.

The Repnblic of Mexico is bounded on the north by the United States and the Gulf of Mexico; on the east by the United States, the Gulf of Mexico, the Yucatan channel and the Caribbean Sea; on the south by Central America and the Pacific Ocean, and on the west by the Pacific Ocean. It contains an area of 741,000 square miles or 474,624,000 square acres, and a population of over 11,000,000 souls. The republic possesses no really navigable rivers.

Along the Pacific and Gulf coast the land is low, in some places even marshy, and the climate is generally unhealthy. This is the fever or sickly belt of Mexico. But at a distance of a few leagues from the coast the land suddenly rises and swells into foot-hills that are covered with all the exquisite flora of the tropics and semi-tropics. A short distance further into the interior the foot-hills rear their heads higher and insensibly develop into mountains, whose summits are bleak and barren, and some of whose peaks are covered with eternal snow. At Bocs del Monte the table land attains an elevation of about 10,000 feet above the level of the sea. Thus on either coast, at a distance from the shore of about 100 miles, the attitude of the table land will average at least 4,500 feet above the coast belt.

Thus Mexico enjoys four distinct climates;

1. The tropical; from the coast to the foot hills.

2. The semi-tropical; from the foot hills to the wide, level plateau.

3. The temperate; from the plateau to the highermplains, such as the plateaus of Anahuac, Toluca, Durango and Chihuahua.

4. The cold; among the mountain valleys of the States of the interior, where hail-storms are frequent, and where the inhabitants require artificial warmth during the night.

The products of Mexico are almost too numerous and varied to mention. Such is the diversity of climate enjoyed by the several portions of the republic that every tree, plant, shrub, flower, cereal and vegetable that is met with in the frigid, the temperate or the torrid zones can find a congenial soil and climate and can be produced within the fertile limits of Mexico.

The principal exports are sugar, molasses, rum, coffee, rubber, hemp, fibres, cochineal, indigo, hides skins, furniture and dye wrods, gold, silver, copper, lead, salt, orchilla, precious stones, cattle, mules, fleeces, fruits, marble, etc. Its imports are manufactured textile goods, cotton, hardware, hennequen, lumber, Western produce and numerous other products of the loom, the farm or the forge.

The exports for the year (June, 1882, to June 1883,) reached the value of.....$29,526,000

The imports for the same period.....26,000,000

Of this traffic the United States obtained in imports and exports.....23,000,000

Emerson on Equal Suffrage.

Ajong ago as 1862 Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote: "It is very sheep witchcraft finds it so droll that a woman should vote. Educate and refine society to the highest point, bring together a cultivated society of both sexes in a drawing-room to consult and decide by votes in a question of taste or a question of right, and is there any absurdity or any difficulty in obtaining their opinion? If not, there need be none in a hundred companies if you educate them and accustom them to it. And for the effect of it, I can say for one that certainly all my points would be sooner carried in the State if woman voted on the questions that are important. Whether the government should be in dampenage of whether fighting, whether men shall be held in bondage, or shall be roasted alive and eaten, as in Typee, or hunted with bloodhounds, as in this country, shall be hanged for stealing, or hanged at all: whether the unlimited sale of cheap liquors shall be allowed, they would give, I suppose, as intelligent a vote as the Irish voters of Boston, New York, and Philadelphia."

Every Moment Brings Its Mercy.

Men often think they have a great many troubles. Every day something happens to annoy them. Grant that evils befall us every day. If every day brings its evil, every moment brings its mercy. Hence we have more reason to be thankful than to complain.

Every moment brings its mercy. It is a mercy that we are at this moment on the earth and not in hell. Nothing but mercy has kept us here with the means of grace.

It is a mercy that we have not been permitted to backslide and bring reproach on the cause of Christ.

It is a mercy that we are in a Christian land, safe from persecution, and surrounded by the means of growth in holiness and doing good.

It is a mercy that we have an open Bible and are able to read it, and that we have so many aids to the correct interpretation of its pages.

It is a mercy that we have pious friends to watch over us and pray for us; to reprove and encourage us to persevere in the straight way.

It is a mercy that we are permitted to be laborers in the Lord's vineyard, and that we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord.

It is a mercy that we may deny ourselves and take up the cross for him who bore our sins in his own body on the tree.

It is a mercy that we may rejoice with those who rejoice, and weep with those who weep, and comfort those who mourn.

It is a mercy that we are permitted to cast our burdens on the Lord instead of bearing them ourselves.

It is a mercy that we know that all things shall work together for good to those who love God.

Thus it appears that not only does every moment bring its mercy, but every moment comes laden with mercies.

We serve a merciful God. Shall that truth render us less devoted to his service?—Ex.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House, on Thursday, January 3d 1884. Frederick S. Winston, Esq., Vice President, in the chair.

Religious services were conducted by Secretary McLean.

Announcement was made of the sudden decease of George W. Lane, Esq., a member of the Board, and a paper concerning his character and work was adopted by the Board.

The correspondence laid before the Board for information, and as a basis of its acts and appropriations, included letters from most of the agents in foreign lands. Large success was reported from Spanish-speaking countries on this side of the Atlantic in effecting sales of the Scriptures. Mr. Loomis, in Japan, reports that the sales of the entire New Testament almost equal those of separate portions. Dr. Isaac G. Bliss had reached London on the 18th of December. Mr. Whipple, in Persia, on the 16th of November, was just commencing a tour in which he expected to travel a thousand miles on horseback. A report was received from Rev. Mr. Erikson of Bible distribution through the Methodist Mission in Sweden.

Grants of books were made by the Board, for sale and distribution at home and abroad and for colportage, to the value of about $8,700, and funds to the amount of $2,222.26.

Two Bible societies were recommended as auxiliaries in Kansas, one in Texas, one in Nebraska.

The total receipts for December were $67,134.43, and 120,445 volumes were issued from the Bible House during the same period.

Ex-President Hayes, though in comparative retirement, is not eating idle bread. He is the same "quiet, busy man," so characteristic of him throughout his private and public life. At present and since his retirement from the chief executive office of the nation, he has been deeply immersed in several very important national, philanthropic, educational and charitable enterprises. Among which he is an active member and president of the board of trustees of the following: The National Prison Reform Association, the John F. Slater Fund for the education of freedmen, and one of the trustees of the Peabody Educational Fund. President Hayes is yet a young man, comparatively, and millions of the unborn of generations yet to come, will rise up and call him blessed; for it hath not been spoken in vain, that such as he, "Verily, their good works and deeds do follow them." This will, doubtless, largely atone for the errors of his administration, which he conceived in the spirit of charity and impartially executed, were spurned by the Bourbons and resulted as usual, to the detriment of the poor blacks.—Arkansas Mansion.

Against the dark background of the sixteenth century two characters are clearly defined—John Knox and Mary Queen of Scots. While they had little in common yet each is the complement of the other. As the writer wandered through to the apartments in Holly Rood of the unfortunate Queen he could but recall the pathetic story of her brief but eventful life. Her birth in France, her marriage with Francis II., her early widowhood, her unfortunate union with Darnley, her intrigue with the base Rizzio who was stabbed by an assassin while clinging to her royal skirts, the murder of Darnley to which she gave consent, her disgraceful marriage with Bothwell, her long imprisonment and tragical death.

Beautiful and accomplished, suffering as few have ever suffered and dying the victim of a cowardly plot, she excites a pitiful interest. Yet was she a wicked woman, a Jezabel who needed a faithful Elijah to utter words of warning, and the man for that work was John Knox. He denounced her vices from the pulpit of St. Giles Church, and in her own royal apartments rebuked her crimes so sternly as to call forth her tears. Blandishments and threats were alike powerless to move him from his heroic purpose. The tragedy of Fotheringay over, Knox survived to preach the coronation sermon of her son and successor, Edward Sixth, the last king of Scotland. As the tourist stands in the quaint old kirk of Stirling and looks upon the chair in which his Royal Highness sat on that occasion or stands uncovered within the pulpit from which the royal preacher spoke, he can scarcely realize that more than three centuries with echoing footfalls have hurried down the corridors of time. —Albert L. Smalley, in Northern Christian Advocate.

Once alcohol was thonght to be a help to one to endure severe cold, now, almost everybody knows that one can endure more without it; this has been proven thousands of times. Dr. Rae, whose powers of endurance were put to the severest test; when on pedestrian tours in the Polar regions, says, "brandy greatly lessens a man's power to endure cold and fatigue."

Horsford's Acid Phosphate,

Unequaled.

Dr. R. M. Alexander, Fannettsburgh, Pa., says: "I think Horsford's Acid Phosphate is not equaled in any other preparation of phosphorus.

Speaker Carlisle, United States Congress, is a reformed drunkard. The pathetic account of his reformation says: "Suddenly he shattered his cups and placed a seal upon desire, and became, as ever since he has remained, a devout churchman and an exemplar of the strictest temperance. In a word, he realized his weakness, and went to the Strong for strength.

Young Folk's Corner.

FOR THOSE WHO FAIL.

BY JOAQUIN MILLER.

"All honor to him who shall win the prize,'
The world has cried for a thousand years,
But to him who tries and who fails and dies
I give great honor and glory and tears.

Give glory and honor and pitiful tears
To all who fail in their deeds sublime,
Their ghosts are many in the van of years,
They were born with Time in advance of Time.

O, great is the hero who wins a name,
But greater, many and many a time,
Some pale-faced fellow who dies in shame
And lets God finish the thought sublime.

And great is the man with a sword undrawn,
And good is the man who refrains from wine;
But the man who fails and yet still fights on—
Lo, he is the twin-born brother of mine.

FOOTPRINTS OF JESUS.

Look not for the Saviour's footprints
Near the royal palace gate;
Seek them not in halls of grandeur,
Gilded domes, and regal state;
Seek them not in grand cathedrals,
Nor in learning's temple fair,
Where proud piety, on cushions,
Seeks reponse from every care.

Seek them by the humble dwelling,
Seek them by the widow's cot,
Seek them in the prison's dungeons,
Where misfortune mourns her lot;
Down beneath the lowest strata
Of degraded human woe,
Marked with blood, and wet with tear drops,
Trace them onward as they go!

Here he paused to feed the hungry,
Here forgave a woman's sin;
Here a blind man's eyes were opened,
Here the lame came bounding in:
Here in gory perspiration
Wept o'er Juda's Holy Hill;
Here poured out his blood and spirit
To redeem—"Who ever will!"

There is not one human being
Sunk so low in dark despair
But beneath its tears and anguish,
Jesus left his footprints there.
And if I would be a Christian,
I must follow where he led;
Raise the fallen, clothe the naked,
Cause the hungry to fed.

Fearing no contamination,
Swerving not for scorn or pride,
Where a soul may yet be ransomed,
If the labor be applied;
Down beneath all human wanderings,
Down beneath all woe and care,
There, I'll find my Saviour's footprints,
Fresh as when he placed them there.

Jesus, I will trace thy pathway
Down among the lost of earth,
And rehearse the glad, glad tidings
Of thy boundless love and worth;
I have not the gift of healing,
I may not forgive their sin,
I can point them to thy kingdom,
Bid them cleanse, and enter in.

A Talk To Business Boys.

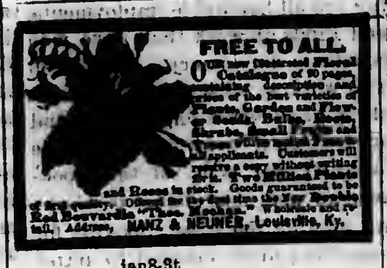
A boy's first position in a commercial house is usually at the foot of the ladder; his duties are plain, his place is insignificant and his salary is small. He is expected to familiarize himself with the business, and as he becomes more intelligent in regard to it he is advanced to a more responsible place. His first duty then, is to work. He must cultivate day by day habits of fidelity, accuracy, neatness, and dispatch, and these qualities will tell in his favor as surely as the world revolves. Though he may work unnoticed and uncommended for months, such conduct always meets its reward.

I once knew a boy who was a clerk in a large mercantile house which employed as entry clerks, shipping clerks, buyers, bookkeepers, and salesmen, eighty young men, besides a small army of porters, packers, and truckmen; and this boy of seventeen felt that amid such a crowd he was lost to notice, and that any effort he might make would be quite unregarded. Nevertheless he did his duty; every morning at 8 o'clock he was promptly in his place, and every power that he possessed was brought to bear upon his work. After he had been there a year he had occasion to ask a week's leave of absence during the busy season. "That," was the response, "is an unusual request, and one which it is somewhat inconvenient for us to grant; but for the purpose of showing you that we appreciate the efforts you have made since you have been with us, we take pleasure in giving you the leave of absence for which you ask."

"I did n't think," said the boy, when he came home that night and related his success, "that they knew a thing about me, but it seems they have watched me ever since I have been with them."

They had indeed, watched him, and had selected him for advancement, for shortly after he was promoted to a position of trust with the appropriate increase of salary. It must be so, sooner or later, there is always a demand for excellent work. A boy who means to build up for himself a successful business will find it a long and difficult task, even if he brings to bear efforts both of body and mind, but he who thinks to win without doing his very best will find himself a loser in the race.

The Sweetest Joys.



Very many of the sweetest joys of Christian hearts are songs which have been learned in the bitterness of trial. It is said of a little bird that he will never learn to sing the song his master will have him sing while it is light in his cage. He learns a snatch of every song he hears, but will not learn a full separate melody of his own. And the master covers the cage and makes it dark all about the bird, and then he listens and learns the one song that is taught to him, until his heart is full of it. Then ever after, he sings that song in the light. With many of us it is as with the bird. The Master has a song he wants to teach us, but we learn only a strain of it a note here and there while we catch up snatches of the world's song and sing them with it. Then he comes and makes it dark about us till we learn the sweet melody he would teach us. Many of the loveliest songs of peace and trust sung by God's children in this world, they have been taught in the darkened chambers of sorrow.—Christian Weekly.

The difficulty of settling the drink question by any kind of a license law, is seen in the history of England. It is said that "no fewer than 470 Acts of Parliament, all seeking to regulate the liquor traffic, have signally failed." They have tried the "license system" 300 years!

It is reported that five of the Nihilist assassins of Lieut. Col. Sudeikin have been arrested.

The Preacher's Quiet Habits.

Sedentary and studious men sometimes become prostrated before they know it. Those who spend much time in close mental work and neglect to take enough exercise often find their stomachs unable to do the work of digestion. The liver becomes torpid. The bowels act irregularly. The brain refuses to serve as it once did. Their preaching becomes a failure, and there is a state of general misery. So many ministers have been restored to health by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters that the clergy generally are speaking to their friends of this medicine as the very best tonic and restorer they know of. It restores thin and watery blood to its proper condition by toning it up with the purest and most invigorating preparation of iron that science has ever made. It is pleasant to take, and acts immediately with the happiest results, not only on the parsons, but on other folks as well. 8

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE

TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrant Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

THURSDAY, JAN. 24, 1884.

1884. 1884.

Suggestions to Agents.

All agents of the SOUTHWESTERN will please read the following suggestions and follow them. They have been demonstrated to be sound by several years of experience, and will facilitate a careful business:

1. See every old subscriber and secure a renewal for 1884.

2. Get all the new subscribers you can.

3. Write names plainly, and be sure to give correct post office to which the paper is to be sent.

4. Let us know the time of subscription, whether for three months, six months, or a year.

5. Collect all the money you can at the beginning of each subscription.

6. Give credit for a short time, and only to persons whom you know to be reliable.

7. Do not run in debt, but arrange to receive small payments from those who cannot pay at once, and order us to stop papers when you are satisfied subscribers will not pay you.

8. Prepare to settle your subscription account before the close of the conference year.

Remember that we supply printed lists for use in transmitting subscriptions to us, whenever desired; and we will send specimen copies to assist in the canvass, free of charge, on application.

Address PHILLIPS & HUNT,
22 Natchez Street, New Orleans.

Why not advertise your business in the SOUTHWESTERN? whether you are engaged in mercantile, mechanical, hotel, boarding house or other pursuits, you will doubtless find that you profit by advertising in the SOUTHWESTERN. Send your cards directly to this office.

The Educator is a new quarterly publication issued by the Centenary Biblical Institute of Baltimore, Md., in behalf of the colored race, at 50 cents per annum. Centenary Institute is one of the educational institutions of our church. The address of Dr. Haygood, at Montgomery, and a paper by President Hayes appear in the first number.

The City Item credits Ex-Governor Pinchback with making the practical suggestion to the sugar planters convention in his remarks before that body, that action should be instituted in order to have a timely protest reach Congress before the adoption of the Mexican treaty. Suitable telegrams were subsequently forwarded and Senator Gibson, according to Washington dispatches acted at once with good effect. The Mexican treaty was defeated.

The Sugar Planters Convention held in New Orleans last week presided over by Governor Francis T. Nicholls, took energetic action in behalf of that industry. The State produces 400,000 hogsheads and employs 400,000 people and $90,000,000 of capital. There is no division of sentiment in this matter. The Price Current says: "There is no conflict of interests in the relations of the two sections. One touch of nature makes the world of kin" and sets them in deadly combat. We note our sugar planters propose that to secure the future of their industry against the fluctuation of the tariff or the established depth of harbors, they must vote for protection on sugar and cloth. They can then vote for all the articles in the corresponding protective list, present conservative interest a number of votes which will enable that interest to demand the duty on buttons, pharmaceutical medicines, dolls and toys, thereby constituting the majority which makes the product of labor, in the value of which all agree."

Feeding the People.

Spurgeon says: "Dogs often fight because the supply of bones is scanty, and congregations frequently quarrel because they do not get sufficient spiritual food to keep them happy and peaceful. The ostensible ground of dissatisfaction may be something else, but nine times out of ten deficiency in their actions is at the bottom of the mutinies which occur in our churches. Men, like all other animals, know when they are fed, and they usually feel good-tempered after a meal, and so, when our hearers come to the house of God, and obtain 'food convenient for them,' they forget a great many of their grievances in the joy of the festival. There is no famine of great sermons on all questions of philosophy, geology, astronomy, history, time limit, etc. But these to the masses of the people are as bones without meat or marrow. Principles and duties are frequently discussed, and the hearer is convinced that the teaching is right, but still he declines to accept of Christ; like Felix he may tremble, but wait for a more convenient season. The Apostles and Wesley frequently discussed principles and duties, but with great power and earnestness did they exhort the people to flee from the wrath to come. Their minds were not occupied with studies alien to the work to which God had called them. They came to the people full of earnest thoughts concerning God, Christ, the Holy Spirit, heaven, hell, time, eternity, repentance, pardon and eternal life. They instructed and fed the people. The eyes of the blind were opened, and the feeble made strong.

A Trade That Pays.

There an item now going the rounds that says a New York business man who advertised for a book-keeper at $10 per week, received over 700 applications for the place; and that there are over 5,000 book-keepers now in New York city out of employment who are ready to take the first vacant place. We do not know whether this item is old or new. It contains, however, truth for a good moral. No doubt book-keeping is a legitimate business, but the supply is greater than the demand. Here are 5,000 able bodied men in one city who are willing to work either with muscle or mind, standing idle in the market. Their trade is book-keeping, very beneficial to the world no doubt, but to these 5,000 it is a trade that does not pay. The best advice we can give to young men who have respect for themselves is to avoid book-keeping as a trade; better have some business that will give constant employment. Rag picking, chimney sweeping, scissors grinding, wood sawing, boot-blacking, black smithing, carpentering, cabinet making, farming are all honorable employments, and kinds of work that gave men constant employment. The men who work at these trades can most always find something to do, and are seldom, if ever pinched, while full fifty per cent. of the book-keepers and miscellaneous clerks are walking the streets looking for something to do, doomed to bitter disappointment. We say to our young men seek a trade that pays, one that will give you constant employment, a trade that always affords plenty of work to do. Better be among the rag pickers and scissors grinders with a good lodging, than among the book-keepers and miscellaneous clerks and in a cheap lodging. Have a trade that is always in demand.

Rev. Daniel Curry, D.D., in an article, in the Northern Christian Advocate, presents a strong plea in the behalf of more consideration and better treatment and support for our superannuated ministers. He says: "We are not disposed just now to censure anybody, but would suggest the desirableness, if it is at all practicable, that some better provisions shall be made for these very needy and eminently worthy claimants on the justice of the churches. The approaching centennial may offer the opportunity for a species of munificence that would have the added odor of justice; and perhaps the annual conferences could not find a better use for the thankofferings of the people than in constituting permanent funds for their worn out or disabled preachers and their dependent families. Of the details of such a proceeding, and of the rules by which the church's funds for that purpose should be distributed, nothing need now be said; but we would, were it possible, lay upon the convictions and consciences of our people some sense of their lamentable dereliction of duty in this thing and the crying need for immediate and earnest attempts to remedy the evil." We heartily agree with the Doctor that some provision should be made for the adequate support of this class of our brethren. They deserveit, and the church owes it to herself that effective measures be adopted to effect this purpose.

Governor Murray in his message to the Legislature of Utah reminds that body that the present condition of affairs cannot longer continue in safety to either the United States or the people of Utah. He appeals for the passage of such laws as will assimilate the Territory in laws and business with the country. The Edmunds legislation was a warning voice of the sovereignty of the government of the United States. The law vesting ecclesiastical counts with powers in conflict with United States courts, disapproved by Congres, but subsequently re-enacted by the Utah Legislature, should not be allowed to remain on the statutes. The right of dower for wifehood should be established, and laws enacted to punish polygamy, bigamy, adultery, fornication, and illicit intercourse. The law placing the emigration fund under ecclesiastical control, violative of the Federal constitution, should be abolished, and a bureau of emigration free from such control established. Public schools should be free and disconnected from the churches. Gov. Murray's message is a sound public document, but it is not probable the Mormons will heed his suggestions. Congress should come to his relief with additional legislation, to uphold the conse of common decency in Utah.

Of Dr. Hartzell's new book "Christian Educators in Council" the Baltimore Methodist says: "Dr. Hartzell has done the world a service by compiling the results of the National Education Assembly held at Ocean Grove, in August last. That Assembly brought together senators, clergymen and teachers of the highest rank in their various professions. The subjects discussed were those most prominently mooted, and which are of the most momentous importance in our social and national life. Some sixty addresses were delivered. The pamphlet is a store house of information. There is a mass of facts and truths brought together in it which cannot be found elsewhere. The subjects are such as every one of us must have some opinion upon; and to guide intelligently and accurately our thoughts this work is of incalculable value. We think we do our readers a service by inviting them to this rich feast, and trust that they will procure the pamphlet and study it carefully. It is published in such form as to bring it within the reach of all." The book is on sale at this office, pure, stiff paper cover $1.25, cloth $1.75.

The golden link in Justice Harlan's opinion dissenting from the judgment of the Supreme Court in the Civil Rights cases:

"I venture, with all respect for the opinion of others, to insist that the National Legislature may, without transcending the limits of the Constitution, do for human liberty and the fundamental rights of American citizenship, what it did, with the sanction of this Court, for the protection of slavery and the rights of the masters of fugitives slaves."

In the report of colportage work to the American Bible Society, for the year ending Oct. 31, 1883, it is stated that in Texas, twenty-six counties have been wholly canvassed, and the work is approaching completion in thirty-three other counties, some of them the largest in the State. In the United States and Territories over 500 men have been employed who rendered 46,674 days of service, traveled 550,364 miles, visited 650,940 families, and found 87,080 which had no Bible in their homes, and supplied 66,546 of these families, besides 37,555 individuals. They put in circulation 349,010 copies of the Scriptnre. Of these 277,585, of the valne of $105,710 84, were sold, and 71,425 of the value of $17,688 09, were donated. The colporteurs' wages and traveling expenses amounted to $87,610 50 an average of $1 87 for every day of service, thirteen cents for every family visited and about twenty-five cents for every copy of Scripture distributed.

The Mississippi Valley Railroad, we have been informed, has settled the question of cars for the accommodation of colored persons by providing separate coaches on each train for them. For the sake of common decency we hope that this report is not true. Not a single other railroad, of the seven railroads entering this city, have thus far adopted any such objectionable system, and we hope the Mississippi Valley road will not commit the folly of such a course. But if this be the fact, our people should withhold their patronage from such a road and bear the inconvenience of traveling on other lines, even if they are not found so convenient, rather than submit to the humiliation.

PERSONAL.

—Keshub Chunder Sen, the philanthropist and promoter of the Brahmo Somaj sect in India, is dead.

—Rev. Albert J. Nast, son of Dr. William Nast, has been greatly bereaved by the death of his wife, at Berea, Ohio, Dec. 20.

—At the last session of Louisiana Conference, M. E. Church, South, Robert J. Harp was re-admitted, and appointed to Mansfield.

—Mrs. Eliza Stewart, aged 80 years died in New Orleans, on the 17th, at the residence of her son Governor P. B. S. Pinchback, now surveyor of the port.

—Three of our Bishops are at the Louisiana Conference this week. We can suggest a better way: Divide and conquer!—Charleston Advocate.

—At the request of Bishop Potter, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Rev. R. Heber Newton, of New York, discontinned his lectures on the Bible.

—Henry George, the author of "Progress of Poverty," is now in England, where he is warmly received by the working classes. He is soon to publish a new work, "Social Problems."

—Dr L M Curry, agent of the Peabody fund, addressed the executive committee of the New Orleans Public Education Society, last Friday evening.

—Mrs. Elizabeth L. Akers, widow of Israel Akers, and mother of Rev. J. Benson Akers, of Glen Hope, Pa., and Rev. J. Milton Akers, of Read's Landing, Minn., died in Glen Hope, Jan. 8, 1884, at the ripe age of eighty-one years. She had been a member of the M. E. church for sixty-six years.

—Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., preached a capital sermon on Trinity last Sunday night. Dr. Hartzell is the Commissioner of Education of the M. E. Church among our people of color. We bid him a hearty God-speed in his noble work.—Southern Christian Advocate Charleston, S. C.

—Rev. J. H. Hargis, pastor of Hedding church, Jersey City, New ark Conference, has been transfered to Italy and appointed assistant superintendant of the mission. He sailed from New York Dec. 27, and hoped to reach Rome in time for the session of the Italy Conference, which opened Jan. 8, 1884.

—Hubert H. Bancroft, of San Francisco, the Pacific coast historian, has been in the City of Mexico. The literary men throughout the Republic received him with marked consideration. The addition to his library from his journey will not be less than 6,000 volumes, mostly rare books and manuscript, once lodged in churches and convents.

—Rev. Dr. H. W. Thomas, in his sermon last Sunday, said that Rev. Dr. Daniel Curry on the previous Monday, in the Chicago preachers' meeting, had made criticisms upon the authenticity of the Old Testament, for asserting which other ministers, and inferably Dr. Thomas also, had been expelled from the church. Dr. Thomas professed to make quotations from Dr. Curry to justify his claim. Dr. Curry personally denies the correctness of the quotations, disclaims the opinions attributed to him by Dr. Thomas, and asserts that he is shamefully misrepresented. The preachers' meeting, last Monday, passed a resolution affirming that which we have stated above.—Northwestern.

—The first statue ever erected to a public man in Indiana, was unveiled in Indianapolis, in the Governor's Circle on the 15th, in the presence of an immense concourse of citizens. It commemorates Gov. Oliver P. Morton. His life-long friend, ex-Secretary Richard W. Thompson delivered the oration. John Clark Ridpath, of DePauw University, read a poem. Exercises closed with a benediction by Rev. Myron W. Reed. By order of the School Board a paper prepared by Professor Tarbell and Austin H. Brown, reciting the leading events in the life and services of Senator Morton, was read in all the public schools in the morning. All classes of citizens participated in the ceremonies.

—Mrs. Maria H. Wood, who has two sons engaged in the South American Mission, one of them the Rev. T. B. Wood being superintendent, has recently completed the payment of $250 toward the building of a new church in Uruguay. This sum was accumulated by a series of thoughful self-denials done always with the object in view of furthering the kingdom of Christ on the earth. This is added to the regular practice for 44 years of giving $20 each year to the Parent Society, and for 12 years, $1 each year to the Woman's Society. Let others follow the example of this good lady.

If money were dumped into their country by the car-load for educational purposes it would under present auspicies only be applied to educational perversion, and any police force that might be wielded through the State organization would only aid the bulldozers. On the other hand, to police the whole South by Federal authority would undo reconstruction. It seems a cruel confession to concede that the Federal Government cannot protect the personal freedom of its Southern loyal citizens, and we do not like to make the confession that it is not going to do so. But the mills of the gods grind slowly. —Inter-Ocean.

The Senate special river committee recommends $1,000,000, above and $1,000,000, below Cairo for improvements.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

I. B. Scott, Galveston: "Among the many nice presents I received as I was leaving my old charge at Houston is a large gold headed cane from Mr. E. L. Coombs of the firm of Sweeny & Coombs, leading jewelers of Houston, and a table castor presented by the Sunday-school of Trinity M. E. Church."

Thos. Cole, Calvert: "I received of the Calvert Church $4.75 for the tomb of Brother Hardwell through the stewards; as the pastor, Rev. B. F. Smith, was absent. I went to my work on Christmas day. Prayer meeting was opened at 4 and continued until 7 o'clock a. m. The principal part of the day was spent in the church. About twenty sinners made a covenant to serve the Lord."

TENNESSEE.

D. M. Crockett, Cooperstown: "I am grieved to tell you that again we are without a church. Last night, Jan. 14th, our church was burned. We feel much grieved to know that we are again without a place in which to worship God, but such is the case. I know that it was set on fire by some incendiary, but who, we are not able to say. We are here in a desolate condition, and only can trust God who has always protected His people. We are trying to raise money to pay a detective to find the burner. The whites in this district say that they will furnish us $500 for that purpose and if we need other assistance we hope you will help us as we don't want to build until we find the burner."

Wesley Chapel and its Pastor.

To the members of the Quarterly Conference, Wesley Chapel M. E. Church:

DEAR BRETHREN: We the stewards of Wesley Chapel, in view of the approaching dissolution of the pastoral relations of Rev. W. O. Emery to Wesley Chapel Church, desire to place on record our high appreciation of him as our pastor, and our love for him as an upright, consistent Christian gentleman, and faithful, tender, and sympathizing friend.

While we recognize the wisdom of the church in limiting the time which one may serve the same church [illegible] we [illegible] express our sorrow at the necessity which compels a severance of our exceedingly pleasant relations as pastor and official board.

Brother Emory in the three years he has been permitted to serve us has never once compromised the dignity and holiness of his high calling. He has grown steadily in the affections of his people until to-day he is known only to be loved not only by his own people, but by all who have come under his influence. Brother Emory never compromises with sin in any form, and has never hesitated to visit the sinfulness and authority of the [illegible] as well as to denounce in unmistakable language every device and wickedness of the enemies of the church and religion, whether proceeding from open enemies, or the more dangerous and insidious attacks of hypocrites within its fold.

We are grateful to Almighty God that in the severe trials through which our society has passed within the past few months, when the machinery of the church was employed to foster and cover up wickedness, and when one of its trusted [illegible] pulpit and pew, and, from its first existence, has endeavored to provide schools for the education of its people. But while holding this view she has, in her aggressive movements, needed more than she could wait to educate in seminary and college. And she has not hesitated, to use the unschooled as well as others, while she laid down a course of study, literary and theological, to be pursued during the first four years of their ministry. Thus they had both theory and practice. The world needs not to be told that John Wesley, the revered founder of Methodism, was a college graduate and afterwards an instructor in college, and was always active in promoting education as well as religion. It is unnecessary also to repeat that among the earliest labors of Dr. Coke, the first Bishop of the M. E. Church in America, was his effort in connection with Bishop Asbury, to establish a college. The academy and college, as well as the church have been the care and pride of the circuit riders on the frontier and sustained by the stationed preachers. In our older conferences no other church in the past fifty years has printed and distributed more books and periodicals than the Methodist Episcopal Church. All these educational agencies are employed for the evangelization of the the world. With this spirit she has come down to the South to help elevate the increasing millions who so long have been kept in the region of the shadow of death and night of ignorance. She has come with bible and spelling-book. She has erected churches and school-houses and employed teachers. And now she calls with inviting voice, "Ho, every one that thirsteth," "Come, for all things are ready."

Brethren of the Tennessee and other patronizing conferences of the Central Tennessee College, whom I more especially now address, the call is to you and your children and the people over whom you have been appointed shepherds. The Central Tennessee College among its appointments for education has its Theological School to aid those who wish to prepare themselves for a successful ministry. Some of you are young, just beginning the work and have perhaps many years of labor before you. Would it not be wise to spend some time first in preparation under the instruction of skilled and experienced teachers, and then return to your conference work? With the added power thus gained the remaining years are likely to be enough more fruitful to make up for the years spent in educational discipline and study. With greater mental vigor, with a large store of knowledge, with better methods, with an enlarged view of the work and the responsibilities of the Christian pastor, the labors can be undertaken more understandingly, performed with less friction, and attended with more success, and, as a natural consequence the period of effective service for the church is likely to be greatly prolonged. Again, have you among your people any young men of special talent and promise looking to the ministry, encourage them to spend a term of years, if possible, at the theological school in preparation for future usefulness. Our next term begins with the first week of the new year. Classes are formed then and arranged to accommodate all who come. The theological department has already done excellent work, and it is the hope and intention of those in charge tat the future shall not be less fruitful in good results. All necessary information may be obtained from Dr. J. Braden, the President of the College, or by addressing,

A Word to My Brethren.

It used to be said that the Methodist Episcopal Church was opposed to a theologically educated ministry. There was some foundation for this statement, and yet it was not strictly true, and only those ignorant of the real facts could have been found to give expression to such a remark. There have been in the church some preachers and some laymen, some occupying high positions of trust and some in the more humble walks of life, who have not favored an educated ministry. Some, seeing the fields already white to the harvest, have thought it a needless waste of time for young men to spend years to compass a collegiate and theological course of study before entering upon the work of preaching. Some are even found to-day who think these years of scholastic drill likely to make young men too formal in their pulpit efforts, and lead them to trust to methods and book-learning rather than in a heart-experience and in the power of the Holy Spirit for success in the conversion of souls and in building up the church of God. And a prejudice so strong existed in the minds of some against schools for the special training of preachers that when the first Methodist Theological Seminary was inaugurated its projectors hesitated to shock any tender sensitiveness in the church, and therefore called this school of the prophets "Biblical Institute" instead of "Theological Seminary!" But I am glad to record the fact that this feeling was not general but limited to a few of the thousands of Methodists. And history shows conclusively that the Methodist Episcopal Church, as a church, has always favored education, both in Protection to American Citizens.

DEAR EDITOR: Please allow me a short space in your most valuable paper. For I find that it is ever ready to denounce wickedness, irrespective of race or party. A few weeks ago Patrick O'Donnell was tried in London for murder, was convicted, sentenced and hung. I believe it was right and just for him to suffer as he has. But it was reported that he did not have a fair and impartial trial and that he was an American citizen, whereupon several congressmen met and decided to call upon the President of the United States praying him to investigate the report concerning O'Donnell. He therefore, did all he could (and that was very little) toward rescuing him. Now it seems strange indeed, that the President and Republicans in Congress who, for more than fifteen years, have known that the black men of the South have been continually murdered without judge or jury, and they being American citizens, they need not investigate their citizenship. They would do far better, first to protect the black man here in the South and see that he enjoys the rights of other men. I fear the true friends of the blacks of this country are few, and that the only reliable ones for us to depend upon are the Christian workers, as the late Bishop Haven, Dr. Hartzell, Rev. E. A. Ware, of Atlanta University, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, who are spending their lives in elevating the colored people. They prove their true friendship by their works. God bless them all! I am fully aware that Congress is Democratic, and the blacks of the South do not expect any favors from them, but if we be citizens of the United States why are we not protected in our rights? It seems that the laws which were enacted more than a hundred years ago, should reach the colored man as the white, he being made a citizen, and that neither Democrats or Republicans could legally prevent him from securing his rights in any State. It is impossible to secure protection for a black citizen right here in his own country, and must he go to Ireland, or some other foreign country, in order to secure protection from his own government? I just read of the murder of those colored men only a few nights ago in Yazoo City, Miss. Patrick O'Donnell did have a trial, but these men had not. I shall wait patiently to see what congressmen will call upon the president to lay before him the killing of poor, helpless American citizens. Where is McEnery? We might as well have no Governor. There are hundreds of black men who have been killed here in the State of Louisiana year after year, and I have yet to read of a single reward offered by the Governor for the apprehension or delivery of the murderers. What is our government coming to nonght? We can hardly call ours a republican form of government any longer. Congress has never adopted a single effective measure for the protection of the six millions of Negroes in the South. They are really not free, for what is freedom without privileges? More colored men have been killed since the war than were killed during their two hundred and fifty years of bondage. Mrs. O. V. A.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.
Sixty Addresses by American Educators.
Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1.25
Cloth..... 1.75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

POTATO EGGS.—Mash five or six well boiled potatoes, add salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one cup of cream; work well, and when quite free from lumps add two well-beaten eggs and a cup of finely minced ham. Make the mixture into egg shaped balls, roll in flour and fry in good dripping, turning them carefully so as not to spoil the shape. Pour over a parsley sauce and serve.

ORANGE BRINGS REST.—It will work wonderfully to change your seat in the room occasionally if you have a long day's sewing to do.

If you wish to have the best results in cake-making, always use pulverized sugar.

FRUIT CAKE.—Two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cup of butter, three eggs, one cup sour milk, one tea spoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and vanilla each, half nutmeg, one pound raisins, ten cents worth of citron, three heaping cups of flour. Cheap and easily made.

GRAHAM GEMS.—One pint of Graham flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half teaspoonful of salt, milk enough to make soft batter. Heat your gem pans before putting the dough in; butter the pans, fill half full, and bake ten minutes.

BEEF LOAF.—Beef, three pounds hashed at the butcher's. One cup of rolled butter-crackers, one tablespoonful of salt and peper. One half cup of butter. Mix thoroughly, press into a deep pudding dish or pan, bake three hours. Over the top place bits of butter, and a few crackers if desired. Good always, especially for children's school baskets.

STEWED BEEF A LA HONG.—Procure four pounds of beef, cut in eight or more pieces, flatten slightly, pare off the superfluous fat and season with salt and peper; then range in a stewpan with four ounces of melted butter, fry briskly and slightly brown on both sides, add four tablespoonfuls of chopped onion and fry a few minutes longer, moisten with a pint of thickened brown gravy, a pint of broth and a pint of tomato sauce, add a bunch of parsley with a sprig of thyme and two bay leaves, cover the stewpan closely and simmer slowly for two hours, then remove the parsley and skim of the fat, reduce the sauce to a thick consistency, pour over the meat and serve with fresh grated horseradish separately on a plate.

OMELETTE.—Ingredients—Eggs, milk; to every egg allow one tablespoonful of milk, one gill milk, one saltspoonful salt. Mode: Break the eggs well in a basin, add the milk, salt and a few grains of pepper, and beat the whole to a perfectly smooth batter, then pour into it the remainder of the milk. The batter should be of the consistency of thick cream. Place a frying pan on the fire to get it perfectly clean and quite hot put into it a piece of butter, allowing half ounce to each pattern it is melted pour in the batter, about one-quarter teacupful for a pan twelve inches in diameter, and try it for about five minutes until it is nicely brown underneath. By only pouring in a small quantity of batter and so thin, the omelette will be much lighter than when a larger quantity is used, and it is also much easier to turn them (an operation difficult to unskilful cooks). When the pan is sufficiently hot to evaporate over it some butter, roll it up in the form of a pudding with a large slice of ham, or fold it over and serve with the yolks and whites of the eggs added separately and the whites added the last thing to the batter before frying.

REVIVALS, How to Promote Them, as taught and exemplified by Bishop McIlvaine and M. Simpson, Drs L. Beecher, A. Barnes, T. L. Cuyler, R. W. Dale, C. G. Finney, J. Hall, De Witt Talmage, C. H. Spurgeon and others. Edited by Rev. Walter P. Doe. New York: E. B. Treat, 757 Broadway, office of The Pulpit Treasury; 443 pages. Price $1.

This book is one of superior merits and attractiveness; it is full of the richest thoughts of some of the most successful American and English preachers. The great need of the American churches is a continuous revival of religion, one that will gather in the scoffers, Sabbath breakers, drunkards and sensualists whether black or white, in high or low life. This volume tells us how it may be secured. The correctness of its instructions on this point have been too frequently demonstrated in the experience of the most successful ministers to need any argument from us. Every Christian minister wants to study to show himself a workman approved unto God, he wants to "rightly divide the word of truth," and "give to each a portion in due season." It is thus that he is to be the instrument of saving men. The young minister who seeks the largest measure of success in the work of leading men to renounce their sins, will do well after a complete consecration of himself to God to carefully study the opinions and methods of the men whose word and work God has blessed in the sanctification of believers and the conversion of sinners. To all such we most heartily commend this book.

Baldwin Seminary.

The fall term of this institution closed Dec. 24th, with a Christmas exhibition which was pronounced first-class in every respect by the very respectable and enthusiastic audience present. The Seminary building was most brilliantly and beautifully illuminated. The entertainment consisted of vocal and instrumental music, literary exercises, and Dr. Vincent's Christmas exercise, "From Midnight to Noonday."

At the close of the entertainment Mrs. John Baldwin, in behalf of the students and friends of the institution, addressed President Fitch and his wife, with appropriate and chaste remarks, referring to their eminent services, and presented them with a valuable and beautiful silver cake basket and bouquet, as a token of the high esteem in which they are held by the people.

On Christmas night there was a splendid display of fireworks given on the campus.

This school being intended for whites, receives but a limited patronage at present, but the instructors have labored faithfully in laying a foundation for a successful school in the near future. We heartily endorse them as laborers in the vineyard of the Lord.

Set Them at Work.

Some one has remarked, and we think with great truth, "That ministering is most successful as to who succeeds in getting the largest number of church members to work in the interest of the church." It is simply impossible for one man, no matter how earnest, or how much of spiritual, mental, and bodily health he has, to do every thing. There is a limit of human power. He may preach the Gospel with energy and diction; administer the sacraments, visit the sick, bury the dead, instruct the ignorant, etc., but he cannot visit everybody that needs consolation, or instruct privately every one that ought to be instructed, or look after every case of destitution that occurs in his parish limits. Happy the clergyman, therefore, that knows the powers and gifts of members of his church, and induces such to use them.

There is the Sunday-school; if well managed what a blessing it is! Suppose every clergyman had, at least, four Bible classes connected with the school, but not in the school-room. A junior and a senior male Bible-class, allowing but one thing to guide him in selecting the classes—namely—Are every boy and girl over such an age to be in the senior class. No rule but age will answer, any other apportionment will cause trouble. Then, to have four teachers to instruct these classes and do it well! What a blessing such members would be!

Then, if the clergymen had some young men to look after other young men, to induce them to attend church and connect themselves with the Bible class, and to report every month his success, what might be accomplished! Others to look after the poor, others to teach sewing and housekeeping or cooking, but the work to be done is as various as the conditions of the parish. What a clergyman needs, therefore, in order to make his parish a success—a success, we mean, in saving souls for which Christ died—is to get Christian men and women to work—to work in unison and under his superintendence! Happy is that clergyman who can find such, and find work, for them! As no man can be happy without work, so no Christian can be a happy Christian unless he have Christian work to do.

He was attending the Jewish synagogue, and was very graciously welcomed and seated in a pew with the wife of the Rabbi. The oldest brother belonged to Ellen Durem, the next to Jane Ives. I am now married to Burrell Taylor, and live in Pleasanton, Texas.

MR. EDITOR: I lost my father near 31 years ago, as well as I can remember. He belonged to the Booths', he and mother were parted in slave time by their owners. Mother belonged to the Strowthers, both came from Hinds county, Mississippi. Mother located in East Texas, father in West Texas. He was said to have gone near to the Indian Nation, to the salt works, and mother in Sabine county. She was Annette Strowther, and father was Richard Boose. He now goes by the name of Richard Crowder. Father had a daughter Nancy. He and mother did not live together long, and I was born after they were parted and named Mary Ann Canton. I received a letter from father the second year of freedom, and I did not answer it because I feared he would take me from mother. She is dead, and I feel the need of father. His owner was John Boose, mother's, Tom Strowther. Address me at Milam, Texas.

Blessed Benefactors.

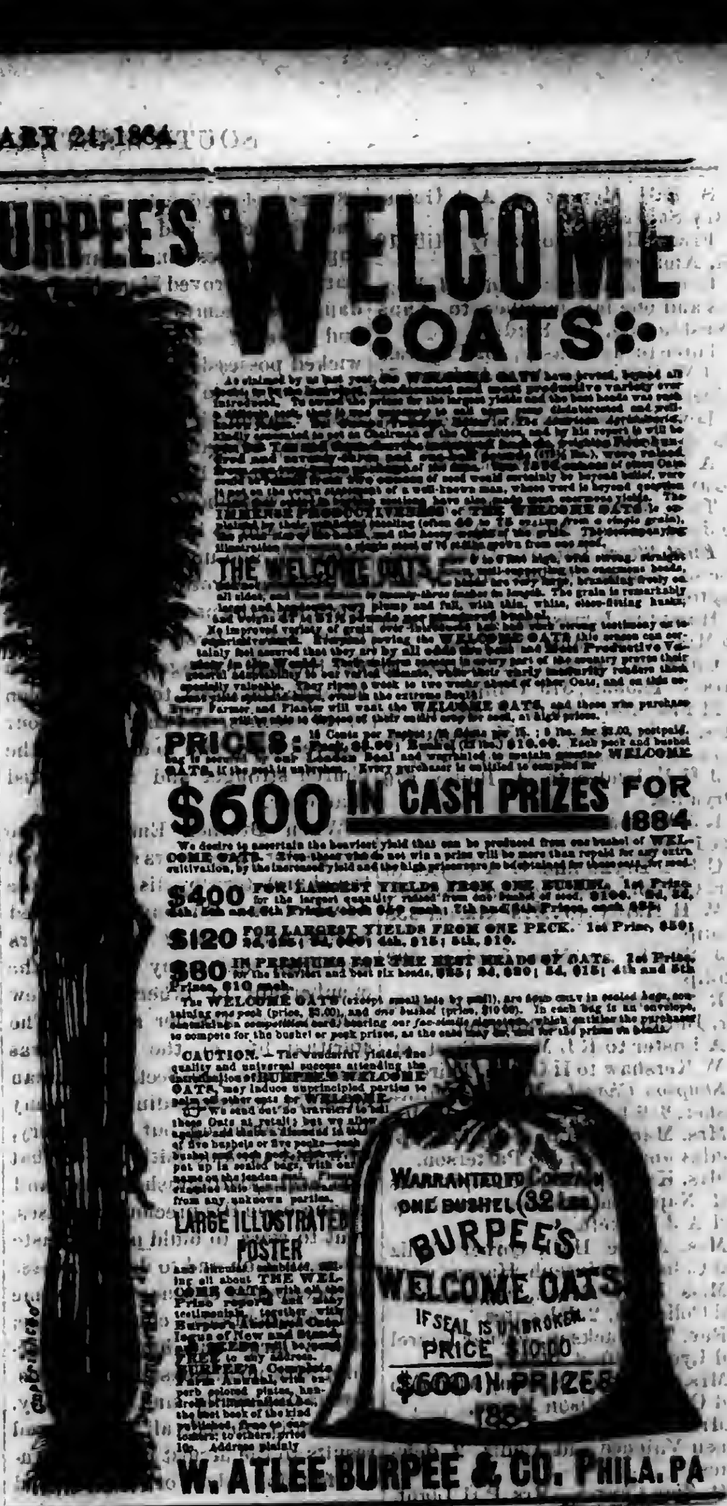
When a board of eminent physicians and chemists announced the discovery that by combining some well-known valuable remedies the most wonderful medicine was produced, which would cure such a range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors. These Bitters are compounded from Hops, Buchu, Malt, Mandrake, and Dandelion, and other oldest, best, and most valuable medicines in the world, and all the best and most curative properties of all other medicines, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Kidney and Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill-health can possibly long exist where the Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments is cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic, and mild Stimulant, these Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use the Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

Do not suffer yourself or your friend suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

Remember, Hop Bitters is the purest and best medicine ever made; the invalid's Friend and Hope." No person or family should be without them.



"I was troubled for many years with serious Kidney and Liver Complaint, Gravel, etc.; my blood became thin; I was dull and inactive: could hardly crawl about, and was an old, worn-out mass all over, and could get nothing to help me, until I got Hop Bitters, and now I am a boy again. My blood is pure, kidneys are all right, and I am as active as a man of 30, although I am 72"—FATHER.

"For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with such a complication of ailments that no doctor could tell what was the matter or cure her, and I used up a small fortune in humbug stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flag with Hop Bitters on it, and I thought I would be a fool once more, and I tried it; but my folly proved to be wisdom, and two bottles cured her. She is now as well and strong as any man's wife and it cost me only $2. H. W.—Detroit, Mich.

Henry B. Payne was elected U. S. Senator from Ohio, without opposition, the Republicans voting blank.

A passenger train from Wellsville for Bradford, Pa., ran into a stream of waste oil, caught fire, and three women were burned to death.

Every Methodist in North America should get a higher plane of Christian experience this centenary year. This is within the reach of all. Then every one should do something for furthering the cause of Christianity. No one so obscure but that he can do something toward encouraging some pilgrim for Zion, or entreating the sinner far gone in the backward road to retrace his steps and look to Calvary. Avenues of usefulness are upon every hand, and they are to be seen every hour. Again let every Methodist make a grateful free-will offering to the loving Father for his gracious blessings upon the Church. Besides contributions for education and missions, churches and parsonages are to be repaid and others erected. This is to be a year of effort. Let there be no laggard in the Methodist ranks.—Christian Neighbor.

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. O. H. Collins.

Bound in cloth, gilt, 272 pages, and portrait. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price, 60 cents.

The old Spanish proverb says: "There is no such thing as a trifle in this world." When we think how inextricably the lives of all mankind are tangled together, it seems as if every word or action moved a lever which set in motion gigantic machinery, whose effect is wholly beyond our control. For this reason, if for no other, let us be careful to perform promptly and well the duties of life—even the most trivial.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N.Y. jan10-13teow

In nearly every Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, there is an incorporated society, whose funds are invested for the benefit of the superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of such preachers as have died in the regular itinerant work. The interest collected annually on these invested funds is turned over to the Financial Board of the Conference for distribution among the claimants. But as yet the amount of such funds is so small that the interest does not add much to the regular collection for this purpose. It would indeed be a graceful thing if some of our members who owe so much of their worldly prosperity to the influence of Methodist preaching upon their lives, would add liberally to the amount of these invested funds.—Wesleyan.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, Fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a LIVER MEDICINE TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt, removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. FOR THE CABINET ORGAN.
ITS AUTHOR, MR. JAMES R. MURRAY, is well-known as a teacher and composer of wide experience.
ITS METHOD is NEW, CLEAR, and CONCISE among other novelties, containing a "PRELIMINARY PRACTICE WITHOUT NOTES."
The step from one difficulty to another is so gradual that those unable to procure the services of a teacher, may successfully TEACH THEMSELVES!
ITS MUSIC is for all occasions where music is desirable, and of great variety. The Publishers believe that, in presenting to the musical public MURRAY'S METHOD FOR THE CABINET ORGAN, the merits of the work warrant their claim for it that it is SECOND TO NONE heretofore published.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON IV. Jan. 27, 1884
LIVING AS IN GOD'S SIGHT (James iv, 7—17.)

Lessons of this text are: The heart courageous against the devil, but submissive to God, the retreating form of the defeated enemy and the approach of the merciful and gracious God form a pleasing and encouraging picture. It is not enough to draw nigh with our lips, in formal outward prayer, while our hearts are far from him, but the whole life—on the week day, as well as on the Sabbath—must be conformed to his will. Remember, we do not resist and overcome Satan by our own power. "He giveth grace to the humble" (verse 6); temptations are not permitted to be overpowering (1 Cor. x, 13); his strength is made perfect in our weakness (2 Cor. ix 12). Natural virtue is good as far as it goes for the purposes of this world, but must not be confounded with the fruit of grace. Carefulness about our conduct, withdrawing our hands from evil; resisting impure desires, and purifying our hearts, are necessary parts in our submission to God. Whilst grace is sovereign, it is not so in such a sense as to release us from all concern and effort. The experience of self-abasement may be bitter, but the uplifting of the Lord will be glorious.

MARRIAGES.

Mr. Ernest Smith and Miss Alice McKee at the residence of the bride's mother, Dec. 26, 1883, in Hempton, Texas, Rev. I. B. Scott officiating. Reception at the groom's residence. The lady is a faithful member of our church and her husband one of our best young men.

Near Franklin, Texas., by Rev. H. Prince, Dec. 27th, Mr. Wallace Gibson to Miss Etta Rice. The bride is a member of the M. E. Church.

At Dumbrook, Miss., by Rev. A. Butler, Nov. 27, Mr. Jimmie Broders and Miss Nancy Ann King. Dec. 20, Mr. Charley Funt and Miss Candice McCoy. Dec. 24, Mr. Charles Allcox and Miss Delia Smith.

On Dec. 20, 1883, Rev. Spencer Kelly was joined in holy matrimony with Miss Maggie Moore, at the home of her father, by Rev. W. B. Pullam.

In Jefferson, Texas, Dec. 27, by Rev. W. H. Logan, Mr. Geo. W. Johnson, of Texarkana, and Miss Charlotte Dumas.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets." They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet or occupation: For sick headache, constipation, impure blood dizziness, sour eructations from the stomach, bad taste in month, billious attacks, pain in region of kidney, internal fever, bloated feeling about stomach, rush of blood to head, take Dr. Pierce's "pellets." By druggists.

DEATHS.

Sister Sarah Pett, an old and faithful member, died Dec. 13. She was satisfied with her life work, and was ready to go.
R. HAYES.

State Line, Miss.

Bro. Samuel Blades, about 39 years old, died Dec. 17, 1883. He has been a member of the M. E. Church about one year, and served faithfully his time. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn his absence.
JOHN W. HALL.

Bell's Depot, Tenn.

On the morning of Dec. 27, Bro. John Jefferson closed a long suffering career, in peace with his Maker. He was a good preacher, though an unlettered man, and affectionate to wife and children. His remains were followed to the grave by a host of mourning friends. H. J. WRIGHT.

Natchitoches, La.

Miss Laura Allen, who was a faithful member of Mt. Moriah Church, departed this life in full triumph of faith, Dec. 13, leaving a mother, father, sisters and brothers to mourn her loss. Her funeral was a sad one. There has been 18 deaths in this congregation since I was appointed in 1881—all members in full fellowship in the church. W. H. H. GALLION.

Corinth, Miss.

NEW BOOKS.

One Hundred Choice Selections for Reading and Recitation. No. 22. Philadelphia and Chicago; P. Garrett & Co. Paper 30 cents, cloth 60 cents:

This is a convenient and admirable volume of selections for school and public exercises, one of the best we have seen.

The Diseases of the Will, by Th. Ribot. "Humboldt Library of Science," No. 52 Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald, 20 Lafayette Place, New York.

Every one is from his own experience or reading familiar with the principal phases of mental disease in the form of intellectual insanity, or disorders of the intellectual faculties. Other forms of mental malady, though quite as destructive of that equilibrium which constitutes entire sanity of mind, are pratically unknown to the general public. Thomas DeQuincey the "English Opium eater" affords an illustration of grave impairment of will power, while the intellectual faculties remained intact. Another noted instance is seen in the life of Samuel Taylor Colerige, "the old man eloquent." In the present work the phenomena of will impairment are fully explained with abundant illustrations from the history of these and many other celebrated cases. For sale by newsdealers.

ASHBURNHAM, MASS., Jan 14, 1880.

I have been very sick over two years. They all gave me up as past cure. I tried the most skillful physicians, but they did not reach the worst part. The lungs and heart would fill up every night and distress me, and my throat was very bad. I told my children I never should die in peace until I had tried Hop Bitters. I have taken two bottles. They have helped me very much indeed. I am now well. There was a lot of sick folks here who have seen how they helped me, and used them and are cured, and feel as thankful as I do that there is so valuable a medicine made.
MRS. JULIA G. CUSHING.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The number of The Living Age for the week ending Jan'y. 12th, contains Evolutionary Ethics and Christianity, Contemporay Review; The Baby's Grandmother, a story, Part II., Blackwood; Literary Forgeries, Contemporary; A Highland Shealing, Temple Bar; J. Addington Symonds, La Nuova; Thomas Hood, Saturday Review; The Geology of the Libyan Desert, Nature; The Princes Alice, Saturday Review; The Upper Currents of the Atmosphere, Nature; The Tennyson Peerage, Spectator; The Java Disaster, Nature; with choice poetry and miscellany. Littell & Bro., Boston, publishers.

An anecdotal paper on Gustave Courbet, the eccentric French artist and communist, will be contributed to the February Century by Titus Munson Coan. Among the illustrations will be a full-page copy of Courbet's famous painting, "The Musician," which was conspicuous among the Courbet paintings at the recent Bartholdi Loan Exhibition; and a picture of the scene in the Place Vendome, when Courbet and his men were pulling down the Vendome column.

In The Current (January 12), John George Bourinot clerk of the Canadian House of Commons, an eminent statesman and writer of Canada, discusses the relation between Canada and the United States in a paper of great comprehensiveness and strength.

The retirement of Mr. Carl Schurz, from the editorship of one of the leading journals of New York, on the ground that irreconcilable differences of opinion existed between him and his associates with regard to the conflict of the Telegraph and Railroad men with their employers, has awakened curiosity in no ordinary degree; and hence when he defines his position upon the question at issue, viz., "Corporations, their Employes and the Public," as he does in the North American Review for February, he is sure to command an attentive hearing. To the same number J. C. Shairp, Principal of the University of St. Andrews, contributes an admirable sketch of the life and works of "Henry Vaughan, Silurist," a poet of the 17th century whose genius exhibited a rare and almost unique combination of gifts. Senator J. J. Ingalls writes of "John Brown's Place in History," his purpose being to disprove the several counts in the indiotment of the hero of Potawatomie contained in the recent article by the Rev. David N. Utter. The question "Must the Classics go?" is discussed by Prof. Andrew F. West, of Princeton College, who presents a very forcible argument for the retention of Greek and Latin in the curriculum of our educational system. "Race Increase in the United States," by Congressman J. Randolph Tucker, makes a very substantial contribution to sociological science. The Rev. M. J. Savage, in pointing out sundry "Defects of the Public School System," advances certain views of the ends to be attained by State education which, if accepted, would very materially modify, and indeed revolutionize the existing system. Finally, an important question in hygiene. "Rival Systems of Heating," is treated by Dr. A. N. Bell and Prof. W. P. Trowbridge, who point out the advantages and disadvantages, from the standpoints of both economy and of health of the different methods in use for warming houses. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York, and for sale by booksellers generally.

A striking portrait of Keats will appear in the February Century, namely, a fine engraving on wood of the life-mask of the poet. This is accompanied by a brief paper on Keats, by E. C. Stedman, a picture of the grave of Keats as it now is, with the new grave of Severn beside it (drawn by a son of Severn); and an editorial note giving some unpublished facts in connection with Keats and Severn.

The attention of our readers has doubtless been attracted to the voluminous card of Messrs. W. Atlee Burpee & Co., seed growers, of Philadelphia, Pa., which appears in our pages this issue. The usual enterprise of the firm is manifested this season by the offer of cash prizes, on a competitive basis, open to all who may choose to enter. Read their advertisement. The honorable record maintained by this firm entitles them to the attention of all who may be interested in farm and garden products.

Gov. Ireland, frankly acknowledging in the message to the Legislature of Texas his inability to enforce the existing laws against the defiant fence cutters, recommends such legislation as shall make fence cutting punishable with imprisonment in the penitentiary, and triable in any court in the State.

Ex-Lieut. Henry O. Flipper is now clerk in a laundry in El Paso, Texas, and it said that some of his friends there intend to appeal to Congress at the next session to have him reinstated in the army. Flipper says his sentence was illegal and unduly severe. "I was," he says, "an inexperienced Lieutenant—a mere boy at the time—and was acquitted of the more grave charge of embezzlement, and yet I was dismissed from the service for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman."

The Methodist Recorder, London, complains that the policy of the British authorities in South Africa is shifting, uncertain, and unjust; that the native leaders friendly to the British interests are as likely to be sacrificed to the demands of policy as are the enemies. The Wesleyan Missionary Society finds its operations hampered, obstructed, and thwarted by this cause. The missionary committee of that church asks for a policy clearly defined and firmly maintained under all circumstances.

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the Savannah MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. [el4-1y

KIDNEY WORT
HAS BEEN PROVED
The SUREST CURE for
KIDNEY DISEASES.
Does a lame back or disordered urine indicate that you are a victim? THEN DO NOT HESITATE; use Kidney-Wort at once, (druggists recommend it) and it will speedily overcome the disease and restore healthy action.
Ladies. For complaints peculiar to your sex, such as pain and weaknesses, Kidney-Wort is unsurpassed, as it will act promptly and safely.
Either Sex. Incontinence, retention of urine, brick dust or ropy deposits, and dull dragging pains, all speedily yield to its curative power.
IT SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. Price $1.
KIDNEY-WORT

"My friend, E. C. Legard, of this city, used to be drawn double from painful Kidney Disease. Kidney Wort, cured him."—Jas. N. Kinney, Druggist, Allehgany City, Pa., Aug. 22-83.

KIDNEY WORT
IS A SURE CURE
for all diseases of the Kidneys and
LIVER
It has specific action on this most important organ, enabling it to throw off torpidity and inaction, stimulating the healthy secretion of the Bile, and by keeping the bowels in free condition, effecting its regular discharge.
Malaria. If you are suffering from malaria, have the chills, are bilious, dyspeptic, or constipated, Kidney-Wort will surely relieve and quickly cure.
In the Spring to cleanse the System, every one should take a thorough course of it.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. Price $1.
KIDNEY-WORT

"I gained 20 lbs. in two months," writes Mr. J. C. Power, of Trenton, Ill., (Dec. 2-83, "and am a well man. I'd suffered with liver disorders since 1862. Kidney-Wort cured me."

Strong words from a New York clergyman: "I unhesitatingly recommend Kidney-Wort. It greatly benefitted me," says Rev. C. E. Kemble, of Mohawk, N. Y.

FOR THE PERMANENT CURE OF
CONSTIPATION.
No other disease is so prevalent in this country as Constipation, and no remedy has ever equalled the celebrated Kidney-Wort as a cure. Whatever the cause, however obstinate the case, this remedy will overcome it.
PILES. Those distressing complaints is very apt to be complicated with constipation. Kidney-Wort strengthens the weakened parts and quickly cures all kinds of Piles even when physicians and medicines have before failed.
IF You have either of these troubles
PRICE $1. USE Druggists Sell
KIDNEY-WORT

"For 12 years," writes Lyman T. Abell, of Georgia, Vt., "I found no relief from piles, until I tried Kidney-Wort. It has cured me."

THE GREAT CURE
RHEUMATISM
As it is for all the painful diseases of the KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS.
It cleanses the system of the acrid poison that causes the painful suffering which only the victims of Rheumatism can realize.
THOUSANDS OF CASES of the worst forms of this terrible disease have been quickly relieved, and in short time PERFECTLY CURED.
KIDNEY-WORT

I had habitual costiveness, pain in the back and rheumatism," writes S. J. Scott, Burlington, Vt. "Kidney-Wort has cured them all."

Editorial Notes.

One of the present pressing wants of the Louisiana Conference, is a few more earnest workers. We have a superabundance of religious talkers, and planners, they are so thick as grasshoppers, and like grasshoppers they eat up every green thing. It is amasing to see how these talkers hop about. They go to and fro, like him who sends them, seeking some place to talk. Their digestion is good, their lungs are sound, their health almost immaculate. Give them a chance to talk and they will live forever. We call them rhetorical nuisances. If God would send some strong wind and sweep them to Mexico or Cuba, we could sing the Doxology. If this earth is ever made a type of heaven, there must be less talking and more working. God give us men who are not prone to congregate around on easy-chairs.

The Sunday Christian is a person who serves God only on the Sabbath. But God has made no provision for this class. The Sabbath was never instituted for any such people, or purpose. He has given us the Sabbath to study and learn religion, and the six days to go out and practice it. God places great emphasis upon practice. It is not those who say "Lord, Lord," that are to enter into the Kingdom but those who "do his will." In the great day it will be to those who visited the sick, fed the hungry, clothed the naked, that he will say "Well done thou good and faithful servant." Religion has a theory but God demands practice. Pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father is this, "To visit the fatherless and widow in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Senator Jonas, of Louisiana, in a letter to the City Item, denies the assertion of a correspondent (Congressman W. P. Kellogg) that he (Jonas) had "voted to reduce the tax on lumber considerably." Senator Jonas says that on every vote in committee of the whole, as well as in open Senate, the record is officially reported and can readily be referred to. It will show that he was absent on one vote, and on every other vote, six in number, he was present and voted against every proposition to reduce the duty on lumber. The point sought to be made against Senator Jonas was that he had injured his influence in behalf of a wages tariff by co-operating with free traders on the lumber question. It is singular, in view of this record, that Senator Jonas should have been so grossly misrepresented.

A presiding elder in the Mississippi Conference who is not going over his district as a blind mule, says, "I will do all I can for the SOUTHWESTERN." He has found it a most efficient co-laborer on his district, hence he assures us that he will do all he can to extend its circulation. He thinks that the circulation of a Christian paper will have a wholesome influence in the homes of our people.

This nation, which prominent Democratic Congressmen sought to drag into international complications with England to save the life of the Irish murderer O'Donnell, has gazed with almost complacent indifference for the last nineteen years upon the fifty thousand blacks who have been murdered by white men in the South since Lee's surrender. Democratic Congressmen, professing to be the Negro's best friends, now have a chance to show it in the council of the nation. Why not interest themselves in the protection of the innocent Negroes being nightly murdered in the South than to have attempted to interfere with the just sentence passed by England upon the murderer O'Donnell!

The following figures will give our readers some information as to the strength of Methodism in the Mississippi conference. There are on probation 2,829 full members, 24,090; local preachers 450; deaths 409; baptisms, children 1,386; adults 2,138. There are 323 churches valued at $154,766, forty parsonages valued at $13,800; paid on the improvement of church property $11,258; on old debts $3,013; present indebtedness $2495. The following was collected for benevolent purposes. For Missions $281,-50, Church Extension $103.50, Tract cause $29.13, Sunday-school Union $46.52, Freedman's Aid $360.85, Education $123.95, American Bible Society $20.80.

That wide awake organization of New Orleans, the Sanitary Association, appointed a committee to confer with the Exchanges and various commercial bodies, to secure their co-operation in the matter of inducing the city authorities to dispose of the garbage by an improved system. It is known to every intelligent citizen that streets and gutters are in a deplorable and filthy condition. This knowledge is disseminated abroad, and is liable to seriously injure the World's Exposition. People will not care to risk their presence in a semi-tropical clime regaled by powerful odors. Beside the instinct of self-preservation, immunity from epidemics and the value of real estate depend upon a scrupulous system of street cleanliness. An improvement on the present plan, or absence of any system in the removal of garbage, might be the utilization of refuse matter for fertilizing purposes, and the converting of the present nuisance into a source of considerable revenue. There are already a large number of market gardens in the vicinity, they are on the increase, and could profit by the use of cheap and convenient fertilizers. A word from the pulpits now and then on the subject of personal and street cleanliness would greatly assist the cause of sanitation. The Exchanges may well join the Sanitary Association in an exhortation to the City Council to prepare for coming guests, and to promote the city's health.

"Assimilation and not Seperation."

I have just finished reading "Christian Educators in Council" and have been thinking of the part our brethren of the African church took. The subject of Bishop Campbell's remarks heads this paper. Now I believe that these brethren should be consistent if they expect to succeed in the work of Christ among their people. They are public men and therefore their acts, and sayings, are liable to be criticised. You can seldom meet one of their conferences, in country places but you hear the cry of "come out from among the white folks." Now I assert that they are believed to owe the major portion of the success of their church to a spirit of caste, or race prejudice, and the breaking up of other churches among colored Methodist, by this mode of procedure, and not the conversion of sinners by the simple preaching of the pure word of God; that this has been thrown into the teeth of colored people, who have demanded social equality. For instances, when it came to the abolition of the seperate schools for white and colored in New York city, I believe one of the strongest arguments was the existence of separate and distinct colored churches. While an editor, in their church, in the face of the opposition offered to colored people every where, rushes before a general conference and cries "for God's sake don't change the name African or we die," goes home and catches up his quil and tells the SOUTHWESTERN not to say "Negro." Bishops Campbell and Dickerson, at Ocean Grove, are indorsing, by their presence, and the former standing up before the American people crying "we be brethren." Bishop T. D. Ward, in Missouri according to the Recorder, organ of their church, is using this language; after other exhortations to his members "more for Christ and less for self should be the motto of the church. When it comes to that the kingdoms of this world shall be under the control of the king of Zion." With the same breath he says: "we must save Sedalia and Louisiana, and capture all the colored Methodists of the great Northwest." O, consistency thou art a jewel! At Sedalia and Louisiana, Missouri, we have flourishing churches and intelligent ministers trying to save souls, and besides they are assimilated with the "white folks" and in peace and yet they must be "captured"! Now if "assimilation and not separation" is what the race needs at Ocean Grove, don't they need it in Missouri too? If they need this, is it not the duty of every consistent Christian in general, and Christian members in particular, to encourage this every where and indeaver to thrust caste prejudice through and through when they meet the hydra head monster? What is the use of a part of a race trying to "assimilate" and the other part trying to make their intelligent hearers believe they mean what they say and are acting the very opposite. I am aware of the fact that "caste and race prejudice" is the back bone of their success, as much so as water baptism, by immersion, is that of colored Baptist's and they know this and hence they dodge the issue. When they say, in Philadelphia, that their "idea" of the "connectional Sunday school union plan, and the Tarrand idea" is simply our Sunday school and Chautauqua plans in an other dress, they know well that they would never succeed with these if they were to tell this in the smaller towns and rural districts. Now I have no harsh words for my brethren of this church, and I assure them that I hope they will succeed, not in building a house on blood for it can't stand, nor by blind folding the people, but by being consistent; and if they believe that "amalgamation and assimilation" will eventually make useless their present mode of procedure, let them act the part of true leaders and let the people know it, and hereafter be more consistent, whether at Ocean Grove with their congregations at home or in Missouri trying to save souls.

Housekeeping.

Home making is an excellent definition for housekeeping, for it suggests not only its meaning but the importance of the word. In this world there are three callings pre-eminently honorable, namely home making, teaching and preaching the Gospel; so nearly kin are they, that they blend into one, in the great work of elevating humanity. It is in the home where pilgrims first start out on the journey of life, and it is there they are first taught the good news that the Savior came to proclaim to a fallen world. It is there that fountains are laid for building structures that are to last forever. There should be love in the home. It can make the lowly cabin with its simple furnishings, "the brightest spot on earth" to those whose home it is. It can gild everything in life with beauty. It was what the prophet felt when he wrote: "A charm from the skies, seems to hallow us there;" it is what makes home a type of heaven. The impress of love satisfies the heart and fills it with gratitude and content. It trains vines, and cultivates flowers, and arranges things tastefully. Flowers add much to the cheerfulness of a home. Children are apt to take an interest in them, and like to assist in their culture. I knew a man who objected to the cultivation of flowers. He said they were only made to look at. Why not cultivate potatoes, cabbages and onions in the front yard, there would be some sense in that, for they were good to eat. A little girl in the family loved flowers, and she managed to put some seed into the ground and they sprang up and thrived, and bloomed. The father loved his little daughter and his heart was softened. No doubt the flowers had something to do with it. God made flowers to look at and potatoes and cabbages to eat, and who knows but that one is as necessary to our well being as the other? We read in the Bible that "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." We see loving words from God in the beautiful flowers; words that may furnish aliement to the soul, to make it strong and brave for the work of life.

Common sense needed in a home. There is often unnecessary work done by those who really love their families. The real aim of the housekeeper should be to make a happy home, for the loved ones; its outward appearance should be the result of that effort.

Persons sometimes, who give very little close attention to the smallest details, become over careful and troubled about many things. There is a happy medium between slovenliness and fastidiousness. I knew a woman who could never sit down and be quite comfortable for she kept all the time seeing dust or cobwebs. A scrap of paper or a thread on the carpet would distress her. She made it an important duty to go around after people and pick up things. Every chair that she saw awry had to be righted, and every book that she found out of place, had to be put just where it belonged, and that was in the bookcase, for fear that it would get soiled. Papers had to be carefully folded and be put where they would not look disorderly. She thought those around her inconsiderate, because so many things were left out of place, and she fretted because she was over worked. She was sure that if her children could not be happy at home, but chose the streets, it was no fault of hers, for didn't she work very hard for them!

The proper place for things is just where they are ready for use, and the best display of taste is to have things look as if, without much effort they are just where they ought to be for comfort and convenience. Books and papers lying around ought not to cause unpleasant disorder. Books worn by proper usage never disfigure a room. Who ever thought that the presence of a well worn Bible ever marred the beauty of any furnishings?

Intelligence is needed in a home. Thought assists in all the details of housekeeping. It dignifies labor and makes its significance understood, and elevates people above a tread mill existence. It gives zest to social enjoyments and makes one feel an interest in others. It makes men manly, and women stronger in their womanly natures.

Above all the spirit of Christ is needed in the home. It will furnish love and common sense, and intelligence, and a happy home, "and no good thing will He withhold" from those who trust Him, and who seek His strength and His guidance.

An Asylum or Orphan Home.

DEAR EDITOR:—A few weeks ago Brother Whitaker wrote you about Brother Hardwell's death and spoke of erecting a monument. I should like to know what kind of one he thinks of erecting. There is not a man in the Texas Conference that I loved to hear preach better than I did the one who lately died in harness, of whom it may be said

"His body with his charge laid down,
And ceased at once to work and live."

I am interested in the matter, and would like to see something tangible done. I would suggest an Orphan Home, or an Asylum for the widows of ministers, either of which would be an untold blessing to the vast number who have known and loved our departed brother. Many a dollar that would be spent foolishly, thrown into some such channel would help to erect a lasting monument and at the same time help those who need it most. Very respectfully,

ISABELLA HOWELLS.

The Senate confirmed the nomination of Emory Speer to be United States District Attorney for the Northerd District of Georgia.

The Current is, evidently, very much disturbed over the scenes of outrages and blood which continue to disgrace and stain the national name in the South. The cries of distress of the victims of Southern hate, who are nightly strung up to the limbs of trees, without judge or jury, unless trumped up charges of attempted rape, or conspiracy to slaughter the whites, do not seem to interest it at all. It seems to be ignorant of the suppression of the million and a half of colored voters in the South, by reason of the shot gun policy, tissue ballot voting and dishonest counting. It has heard nothing of Birmingham, Marshall, Danville, Yazoo, and other such bloody grounds. It seems to be ignorant of these things, or else it could not have given expression to such unwise expressions as the following:

"There are some strong symptoms of the attempt on the part of the dominant political party, to make their fight of next year on the old sectional issue. This is evidently a mistake, and and not in keeping with the usual shrewdness and wisdom of the Republican leaders. They ought to consider what a lively campaign could be made on important economic questions like high or low tariff duties, which people are beginning to discuss more intelligently, and which the Democratic leaders have awkwardly handled."

Tariff and other economic questions are all right. The Republican party can "with usual shrewdness and wisdom" look after them; but so long as human rights and life are held in proper esteem, and and the dominant party claim to be the party of moral ideas, so long as these outrages continue to exist below a certain sectional line in this country, so long should that party make her fight on that line. We are glad to know that such are the present indications. We will continue to welcome such indications until the South is fully redeemed, and no man no matter what his race, color or politics, can enjoy his natural and constitutional perogatives with equal safety in the South or in the North. Till then we welcome the old issues.

A correspondent of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate (M. E. Church, South) affirms that the use of tobacco is sinful for the following reasons, which he ably supports at every point:

1. It is sinful, because it is unprofitable and useless.

2. It is sinful, because it is injurious to most men, if not to all.

3. It is sinful, because it is filthy.

4. It is sinful, because it is wasteful.

5. It is sinful, because the money thus expended could be saved and spent for the glory of God and the salvation of sinners. It could be used in the payment of honest debts.

The scripture tells us: "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him."

In view of the reasons urged above against the use of tobacco, our readers should satisfy themselves that they do their smoking and tobacco chewing in the name of the Lord, for the Apostle urges every one to do all that they do" in the name of the Lord. If you cannot smoke and chew in the name of the Lord Jesus, you had better quit this loathsome and expensive habit.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

E. B. Scott, St. Paul, Galveston: "I came to my work the week following conference. My impression is that I am among a warm-hearted, Christian people. Sisters Elizabeth Bouns and Fannie Wall, assisted by Bro. Geo. Ashe, cleaned, carpeted and otherwise supplied the parsonage so that when my family moved down it was like coming home instead of going among strangers. The trustees had a new porch built and latticed in, as the old one was in bad condition. The new church, when finished, will be a little beauty. It has now a city debt of about $600 resting on it. We hope to raise that as soon as possible so that we may finish and furnish the building. Pray for us."

J. H. Jones, Veston, Texas: "Since our new pastor came among us our church seems to be waking up. We collected, last Sabbath, for our new church $59.24, for the pastor $20.35. This is what we call a good beginning."

TENNESSEE.

I. Kirby, Clarksburg: "The people received me well. My labor here has been satisfactory."

J. T. Henry, Rockwood: "We are having a severe winter, and money matters are close. We will do the best we can."

P. P. Brooks, Jasper: "First quarterly conference was held by Elder Provine. We had a good time and raised $4 for elder. The people seem to be pleased with their pastor. We want to build two new churches this year. If a friend anywhere desires to help us a little please send the contribution to me. The East Tennessee Conference is young yet, and we need all the help we can get."

LOUISIANA.

P. B. McDonald, Longstreet: "Elder Duncan, with Rev. J. S. Patterson, of Bastrop, attended our fourth quarterly conference. Collections for the year were: "For elder $20; pastor $59.35; missions $5.25; on building and improving $48. Our church at Grand Cane is nearly finished. We hope to have it ready before conference."

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches: "We have all of our benevolences ready all told $31. We have more than half of Gilbert Haven money and we are still doing what we can for it. Pray for our success."

C. H. Claiborne, Dulac: "The little work on Bayou Dulac is still on the road of progression. This church has 24 full members, the majority of them very aged. During this quarter 46 have joined, 4 in full connection and 42 on probation. From Sept. 13, 1883, up to the present date $31.90 has been received for all purposes. This sum was raised as follows: By subscriptions $103; by classes $106 90; by public collections $88 60; the balance was raised by the following persons: F. W. Gibson, $2 35; Fred. E. Johnson, $2.00; Willie Johnson, $2.00; Abraham Lang, $1 50; Eliza Jackson, $2 00; Lawrence Williams, $2 00; John King, 50 c; Susan Jackson, $1.00; Henry White, 50c; Sallie Cox, $10.75; Mary Smith, $1.50; Mary J. Jones, $2.00; Charity Smith, $2.00; Emma Hudson, $1.10; Evalina Claiborne, $14.40; Tiby Hudson, $1.40; Susan Jones, $1.00; C. H. Claiborne, $7 35; Wilson Green, $2.00; John Francis, $2.00 Nellie Jones, 55c; Emanuel Baker, $2.00; Victoria Johnson, $1.; Winnie Wadlton, $1.15; Emma Warren, 85c; Lizzie Smith, 30c. On Christmas night a neat Christmas tree was crowded with presents for the Sabbath-school scholars and other friends, costing $7. Mr. Santa Claus came in about the usual hour with a bag of toys and other things for the people. It was quite exciting to see him for the first time make his appearance among this people. On the last day of the old year a heater of great height was bought and placed in the church. The people were greatly delighted with it. A watch meeting was held, though [illegible] and the roads were bad the people came out and we had a joyful time in preaching, praying and love feast. This charge has raised for all purposes during the past year $593.35. A neat fence is needed and the church ceiled and painted, then we will have a valuable little work out here."

ARKANSAS.

Geo. W. Baber, Saratoga, Arkansas: "I have had a good time on this work this year. The people have done all they could for me. The constant moving of our people hurts them and hinders us in our church work. We have $52.70 cash in hand towards finishing our church."

Jottings From Knoxville.

A series of revival meetings began in the Mabry Street M. E. Church, Morristown district, East Tennessee Conference, Nov. 25th, which continued over three weeks, resulting in 25 conversions, 30 accessions, 10 adults were baptized; I have married 8 couples and attended 5 funerals up to date. The membership has been greatly revived. A temperance mass meeting was held on Dec. 23. We had a full house; several addresses were made, to which all gave attention. At the close of the meeting a number of those present requested us to hold another meeting soon. On Dec. 24th we had an exhibition by the Sunday-school children and a beautiful Christmas tree laden with many useful articles for various persons. Everything passed off nicely. On Christmas morning we met all of the children of the Sunday-school, at 10 o'clock a. m., it being the occasion of a treat to the children belonging to the school; after singing we dismissed, wishing everybody a merry Christmas. Last Friday was fast day, and at night we had general class meeting. It being the first quarterly meeting of this conference year the presiding elder was with us and preached on Saturday at 11 a. m. Quarterly conference was held at night, Dec. 20th On Sabbath the weather was so very bad we did not have as many out as usual, but the Lord was with us. The elder and Bro. D. B. Lawton met the Sunday-school. The services were good all day; 10 were baptized at night, collection during the day $10. The amount apportioned for the support of the ministry this year for pastor $300, presiding elder $40, bishop $3. On Monday night we held the quarterly love feast and watch meeting services. We had an old-fashioned Methodist meeting in which our souls were re baptized with the spirit of the Holy Ghost.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to say a few words in regard to one of our high schools, conducted by E. H. Anderson and his brother, C. L. Anderson. Miss M. V. Ewing is matron. They are colored, good managers and Christian teachers. Bro. L. Anderson is a preacher of the Gospel, and all are fully competent for their work. I have visited this school two years. They have class meeting and a Sabbath-school. I hope friends will visit it. My daughter in attendance reports strict discipline and pleasant teachers. J. S. WHITAKER.

The City Council of Halifax, N. S., has passed a resolution permitting the children of colored citizens to enjoy the same school privileges as white children. The city school board has not yet come to a decision in the matter. Hitherto negro children have not been allowed to enter the public schools, inferior ones being provided where they received instruction.

Public Education.

NAMES OF COMMITTEE AND THE ADDRESS OF THE EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY.

The executive committee of the Educational Society at their last meeting distributed the work of the association by organizing the following standing committees, which were appointed by the president, Hon. Louis Bush, he being ex officio member of each committee:

On Membership—Messrs. Wm. O. Rogers, Page M. Baker, J. D. Hill, Isidore Newman and M. C. Randall.

On public lectures and addresses—Messrs: D.S. Mitchell, E. A. Holt, Phillip Werlein, R. R. Forman, and Wm. F. Ogden.

On Memorials—Messrs. R. H. Browne, S. T. Carlisle, Rev. Dr. S. Landrum, Messrs. James McConnell, B. T. Walshe, Wm. Easton and J. W. Nicholson.

On Finance—Joseph C. Morris, Esq. Rev. E. A. Holland, Messrs. W. F. Halsey, Albert Baldwin, W. H. Mathews, R. M. Walmsley and W. R. Lyman.

On Parochial Organizations—Messrs. W. Easton, F. N. Butler, J. E. Seaman, Dr. J. K. Gutheim, Col. Wm. Preston Johnson, Dr. J.S. Copes, and Joseph Simon, Esq.

On Public Library—Revs. R. A. Holland, B. M. Palmer, Dr. T. G. Richardson, Hon. E. A. Burke and Rev. H. M. Smith.

The following address was adopted by the executive committee, which the newspapers throughout the State are requested to copy;

AN ADDRESS ON EDUCATION.

To Our Fellow-Citizens of Louisiana:

The condition of public education in Louisiana claims our serious attention.

Statistics based upon the census of 1880 show that nearly 34 per cent of the total population of Louisiana, 13 per cent white and 53 per cent colored, are returned as unable to write. Of the population of the State between ten and fourteen years of age—both years included—20 per cent of the white and 72 per cent of the colored are reported to be unable to write. Lonisiana ranks as third from the last among the States of the Union in the results of education.

The entire school population of our State between six and eighteen years, as reported in 1880, was 273, 845. The attendance in all the public schools of the State, including the parish of Orleans, in 1880 was: whites 31,642; colored, 22,670; total, 54,312, or less than 20 per cent of the school population. For 1881 there was an increase in the white and a decrease in the number of colored pupils. The Legislature of 1882 set aside one mill tax for public education. On an assessed valuation of $200,000,000, this would yield $200,000. This fund is charged with constitutional and legislative appropriations amounting to $98,207, all of which must be paid before any apportionment can be mae for common school purposes. From the sum remaining, at least 10 per cent must be allowed for non collection, thus reducing the fund to about $62,000 which, divided among the educable children of the State, would make an annual per capitum appropriation of THIRTY-ONE CENTS. It is hardly necessary to add that for 1882 and 1883 the condition of the public schools, which are dependent upon State aid, has not been satisfactory. In the report of the State Superintendent for 1882 some parishes return "no school for want of funds," while in other parishes public schools have been opened one, two or three months only.

In the city of New Orleans there have been free public schools since 1842. They were established and fostered by some of the most illustrious names in our municipal history. During the years which immediately preceded the war these schools were maintained in a degree of efficiency which commanded general confidence and esteem. They have had since to contend with many difficulties, but they are still doing a large and a useful work. During last year fifty-three public schools were open, with an average daily attendance of about 16,000 children. The efficiency of the schools has been impaired by the lack of adequate support. The annual session has been abridged from ten to seven months; the teachers poorly paid—many of them driven by financial condition to engage in other pursuits, or to leave the State for other and more encouraging fields of usefulness.

The indifference of a large class of our population to the subject of education is also a matter for serious consideration. The school population of New Orleans in 1880 was 61,456. The number has since increased, while our school attendance has diminished. We estimate that over 10,000 young persons of this city, between six and eighteen yeaars of age, are not attending any school, nor are they engaged in any useful calling. Ignorance and idleness are fuitful sources of vice, and our public schools should be strengthened as a safeguard against present and future evils.

In other States of the South extraordinary exertions are being made to meet the educational requirements of the people. The general school fund of the State has been supplemented by voluntary local taxation. Schools have been multiplied, teaching talent encouraged, and educational work sustained by a firm and liberal public sentiment. The efforts of the government have been aided by the liberality and public spirit of the citizens. Free kindergardens for the young, and industrial or manual training schools; evening schools and libraries have been established as so many aids in the training of young persons for future usefulness. New Orleans is without these additional agencies in education.

Our city has entered upon an era of renewed prosperity. Our commerce and our railroads give no uncertain sign of progress. Imposing private and public edifices, and increased manufactures, are all evidences of expansion. Public education has not kept pace with progress in other directions. Yet the great truth must not be overlooked that the future welfare of the country depends upon the character of the youths who are to succeed the men and women of the present. The great middle and lower classes of society must shape the policy and eventually control the destines of the country. So long as one-fifth of our voting population can neither read nor write, so long as illiteracy holds the balance of power between the great political parties, the country is menaced with impending evils. Whatever difference of opinion may exist as to how far, and in what manner, education should be fostered by the government, there surely can be no question as to the importance of extending a common school education to all classes of persons.

The New Orleans Educational Society has been formed to promote education in the city of New Orleans and the State of Louisiana. It aims to effect this object by the discussion of educational questions through the press; by means, also, of popular lectures, and by appeals, when necessary, to the Common Council of the city or the Legislature of the State. It will aid, as far as practicable, all efforts to diffuse intelligence and morality among the people by means of schools, libraries and other agencies adapted to the differing wants and occupations of our people.

We hope, in these efforts, to receive your active co-operation and support, and trust that this may be immediate, as already too much time has been lost.

British Honduras.

The British province, or rather colony, of Belize, or British Honduras; once formed a portion of the Mexican State of Yucatan, and is situated in the southeastern part of that peninsula. It came into the possession of the British in the year 1783. Belize contains 19,000 square miles, or 12,160,000 square acres of territory, and about 30,000 inhabitants. Its principal city is Belize, situated at the mouth of a river of the same name.

About one-quarter of the inhabitants of the colony are white, mostly Europeans. The rest are Carib Negroes, Jamaica Negroes, so-called Creoles, or people of mixed Spanish and Indian blood, and pure Indians. The mis-named Caribs form a caste by themselves. They speak a sort of pigeon English, and intermarry with no other people save, in very rare cases, with Jamaica Negroes. Notwithstanding the sparcity of its population, British Honduras enjoys a foreign traffic per annum of about $2,395,000, 14,723 barrels of flour, with other breadstuffs from the States $93,892; cotton goods $77,790; provisions $107,589; miscellaneous $10,729; making total imports from the States $290,000. The exports are cocoanuts, tropic fruits, mahogany, dye woods, cedar, furniture woods, sugar, etc.—Times Democrat.

Camp Meeting in the Himalayas.

It is reported that the best meeting of this kind yet held in Kumaon District began on Oct. 31, and closed on the 4th of November, being held at Dwarahat. A good number of the people came about eighty miles on foot, from Paori on the one side and from Pithoragarh on the other. The meeting was held in Dwarahat, which is about the center between these two points. Dr. Butler's visit was very highly appreciated by the native brethren, and will doubtless prove a benefit to the work. The people are anxious to hear him and to see him, and it is difficult for him to spare himself. Rev. P. M. Buck says he is stronger physically than he has been since 1875, and the fears concerning the serious affection of Mrs. Buck's eyes are needless now for her sight has recovered its usual strength.

Miss Bird, in her book "Unbeaten Tracks in Japan," says: "Of the shadows which hang upon the horizon of Japan, the darkest to my thinking, arises from the fact that she is making the attempt, for the first time in history, to secure the fruits of Christianity without transplanting the tree from which they spring. The nation is sunk in immorality, the mill-stone of Orientalism hangs round her neck in the race on which she has started, and her progress is political and intellectual rather than moral; in other words, as regards the destiny of man, individually or collectively, it is at present a failure. The great hope for her is that she may grasp the truth and purity of primitive Christianity, as taught by the lips and life of our Lord Jesus Christ, as resolutely as she has grasped our arts and sciences, and that in the reception of Christianity, with its true principles of manliness and national greatness, she may become in the highest sense "The Land of the Rising Sun," and the light of Eastern Asia."

Ohio Wesleyan University.

The winter term in the Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, opened auspiciously Jan. 3rd, with a chapel full of students. Nearly fifty new students have entered and the number in attendance is over 600, being the fullest attendance for the winter term in the history of the University. The religious students are earnestly praying and working and with good success. Monnet Hall, the Ladies' Home, has every room full, and rooms in adjacent houses are occupied by the overflow of students from the Hall.

The bottom difficulty in carrying forward our mission work is the want of grateful and loving consecration on the part of Christians of their earnings and savings to the God from whom they have received them. To increase the intelligence of the church in regard to this duty and to multiply instances of obedience the Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church has issued what is called the "Gold and Silver Series," consisting of six tracts that will prove a mine of wealth both spiritual and temporal to all who will study them. The titles are as follows: No. 1, "Golden Words about our God," or the Scripture teachings classified under appropriate heads; No. 2, "Thanksgiving Aith," a most interesting Negro tale; No. 3, "Mr. Horne preaches on the Great Hurt," an inimitable sermon; No. 4, "Ring of the True Metal," or the Divine Law in respect to property; No. 5, "How Much and How?" by Dr. Abel Stevens; No. 6, "Experience of a Converted Robber," related by himself. Ministers who want a little help to overcome the covetousness around them had better send for the series.

The Centenary Medal of the Methodist Episcopal Church, designed to commemorate the organization of the Church in 1784, is now completed and ready for issue. In size and appearance it resembles the American two-eagle gold-piece. On one side it bears the head of Bishop Asbury as representing the Episcopacy of the church one hundred years ago, and on the other that of Bishop Simpson as representing the present Board of Bishops. Beautiful and valuable as it is this medal can be sent to any post-office of the United States for one dollar, and there are already indications that the demand for it will be very extensive. All the proceeds of its circulation will be devoted to the Children's Educational Fund. For specimens address (with cost enclosed) D. P. Kidder, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education, 805 Broadway, New York.

The clerk of the Methodist Minister's Belief Association, Rev. Joseph H. Mansfield, Malden, Mass., has paid the widow of Rev. Siegfried Kristeller, of the New York East Conference, the sum of $3951.20. He was a member of Class C. This is now filling, and brethren under 40 are specially invited to come into Class C. This Association has paid over $20,000 to the widows and orphans of our deceased brethren since its organization in 1878. It is commended by a host of our leading ministers from Maine to California. It is not a money-making institution, but a benevolent, self-protecting and fraternal association. There are no annual dues. An assessment is issued when a member dies, and every penny collected is paid to the beneficaries. There is no association so well adapted to Methodist ministers as this association. Send to the clerk for information.

A growing interest in education is remarked in Kentucky. The subject is being urged upon the attention of the Legislature by influential men in all parts of the State. A legislative committee has been appointed to remodel the present school laws. It is regarded as significant that the present Superintendent of Public Instruction has been reappointed by Gov. Knott. His annual report was remarkably outspoken, and in other years would have given serious offense and led to the appointment of one more discreet. Now, however, it has only seemed to awaken interest in the schools. The report says that, although the richest of the slave States, Kentucky distributed the past year but $1.40 per capita for the education of the children of both races. Much that is objectionable in public and private life is attributed in the report to the destitution of the means of education.

It is stated that General Grant thinks of making a trip to China in Febuary if the state of his health will permit.

Clergymen should Study the Newspaper.

Besides his religious literature, every minister should read at least one good and reliable secular newspaper, how else can he be instructed in the current events of the day? And unless he is so instructed, how can he preach acceptably and effectively. It is really ludicrous to hear some ministers talking on social, political and commercial subjects. Among worldlings it has almost passed into a proverb that you can tell a preacher by his "greenness," rather than by the whiteness of his cravat. They have to do with the present affairs of life much more than with the past and the future, and the newspaper is the best medium through which these affairs can be learned and studied. Since the means are so abundant for gathering current information, it is a disgrace to neglect them and to remain in ignorance. The remedy for the evil complained of is to be found in careful observation and the aid of the press. Let this course be adopted by ministers every where and there will soon be more practical instruction from the pulpit, and less theorizing; more sermons applicable to the events of to-day, less of the dim and misty past. Brethren, we are fishers of men; but how can we catch them unless we know where they are and what manner of bait they like! Next to the Bible, the newspaper is the most important reading for the clergyman.

Methodist Bishops.

Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America, 1784-1844:

1. Thomas Coke, born in Wales, 1747; ordained Superintendent by Mr. Wesley and others, Sept. 2, 1784; died in 1814.

2. Francis Asbury, born in England, 1745; ordained Superintendent by Dr. Coke and others, Dec. 27, 1784, in Baltimore, Md.; died in 1816. Brothers Coke and Asbury are called "Bishops" in the Discipline for the first time in 1787.

3. Richard Whatcoat, born in England, 1736; Bishop 1800-1806.

4. Wm. McKendree, born in Virginia, 1757; Bishop, 1808-1835.

5. Enoch George, born in Virginia, 1767; Bishop, 1816-1828.

6. Rev. Richard Roberts, born in Maryland, 1778; Bishop, 1816-1843.

7. Joshua Soule, born in Massachusetts (District of Maine), 1781; ordained Bishop in 1824. In the division of the church in 1844-45, he adhered to the Southern church, and died in 1867.

8. Elijah Hedding, born in New York, 1780; Bishop, 1824-1844. He adhered to the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, and died in 1852.

9. James Osgood Andrew, born in Georgia, 1794; Bishop, 1832-1844. Adhered to the Southern Church, and died in 1871.

10. John Emory, born in Maryland, 1789; Bishop, 1832-1835.

12. Thomas Asbury Morris, born in Virginia, 1794; Bishop, 1836-1844. Adhered to the Northern Church, and died in 1874.

12. Beverly Waugh, born in Virginia, in 1793; Bishop, 1836-1844. Adhered to the Northern Church, and died in 1868.

13. Leonidas Lent Hamline, born in Connecticut, 1797; ordained Bishop at the last General Conference, 1844, and adhered to the Northern Church; resigned 1852, died 1865.

14. Edmund Storer Jones, born in Massachusetts, 1807; made Bishop at the last General Conference, 1844, adhered to the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, and died in 1876.—C. in Nashville Advocate.

Col. Taylor Beattie's idea that "if the sugar-trust must go, let all protective duties be thrown overboard together," would be excellent if practicable. Unfortunately, however, we of Louisiana can not wag the big dog that represents the great protective interests of the country. The best plan, therefore, is to explain to him that if the Louisiana end is cut off it will spoil his supper, peace of mind and general cheerfulness.—City Item.

Beware.

The past ten days have witnessed a wonderful change in the principal cities of Kansas, in regard to the effect of the prohibitory law. Saloon keepers have either been persuaded or compelled to close up their saloons, or remove to more congenial climes, and already the jails and police courts are being noticably deserted. Hundreds of men who used to hang around the saloons and eat free lunches, and toast their shins at the saloon keeper's fires are compelled to buy food and fuel for their heretofore half-starved families or go supperless and shivering to bed.

Now the families share the provisions and warmth as well as the society of their natural protectors. Notwithstanding this beautiful and proper change, already there are boasts that the coming legislature will change the law so that men can do as they like about this liquor question.

One man boastfully declared that Topeka's business would be ruined, so that business men would influence the legislature as heretofore to repeal the law.

A saloon keeper wished to rent his room to another party by the month, until the prohibitory law should be repealed.—Kansas Methodist.

The Generals of the Late War.

"Only eighteen years ago that the rebellion closed," said an old army officer to me the other day, "but the generals of the war are fast going out of sight." Then he went on to say: Meade, Thomas Hooker, Garfield, Kilpatrick, Burnside and Halleck, are dead. The next few years will see that list lengthened. General Grant is well on toward 70. He comes to Washington often, and walks quietly about the streets with his cigar in his mouth, much better dressed than when he was President, and looking as if life agreed with him. Sherman is 64, and he looks older, but the family is hardy, and he is likely to see 1900. The youngest of all the great leaders is Sheridan, now to command the army, and he is but 51. Sheridan was a major general at 30. Fitz-John Porter appears here every winter, white-haired and broken in frame—a little old gentleman, who looks back to twenty years of disgrace. His old commander, McClellan, now a rotund man, with bending shoulders, has not changed much of late. He is rich, and entertians well in his New York city home, but the activity of his life is over. He likes still to tell of his campaigns. Pleasanton, is the hero of a hundred cavalry fights, lives quietly here and can be found any day reading the papers in one of the offices on Newspaper row. His hair and mustache are white, and his voice gentle as a woman's. You can say the name of Rosecrans, the idol of the army of the Cumberland. He and his wife live almost unnoticed, on Capitol Hill during the time he spends here performing his duties as a California Congressman. His complexion is like a youth's, and his hair, with a military cut, white as snow. The man who commanded 100,000 men at Chickamauga seems abashed at the confusion in Congress, and seldom rises to speak. Generals Hawley and Logan are the two other most distinguished generals in Congress. Both are 57 years old, and neither has a gray hair. General Rosecrans will be re-enforced this winter by an old companion in the Western armies, General Slocum of Brooklyn. He has been in Congress before. He served, I believe four years soon after the close of war. General Sickles is practising law in New York, and Stoneman is Governor of California. Doubleday, who was in Fort Sumter when it was fired upon, lives in New York, and is writing a book; while Humphreys, Crittenden and Hunter may be seen almost any day about this city, where they own fine houses and live handsomely on the retired list. Fremont is no longer rich. He and his wife, Jessie Benton Fremont, are forgotten in crowded New York. The general whom the Vermont troops worshipped, George J. Stannard, with one arm gone and half-a-dozen wounds, sits up at the Capitol during the session, tending the door of the members' gallery of the house. The Democrats promise that he shall not be disturbed. He is so inoffensive that the pushing women almost overpower him on days when a crowd visits the Capitol, and yet he saved the day at Gettysburg, and fell with three wounds while leading a forlorn hope at Petersburg. McDowell is on the retired list; Don Carlos Buell runs an iron furnace in Kentucky; Banks is a United States Marshal; Hancock, Schofield and Pope are still major-generals, but the last of them will retire in three years. General Howard is at Omaha, a brigadier. General Terry is the youngest of the brigadiers who won fame in the war. With good luck he will succeed Sheridan in command of the army. Gen. Wright, with benevolent face and patriarchal beard, has turned from war to projects of river and harbor improvement. Gilmore, Parke and Weitzel, once commanding corps and armies, are now in charge of lighthouses and fortifications. Grierson, the famous cavalry general of the Western armies, is broiling in Texas with the mounted colored regiment which he commands. They are all getting well on towards the downward track. In ten years there will not be a general officer of the war in active life.—Wash. cor. Advertiser.

It is the self-helpful and self-directing character of the American people that has made American institutions what they are. Because they are the outcome of the national character they react on the character, fostering within it its best qualities. To destroy the institutions you must first destroy the people, only as the people decay in self directing and self-reliant power can their institutions lose their force. It is no greater crime to be indifferent to our own personal well being, or to be indifferent to the well-being of those who crown us with their love, that it is to be indifferent to the welfare of the nation of which we form a part. Representative government means individual action, individual responsibility, individual freedom. Without these individual virtues—just as the best things are always capable of the most abuse—representative government becomes a worse thing than a despotism. If you have not a political opinion, get one; and when you have got it never miss an opportunity of acting on it, of asserting it, of voting for it. You may think that you are but one, and that being but one you are uninfluential and can do nothing. Sincere belief is the most powerful of all social forces. One man with a sincere belief is stronger, than a world of men who have only interests. When Paul the great apostle was smitten down to earth on that memorable journey to Damascus, he was one man with a belief, opposed to a world of men possessing only interests, yet his belief made him the stronger power. When Luther burned the Pope's bull, and threw his inkstand at the head of the devil, he was one man with a belief opposed to a world of men possessing only interests, yet his belief made him the stronger power. When Lloyd Garrison denounced slavery as "the agreement with hell and covenant with death," he was one man with a belief, doing valiant battle with mighty hosts of men possessing only interests; but his belief made him the triumphant power. It is men of sincere beliefs who give strength, decision, character, to the age in which they live, and who make heroic futures possible for mankind. Sincerity in belief, inevitably leads to a true belief, and every true belief, sincerely held, enables Hope newly to trim her lamp and go forth, to meet her bridegroom Peace coming majesty newly down to man.—J. K. Applebe.

Young Folk's Corner.

FALSE PRIDE.

Ashamed to own you labor
To earn your daily bread;
Ashamed to carry a parcel,
Lest "something" might be said.
Ashamed of humble neighbors,
Ashamed of kith and kin,
Ashamed to wear your last year's coat,
Yet not ashamed to sin!

Ashamed to save the dollar
By laying up the dime,
Yet not ashamed to borrow,
Or waste God's precious time.
Ashamed to learn of good men,
Ashamed to take advice,
Yet not ashamed to take strong drink,
And not ashamed of dice!

Ashamed to shun temptation,
Ashamed to answer "no!"
Yet not ashamed to loiter
On "corners" as you go.
Ashamed, before you venture,
To nobly count the cost,
Yet not ashamed to boast how much
At stakes you "won" or "lost!"

Poor human nature needeth
Foundation like a rock,
And strong supports and braces
To guard against life's shock.
But of all the "helps" to aid her,
And all the "props" beside,
That keeps her dignity alive,
The weakest is false pride!

A Word to Boys.

Come, boys, and listen a few moments to your uncle. You have now arrived at an age when you must begin to think about doing something for yourselves. The first piece of advice I have for you is, to do everything well which you undertake. There is but little danger of your being too particular in this respect. A boy who is careful to draw a straight line on his slate, will be very likely to make a line through life. There is no position in life in which you will not be called upon to act as exact as possible. Step into a jeweler's shop, and see how careful the workman must be in finishing up the article he holds in his hands. Visit the ship-yard, and the man with the broadax must learn to hew on a line, or be dismissed. You think of being a clerk. Well, remember that a mistake there is a little less than a crime. I never saw a man who was very particular about his affairs that was not successful. How exact is a military officer in command of a body of men. A clumsy sailor will never rise to the command of a ship.

But there is one great danger which besets many young men at the present day. If it is the disposition to avoid all solid improvement, and take up with subjects that require no thought, and which serve as mere warfare with godliness, our portion will be that of the ungodly. As the tree falleth so shall it lie. We shall reap what we have sown.

"Let my example warn you of the fatal error into which you have fallen," said the gay Sir Francis Deleval, near the end of his life. "Pursue what is useful! pursue what is useful!" Reader, if you would not make your life a curse, present and eternal, "pursue what is useful."

Would Not Break His Word.

That saying, "To be faithful in little things is something great," is nowhere truer than in respect to keeping one's engagements. The eminent man in the following interesting anecdote kept his word for the sake of the child, yet possibly he himself received the greater benefit from and act such as builds up a character an will long be remembered to his praise. "He that is faithful in the least is faithful in all."

The English general, Sir Walter Napier, while walking one day in in the environs of a town, saw a little girl of about five years of age who was sobbing bitterly, while gazing in dismay at the remains of a broken dish lying at her feet.

"I was bringing my father his dinner," she said, "and I shall be beaten when I go home for having been so careless." But, on seeing the benevolent expression of the old soldier, a ray of hope revived, and she said to him, with all the naivete of youth, "Can you not mend it for me?"

The general could not undertake to do that, but he said he would give her the money to buy another, and took out his purse for that purpose. Unfortunately, it happened that he had no small change, and so he promised to come back the next day, at the same hour, and give her the promised sum, and the child went away quite comforted, and trusting to his word.

On going home, the general found an invitation to dinner for the following day at Bath, to meet some friends whom he was very desirous of seeing. But as Bath was at some distance from the town where he was then living, how could he avail himself of the invitation without disappointing the little girl? Under these circumstances he declined the invitation on the score of a previous engagement, thus preferring to lose the pleasure of seeing his friends to deceiving the little girl who had trusted him.

Mrs. Emma Malloy says that in Chicago children were found going to the public schools drunk. The mothers complained, and an examination was made. It was learned that 12,000 children under fourteen years of age frequent the saloons of Chicago daily. On the persons of these children were found tickets with holes punched in them. When asked what they meant one of the boys responded that "Jerry Monroe gaves us these. One punch means a drink of beer, two a Tom and Jerry, and three a whisky straight. Whoever gets the most punches in a month is to have a prize. The first is a pocket pistol, the second the 'Life of the James Brothers,' and the third a meerschanm pipe." Is it any wonder, with such influences as these, that our young people go astray?

In a recent sermon Henry Ward Beecher said: "I feel sore at heart now. One of the noblest natures that used to sit in these seats, one I loved and who loved me; whose hand was as large in its generosity as a prarie; who had all the prospects of a noble and useful life, who could restrain himself and stop when he'd a mind to. But he has gone down to such a degree of intemperance that his friends have given him up in despair. How many of that kind have I seen; and the time past did not suffice for him, or for them. They say: 'To be sure I smoke; but only seven to ten segars a day; but it is not a necessity for me—I can give it up. Or, 'I know I drink a little; but it is not a necessity for me; I can give it up to-day.' But they don't; and they don't next year, or the year after; and when they hear the roar of the tide of perdition, over the verge of which they will plunge finally, they can't. The time when men ought to stop is when they first see the peril; when there is time enough for judgment, enough to bring the higher qualities of the mind to sit in judgment over the lower."

One never knows a man until he has refused him something, and studied the effects of the refusal; one never knows himself till he has denied himself. The altar of sacrifice is the touchstone of character. The cross compels a choice for or against the Christ.

The Preacher's Quiet Habits.

Sedentary and studious men sometimes become prostrated before they know it. Those who spend much time in close mental work and neglect to take enough exercise often find their stomachs unable to do the work of digestion. The liver becomes torpid. The bowels act irregularly. The brain refuses to serve as it once did. Their preaching becomes a failure, and there is a state of general misery. So many ministers have been restored to health by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters that the clergy generally are speaking to their friends of this medicine as the very best tonic and restorer they know of. It restores thin and watery blood to its proper condition by toning it up with the purest and most invigorating preparation of iron that science has ever made. It is pleasant to take, and acts immediately with the happiest results, not only on the parsons, but on other folks as well. 3

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
TO
Kansas and the West.
Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn. and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two cities. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. 1884. 1884.

Suggestions to Agents.

All agents of the SOUTHWESTERN will please read the following suggestions and follow them. They have been demonstrated to be sound by several years of experience, and will facilitate a careful service:

1. See every old subscriber and secure a renewal for 1884.

2. Get all the new subscribers you can.

3. Write names plainly, and be sure to give correct post office to which the paper is to be sent.

4. Let us know the time of subscription, whether for three months, six months, or a year.

5. Collect all the money you can at the beginning of each subscription.

6. Give credit for a short time, and only to persons whom you know to be reliable.

7. Do not run in debt, but arrange to receive small payments from those who cannot pay at once, and order us to stop papers when you are satisfied subscribers will not pay you.

8. Prepare to settle your subscription account before the close of the conference year.

Remember that we supply printed lists for use in transmitting subscriptions to us, whenever desired; and we will send specimen copies to assist in the canvass, free of charge, on application.

The commissioner of public instruction reports 802,722 colored children in the South, attending the public schools. There are also reported forty-seven normal schools, with 253 instructors and 7,621 students; thirty-four institutions for secondary instruction, with 126 instructors and 5,284 students; twenty-two schools of theology with fifty-nine instructors and forty-five students; two schools of medicine with eighteen instructors and 116 students and two schools for the deaf and dumb and the blind with 19 instructors and 120 students.

The defeat of the commercial [illegible] with Mexico in the U. S. Senate, by one vote, may be considered by Louisiana sugar planters merely as a fortunate accident, due to absentees from the Senate chamber. The treaty was supported by the leading statesmen of both political parties from North and South; a motion to reconsider was entered on the journal; the State Department has conferred with Mexican authorities for a prolongation of the time of acceptance; the majority of commercial interests favor the treaty, and it is reasonable to expect that it will be formally ratified at an early day.

It is a great mistake, which [illegible] men make, of allowing their [illegible] in [illegible] the sphere [illegible] Christian life. Whims are not [illegible] and trivial whims are not [illegible] in exercise, and yet every [illegible] things the most [illegible] some whimsical [illegible] the scale [illegible] better things, [illegible] serve their [illegible] they therefore [illegible] the sake of [illegible] these whims take [illegible] of arrogance and self-[illegible] sometimes a fanciful exception [illegible] little things, and a magnifying [illegible] them as of radical importance. There is such a thing as a [illegible] of anise and mint and [illegible] omitting the weightier [illegible] of the law. There is [illegible] too as selling Christ [illegible] brother, be more [illegible] mistake whim for [illegible] to whim

Fault Finding.

It is one of the easiest things in the world to find fault; to discover something that is wrong. It does not take much grace to do this. Indeed the less grace a person has the more they are inclined to do it, and the better they seem to be fitted for it. It is all well for men to search for faults in themselves until they know fully what manner of spirit they are of, but this is a practice that but few indulge in. It seems to be much easier and more agreeable to search for the faults of others and when one is found, like the Roman who had found the lost piece of silver there seems to be great joy in telling of it. We would not have people on the search for money, but most all travelers who walk in the light do occasionally find sticks, rocks, broken bridges, and gullies in the public highway, they are not in search for them but they nevertheless find them. So men walking in the light as God is in the light will see wrongs and they cannot be silent, they must speak out against the sins, scandals and abominations of the people but they are not fault-finders, for in the spirit of meekness and sorrow they seek to correct the evils and restore the offenders. No man is to be condemned merely because he has a fault. The man plowing in the field was not searching for pearls but his plow turned it up and brought it to his sight. So the sins scandals and abominations of men are often brought to the public gaze. For the real fault-finders, are the persons who go from house to house, seeking for something that is wrong and then with fiendish delight bring it to the light and to the public gaze we have nothing but contempt; but that man vile as he is, is a thousand times to be prefered to "fault mongers or fault finders." The most dangerous man in the Church is the one who condones for the sins of men whether those men are in the pulpit, pew or saloon.

Two Important Resolutions.

The Mississippi Annual Conference at its session which closed at Jackson on the twenty-first instant, after a lively and interesting discussion, adopted, unanimously two very imparant resolutions. The first is against Excursions; the other against the insidious and unwholesome influence of the too numerous secret so called benevolent and other money gobbling Societies which are daily springing up like mushrooms all over the South, among our people. These two agencies it was shown were destroying the churches and the best interests of our people to an alarming extent. Against these evils the members of the Mississippi Conference have solemnly pledged to contend with all the force of their example and influence. The objections to excursions were that they are almost uniformly gotten up in the interest of sharpers, sharks and schemers; gotten up by the bad men, who conspire with railroad corporations to fleece their thoughtless and confiding victims. To accomplish their purpose, fares are reduced to serve as a bait and thereby hundreds of poor people are enticed to spend their last dollar to go on an excursion to a town or city where they know no one, have no business to transact, and where if questioned as to what motive prompted them to come, could give no reason except that it was cheap and they thought they would simply come on the excursion. It is estimated that in cash money in time lost and necessary preparation, not less than about $15,000 are spent annually by the colored people of Jackson, Mississippi, alone for excursions, and through the South, it is not at all improbable that over $2,000,000 are thus worse than thrown away every year! A sum double the magnificent Slater Fund for the education of the colored people; which our people should spend to better purpose, in buying homes, in educating their children, in subscribing to good Christian newspapers, in supporting the Church and ministry etc. The most forcible objection urged against excursions, however, was their immoral tendencies. Thousand of boys and indiscreet young girls and many previously happy couples mark the beginning of their ruin and unhappiness in these excursions. Away from the beneficial influences of home they then and there learn to love the intoxicating cup; thrown in the company of wicked, designing men in a strange city, they are allured to their disgrace and ruin. In this way some of our best boys and girls are yearly lost to their friends and the race. To counteract these evils our ministry in Mississippi have pledged themselves to never more have anything to do with excursions, and have resolved to do every thing in their power to dissuade other people from patronizing them. This is a step in the right direction in which all of our conferencies South in the should follow. Against societies it is urged that they are too numerous. In some instances it was shown that members belonged to a half dozen or more of them, involving dues, assessments, taxes, etc., which they could ill afford to pay. That many of the promoters of these organizations were broken down politicians and tramps, who, too lazy to work for an honest living, have made it a profession to tramp the country over in organizing these societies, and thereby beat their way through life without working, living and fattening themselves upon the hard earnings of their duped and unsuspecting victims. To protect the people against such itinerant vultures the Mississippi Conference has emphatically pledged itself. The financial obligations of our people to these too numerous societies is a source of serious embarrassment to the Church. After settling all their dues, members found that they could do nothing or next to nothing for the Church. This is a very unwelcome fact to the Church. It is not the principal objection raised against them however. The main objection is of quite another nature, it is of a moral nature. They are destroying the vitality and moral influence which the Church should necessarily exert over her members. They too often exercise a greater influence on church members than the Church herself, and members too often disregard the appointments and meetings of the Church, if such meetings conflict with their society meetings. Many other quite as forcible reasons were advanced against the societies. Too much thanks can scarcely be given to Bishop Wiley for the able address and fatherly advice which he gave the Mississippi Conference in reference to these questions. We cherish the hope that our Mississippi brethren will be able to accomplish the good which they aim to effect by these resolutions; and that their success will induce other conferences and leaders of our people to take the common sense view of these matters, and to adopt the necessary means for their reformation.

New Orleans as a Base of Operation.

The importance of this city as the base of operation for the development of our work in the great Southwest can scarcely be over estimated. This city, with her 250,000 inhabitants—the cotton mistress of the world—commanding the trade of a vast region of country, with her seven trunk lines of railroads, with her front crowded with western and coast steamboats, and ships and other water crafts for Europe, Mexico, the West Indies, the South American States, and other parts of the world, is steadily growing in importance and influence. The absorbed interest which is being manifested, by the press North and South toward the great Exposition to be held here next December may be taken as an evidence of the growing importance of this city and state. In her trade, in the means of travel and communication, and in all that may be taken as indications of future greatness, improvements are everywhere abundant. To insure the success of our work in this region our plans should keep pace with these indications of enlarging opportunities. In order to do this we must multiply our efforts, enlarge our tents, and get in readiness to effectively occupy the extensive fields which the Master is opening before us. This, we think, can be done by giving prominence and vitality to every feature of our work here. Let this city be to our Methodism a radiating center, whence streams of life and energy shall emanate, to lighten up and invigorate all of our forces in the neighboring States and sections tributary to this city, and before many more years we shall fully possess this Southwestern country. To accomplish these ends, we need here in all of our churches, good preachers; intelligent men; men called of God, and who are physically, mentally, morally and spiritually prepared for their great work. Then we need a good, substantial and commodious new school building, well equipped with a full faculty of good professors and teachers—a school building that will compare favorably with any of the existing universities. The prominence of our work here demands such a building, in place of our present ones. Again we think it highly essential that our publishing interest should have a well supplied depository, in connection with our paper published here; it is needed, and if properly managed would doubtless prove a blessing to our work. As this is but the expression of our opinion, we dare go so far also, as to suggest that this city should be made the Episcopal residence of one of our bishops; to help give force and effect to our efforts—the regions tributary to this, the emporium of the Southwest. We know of no city in the South affording more advantages as a base of operation from which to spread our work through the city of New Orleans. With such agencies in hand we would enter this field with an aggressiveness that could not be otherwise, than productive of the greatest good to the spread of our Methodism in this section. All who have an eye single to the spread of Scriptural holiness, and the upbuilding of our church in the Southwest, will not be slow in seriously and prayerfully pondering these suggestions. We hope they will prove effectual.

The Liquor Traffic.

Latest statistics show that there are in this country over 200,000 liquor dealers; selling annually over 70,000,000 gallons of whiskey, 26,000,000 gallons of wine, and 530,000,000 gallons of beer or twelve and a half gallon of intoxicants to every man, woman, and child, in the United States, and territories, besides other drinks.

While the tax to the United States Government from these, amounts to nearly $100,000,000; about $50,000,000 would sum up the total contributed annually by this nation for the support of the 87,717 clergymen, and the 115,610 churches in the country. The National Government tax alone on the traffic is double that paid for all Christian efforts in the churches of this great nation. What those 626,000,000 gallons of liquid damnation cost in ready cash, in shattered health, in ruined characters, in misery, crime, and in the final perdition of immortal souls, eternity alone will fully reveal. With such startling figures before us, is it to be wondered that the press of the country is daily burdened with so many reports of misery, corruption, crime and bloodshed? Here is shown that over twelve and a half gallons of whiskey, wine and beer are consumed in this country to every man, woman, and child. This terrible flood, twelve and a half feet deep, spewed out of the mouth of the red dragon, is threatening the safety of good government, and personal security. The liquor traffic is the greatest evil of this or any age. It is cursing our people to an alarming extent. It is the ruin of any people. The record of its miserable and bloody history is stained in every page with the tears and blood of helpless innocence. History and personal observatons emphatically endorse the sentiment of the wise man when he says: "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." Reader, "touch not; taste not, handle not" the accursed stuff. Irrespective of race or condition, this is the only absolute safety for any one. Many, yes untold thousands, who presumptuously thought that they were so constitutionally fortified that they could dare the monster in his den, have become the victims of their own follies. Like the bad woman in the Proverbs, it "hath cast down many wounded: yea many strong men have been slain by it." The Methodist Episcopal Church is organically opposed to liquor drinking and the traffic. The church is in herself a mighty temperance society, and every member who joins a Methodist Church thereby takes a pledge to abstain from all that can intoxicate. Now are we, as ministers, as laymen, as probationers of the great Methodism with which we are connected, are we faithful and true in this matter? Our own personal safety, and the redemption and salvation of thousands, cluster around our individual faithfulness. The Lord help every one who has entered into covenant against the rum legion, to bravely and manfully battle for its utter annihilation.

A Problem to Solve.

In the State of Mississippi the Methodist Episcopal Church has 24,090 members, 2,829 on probation, 450 local preachers and over 100 members of the conference; these 27,469 persons contributed for the cause of missions during the past year the sum of $281.50 equal to one cent and not quite half a mill per member. Full one half of these persons spent more each day for tobacco than they give during the entire year for missions. It would take full 110,000 persons giving on that line to support one missionary either in China, India or Africa. How many would it take to convert the world? The columns of the SOUTHWESTERN are open, who of our good brethren in Mississippi will answer this question.

A certain story paper of the vulgar and contaminating order, and which is occasionally distributed for one issue free of charge in order to invite new subscriptions, makes the following announcement in its prospectus: "We are at ease as to what your religious belief is. We publish a story paper, purely a story paper. No dictations as to what you should be. Jew and Gentile are the same to us. Every living being has a right to do as he or she pleases. Positively no sermons will be published in our paper." How parents can satisfy themselves to allow their children to read such papers, papers that make such bold announcements, and that teaches that "every living being has a right to do as he or she pleases, is a mystery to us. Such promoters of crime and wickedness should not be admitted to the household.

In looking over the statistics of any of our Southern churches it is painful to note the great disparity that exists between the membership of the churches and that of the Sunday-schools. Nor is this disparity confined to the colored churches. The recent statistics of the Louisiana Conference of the M. E. Church, South, show a membership of 14,166 including local preachers, but only 8,047 Sunday-school scholars including officers and teachers. The question with us is not half so much. Who will save the rich, or poor, as who will save the children? We need a Christianity that makes us care for them.

The Chicago Tribune gives the following figures: "In 1882 out of seventy-nine persons hanged fifty-six were negroes; ont of fifty-three lynched forty-eight were negroes. Thus far in 1883, sixty-four have been hanged, of whom forty-seven were negroes; sixty-four have been lynched, of whom forty-six were negroes. A much larger number probably, have been killed by whites, where no notice has been taken of the event. It is stated that in all these 260 cases the charge was that of murdering whites but in 117 cases there was no legal evidence, and in many no trial.

The United States census shows that their are 264 classed occupations in the United States. The unclassified embrace 13,542 persons, 3,031 of them being women. In all classified industries women are found except forty-two. The males in the industries are 14,744,942, and the females 2,647,157. There are no women in the lumber business, nor acting as masons, carpenters, machinists, stone-cutters, calkers, riggers, sailors, soldiers, roofers, sawyers, wheelwrights, coopers, drawmen, blacksmiths, butchers, or plumbers.

Now and then we find a minister who seems to think that he must be nursed and softly handled, as though he were a babe and not able to care for himself, and be a man as well as a minister. They cannot preach till they have first sucked a lozenger or drank a cup of catnip or pennyroyal tea. More doll-babies are out of place in the pulpit. They may do up in New England, or New York, and Philadelphia, but in Louisiana, Mississippi or Texas they are of no use. We need a robust, manly ministry, one that can endure without a whine or whimper long marches and heavy fighting. There is nothing more sickly or revolting to us than namby pambyism in the ministry or pulpit.

We desire to call special attention to the address of the New Orleans Educational Society published in this issue of the SOUTHWESTERN. Just now education seems to be a suggestive and prolific theme, and is occupying a prominent position in nearly every part of human inquiry. It is seemingly at a late period, but the whole South is awake upon this question as never before. There may be indifference in some sections, and hostility in others but the question is being discussed as never before. The indifference of Louisiana on the question of public education is manifest in the provision the State makes for the education of the school population. The $92,000 set apart by the State for the education of her children amounts to thirty-one cents for each scholar. If the school population of the State should conclude to do the just and right thing next Monday morning and go to school only about 72,000 of the 273,845 could find seats. The theory that education is not for the poor laboring class who are among us so essentially mean as to be unworthy of any reply, the argument is false all through. Ignorance is not a qualification for anything God intended man or beast to do. Intelligence spoils no man for any work God or good men want done in this world. The thoughts expressed in the address of the New Orleans Educational Society so for as we understand them have our hearty approval.

The Morning Star publishes the address of the Educational Society. It in common with all Catholics is opposed to State schools for Catholic children on religious grounds. It is also opposed to them on political grounds; not believing "the school business to be within the province of political government," and as absurd as a government control of morals, religion, industry or health. But as State schooling is an existing fact, the Star says they must make the best of it, and may reasonably expect of the gentleme of the association suggestions of a valuable character.

Mississippi Annual Conference

JACKSON, MISS., January 16.

The Mississippi Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church began its sixteenth annual session in the Methodist Episcopal Church in this city this day, at 10 o'clock a. m.; Bishop I. W. Wiley D.D., presiding and conducting the religious services. J. M. Shumpert and R. S. Rust, D.D., Corresponding Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, leading in prayer. The Bishop said he was glad to meet brethren once more; he had come with no little anxiety, and hoped this session might be especially a good one. Eight years ago he was with them, and now he should be able to see how much they had grown, and what improvements had been made. The secretary of last year was requested to read the roll, when nearly all answered to their names. J. M. Shumpert was elected Secretary and Dr. Revels, Conference Treasurer. The usual committees were ordered. J. C. Eckles, presiding elder of Holly Springs district, reported his district as making material and spiritual progress. Bro. Eckles is a new man in the conference and has been cordially received by the brethren. He finds open doors, and wonderful opportunities for the enlargement of the work. Men with cultivated intellects and well regulated consciences, who have a little of that dauntless bravery that characterized the old time heroes are needed.

J. M. Shumpert, presiding elder of Okolona district, reported twenty five charges and circuits on his district, and he had held ninety-five quarterly and two district conferences during the year. Six new churches and one parsonage had been erected. The one at Aberdeen was said to be the finest in the Conference.

In the evening this editor preached, and Dr. Rust exhorted in good old New England style.

Second Day—Conference assembled this morning at 9 o'clock, Bishop Wiley in the chair. The first half hour was spent in a service of song and prayer. There was nothing cold, bleak or frozen in the atmosphere that seemed to fill the house of the Lord. A baptism of the Holy Ghost is a wonderful help in the performance of conference duties. G. W. Barney, presiding elder of Greenwood district, gave an itemized report of the work on his district that must have been most gratifying to men who have the least appreciation of facts. The report showed prosperity, churches had been erected and repaired, old debts paid, and over five hundred added to the church; and this, according to the secular papers, in the midst of a reign of blood and terror. The ku-klux seem to have been on their high horse during the fall months. God still lives, and though hand join in hand the wicked shall not go unpunished.

W. McDonald, presiding elder of the Gulf district, reported a year of prosperity; five new churches and parsonages had been built during the year, and six others considerably repaired; 350 had been converted, and 535 had joined on probation. Bro. McDonald had fourteen appointments on his district and had held himself 53 quarterly conferences during the year. His character passed as did that of all the elders on his district.

J. Campbell, presiding elder of Meridian district, reported a year of peace and prosperity. Twelve years ago he said that, standing on the same floor, he represented a much smaller work, that was the close of his first year in the ministry, and for his year's work he had received from the people the sum of ninety cents, but he was thankful and happy. In his ministry he had endeavored to be faithful, God had blessed him, and the church had bestowed him beyond his most sanguine expectations. Bro. Campbell is one of those men whose words wherever dropped were witness of the purity and integrity of his own heart. He does not belong to that tribe who are under the necessity of swearing to their past righteousness to apologize for their present delinquencies.

D. A. Williams, presiding elder of Jackson district, reported minutely the work of each preacher, and condition of each charge and circuit as he had seen them during the year. All over his district a fearful drought had prevailed, destroying nearly all the crops, producing a great deal of suffering among the people, and he feared that there might be some slight falling off from last year in the benevolent collections; but in the midst of all their sufferings most of the preachers had been faithful, and the Lord had given a good measure of substantial prosperity; four churches and two parsonages had been built during the year. In the evening the anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid Society was held, and able addresses were delivered by the assistant editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, Drs. Rust and Revels.

Third day.—January 18, conference assembled at 9 o'clock, Bishop Wiley in the chair. Religious services were conducted by A. D. Payne. The minutes of yesterday were read, corrected and approved. Took up the question, "Who are received into full connection?" when nine young men, who had been on probation two years and had passed a satisfactory examination in the course of study, were called to the altar, to whom Bishop Wiley gave what we call an appropriate and instructive address. He spoke of the minister as a man converted to God, educated, trained, and instructing the people both by precept and example. To do this he must daily drink at the fountain of divine truth, and nothing must be allowed to interfere with his perfect consecration to the one work God had called him to perform. The Bible must be his text book, and while this was the sincere milk of the word, it was not half so much milk with the cream on the surface easily, to be skimed off as a mine into which the minister must dig, and from which he must bring things both new and old. It was right that he should exhort, but this was not his chief avocation; whether in the desk or among the people, he was to elucidate and explain the word of God. Ten o'clock was the hour that had been fixed for the election of delegates to the General Conference, that hour was at hand. Bishop Wiley made a few suggestions when the conference proceeded to ballot, and J. M. Shumpert and J. Campbell receiving a clear majority of the votes cast were declared elected, and H. R. Revels, D. D., and W. J. Hooper, president of Rust University, were elected reserve delegates. We heard it intimated that there were a number of brethren who had expressed a willingness to bear this cross, but as the law of the church would not allow of it, we suppose that the Lord will take the will for the deed.

In the evening the anniversary of the Missionary Society was held and addresses were delivered by Bishop Wiley, Dr. Reid, Corresponding Secretary of the Missionary Society, Dr. Rust and others.

Fourth day.—Conference assembled at the usual hour, Bishop Wiley presiding. Religious services were conducted by Bro. Bell. The committee on Freedman's Aid reported approving the work of that society, endorsing the administration of Dr. Rust, requesting the General Conference to continue him in his present position, and to change the name of the society to "Freedmans Aid and Southern Educational Society," all of which was unanimously adopted. Just here quite a discussion arose over a paper introduced deploring the multiplication of secret societies among our people, and requesting the ministers to use all Christian means to persuade the people to withdraw from them. All seemed to agree that these societies were not only productive of no good, but were absolutely injurious in their influence upon the people. During the discussion Bishop Wiley stated his convictions as to their moral influence with epigrammatic force; from beginning to end he was opposed to them. The paper was adopted, and the Mississippi conference put itself upon record as opposed to the multiplication of secret societies, because of their irreligious and immoral tendency. We look upon this action as a movement in the right direction.

Fifth day.—Monday, Jan. 21.—Conference commenced at 9 o'clock; Bishop Wiley in the chair. Religious services were conducted by P. Henderson. This was the last day, and the men were anxious to have the book of fate opened, but as the several committees reported no small amount of good talking was done; but of all cheap things in this world talk is the cheapest. The SOUTHWESTERN was heartily endorsed by the conference; the prevalence of intemperance deplored, and the conference pledged as we understood it, to local option. Better by far go for prohibition. Let there be no county or town in the State where the liquor seller can rest the sole of his foot. The work of the Church Extension Society was heartily approved, and the presence of Dr. Kynett thankfully acknowledged, and he politely requested to repeat his visit. Good mention was made of the Sunday-school cause, the lack of good teachers, and a seeming want of interest deplored, but the people were moving in the right direction. When the reports were all in and the work of the Conference finished the Bishop in a few words referred to his visit seven years before and the wonderful progress made by the people and preachers, and then, with a seeming pressure of fearful responsibility, with words clear, distinct and pointed, he called the attention of the conference to certain matters as they appeared to him. And earnestly imploring the benediction of God upon this work he proceeded to read the following appointments:

The Times-Democrat of Sunday publishes some correspondence from Natchitoches, La., with reference to a rare and graceful occurrence. The Ladies' Fire Association of that city tendered a complimentary supper to the two white dre companies, and then the brass band, composed of gentlemen of the best families marched at the head of Champion No 2, a fine looking negro fire company of thirty members, right into the room, and formed in line along the table laden with delicacies. Then a corps of ladies of aristocratic families, waited, many of them upon their former slaves, and helped them to a bounteous feast. The best of decorum prevailed and educated negroes offered toasts which were received by blacks and whites with warm applause. The noble sentiments of humanity are more powerful than the transient prejudices of caste. The ladies of Natchitoches in doing justice to these negro firemen have honored their sex and ensured them loyal defenders.

Sabbath was a day of special interest to many of the members of our church here in New Orleans. Bishop Wiley preached at 11 A. M. at Ames, a sermon full of comfort, and rich with gospel thought. Drs. Reid, Kynett and Hartzell assisting in the services. At half past two in the afternoon a union services of German Methodist Episcopal Churches was held at the First German Church, Bishop Wiley Drs. Reid, Kynett and Hartzell speaking. At half past three Dr. Kynett preached at Mt. Zion, and at seven Dr. Reid preached to a crowded house at First Street and Dr. Kynett at Union Chapel.

The little Republic of San Marino, in Italy, has an army of forty men and a public debt of $1.080. The roads are numerous and well kept, the land is well cultivated, and the villages are clean and orderly.

Four hundred Winnebago Indians in Nebraska have petitioned the Secretary of the Interior to allot to them lands in severalty so that they may acquire rights of citizenship.

PERSONAL.

—Prof. Alphens S. Packard, of Bowdoin College, who is in his eighty-fifth year, said the other day that he has never been ill a day in his life.

—Ex-Governor John Letcher, of Virginia died in Lexington, last Saturday, 26th inst. Cameron sent a special message to the General Assembly.

—We were pleased last week to receive a call from J. F. McKinley, M. D. Dr. McKinley is a gradnate of Meharry Medical College Nashville, Tennessee, and is now located in Austin Texas. We take great satisfaction in commending him to the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN as an able, and skilful physician.

—Rev. H. W. Bennett, pastor of the Main St. Methodist Episcopal Church, Dubuque, Ia., has received 104 members into the church as the result of a revival he held without the aid of any patent Evangelist. Brother Bennett will spend February in New Orleans, resting after his hard Fall's work.—Minnesota Methodist.

—Rev. Dr. McCabe made the joyful announcement that every dollar of the $50,000 necessary to deliver the Metropolitan church in Washington from debt had been secured. Bishop Simpson was to preach Jan. 27, a memorial sermon marking the close of the struggle to build this Church and pay the debt.

—Bishop Foss was 50 years old on Thursday, January 17, and in order to make this semi-centenial birthday pleasant to remember, the pastors of Saint Paul and Minneapolis met at the Bishop's residence, and presented the Bishop with a splendid gold watch and chain. Pleasant remarks were exchanged, refreshments partaken of, and a good time enjoyed.—Minnesota Methodist.

—Bro. Adolphe Boham, the popular district steward of our church at Booneville, has the thanks of our assistant for a quarter of a barrel of white clarified sugar, which he has kindly presented. The favor is highly appreciated Such remembrances are said to go far toward making mortals sweet. Again we say, thank you Bro. Boham.

—At the annual dinner of the Sumner Union League Club in Hartford, Conn., Mr. T. T. Fortune, the editor of the Globe of this city, was among the invited guests and made the chief speech of the occasion in response to the toast "Charles Sumner." Less than four years ago Mr. Fortune was a common type-setter in the office of the New York Witness, and was the innocent cause of a serious strike there, the other compositors going out in a body because they "they didn't want to work 'long side of a nigger."—New York Tribune.

—During the past week we have been honored by a visit from some of our chief ministers: Drs. Rust and Hartzell, Secretaries of the Freedmen's Aid Society, looking after our educational interests here in New Orleans, A. J. Kynett, D. D., Secretary of the Church Extension Society. Some of our Churches that have borrowed from the Loan Fund of that Society, and are making no effort to meet their obligations. Dr. Kynett assures them that these obligations must be met. He thinks that churches like men who do not pay their debts are not worth saving. And we say, Amen. J. M. Reid, D. D., Secretary of the Missionary Society, is making careful inspection as to the financial condition of our churches and their ability to support themselves. Bishop Wiley, D. D., who is to preside at the session of the Louisiana Conference beginning on the 30 inst.

—While at Jackson, Mississippi, last week, we had the pleasure of an introduction to Brother Edward L. Gilliam editor of the People's Advisor. Brother Gilliam is a prominent layman of our Church in Mississippi, and was a member of the Mississippi Lay Conference, as chairman of a committee from said conference to the annual conference, in notifying the annual conference of those whom they had elected as lay delegates to the general conference and of certain very practical and sensible suggestions which the lay conference saw fit to recommend to the annual conference. Brother Gilliam showed a high degree of intelligence as was commensurable with the dignity of a true knight of the quill.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. K. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

The Housekeeper.

TO REPAIR THE STOVE.—When a crack is discovered in a stove through which the fire or smoke penetrates, the aperture may be completely closed in a moment with a composition consisting of wood ashes and common salt made up in a paste with a little water and plastered over the crack. The good effect is equally certain whether the stove is hot or cold. So says Home and Farm and certainly its advice is seasonable.

TURPENTINE FOR LOCKED-JAW. [illegible] of the Scientific [illegible] says: "Let any one [illegible] attack of the locked-[illegible] take a small quantity of turpentine, warm it and pour it on the wound, no matter where the wound is, and relief will follow in less than a minute. Nothing better can be applied to a severe cut or bruise than cold turpentine. It will give certain relief almost instantly. Turpentine is also a sovereign remedy for croup. Saturate a flannel and place the flannel on the throat and chest, and in every case three or four drops on a lump of sugar may be taken inwardly."

QUEEN OF PUDDINGS.—One pint of fine sifted bread crumbs, 1 quart milk, 1 cup sugar, yolk of 4 eggs, a piece of butter the size of an egg. Bake until done, but not brown, and spread with a layer of jelly. Whip the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, with 5 tablespoons of sugar, and juice of a lemon, spread on the top, and brown. Make a hard sauce for it as follows: 1 cup light brown sugar, ½ cup butter, ½ grated lemon rind, juice of 1 lemon, beat till very light.

DEATH BREATHING AS A DISEASE [illegible] UNDER.—Many ills that are assigned to other causes are in reality due to the effects of this habit. Nature intended the nose to be the inhaling and exhaling organ for pure, and fitted it up for that purpose. The mucous membrane contains what are called mucous glands, which give moisture to the air as it is inhaled, so that it is warmed and purified by passing through the nose. When breathed directly through the mouth into the lungs, the air is apt, by reason of its lack of moisture, of improper temperature, and dust, to act as an irritant, and is the [illegible] cause in the production of the lungs. Owing to the [illegible] oxygenation of air breathed directly by the mouth has been [illegible] a condition that gives rise to cases of dyspepsia, consumption, etc. The lectures describe the development of nasal catarrh, the diseased formations resulting from it, and after the failure of the excessive pain [illegible] attempts to treat it with the knife or nitric acid, a simple process for burning [illegible] with an incandescent platinum wire, a plant [illegible] declared to be painless to the patient, as the [illegible] heat of the cauterizing agent destroys the nerves before they have time to communicate with the brain.

TO CLEAN LACE.—Spread your lace on an ironing sheet, mix some flour with cold water just enough to make a paste. Spread this paste on the lace and let it remain until dry. Then brush the lace and it will be perfectly clean. This method is also excellent for extracting grease stains from silk or cloth. [illegible] Receipts.

[illegible] years ago, a dwelling-house one story higher, [illegible] was also to be [illegible] feet higher; and as the [illegible] was built up, it was [illegible] on the inside with salt to prevent the adhesion of the mortar. The result is that the [illegible] with salt mortar is [illegible] to this day, while [illegible] filled with soot [illegible] where the salted [illegible] be cleaned [illegible] proportions [illegible] peck of salt, added while tempering, to three pecks of mortar.—Tribune and Farmer.

SPINACH.—When cooking spinach, substitute a little piece of bacon for the salt pork usually cooked with it to season it. The nicest way to serve it is to put it in individual vegetable dishes, and put a bit of the bacon in each dish. Hard boiled eggs, sliced when cold, are also liked with the greens.

TAPIOCA JELLY.—Two cups of tapioca; wash it in two or three waters; soak it five or six hours; simmer it in the water it was soaked in, with a little salt, until it becomes transparent, then add the juice of one lemon, and loaf sugar to flavor it. Let all simmer together, and put it in a glass dish to cool.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Mr. Herbert Spencer opens the February number of The Popular Science Monthly" with an article on "The New Toryism," which will stimulate the thought of those interested in modern political tendencies. "College Athletics" is considered by Professor E. L. Richards, of Yale College, in a paper showing the advantages of cultivating athletics at college. A succeeding paper will be devoted to the disadvantages of "College Athletics." Dr. Oswald takes up the perplexing subject of Nervous Maladies," and has a good deal to offer which will be of service to the afflicted. Professor John T. Stoddard gives some practical hints and directions on methods for the detection of "Dangerous Kerosene." In a paper on "Under-ground Wires," Dr. W. W. Jacques, of the Bell Telephone Company, shows that there are two sides to the question of burying the electric wires, and that anything more than a very limited adoption of the system would be beset by formidable difficulties. Mr. Abner C. Harding, gives a review of the progress during "Fifty Years of Mechanical Engineering." M. Antoine De Saporta, in a pleasant article, describes the experiments of the last two years by which the electrical origin of "The Aurora Borealis" has been demonstrated. Mr. Fernald tells "How we Sneeze, Laugh, Stammer, and Sigh." M. Daubree, eminent French geologist, has a timely article on "The Causes of Earthquakes." The sketch and portrait are of Sir Charles William Siemens, the eminent engineer and electrician, just deceased. The editor, in the two leading articles considers the ameliorations which politics may hope to receive from the introduction of scientific principles, and news from illustrious examples what has been and what may be achieved by the aid of an "Education without Dead Languages." New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

Miss Sarah Freeman Clark has devoted part of her life to the task of following the footsteps of Dante in his wanderings through Europe. The notes and sketches made by her will be reproduced in the March and April numbers of The Century, while in the February number two preliminary papers will appear, one by Christina Rossetti on Dante and his Divine Comedy, and one by Miss Clarke on the portraits of Dante. The latter paper will be strikingly illustrated. Among the portraits, a copy of the famous mask of Dante will be given, and a full page engraving by Cole of the Dante of Raphael, painted on the walls of the Vatican, in the famous "Disputa."

It is just about two years since Lorenzo Delmonico died suddenly, from the effects, as his doctors said of an excessive use of tobacco. Whether Charles Delmonico owed his mental, and finally his physical ruin to the same cause, does not appear, but as he was an inveterate user of the weed, it is not unlikely. What a mournful spectacle!—a millionaire in the prime of life, wandering all night in a dazed condition in a wild country region, gradually succumbing to the intense cold, and at last tumbling into a ditch to die amid mud and ice. This case recalls that of the proprietor of the Windsor Hotel on Fifth Avenue, who a few years ago, went out to a little farm on Long Island and hung himself in the stable. "Life in New York" is sometimes thus stripped of its enchantment. "All is not gold that glitters."—Weekly Witness.

A Curious Rat Story.

Hon. Neal Dow contributes to the Congregationalist the following, which he calls a perfectly true story:

My house is supposed to be rat proof, and was so when quite new, but at one time, more than twenty years ago, we had a large colony of rodents, greatly to our annoyance, and it was with us a matter of daily wonder where they found a weak spot in our defences against them. One evening a young lady from a friend's family, living in a large, fine house nearly a mile away, was with us, and the talk turned on rats, as we heard ours galloping in the ceiling and scampering up and down the wall.

The young lady said that none had ever been in their house, and she did not think there was any point at which they could enter. My eldest daughtes, a great wit, said: "I've heard that, if politely invited to do so in writing, rats will leave any house, and go to any house, and go to any other to which they may be directed, and I will tell ours that at your house they will find spacious quarters and an excellent commissariat."

At the moment, before us all, she wrote a most grandiloquent letter to the large family of rats that had so long favored us with their presence, pointing out to them that at No. 65 Pearl street was a large, fine house which had never been favored with the residence of any of their family, where they would find ample quarters and a fat larder. When finished, she read the missive to the company, and we had a great laugh over it. As an old superstition, she then put lard upon it and carried it into the attic, where it would probably be found by those to whom it was directed. A few days after the young lady was at our house again and burst into a laugh, exclaiming: "Our house is overrun with rats!" That recalled to us the fact that we had heard none in our walls. My daughter went to the attic and the letter was gone. While they were talking and laughing over the curious affair a friend came in, and hearing the talk said that two evenings before, in the bright moonlight, he saw several rats running down Congress street. We have never been troubled with them since, but I have not heard how it has been with the house to which our beneficiaries were directed.

It must be clear to all thoughtful, unprejudiced minds, that the temperance movement in Ohio has passed beyond all merely temporizing policies of license, taxation, and local option, into the era of constitutional prohibition. Whoever advocates either of these measures is making an attempt to revive questions that are buried beyond all hope of resurrection. The proposed convention should recognize distinctly that this is the era of prohibition, and act accordingly. Nothing should be said about the Scott law, unless it be in the way of unqualified condemnation. Let the liquor men wrestle with that, and by the time they have secured the modifications they are now demanding, no man who has the smallest particle of temperance sentiment remaining in his soul will have a word to say in its favor. It has done nothing to mitigate the evils of the liquor traffic, but it has legalized it, and made it respectable so far as law can make it so.—A. B. Leonard, D. D., in the Western.

Recently Jos. Deau, of Minneapolis, in addition to paying the last $5,000 of the debt of Hamline University, has placed in the hands of Rev. J. F. Chaffee the sum of $25,000, to endow a chair in that institution. Since them Rev. J. F. Chafiee has given to President Bridgman his oblication for $30,000 to endow a chair.

C. W. Walker, a 16-year-old colored boy, of Barnesville, gives promise of becoming a fine artist. He has already done some fine pencil work for one with his meagre advantages.

TUBERCULOSIS.
Remarkable Improvement in the Case of a Physician's Daughter.

A physician in the State of New York whose daughter was in rapid decline, sends us a report, which we give, showing a prompt arrest of the disease and a rapid return healthward.

"Your Home Treatment was duly received, and my daughter immediately commenced its use, stopping all other treatment. The results are marvelous indeed. She says that she feels nearly well except that she has some cough yet. You will see by reference to my former letter that she had a very bad train of symptoms. Two physicians whom I called to see her pronounced it a case of Tuberculosis, and gave it as their opinion that she could not recover. She had a cough for a year; was very hoarse; had a severe pain in right side; chill for last two months, with night sweats, emaciation, weakness, and loss of appetite and nervousness; could not sleep at night, pulse a hundred and over at a time; respiration about twenty-five to thirty-four. She began to improve in about one week from the time she commenced the Oxygen Treatment, and has continued up to the present time. All the bad symptoms enumerated have passed off. I cannot find words to express my gratitude."

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen" containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address, DRS. STARKEY and PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard Street Phila.

Charles Reade, is a firm believer in scrap books, and has an immense number of newspaper clippings, properly indexed, from which he obtains much of the materials for his stories. Rev. Dr. Talmage finds many illustrations for his sermons in newspaper articles, and Henry Ward Beecher has trunks full of old papers. The late President Garfield drew many of the anecdotes and incidents with which he graced his speeches from a large collection of scrap books, and Girardin, the French editor, probably carried the system to greater perfection than any other man having whole rooms filled with index clippings.

New Bloomfield Miss. Jan. 2, 1880.

I wish to say to you that I have been suffering for the last five years with a severe itching all over. I have heard of Hop Bitters and have tried it. I have used up four bottles, and it has done me more good than all the doctors and medicines that they could use on or with me. I am old and poor but feel to bless you for such a relief by your medicine and from torment of the doctors. I have had fifteen doctors with me. One gave me seven ounces of solution of arsenic, another took four quarts of blood from me. All they could tell was that it was skin sickness. Now, after these four bottles of your medicine, my skin is well, clean and smooth as ever. HENRY KNOCHE.

No, young man, it doesn't hurt you a particle to sow your wild oats. Go ahead and sow as many as you wish. But it is the gathering in of the crop that will make you howl. And you have to gather it in, too. If you don't it gathers you, and one is a great deal worse than the other. Go on and sow your wild oats; but keep away from this office during harvest time. —Burlington Hawkeye.

Advice To Consumptives.

On the appearance of the first symptoms as general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations, followed by night-sweats and cough, prompt measures of relief should be taken. Consumption is scrofulous disease of the lungs; therefore use the great anti-scrofulous or blood-purifier and strength-restorer, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to cod liver oil as a nutritive, and unsurpassed as a pectoral. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it has no equal. Sold by druggists. For Dr. Pierce's treatise on Consumption send two stamps. WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION. Buffalo, New York.

Influence all may and must give. Unconscious as we may be of the good or evil character of it, it is all-pervading. We may hear, think, and talk to advance the kingdom of our Lord. Purity of heart will beget purity; strong, well-directed purpose will inspire another soul; interest in all the work of the church gives life and vigor to the whole.

Rejoice not when thy enemy faileth, and let not thy heart be glad when he stumbleth. A benevolent eye, humility of spirit, and a mind free from pride, characterize the true disciples of Abraham.—Jewish Talmud.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

Kitty Presnell would like to know the whereabouts of her children whom she was parted from before the emancipation. They were separated from her at Flat Lake, La. We were then living with Jesse Paxton. I was sold to Erwin Williams. There I was parted from my three children, viz: Davie, Mariah and Catherine. I have learned since that they were carried to the State of Arkansas and there sold across the river from Little Rock. I also learn that Jesse Paxton lived in Little Rock, Ark. I now go by the name of Kitty Presnell. Address me at Navasota, Texas.

People who cannot spend the season of winds and cold rains in sunny Florid, should keep Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in the house. It is the best remedy for Colds and Coughs and will relieve sufferers at once.

A correspondent of the Advance says: "the strongest address of the W. C. T. U. convention was by Frances Harper, the colored delegate, just elected to the superintendency of work among the colored people in the North. The pathos of her appeal for 'my people' will not soon be forgotten."

Paralysis Nine Years.

"After having suffered for 9 years with paralysis," says Mr. Joseph Yates, of Paterson, New Jersey, "I was cured by Samaritan Nervine." Mr. Yates authorizes this statement. Your druggist keeps it, $1.50.

Dr. Johnson, when making his tour of the Hebrides, was asked to take a little wine. "I cannot," was his reply; "for with me moderation is excess." "But certainly you can carry off one glass," urged the tempter. "No, madam," said the Doctor, "it would carry me off."

Southern Methodists cannot afford to let down on the dancing question. If our young members will "hop" let them hop out of the Church. They have no business in it. Their parents who send them to balls ought to be invited to withdraw. Let them go to the Churches that tolerate dancing, or, more properly, to the world, till they "renounce the vain pomp and glory of the world."—Holston Methodist.

"Sigh No More, Ladies."

For Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is a prompt and certain remedy for the painful disorders peculiar to your sex. By druggists.

Truth is eternal, always operative, and always efficient to convict of its own existence. To disbelieve all truth were impossible, for it is the basis of all consciousness and knowledge. Hence, the system which contains the greatest amount of truth, is best prepared to appeal to man's credence or belief. And in the exact ratio of its truth, is its prospect of ultimate success. If, then, it be all truth, final triumph is its destiny from the evolution of its own diffusive and immortal essence.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

NEVER FAILS.

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Larative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT

NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists. (14)

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, Fullness after eating, Aversion to exertion of body or mind, Exhaustion of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

"I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, two years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, and TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have cleaned me out nicely. My appetite is splendid, food digests readily, and I now have natural passages. I feel like a new man." W. D. EDWARDS, Palmyra, O.

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate,

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time, the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy. "These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Bound in cloth, gilt, 272 pages, and portrait. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price, 60 cents.

Address, PHILLIPS & HUNT,

32 Natchez street, New Orleans.

General News Items

Indiana has 3,737 church edifices valued at $12,555,000. She pays her ministers $1,037,337.

Senator Edmunds says of the late Senator Morton that he was a great man and a great prtriot, a true friend and a generous foe.

The most striking feature of the commercial affairs of the United States during the last two or three years, has been the depreciation of railroad securties.

The General Assembly of South Carolina will be asked to set off a new county from the counties of Lexington, Edgefield and Aitken. It is proposed to name it Butler, in the Senator's honor.

Rev. Dr. Deems, of the Church of the Strangers, New York, says the Old Testament is true, word for word, from the beginning to end, and that if he didn't believe it he would leave the pulpit.

A singular suicide occurred near Salt Lake. Daniel Morris, aged 84 years, a Mormon with three wives, after reading the Governor's message, went to the shed of an adjoining house and hanged himself.

Gen. Sherman, writing to the committee having charge of ceremonies attending the unveiling of the statue of the late Senator Morton, said: "We who served in Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Georgia know that in Governor Morton, of Indiana, we had a friend to back us who never stopped to calculate whether he had not already filled his quota of men, of money, of wagons, mules etc., but who responded to our calls with every man and every dollar which the law or the ingenuity of man could accomplish."

Rev. I. L. Hauser has retired from the Christian Statesman of Milwaukee, and will soon return to India, where he spent seven years as a missionary. The Statesman has changed proprietors, the new one being Capt A. C. Stickle, of the Congregational Church, of Iowa. Rev. G. W. Horton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Stevens Point, Wis., will be the editor. The policy of the paper will be controlled by a committee of prominent temperance men, and it is proposed to make the Statesman the organ of the temperance element.

Adjt. Gen. King, of Texas, in his recent official report to the Governor, expressed the opinion that "in the face of many facts which point to an almost universal spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction among the negroes in Texas for several months past, and many evidences of individual intelligence among these people, and a desire and determination shown to force themselves forward offensively and to claim social as well as legal rights, it would be the part of prudence, as well as most conducive to the best interests of white and black people alike, to the future peace, prosperity, and progress of the State, to look this possible danger squarely in the face and to meet it by such methods as are legally and constitutionally permissible and obligatory."

Lieut. Philip P. Powell, of the Ninth United States Calvary (a colored regiment) is probably the only ex-Confederate soldier now holding a commission in the United States Army. He was born in Virginia, and when quite young entered the Confederate service and served to the end of the war. He afterward studied law and was admitted to the Bar, but having acquired a taste for military service, he enlisted as a private soldier in the United States Army. He passed through the several non-commissioned grades and embraced the the opportunity of promotion from the ranks. His political disabilities having been removed, he passed a creditable examination and received his commission as Second Lieutenant. He was assigned to the Ninth Cavalry. Lieut. Powell is a relative to the Hon. Randolph Tucker, of Virginia.

There were 4,742 books published in Great Britain last year. Theology headed the list with 704 volumes; juvenile literature, including tales, came next with 701; educational books, 556; histories and biographies, 414; books on the arts and sciences, and illustrated works 354; novels, 349, etc.

There is a word in Dr. Johnson's "Idler" which may be of assistance to those who whish to improve memories. He says: "What is twice read is commonly better remembered than what is transcribed."

The new Governor of Massachusetts, Mr. Robinson, is Superintendent of a Unitarian Sabbath school. He has resigned his seat in Congress to become Governor but retains the superintendency.

Origin of the Word Mississippi

The Mississippi is a good instance of the variations through which some names have passed. Its original spelling, and the nearest approach to the Algonquin word, "the father of waters," is Meche Sebe, a spelling still commonly used by the Louisiana Creoles. Touti suggested Miche Sepe, which is somewhat nearer to the present spelling. Father Lavai still further modernized it into Michispi, which another father, Labatt, softened into Misispi, the first specimen of the present spelling. The only changes since have been to overload the word with consonants. Marquette added the first, and some other explorer the second "s," making it Mississipi, and so it remains in France to this day, with only one "p." The man who added the other has never been discovered, but he must have been an American, for at the time of the purchase of Louisiana the name was generally spelled in the colony with a single p.—Magazine of American History.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retird frnm practice, having had placed lu his hands by an old East Indian missinnary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N Y. jan10-19teow

"Africa for Christ." This heading means something. We are not certain but a considerable of the beginnings of civilization and of letters shall be found to have been in what is now the dark continent. Without doubt it must be the last to know the full light of gospel truth. It stands to-day at the end and the bottom of the list. All other nations have heard the gospel. Africa, except in a small part of its thickly populated regions, has remained ignorant of the truth as it is in Christ. Now that the colored people of the South have raised the banner-words recorded above, we are ready to bid them God speed in their work. The Baptist Foeign Mission Convention which met last September in Virginia, has appointed six missionaries to sail for Africa, between Dec. 1st and Dec. 15th. We shall certainly follow them with our prayers.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this pader. n44-14t

"I SEE THE SHIP THAT BRINGS MY LOVE."
A New and Beautiful Waltz Song, by H. J. Fulmer.
"She stood beside the moonlit sea,
Alone in the silent night,
The wind blew softly o'er the lea,
And stars in the sky were bright;
The light of joy was in her eyes,
And thus she sang in glee;
I see the ship, the gallant ship
That brings my love to me."
Charming words and music, most happily blended together in a thoroughly artistic manner. Equally well adapted to parlor and concert use.

BURPEE'S MAMMOTH IRONCLAD WATERMELON

As the introducers of the now celebrated Cuban Queen, we bring before the public for the first time an entirely distinct and new valuable Watermelon. BURPEE'S MAMMOTH IRONCLAD has such decided points of superiority that it will speedily become a popular favorite with all lovers of fine melons, while for market it is unequaled. The shape is the most perfect; skin handsomely striped; flesh beautiful, delicate red, more crystalline than any other melon; most delicious, rich sugary flavor; flesh never mealy, always firm, remarkably solid. Burpee's Mammoth Ironclad grows uniformly to a larger size than any other variety known. Under ordinary cultivation we have had hundreds of melons weighing from 60 to 70 lbs. each, and the entire crop averaged 50 lbs. Vigorous growth, matures early, and is the most productive variety known. The melons are truly Ironclad, and have never been dropped from the shoulder of a mule without bursting. The hardness or tenacity is in the outside coating or enameling of the skin. Without exception the best variety for shipping and keeping. 35c. per pkt.; 5 pkts. $1.00. $100 IN CASH PRIZES FOR 1884. Each purchaser is entitled to compete for one.

BURPEE'S GOLDEN HEART LETTUCE. Entirely new; most attractive, mammoth, firm heads, delicately curled leaves, most beautiful golden yellow heart, and remains of superb quality for weeks during hottest weather. Packet, 25c.; 5 packets, $1.00.

A REMARKABLE OFFER! On receipt of only 50 Cents in postage stamps, we will send one pkt. each of the two rare novelties above named, alone worth the price, and also one packet each of Burpee's Netted Gem Musk Melon, sweet as honey, and a gem in appearance; Burpee's Large Bld. Turnip Beet, best; Etampes Cabbage, earliest; Burpee's Sarehead Cabbage, all head, and always sure to head; Round Yellow Danvers Onion; New Red Rocca Onion, immense size, mild; Spanish Monstrous Pepper, large, sweet, red; Hollow Crown Parsnip, improved; Perfect Gem Squash, prolific and excellent; Early Long Scarlet Radish; Burpee's Improved Long Orange Carrot, best; Purple Top Munich Turnip, earliest, handsome, and Livingston's New Tavorite Tomato. The above 15 Packets are worth Retail Value, $1.50; but we will send the Entire Collection by Mail, postpaid, to any address for ONLY 50 CENTS IN STAMPS, or 5 collections for $2.

FOR ONE DOLLAR we will send above splendid collection of 15 varieties, and A 1.50 one packet each of the following: Canadian Wonder Bean, dwarf, delicious flavor, or strictly best; Burpee's Superior Large Flat Dutch Cabbage, standard; New No. 2 Cabbage, splendid second early; Veitch's Autumn Giant Cauliflower; Perpetual Lettuce, 180; Large Red Wethersfield Onion; New Giant Yellow Rocca Onion, most striking beauty, enormous size; Celebrated Globe Radish, unsurpassed for summer; Salsify, long white; Spinach, new thick-leaved round, and Burpee's Ultimus Tomato, justly so celebrated.

☞ The 50 VARIETIES new and choice Seeds, as named above, amount to $2.75 ACTUAL VALUE, but we will mail the entire collection for ONLY ONE DOLLAR. This is certainly the greatest offer ever made by any reliable seedsmen. All full-sized packets, with illustrations and full directions for culture on each. We are ORIGINATORS and not introducers of this plan of placing a reliable collection of the best Garden Seeds before the public at less than half usual prices. BURPEE'S SEEDS are warranted first-class in every respect, few equal, none better, and we are determined to prove their superiority to all who will try them.

$1000 IN CASH PRIZES for 1884, to be given to the growers of the best Vegetables and Farm products from Burpee's Seeds. Competition open to all. See our Catalogue for particulars. Show this advertisement to your friends and get them to send with you. 3 complete Dollar Collections (in all 90 packets of Seeds), mailed for $2.50. Entire satisfaction guaranteed.

FLOWER SEEDS BURPEE'S GEM COLLECTION of Asters, Balsams, Pansy, Petunia, Phlox, Verbena, Double Zinnia, in all TEN Packets, most beautiful varieties, with full directions for culture, for only 25c., or 20 packets choicest and most popular varieties, worth $2.25, mailed for 50c. The 20 pkts. Flower Seeds and the 15 Vegetable collection (in all 35 pkts.), mailed for $1.00.

SPECIAL INDUCEMENT! If you ORDER EARLY we will send free a copy of BURPEE'S FARM ANNUAL for 1884 (price 10 cts.), 130 pages, hundreds of illustrations, with 8 superb Colored Plates—the best and most complete Catalogue of the kind published. THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON V, Feb. 3, 1884.

PAUL'S SECOND MISSIONARY JOURNEY. (Acts xv, 35—41; xvi, 1—10.)

Paul and Barnabas, with many others also, taught and preached; that is, instructed believers, and converted unbelievers. Evangelism and edification go hand in hand. In spreading the Gospel capabilities both as teachers and preachers are required. Happy is the Church which has a large and capable force of workers.

Paul desires to look in upon his converts once more, to see how they prosper, or suffer. It is not enough to gather people into the Church; they must also be looked after, and kept walking and learning aright. The heart of Paul yearns after the Churches, the scenes of his early and successful labors. So does the heart of every successful minister.

The Holy Spirit was just as much the inspiration of this journey as of the first (xiii, 2). The entire operation of the Church appears under the direct guidance of the Spirit of God, a state which should be earnestly maintained.

Two apostles became heated in disputation. While this should be no admonition to us, may also serve as an encouragement to sincere souls who, despite best efforts, sometimes fall below their ideals of conduct; but let us all beware of making it an excuse for either indifference or a contentious spirit. The Bible shows us its characters just as they are.

Behold the value of mingled severity and love. Paul is severe with Mark; Barnabas kind and indulgent. No wonder Mark became helpful and "profitable" even for Paul as a minister, as he had his failure pointed out to him, and then was kindly treated in respect to it. Speaking the truth in love never fails to be beneficial.

Dissensions often alter cases. What is right in harmony with the law of Christ, as to accommodation (1 Cor ix, 19—23), as in circumcising Timothy, Paul sternly refused to do when demanded, as involving a principle of the Gospel, in the case of Titus (Gal ii, 3).—Western.

As the doctor turned sadly away from the bed where he found using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, he said: "It beats all how."

MARRIAGES.

In Franklin, Texas., at the residence of the bride, Rev. H Primm, Daniel Bailey to Miss Sallie Porter.

In Dallas, Texas., Sept. 13, 1883, by Bishop H. M. Oliver James to Miss [illegible] on Dec. 31, 1883, Mr. Minefee to Miss Roxaline Patterson.

At the residence of the bride's uncle, in this city, Mr. Richard [illegible] of New Iberia, La., to Miss [illegible] Jan. 21, 1884, Rev. J. officiating. The happy couple left next morning for their home in Iberia.

In this city, by the Rev. M. J. Dyer, Mr. [illegible] and Angeline Deygina, all of [illegible]

[illegible], Jan. 4, 1884, and we trust he has found rest on the other side of the river. H. W. SIMMONS.

Rachel Graves died in Waco, Texas, Jan, 5, 1884, aged 61 years. Sister Graves was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church with which she had been connected for full thirty years. In her death the church has lost one of her most active and devoted members. We mourn but not as those who have no home. She rests from her labors.

Bro. John Godfrey, a local preacher of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Dulac, La., died Jan. 4, 1884. C. H CLAIBORNE.

Matilda King died Dec. 30, 1883. Sister King was converted to God and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1869, and has lived a consistent Christian life ever since. A few days before she died she told her friends she was going to rest. We hope to meet her in the morning of the resurrection. E. JONES.

We lost one of our members of St. Paul M. E. Church, Sister Sophia Frazier, the wife of Rev. Luke Frazier, who was one of the organizers of Methodism in the Ashland and Bowden's plantation. He died about 8 years ago and left a glorious testimony, his wife being a co-worker with him, departed this life a few days ago and left also a glorious testimony.

Sister Jane Smith died a few days ago with the small-pox. She said, "I going to heaven." If the members of St. Peter want to meet her they must press forward to meet her. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn her loss.

WM. SMITH.

Donaldsonville, La., Jan. 5, 1884.

Adele J. Denney died at Bayou La Comb, La., Dec. 30, 1883, aged 23 years, daughter of E. C. and Elizabeth Denney. Miss Denney died of consumption. On the morning previous to her death she called her mother and said that she would soon leave her, and that it would be in the morning when she left but not this morning but to-morrow morning. The next morning she called her parents requesting her father to sing a certain hymn for her while she crossed over and joined in the singing till her voice was silent and died as a child going to sleep.

Theological and Sunday School Institute.

Rev. A. H. Gillet, A. M., will hold a Theological and Sunday-School Institute at Clark University, Atlanta, Apr. 22 to 25 inclusive. The Theological Sessions will be held in the morning; and the Sunday-School in the afternoons and evenings. Prominent speakers from abroad are expected and a season of profit and interest is expected. Free entertainment will be provided at the College for ministers and Sunday-school officers. Full program later. E. O. THAYER.

A spirited contest is going on between the authorities of the Chilian republic and the Romish ecclesiastics of that country. The priests have refused burial in consecrated ground to those not on good terms with the Church. The government has retaliated by declaring that all cemeteries are secularized, and open to the burial of men of every sect. Thereat the bishops declared them secularized, and forbade their priests to conduct burial services in them. In turn the republic forbade burial in private cemeteries where there are communal cemeteries. The issue is thus squarely joined, but as people will continue to die, somebody must soon yield if the dead are to have burial.

The counsel for the convicted Ku Klux of Georgia, have applied to the U. S. Supreme Court for writs of habeas corpus and certiorari, on the ground that incarceration was illegal, the court ordering it being without jurisdiction, and the offenses charged were not against the laws of the United States or within the power and jurisdiction of United States Courts. Solicitor General Phillips will appear for the government.

A Milwaukee woman, who had just married her third husband, rolled him up in a rag carpet and spanked him with a shovel because he let the kitchen fire go out during her absence.

An old negro and his son called on the editor of a newspaper. "I wants my son ter work in yer office, sah." "What can he do?" "Oh, at fust he kaint do nuthin' but edick yer paper, but arter awhile, when he learns me' sense, he ken black yer boots an' sweep do flo."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Dear brethren, push the work. Remember the SOUTHWESTERN, try and give it a wider circulation than last year. We pledged ourselves to do so, let us stick to our promise. Urge the committees on the benevolent causes to bring in full reports to quarterly conferences. Let each pastor place envelopes in the hands of the members and congregation to raise the presiding elder's salary. Let the district stewards report to the quarterly conference if possible. God will help those who help themselves. E. PROVINE, P. E.

January 22, 1884.

Answer This.—Is there a person living who ever saw a case of ague, billiousness, nervoneness, or neuralgia, or any disease of the stomach, liver, or kidneys that Hop Bitters will not cure?

Beef tea, made from condensed beef, is becoming so popular in Omaha that it is displacing intoxicating liquors in the saloons.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

D. Bradford, Pontotoc: "The year of 1883 has passed away and the Lord has enabled us to enter upon the new year. During the past year we have had a good degree of success, but we hope that the Lord will be with us and give us more prosperity next year. We have raised for our pastor $174.65, for our presiding elder $40, for the American Bible Society $1; for all church expenses $24; and have $30 in treasury towards finishing up our church."

TENNESSEE.

H. Primm: "I reached Franklin the second day after conference and found the brethren and sisters at the church engaged in a prayer meeting. They received me gladly and made me feel that I was with my Father's children. Our first quarterly meeting was held Dec. 8 9, and was a season of special interest to all the people. Fifty-four of our members paid 25 cents each. Our people have purchased a nice clock for the church. Rev. J. Pickett is beloved by all of our people. We esteem him as a father in our Israel."

TEXAS.

H. Webb, Marshall: "I am still teaching in the school, and have been since Conference, but expect to be relieved in a few days, when I shall give my undivided time and strength to the work on the District. The brethren are all at their work, and so for as I can learn, doing well. We are planning for and expecting large success."

J. E. Shackelford, Navasota, "Please allow me the privilege of correcting a statement in the treasurer's report of the Texas Annual Conference. My collections were $45, and not $35, as reported. I desire to give credit to whom credit is due."

A Fine Complexion.

Adulteration of all things is so common that one can not be too careful in buying. Especially is this so of face powders. Some are injurious to the skin. Not so, however, with Liquid Pearl, whose merits as a cosmetic are supported by thousands of testimonials, including such names as Clara Louise Kellogg, etc. Utmost confidence may be felt in its usefulness to the most delicate skin.

The measles is epidemic in Washington .D., C., and Health Officer Townsend reports that over 5,000 case have already been recorded in his office since it became epidemic. The scarlet fever is also raging and is on the increase.

Woman And Her Diseases.

Is the title of a large illustrated treatise by Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., sent to any address for three stamps. It teaches successful self treatment.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-1y

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the Savannah MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefully edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

KIDNEY-WORT
HAS BEEN PROVED
The SUREST CURE for
KIDNEY DISEASES.
Does a lame back or disordered urine indicate that you are a victim? THEN DO NOT HESITATE, use Kidney-Wort at once, (druggists recommend it) and it will speedily overcome the disease and restore healthy action.
Ladies. For complaints peculiar to your sex, such as pain and weakness, Kidney-Wort is unsurpassed, as it will act promptly and safely.
Either Sex. Incontinence, retention of urine, brick dust or ropy deposits, and dull dragging pains, all speedily yield to its curative power.
☞ SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. Price $1.
KIDNEY-WORT

"My friend, E. C. Legard, of this city, used to be drawn double from painful Kidney Disease. Kidney Wort, cured him."—Jas. N. Kinney, Druggist, Allebgany City, Pa., Aug 22 82.

KIDNEY-WORT
IS A SURE CURE
for all diseases of the Kidneys and
—LIVER—
It has specific action on this most important organ, enabling it to throw off torpidity and inaction, stimulating the healthy secretion of the Bile, and by keeping the bowels in free condition, effecting its regular discharge.
Malaria. If you are suffering from malaria, have the chills, are bilious, dyspeptic or constipated, Kidney-Wort will surely relieve and quickly cure.
In the Spring to cleanse the System, every one should take a thorough course of it.
☞ SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. Price $1.
KIDNEY-WORT

"I gained 20 lbs. in two months," writes Mr. J. C. Power, of Trenton, Ill., (Dec. 2-82,) "and am a well man. I'd suffered with liver disorders since 1862. Kidney-Wort cured me."

Strong words from a New York clergyman: "I unhesitatingly recommend Kidney-Wort. It greatly benefitted me," says Rev. C. E. Remble, of Mohawk, N. Y.

FOR THE PERMANENT CURE OF
CONSTIPATION.
No other disease is so prevalent in this country as Constipation, and no remedy has ever equalled the celebrated Kidney-Wort as a cure. Whatever the cause, however obstinate the case, this remedy will overcome it.
PILES. THIS distressing complaint is very apt to be complicated with constipation. Kidney-Wort strengthens the weakened parts and quickly cures all kinds of Piles even when [illegible] and medicines have before failed.
☞ If you have either of these troubles
PRICE $1. USE Druggists
KIDNEY-WORT

Editorial Notes.

Woman's Home Missions, published monthly in the interest of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Delaware, Ohio, may be had for the small subscription price of 25 cents per year.

So thoroughly did Bishop Granberry shake up the Arkansas conference of his church that, according to the Arkansas Methodist, only seven preachers were returned to the field they occupied the year before.

From the press of Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago, has been issued a handy pamphlet, convenient for pocket use, entitled "Plain Facts About Arkansas and Texas." It is illustrated by diagrams, in colors, giving in tangible and true conception of all the important statistics of the recent census for those States, and relatively of the other States of the Union. It is an exceedingly useful publication, and a like one for Louisiana and Mississippi might well be issued under railroad or State immigration auspices.

The Atlanta correspondent of the Savannah Morning News says that Gov. McDaniel requested lessees to make reforms in convict camps; the Supreme Court, a few days ago, decided that he had police power over the lessees; that he went in person to the camps, saw and heard for himself, and issued some new rules; and "he proposes that the death rate, the hospital record, and the general condition of the Georgia convict camps shall no longer be used to "fire" the Northern heart for political purposes." We congratulate Gov. McDaniel on this gratifying determination; it is both statesmanlike and honorable.

The New York Independent neither accepts nor offers any compromises to the hateful distinctively American color line heresy. It pleads for its utter annihilation. It says: "The color line in politics, in industries, in educational systems, in social usages, in church and State, should be absolutly swept away." Manly words—worthy of the great independent organ. We endorse every one of them; caste and color line must go. Let the church be true to the divine doctrines which she preaches—the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, and the unity of races—and the victory against the subtlerms of slavery is assured. Before the progressive spirit of the age, the accumulating industry, intelligence and integrity of the colored people in America, these relics of barbaism are slowly but gradnally giving away. God grant to speed the day when they shall be "absolntely swept away."

We are placed under obligations to some one for a copy of the Minutes of the twelfth annual session of the North China Mission, held at Pekin, September 4-9, 1883, Bishop Merrill presiding. There are some twenty appointments in the conference, eleven of them are filled by converted Chinese preachers. The reports of the work are full of encouragement. Our own danghter, who is at the head of the Girls Boarding school in Peking referring to a trip in the country says: "There is a wonderful field for usefnlness in the mnd homes among the simple hearted country women who weary of their monotonous lives, and listen so eagerly to the wonderons story, and sometimes we long for double lives that one may be given to the girls and one to these sisters made like our own strange selves with memory, mind and will, made with a heart to love and a soul to live forever. The statistics shows eight churches and thirteen parsonages connected with the mission, valued at $52,950. A membership of 206 on probation and 247 full members, with five local preachers. The collections for missions were $275.58. We ask you to carefully read and consider these figures."

A Noble and Statesman like Idea.

Mr. Townshend of Illinois has introduced in the House of Representatives a joint resolution which is inspired by a higher purpose and cut upon a large pattern than most of the measures that are proposed in our legislative bodies:

"Joint resolution requesting the President to invite the Cooperation of the Governments of American Nations in securing the Establishment of free Commercial Intercourse among those Nations and an American Customs Union.

"Whereas, The establishment of free commercial intercourse among the nations now existing upon the continent of America will promote the friendly political relations, internal commerce and indnstry, and secure a more extensive market for the surplus prodncts of each of said nations; therefore.

"Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, requested to invite the cooperation of the Governments of the American nations in securing the establishment of a commercial league by and between the said nations, to be known as the Cnstoms Union of America, the arrangement of a common basis of import duties from other countries than those which may compose said league, and that the commercial intercourse among the people of all the American States may be freed from the payment of any cnstoms or other dnes whatever; and that a common system of weights and measures may be also established for the purpose of facilitating snch intercourse."

This proposition has an idea in it that is destined to live long. It would be a great thing if the nations of America could be united in one Confederation after the mannner proposed by Mr. Townsend.—New York Sun.

"Is Our Church in the South to Stay?"

Since my last letter was pnblished I have received this qnestion from some of the readers of the Western Advocate. To those who are engaged in the work of the Chnrch in this field, the qnestion: Is the Gulf of Mexico a fixture? would be just as pertinent. Stay? Most certainly onr Church will stay. That is just what she came for. She can not drag her anchor, weighted with half a million dollars permanently invested in school property, and twelve times that amonnt invested in Church property, and with one-third of a million members kneeling at her commnnion rail. She cannot afford to quit a field which in the past six years has yielded a heavier per centage of net gain than any other section on the continent; a gain which, in all that goes to make np real character, will compare favorably with that of any other field she has cultivated. Moving from this country is out of the question. And why should the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch cultivate this field? This Sonth land needs cultivation. There is work here for both branches of the Methodist Chnrch. And to a student of this work it can not fail to appear that the coming ten years will result in a wonderful harvest for onr Church. It is safe to calculate on large gains numerically, and larger still financially, and still larger in all that gives permanency of character. These institutions of learning, which she has wisely planted all through the Sonth, cannot fail to become towers of strength. It is, perhaps, a fact, that her unprecedented success among the freedmen is as directly traceable to her educational work among them as to any other feature of the Gospel work. It has prepared home material to do home work, and to do it well. And the end is not yet. Another generation and the freedmen will take care of themselves, and, perhaps, help to Christianize some of the heathen neighbors. Too much importance can not be attached to this educational work in the South. While it is the Gospel of the Son of God which saves the race, it is education with that Gospel which matures the race. The wisdom of the Freedmen's Aid Society in planting schools in the South can not be estimated but by those familiar with the field.

This is particnlarly trne of the Freedmen's. Perhaps it is a necessity that years must adjust the educational work among the poor whites, even in the same field. That our Church has done much, very much for this class in the past fifteen years is trne, bnt it has been like a farm away from home. We have lacked these educational advantages in the midst of the field. Snppose yon say they might have gone to the schools for the Freedmen. You wonld not raise that question if you were familiar with the facts. It is impossible to educate the two races in the same schools in the Sonth at present. Again, these schools for the Freedmen are not located usnally so that the white children could attend them if they wonld. The sections where illiteracy prevails to a most alarming extent among the whites is where the colored population are almost entirely wanting. The Methodist Episcopal Chnrch must pay more attention to the edu cational work among the whites in the South or lose largely what might be fnture gains. The Chnrch work in the South which includes the edncational work will assnme for a number of years abont the following form. The work among the old planter stock will be carried on almost exclnsively by what we may term Sonthern Chnrches, of which the Methodist Churches Sonth will donbtless take the lead. The Freedmen, and the poorer classes of the whites, together with those who come to make homes in this country, will largely fall into the Chnrches having large affiliations with the North and West—and of these onr Chnrch will take the lead. Bnt while it may be safely estimated that we have come Sonth to stay, It mnst not be thonght that we will occnpy every nook and corner of this great field. It might just as reasonably be expected that the Methodist Church Sonth captnre Chicago or Boston.

To say that the reare strong prejndices existing in the Sonth against the occnpancy of this field by Chnrches from the North, is only to express a fact, and very many families can be reached much more readily by the Methodist Chnrch Sonth than by ours. And so let it be until the great Churches are one from ocean to ocean, from the lakes to the gulf. This is bnt a question of time.

But there is another class which can be reached more readily by the Church from the North, First because the money is not at the command of the Sonthern Churches with which to do this work. They must have schools as well as chnrches, and God has blest onr Chnrch in the North with money as well as with liberal hearts. Secondly, because this class lost less, suffered less by the war, and are as well to do to-day as they have ever been. These can largely be reached by our Church. Do not understand me to refer wholly to those who live along the borders of the "dismal swamps", or cabin in the pine flats of the extreme South. Bnt more particnlarly those who occnpy our monntain regions, and the lesser valleys. These, who in the next generation are to be largely the land owners of the central South. These onght to be reached, because the way is open, and our Chnrch has the money with which to carry forward this work. A new era will dawn on this work and the Chnrch which carries it forward. If the comming General Conference will endow this work, as the past four General Conferences have the work among the freedmen, these fields, now waving white, will be harvested by the sick leof our Church. Our curse is ignorance, not skepticism. We are godless, because we are letterless, and no man hath cared for our sonls. The Church need not expend her forces in disputing "isms," but teach us to read, and the Bible will be in demand.

As to the freedmen, why, some how, they think that the old Church helped to hang np the the north star, was chief director and stock holder in that nndergronnd railroad, and, perhaps, helped to make Lincoln and General Grant President, and did many other things generally which sent the blue coats' fifes and drums and freedom down their way. They are ready for the gathering of the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch, and if there is any man since Cain killed his brother that is naturally inclined to be religious, it is the freedman. But there is an enemy in the land. The Roman Catholic Chnrch knows jnst how to cater to such an appetite, and is doing more in certain localities than all other devilisms combined to alienate the freedmen from loyalty and Protestanism. The Chnrch, the nation, can not afford this invasion.

Yes, the Chnrch is in the South to stay, and we are praying that this centennial year may witness, first, the placing by the coming General Conference of our entire educational work in the Sonth as one work in the hands of the Freedmen's Aid Society with the name of society so changed as to meet the emergency. Secondly, the putting into the hands of said society the sum of one million dollars for the purpose of carrying forward this wonderful work.

The Anti-Mormon Bill.

WASHINGTON. Jan. 28.—Senator Hoar reported to-day from the Committee on Judiciary, an anti-polygamy bill, which embraces the principal features of the Edmnnds bill, recently introdnced, and adds to them other provisions originating with the committee. The bill provides that in any prosecution for bigamy or polygamy the lawfnl husband or wife of the person accnsed shall be a competent witness, and may be compelled to testify. An attachment may be issned for any witnesses, and their immediate attendance compelled without a previous subpœna when there is reason to believe that they will unlawfully fail to obey a subpœna issued in the usnal course.

The bill provides for the certification of marriage in the Territories; also for the annnlment of all laws allowing women to vote in Utah, and make it unlawful for any woman to vote at any election in the Territory.

It annuls all laws which provide that prosecntion for adnltery can only be begun by complaint of husband or wife, and provides that snch prosecntions may be instituted in the same way as prosecutions for other crimes. It directs the President, with the consent of the Senate, to appoint fonrteen persons to act as trnstees of the Mormon Chnrch, and prescribes that they shall hold office for two years, and shall report annually to the Secretary of the Interior as to the property, business affairs, and operations of that corporation.

It also provides for the annnlment of all laws creating or continuing the corporation called the Perpetual Emigrating Fund Company. The Attorney-General shall take steps to dissolve that corporation, and the assets in excess of the debts shall escheat to the United States, and be invested for the benefit of the common schools in Utah.

It abolishes the existing election districts in Utah, and makes it the dnty of the Governor, Territorial Secretary, and the United States Jndges to redistrict the Territory, and apportion its legislative representation so as to secure an equal representation of the sections. It provides for the appointment of a Board of five persons to canvass the retnrns of all elections in Utah, and issue certificates of election, and to see that the election laws are complied with. The Board shall [illegible] exclude from the polls or refuse to connt the vote of any person on acconnt of any opinion such person may entertain on the subject of bigamy or polygamy.

South Carolina.

The Sonth Carolina Conference of the M. E. Church Sonth, held at Snmter, adopted a vigorons report on temperance, and the following resolntions:

"Resolved, 1s. tThat we give our hearty snpport and enconragement to all temperance organizations and efforts looking to the overthrow of the legalized traffic of intoxicating liqnors.

"Resolved, 2d. That we, the representatives of fifty thousand people of this State, do hereby memorialize the General Assembly of South Carolina to expunge from the statutes of onr State the act permitting and regnlating the sale of intoxicating liquors for revenue; and that we, as a State, wipe ont the foul blot now defacing onr proud history—i. e., a government snpported by the moral and physical ruin of her unfortunate citizens and, further, that the license law itself, unlike other beneficent laws, has no foundation in moral or political economy, but is snbversive to all law; hence it is ruinous, and should be repealed.

Resolved, 3d. That, as ministers of the Gospel, we will continue preaching and lecturing for the formation of a healthy public sentiment in favor of prohibition."

We shall be pleasantly surprised if the newspapers edited by colored men do not treat somewhat coldly Mr. Donglass's marriage. They onght to welcome it heartily. It is one of the best things that could happen for the race in America. A man whose color is marked, a man of culture and ability, and one of the first of his race to achieve social standing in the very capital of his country where he is known and honored, has taken to wife a worthy white woman. It is miscegenation in Washington. It is an example which will be followed, and which mnst be followed before the prejndice against color will die ont as it has died ont in some countries. Decency of morals requires honest, sanctified wedlock to take the place of thousands of illegitimate nnions. We are heartily glad that such an event has taken place, and the colored people of the country—certainly those who have also white blood in their veins—should, for their mothers' sake and their daughters' sake, be far sighted enough to see the meaning and the drift.—New York Independent.

At the snggestion of the Committee on Public Lands of the House of Representatives, the President has conntermanded the proclamation authorizing the sale of pnblic lands at Montgomery and Huntsville, Ala., pending legislation on the subject. The land was abont to be sold in accordance with the provisions of the act of March 3i, 1883.

General Robert Smalls is preparing a memoir and personal recollections of scenes, incidents, battles, actions and engagements of colored soldiers and seamen in and aronnd Charleston and the department of the Sonth during the war. This will be added to Mr. George Arnold's historical record, "The Negro in the Rebellion."—Washington Bee.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

M. Adams, Shubuta: "The Lord has given to this people a wonderful baptism of the Holy Spirit. As one of the results of our protracted meeting, 125 were converted to God; 35 of these were men from 25 to 60 years of age with families. We are now doing the best we can to persuade the people to erect better churches, but we are sorry that as yet but little has been done in this direction. We could do more in the winter if we had warmer churches. As it is we are scarcely able to meet in some places for two or three months, consequently there is a great falling off in our congregations and Sunday-schools, and also in our benevolant collections. For four weeks I have not had a congregation to preach to, because the churches were so cold the people could not be comfortable."

TEXAS.

W. M. Mathews, Richmond: "I am acting as pastor. The elder has not been heard from since the death of our pastor, but the church still holds her own. The Oak Hill work is alive. We have a lot at Rosenberg for a church and $23 in money. The watchful eye of a pastor is needed to forward the work."

Isam Snell, Courtney: "Since my return from conference I have built a church 25x35, and the walls 12 feet, free of debt. There is now in the treasury $55. This has been a time of refreshing from the Lord."

W. McKenzie, Cold Springs: "The people here are not like Methodists, and hold to the church and her laws. They went without eggnogg on Christmas, and on watch night 48 came to ask the blessing of the Lord."

Mrs. Alice Blain, Fairfield: "Our Sabbath school numbers 55. Teachers and superintendent are trying to do all they can. We had a grand Christmas tree. The people are beginning to love the Sabbath-school. We are trying to organize a temperance society. Officers and teachers are as follows: Superintendent, O. C. Simmons, assistant, N. Blain; teachers, Mrs. Phebe Brown, Mrs. Corrinne McClain and Mrs. Alice Blain."

LOUISIANA.

John Fopp, Dixon's Cross Roads: "In December Rev. S. Hason was with us, and preached to a crowded house. At night Elder Ford, a Presbyterian brother, preached, and Methodists and Baptists united at the table; about 300 persons were present. At Melchisedec, a new work, Bro. Hason preached again, and everything is prosperous."

Letter from San Antonio.

DEAR EDITOR:—Our first quarterly conference was held at St. Paul M. E. Church, Jan. 19, at 8 p. m. It was well attended, notwithstanding the cold norther was upon us. The reports of the class-leaders, Sunday-school superintendent, stewards and stewards showed that much earnest work had been done. The pastor was able to report some progress made. On watchnight four joined the church; we have had five conversions before the quarter, and one since. The inclemency of the weather has prevented large attendance on the Sunday-school, however the average for the quarter was 59 out of a school of 196. We hope within a few weeks, we shall have enrolled 250. A big thing! But we cannot expect so big a thing on this line. On Sunday the school met at the set time (9 a. m.) after lessons and review, the presiding elder, Rev. G. W. Richardson, catechised and lectured the children, and explained the object and work of the Sunday-school; when properly carried out according to plans laid down in the discipline, success would always crown the efforts thus made on this line. In view of the large amount of travel, and work before the elder, he requested the writer to preach at 3 p. m., he replied by saying his level best, knowing as I do but few men can travel and do as much preaching and lecturing, as is expected of presiding elders. We may brag about what our father's did, but we must not leave out of the account this one fact, that "as the days shall demand, so shall thy strength ever be." At night the elder preached a rich sermon; text, 6th verse and 15th chapter of St. John's Gospel. It was well seasoned, and handled in a masterly manner. The relation between Christ and His church, and each individual member was clearly shown. We are to raise, to clear the church of debt, over $1,600. About $750 will have to be raised this year. After this able discourse the friends of Jesus were invited to partake of the holy sacament; 81 responded. It was a grand day in St. Paul M. E. Church. The love feast on Monday night was a grand affair. Elder G. W. Richardson will be welcomed at any time among our people and St. Paul membership. The elder thinks what has been done, and the present, forshadows a great and successful future. Mr. Editor, however this may be, I am certainly trusting in Him who blesses beyond our power to ask; I do not mean by that not to ask. Yes, I mean to ask often, believing it will be given. Yours truly

"Worship of the Virgin Mary."

Mr. Capel, like all Roman Catholic lecturers, has thus far studiously avoided all reference to the real, the essential difference between the Romish, the Greek, and the Protestant churches, and this is the devotions offered up to the Virgin Mary. All these several churches teach that God is a Trinity, Trio in Uno, One, and Indivisible, and God as The Father, Son and Holy Ghost, all Christendom accept. That He possesses a triunity of attributes, viz. omniscience, omnipresence, omnipotence. All Christendom believe, and to direct one's prayers and supplications to Him in either of His manifestations, has grown to be considered whatever may be one's peculiar creed, both rational, and right.

If this is the truth, the whole truth, then how, where, when did the "Virgin Mary" become possessed of these three essentially Divine attributes? That they are ascribed to her, is indisputable, is evidenced in the devotions offered, the altars erected to her worship, exclusively, in every Roman Catholic church throughout the world; making the practice of that church despite the earnest protestations of its more enlightened devotees, clearly a quarto.

If the Virgin Mary does not possess the Divine attributes she can no more hear the prayers directed to her or through her agency to her Son, than can the humblest soul or saint in heaven, purgatory, or elsewhere. Why then should prayers be addressed to her instead of Christ, the only, the divinely appointed, mediator between God the Father Almighty, the Creator, and His creature, man, the only inheritor of Eternal life? And does not the fact that such prayers are part of the teachings of the Romish church, set aside Jesus Christ, and substitute the Virgin Mary as the promised mediator and savior of man? This is really the only important difference between the three great divisions of the Christian world, and is the stumbling block upon that straight, and narrow path that leads to salvation. Remove it, resolve this vexed and ceaseless question which has already created a schism within the Romish church, and the words 'Roman, 'Greek,' 'Protestant', 'Catholic', all equally absurd, will be heard no more. Christ the sole mediator, the Redeemer of mankind, will reign and receive the undivided worship of His people, "Christians" throughout Christendom.

Then will "The Family, the Foundation of Society," then will "Home Life, its strength," "Marriage, its Bond" "Divorce, its Destruction," "The education of the children born in sacred wedlock" its bulwark, all these be based on the "True church of Christ", "an organized body", formulated upon His teachings in the New Testament, upon "The Word, God the Father, Almighty Creator of Heaven and Earth, and Jesus Christ, His Son, The Redeemer of the World. OUR SAVIOR, JESUS CHRIST. AHOLI BAMAH.

Letter From Morristown.

DEAR EDITOR:—This is my first work as pastor, and I am more than pleased to say I found a nice edifice second to none in this town among colored people. I am also very thankful to find a membership of 109 benevolent, generous hearted people.

We held a three weeks revival, which resulted in the conversion of 27 souls and 23 accesions to the Church. Before closing I take great pleesure in referring in this connection to the opportunities that are now afforded the young people of this vicinity, for that education that will fit them for the greatest success and usefulness in this life.

The Morristown Seminary, now in successful opperation, has enrolled this term 196 students.

The planting of this institution of learning in our midst ought to be a source of gratification to our people, and I believe it will, if we as ministers will remember, and prove true and faithful to our trust and hold aloof the glorious standard of our Master's cause, close up the ranks of the grand army of reformation, keep pace with measured tread to the onward march of progress, trusting in God to continue the prosperity of His cause and hasten on the time foretold by the prophets: "When Ethiopia shall stretch forth her hand unto God." Then Friendship, Love and Truth shall chain our hearts together in purified union, whenever jealousy, hatred and strife shall hide its diminished head behind the curtain of time, and the arches of heaven will resound with sweet music as angels spread their plumed wings in seas of glory and bending over the battlements of heaven will waft to earth the whisperings of applause, and God himself will smile His approbation upon our earnest labors. "Chinese" Gordon.

The story of Chinese Gordon's life, full as it has been of adventure and stirring incident, cannot fail to appeal to a wide circle of readers. Very few men of our age have held so large a place in public consideration as he has, both for his lofty courage and for his honesty of purpose, while his achievements in China have obtained a durable place in history. Mr. Egmont Hak's narrative is interesting; and it could not appear at a more opportune moment than now, when so many of the scenes, both in China and Soudan, with which Gordon's name is connected, are subjects of general attention. The record of Gordon's career would be impressive under any circumstances, but it will be allowed to his biographer that he has turned to good use the copious materials at his disposal, and that this volume is worthy the fame of its subject.

Mr. Hake describes in some detail the early incidents of his cousin's career. The traditions of his family made Charles Gordon a soldier. His father was a Major General in the artillery, his elder brothers had preceded him in the profession of arms. It was the most natural arraugement that he himself should be entered at Woolwich for the Royal Engineers. At Woolwich he was not considered in his studies a promising candidate. Once, Mr. Hako tells us, he was rebuked for incompetence and "told that he would never make an officer; whereupon he tore the epaulets from his shoulders and flung them at his superior's feet." He obtained his commission none the less, and in 1855 proceeded to the Crimea, where he served several months in the trenches, and obtained the reputation of being the quickest man to detect the plans and movements of the Russians. After the close of the war he was employed on the frontier commissions in Bessarabia and Armenia, where his talent as a draughtsman stood him in such good stead that all his applications for leave to return home were distinctly refused at the Horse Guards. In the year 1860 the difficulty with China had assumed a serious form owing to the repulse of Admiral Hope's attack on the Taku forts, and a large Angio French expeedition was sent to the Peiho for the purpose of bringing the Chinese Government to reason. Before Gordon reached China the Taku forts had been attacked a second time and captured; but he was engaged in all the later operations, which terminated with the occupation of the Pekin and the destruction of the Summer Palace. When the Taiepings became more active in the country round Shanghai, Gordon's experience of the Chinese—for at Tientsin he had employed his spare time in studying the character and country of the people—was called into requisition for the purpose of clearing the district round that great place of trade of the insurgents. His measures were completely successful, and when he had driven the Taipings back to the line of the Grand Canal he zealously devoted himself to the task of personally surveying the whole country for a distance of thirty miles round Shanghai. This thoroughness showed the character of the man, and he attributed to the topographical knowledge thus acquired his subsequent success when employed in the Emperor's name against the bands of the Nankin faction.

The necessities of the Chinese Government compelled it to have recourse to foreign allies; but although the services of a few American adventurers were obtained, neither their exploits nor their character promised a speedy issue from the dangerous situation into which the young Emperor's authority had been brought. The climax was reached when Burgevine violently appropriated for his own purposes the sum of $40,000, and was dismissed from the Chinese service in consequence. It was then that the Chinese applied to the English General to nominate a trustworthy officer for the command of the foreign-drilled contingent, and Gen. Staveley named Capt. Gordon, then not more than 30 years of age. The manner in which he led the so called "ever victorious army" from one success to another, until he had cleared the province of Kiangsu and the course of the Grand Canal of the presence of the Taiping rebels, is almost a thrice-told tale; but still Mr. Hake has succeeded in imparting freshness to a record of military achievements which, in their way were still and unique. When Gordon assumed the command of the force a necessity for greater vigor had arisen in consequence of the defeat of Col. Holland in an attack on Taitsan. The Taipings were naturally very jubilant over their success, and affected for a time to entertain a contempt for the prowess of Europeans. "They thought they could take Nankin, and they have failed before Taitsan." Such was their boast when Gordon was called upon to repair the blunders and misfortunes of his predecessors. He soon justified the expectations of those who had followed his career by capturing both Fushan and Taitsan. Other successes rapidly followed. His force was dressed in a semi-European uniform, and the men wore boots. Such was the terror produced by their presence that the Mandarins availed themselves of a ruse in order to spread a belief that they were more numerous than they were. The Taotai of Shanghai purchased some thousand pairs of European boots, which he distributed so that "the marks of Gordon's soldiers might be everywhere visible." We must make room for the following quotation, showing how Gordon obtained his extraordinary influence over the Chinese, and his not less remarkable hold on the adventurers from all countries arrayed under his flag.

"In almost all these engagements Gordon found it necessary to be constantly in the front, and often to lead in person. The officers of his force were brave men enough, but were not always ready to face desperate antagonists. Gordon, in his mild way, would take one or other of these by the arm and lead him into the thick of the fire. He always went unarmed himself even when foremost in the breach. He never recognized danger; to him a shower of bullets was no more than a hailstorm. He carried one weapon to direct his troops—he had but a little cane, and this soon won for itself the name of 'Gordon's magic wand of victory.' His Chinese followers, seeing him always victorious, always foremost in the fight, concluded that it was his wand that insured him protection. The idea encouraged the ever victorious army greatly, and was of more service to the young commander than all the arms he could have borne."

Gordon left China in 1864, and returned to England. He was still only a Captain of Engineers. Yet he had led several thousand men with consummate skill, and it was not denied that he had won great victories. Having thus outstripped all laws of seniority, having commanded armies and saved an empire when he should, according to rule, have been still engaged in mastering the intricacies of fortification, it necessarily followed that it was not an easy matter to provide him with suitable work on his return. With the best possible intentions the young hero was given a consular appointment on the Danube, whence he was summoned in 1874 to Egypt by the late Khedive. The new task assigned to him was in some respects more difficult than that intrusted to him in China, for whereas in the far East he had only to vanquish an enemy whose forces were revealed, he had to deal in the Soudan with difficulties which were only partially known, while he had to reconcile as he could instructions that were incompatible with the facts of the position. It was to his credit that, working on a reduced pay, and without any desire for fame, he devoted all his powers to the performance of his work, and constituting himself the champion of distressed humanity, spared no effort to put an end to the suffering and infamous lot of the dark-skinned races over whom he was called to exercise authority. During five years he toiled in this cause with unflagging zeal, and when he resigned the powers with which the Khedive had intrusted him it was admitted that he had not merely put a stop to the worst evils of the traffic in slaves, but that he had prepared the way for the emancipation of the Soudanese in 1889, should the Egyptian Government of that day possess the forces and the will to make good its bond. So far as his career has yet run. Chinese Gordon, who is a Major General in the Royal Engineers, will be remembered for two episodes, the Taiping Rebellion and the Governorship of the Soudan. His biographer shows that his private life has been a counterpart of his public career. Devotion to duty has been his motto throughout, and if his extreme dislike to be praised and his over anxiety to hide himself and his actions from the world have been sometimes misunderstood, they are the natural accompaniments of his simple but lofty character. The age of heroes has long gone by, but so long as Chinese Gordon is with us there will be a living type of the qualities which were, and must always be, heroic.—London Times.

Ann Dunn, who died in London a few days ago at the age of thirty-nine, was nearly nine feet high and weighed over 500 pounds. She measured three feet six inches around the shoulders.

Class-hatred is declared by some writers to be instinctive. It is instinctive only so far as envy and jealousy are instinctive qualities. It is more proper to say that class-hatred is the product of oppression and demagogy, and the latter is probably the strongest procuring cause of evil. Prince Bismarck has, since 1871, been the real ruler of Germany, because he has made a business of engendering class-hatred. England is full of demagogues to-day, seeking to promote class-hatred. In our own country the evil exists and is growing under the intemperate rhetoric of demagogues in Congress and out of it. The late President Garfield once remarked that persons who deliberately stir up sectional strife are not worthy of the confidence of their country. The promoters of class-hatred are more deserving of condemnation because they strike a harder blow at the public peace. They would utterly destroy social order, and they invariably injure the very class whose champions they profess to be. To array the poor against the rich is often found to be a very easy process under certain conditions, but the result is often fatal to the well-being of the poor. The true social reformers are those who seek to engage the reason, not the passions of the multitude.—The Current.

A small boy was asked to name some part of his own body. He thought for a moment, and then replied, "Bowels, which are five in number—a, e, i, o, and u, and sometimes w and y."

The cost of the new Methodist church on Madison avenue, New York, was about $260,000. Of this $150,000 were pledged at the beginning. On Sunday morning Nov. 18, $92,000 was raised by the congregation, and in the evening the entire indebtedness was removed.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper . . $1. 25
Cloth 1 75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Mississippi Conference Reports.

ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Whereas, there is a great and growing evil in our midst that has impoverished the majority of our people in various cities of Mississippi and other States, and if allowed to continue, will prove detrimental to our race, both in their relations as Christians and citizens; we believe this evil to be attributable to the over number of secret societies that are now existing in our State, and, we believe the financial failures in the churches in the State of Mississippi are due mainly to the assessments and dues in many of these secret societies, therefore be it,

Resolved, That it is the duty of the ministers of Christ not only to feed the flock of God on Gospel food, but to warn, to enlighten and persuade them to turn from anything that hinders the cause of Christ and their social, moral, and industrial condition.

Resolved, That we believe the ministers will be held accountable for any evil they may foresee coming upon their flocks and fail to warn them thereof.

Resolved, further, That in view of the evils and demoralizing influence existing upon every interest of the church by the over number of secret, and benevolent societies springing up like mush-rooms among our people, we pledge ourselves to use every legitimate means in our power to counteract their undue influence in our church.

J. B. GRIFFIN.

ON PERIODICALS.

We are thankful to be able to report, That our church organ, the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, continues the same faithful outspoken newspaper, defending the rights, and on Bible-Christian principles, opposing known wrongs, whether in church, State, or society, enlightening its readers, in reference to all matters of interest in this and all other countries; and whereas for these reasons, it is one of the most interesting and popular newspapers in this country; therefore

Resolved, That we desire to ask the editor to make the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE all it can be made for good. We welcome in our midst Revs. L. P. Cushman, and A. E. P. Albert, B. D. Editor and Assistant Editor, and most heartily thank them for their addresses.

Resolved, That we ask all of the preachers present to subscribe for the paper, and if possible pay for it before leaving the conference. That the publishers are requested to send the paper to all preachers receiving appointments. We ask the presiding elder to inform them that are not present, of the fact, and advise them to forward the pay as soon as they can.

Resolved, That each presiding elder or preacher shall at the first Quarterly or District Conference ask all local preachers to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, and pay for it as soon as possible.

Resolved, That the preachers and [illegible] Superintendent place the [illegible] and Berean Leaf and our own Sunday-school literature in every Sunday-school as far as possible.

Resolved, That we appoint the second Sunday in February next, day, on which to get special subscribers in every congregation for 1884.

Respectfully submitted,

H. R. REVELS, Chrmn.
J. T. REVELS, Sec.

ON RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, We as a body of Christian ministers, feel and desire to express a proper and consistent manner our thanks for favors extended and services rendered to us,

Therefore, Resolved, That we do hereby tender our earnest thanks to [illegible] Bishop Wiley, for [illegible] and impartial manner in which he presided over our deliberations, and kindly Christian advice which we have received from him, and that we will endeavor to heed his advice.

Resolved, That we were glad to meet in this conference our old, tried and earnest friend, Dr. Rust, and thank him for his words of cheer and encouragement, and do assure him that we shall endeavor to do every thing in our power to hold up his hands in his constant and untiring efforts to extend to our needy people the great blessing of education, and that we the Mississippi Conference, of the M. E. Church, do earnestly ask our approaching General conference to re-elect him Corresponding Secretary of the Freedmans Aid Society, in which position, he has so faithfully, earnestly and successfully extended the advantages of education to those who most needed it in the southern portion of our great country.

Resolved, That we are glad to meet in this conference, Rev. Dr. Reid Corresponding Secretary of the Missionary Society, M. E. Church, and do hereby wish to express our appreciation of and our thanks for his very able, pleasing and instructive address on the subject of missions.

Resolved, That we welcome in our midst again, Rev. L. P. Cushman, A. E. P. Albert, editor and assistant editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, our church organ, a paper which has done and is doing more than we are able to express by tongue or pen, in the building up and strengthening of the work of the M. E. Church, in the South.

Resolved, That our thanks are due and are hereby extended to the Secretary of this conference and his assistant the statistical secretary for the faithful and earnest manner in which they have performed their many and trying duties.

Resolved, That we hereby extend our thanks to the good citizens of Jackson for the liberal manner in which they have supported our conference, and entertained its members. And to the pastor of the M. E. Church, South, for kindly entertaining our Bishop, and allowing him the use of his lecture room in which to meet his cabinet, and to the officers of various railroads for reduced fare.

Roman Catholic Masses.

ROME, Jan. 6.—To-day the Holy Father promulgated, through the organ of the Congregation of Rites, a decretum interesting to the Catholics of the United States. In 1859 Pius IX, imploring the assistance of God against his spoliators, ordered the public recitations of three Ave Marias and one Salva Regina immediately after the reading of the last Gospel of St. John in every mass celebrated in the pontifical dominions. This recitation has gone on for twenty-five years in all the dioceses of the old Papal States. American Catholics may have observed that in Bologna and Rome the priest, after finishing his mass, did not go into the sacristy, but knelt down at the foot of the altar and recited the Hail, three Marys and one Hail Queen in Latin, and afterward read from a small book three different prayers, the last of which was for the conversion of "our enemies."

Leo XIII has now ordered the same prayers to be recited by priests all over the world, thus:

Ter Ave Maria, etc.

Deinde dicitur semel Salve Regina, etc., et in fine:

V. Ora pro nobis, sancta Dei Genitrix,

R. Ut digni efficiamur promissionibus Christi.

OREMUS.

Deus, refugium nostrum et virtus, adesto pius Ecclesiæ tuæ precibus, et præsta, de, intercedente gloriosa et Immaculata Virgine Dei genitrice Maria, beato Iosepho, acbeatis Apostolis tuis Petro et Paulo et omnibus Sanctis, quod in præsentibus necessitatibus humiliter petimus, efficaciter consequamur, Per eumdem Christum Dominum nostrum.

R. Amen.

The Decretum, being Urbis et Orbis, is obligatory all over the world.

Epilepsy Entirely Cured.

Prof. Irving B. Smith, of Pike, N. Y., makes the following statement "samaritan nervine has entirely cured me of epilepsy fits"

LITTLE FOES OF LITTLE BOYS.

"By-and-by" is a very bad boy:
Shun him at once and forever;
For they who travel with "By-and-by"
Soon come to the house of "Never."

"I can't" is a mean little coward;
A boy that is half a man:
Set on him a plucky wee terrier
That the world knows and honors—"I can."

"No use in trying"—nonsense, I say,
Keep trying until you succeed;
But if you should meet "I forgot" by the way,
He's a cheat, and you'd better take heed.

"Don't care" and "No matter," boys,
they're a pair,
And whenever you see the poor dolls
Say "Yes, we do care," and would be "great matter"
If our lives should be spoiled by such faults.

In Glass Houses.

The Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, says:

"The scurrility with which the personal character of Luther was treated on 'Luther Sunday,' by the Romanist preachers, from Mons. Capel down, provokes a smile as proceeding from a Church that is perishing from its own rottenness, a Church whose unspeakable pollution was the raison d'etre of Luther's career, and the cause of the Reformation. Not long ago Bishop Elder of this city had to interdict his priests from their open and flagrant patronizing of the liquor saloons; and scarcely a week had passed after the issuance of his mandate, ere several of them openly disobeyed him by going publicly for the drink that their 'Church' allows them, into one of these doggeries. A short time ago the keeping of disreputable women in the Roman Catholic parsonage of Norwich, Conn., was matter of talk on the streets of that city. Of course the scandal was denied, but when the house took fire one night, and these women were seen running out of it, the laugh of the crowd was turned upon them and the priests. When years ago the writer was crossing the Isthmus of Darien, he rested over Sunday at the town midway between the two seas, a wild village, though in a region that had been for three hundred and fifty years under Romish "civilization." Half a dozen children, the priest's own, were playing around his house, which stood unenclosed, on the common. Apparently no attempt had ever been made to conceal their paternity. During that week a bet had been made in the city of Panama, that on Sunday a priest would take a game-cock to church with him, and leave it in the sacristy till after mass; that he would then go with the cock to a cock-pit, and later to a gambling den, closing the day by serving as procurer for five dollars to any man who would accept his services. The bet was won. These are facts reported to us on the spot by well informed and trustworthy persons. But if one attempts to show up this subject of Romish pollution, past and present, where could he stop? Protestants generally are not blind to these things, notwithstanding the timidity and flunkyism of the secular press, which grovels for the Roman Catholic vote. A protestant preacher's moral errors are heralded by the newspapers of the whole country; but though thousands of Romish priests live in drunkenness, and in presonal impurity, these are scarcely even mentioned, nor indeed are any other of their transgressions, except such as those of the late Parcell, whose enormity and magnitude render privacy impossible."

Celery originated in Germany, the onion in Egypt, the chestnut in Italy, tobacco in Virginia, citron in Greece, the pine in America, oats in North Africa, rye in Siberia, the pear and apple in Europe, the sun-flower in Peru, spinach in Arabia, walnut and peach in Persia, the cucumber in the East Indies, the quince in the Island of Crete, the radish in China and Japan, and peas, it is supposed, in Egypt.

Intellect has been called the star-light of the brain. Religion is the soul.—Russell.

For the Education of Women.

BALTIMORE Md., Jan. 22.—A ladies' mass meeting in the interests of the observance of the centennial of American Methodism was held to-day at the First Methodist Episcopal Church. There was a large attendance of ladies from the various Methodist Episcopal Churches of Baltimore, and from all sections of the Baltimore Conference. There were also a number of clergymen present, including Bishop Simpson, Bishop Andrews, Bishop Wilson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The Rev. Dr. Goucher spoke of the wonderful growth of Methodism in Maryland, where one out of every four persons in Baltimore and one-third of the residents of the State worship under the auspices of the church. The time had came, he said, to found an institution for the higher education of the women of the conference, who up to this time had to resort to non-sectarian and even to Romon Catholic educational establishments. That was one of the objects of the meeting, and the ladies were deeply interested in the project. He thought it would require $200,000, and various methods had been suggested to raise the money.

Bishop Simpson and Andrews next addressed the meeting, earnestly advocating the establishment of such an institution. Bishop Simpson said: "Educated women exert the greatest influence on the age, and they have lost none of their beauty of character. Their power is on the increase, and it is almost incredible to look at what has been accomplished of late years by the pen and the voice of woman. Woman is coming to the front, even in the professions, and it is our duty not to be behind in the advancement of the education of woman. The Roman Catholic Church has devoted particular attention to the higher female education, and in this way they have come to exert quite an influence over the army of the United States. There is an academy at Georgetown, near Washington, and the young army officers coming in contact with the young ladies fall under their influence and marry them. In this way has the army been tinged with Roman Catholicism."

Bishop Andrews said: "The project you have is a good one, but you should not be satisfied with $200,000. You do not want any weak, puny seminary. You should have here in Baltimore a grand, noble, and imposing institution, with an equipment equal to that of any other in the country. Let it be an institution which young ladies shall be proud to attend, and which shall exert an influence over the whole country."

After the addresses resolutions were adopted indorsing the project, and requesting the conference in its arrangement for commemorating the centennial of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church to give pre-eminence to the founding and endowing of such a female seminary. In accordance with the spirit of this resolution an organization was formed to be known as the Female and Education Aid Association.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

GOTHAM, N. H., July 14, 1879.

GENTS—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsey, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an articles as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellow-men that was ever conferred on mankind. Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Among the books that should be more widely circulated is the Methodist Discipline. Every family in our congregations should have a copy. In times of awakening it is often found that persons hesitate about offering themselves for membership in the church, because they "do not know just exactly what the Methodist Church believes on all points." Now we have no reason to wish to conceal our doctrines, on the contrary, the more widely and the more thoroughly they are know the better it is for us as a denomination.—Western.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this paper. n44-14t

Mrs. Wilson, of Oregon, got a divorce from her husband on the ground of infidelity and cruelty last year. He reformed and wanted to marry her again. She consented, but he afterward changed his mind, and she is now suing him for breach of promise.

New Bloomfield Miss. Jan. 2, 1880.

I wish to say to you that I have been suffering for the last five years with a severe itching all over. I have heard of Hop Bitters and have tried it. I have used up four bottles, and it has done me more good than all the doctors and medicines that they could use on or with me. I am old and poor but feel to bless you for such a relief by your medicine and from torment of the doctors. I have had fifteen doctors with me. One gave me seven ounces of solution of arsenic; another took four quarts of blood from me. All they could tell was that it was skin sickness. Now, after these four bottles of your medicine, my skin is well, clean and smooth forever. HENRY KNOCHE.

They say that I am growing old, because my hair is silvered, and there are crow's feet on my forehead, and my step is not as firm and elastic as before. But they are mistaken. That is not I. The knees are weak, but the knees are not I. The brow is wrinkled, but the brow is not I. This is the house I live in. But I am young—younger than I ever was before.—Guthrie.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, FEB. 7, 1884.

The Christian Herald of Atlanta, Ga., Rev. C. O. Fisher, editor, is a new paper on our table, which some of our Georgia brethren, with much zeal in their hearts, and no fear of bankruptcy, are sending out in the Lord's cause.

The States are moving for representation and exhibits in the World's Exposition. Director General E. A. Burke, has been confined to his residence by a sprained ankle which is felt to be an unfortunate mishap, when his services are so urgently required. The board of management will erect the buildings as none of the bids offered were satisfactory.

Three counties in Tennessee which have over a million dollars of capital invested in manufactures are Davidson, Shelby and Hamilton. Davidson ranks all the counties in the State, with 342 manufacturing establishments and a capital of $4,110,345, employing 4,130 females over the age of 15, 538 females over the age of 16, and 474 children, to whom are paid annually $1,388,601. The value of the materials of these factories is $5,341,341, and the value of products, $9,335,211.

An exchange says that a colored physician in Florida, a graduate of the Central Tennessee College, has more practice among the whites than any one else; and that a colored dentist in Atlanta does a large business among them. Give the Negro a chance,—clear the track—and he will vindicate his character, command success, and will satisfy the most skeptical that God made him the equal of his fellows. The Negro is a man, capable of doing what ever any other man can do. Just clear the track and give him a chance.

The cruelty to children by ungodly, brutal parents is so shocking as to try the patience of the least meddlesome individual. The prevalence of such cruelties in Washington city, D. C., prompted some of the citizens of that city to take some steps towards organizing a society there for the prevention of cruelty to children. Among the many cases of cruelty to children reported there during the year 1883, were the following: "A father compelled his son, aged 10 years, to go without food forty-eight hours; brutal whippings with clubs and horsewhips in several cases; a very small girl tied to a bedpost and lashed with a rope, and others of an equally horrible nature." Persons so lost to parental affection and humanity are unworthy of the least sympathy, and deserve the severest penalty of the law.

The following bit of information our people should study closely, and if possible profit by the suggestions it is calculated to provoke. The colored people have nearly 1,000,000 children at school, publish over 80 newspapers, furnish nearly 16,000 teachers: about 15,000 students in the high schools and colleges; about 2,000,000 members in the Methodist and Baptist churches; own 680,000 acres of land in Georgia alone, and over 15,000,000 in the whole South; the increase in the production of cotton since emancipation has been 1,000 bales per year, or one million more than when working under the lash; and had deposited in the freedmen's bank at "Freedmen's Bank" $56,000,000. Besides these, our men have engineered and completed a railroad in North Carolina; and they are assessed over $91,000,000 of taxable property. How do these facts strike you, when you consider that our race did not own itself thirty-two years ago? Are you all interested in this progressive line of thought? If not, why not now join the procession in their upward march to a better and brighter future?

Orthodox Christianity.

Rev. Dr. Gurney recently preached a sermon in Chicago which those who are looking into the future with fearful forebodings as to the prospects of the church of Lord Jesus will read with no little satisfaction. Dr. Gurney shows clearly that so far as it relates to this country Christianity instead of dying out, was never really so strong as now. According to figures presented Christianity has never made such large increase as during the past century, especially the last thirty years. Instead of weakness and decay there has been the most remarkable evidence of strength and growth. The growth of Orthodox Christianity in the United States during the past eighty years has been greater than in any other age of the world since the cross was erected on Calvary. In 1800 there was in the United States 3,030 churches; in 1850 they had increased to 43,072; in 1870 there were 70,148; and in 1880, 97,090. In 1800 there was one orthodox church to 1,740 inhabitants. In 1880 one to every 717 inhabitants. So the increase in churches has been much greater than the increase in the population. The seigniores clearly show that the Bible doctrines of God and Christ, the Holy Spirit, heaven, hell, repentance, justification, regeneration, entire sanctification have not gone to join the dead systems of Confucius, Buddha and Abraham. They live as mighty forces still and are moving on to the conquest of this world. Dr. Gurney goes further than this and shows that there has been a corresponding increase in the ministry and church membership and that the increase in both has been greater than the increase in the population. In 1800 there were in the United States 2,651 orthodox ministers; in 1880, 69,870 not including the local or lay preachers. These figures include only the men who occupy the position of pastors, or are engaged in work that is strictly ministerial. In 1800 the entire membership of all orthodox churches was only 364,872; in 1880 there were a little over 10,000,000. The actual increase in the population since 1800 has been a little less than tenfold, while the increase in membership of the orthodox churches has been about sevenfold. Orthodox Christianity has increased much faster than the population. While it is doubtlessly true that the churches are not doing all they ought to do, it is certain that Christianity is not dying out in the United States. It has lost none of its force but is constantly accelerating power. It makes but little odds what infidels, materialists, scientific philosophers, rationalistic liberals, out of the churches or croakers in them may say old-fashioned orthodox Christianity is moving on grandly to the conquest of this world. All that is now needed is an entire consecration of each member of the church to the work of saving men and a fresh baptism of the Holy Ghost.

Louisiana Conference.

The sixteenth session of the Louisiana Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church convened in Union Chapel, New Orleans, January 30, at 9:30 a. m., Bishop I. W. Wiley in the chair. Opened with religious exercises by the Bishop, E. Williams and Dr. Godman leading in prayer. The Bishop made a few remarks expressing his satisfaction on meeting the conference. The roll was called by the Secretary of last year, when seventy answered to their names. Two had died, and answer to the roll call on the other side of the river. J. C. Hartzell was unanimously elected secretary and J. F. Marshall assistant; A. E. P. Albert, statistical secretary, and Stephen Priestly, conference treasurer. The usual committees were selected. The Bishop announced that the conference was authorized to draw on the Chartered Fund for the sum of $30.

L. P. Cushman, presiding elder of the South New Orleans district, reported his work. He had been able personally to hold four quarterly conferences at each appointment. Three new churches had been secured, $5,483 had been raised and expended in improving church property and in the payment of old debts.

A. J. Kynett, Secretary of the Church Extension Society, was introduced and addressed the Conference, speaking upon the relation of the Society to the Church and the sacredness of the Loan Fund. He believes with all his heart that the gate into the Kingdom is as straight for men in the pulpit and pew as for those who never step into the house of the Lord; as straight for churches as for railroad corporations. He preaches the gospel of honesty with wonderful ability.

J. H. Reid, Secretary of the Missionary Society, was introduced and and addressed the conference in the interest of the Society. He would have the rank and file of the church filled with a holy enthusiasm, the men, women and children all enlisted; ministers should shake off sloth, put away all languor, all lukewarmness, and enlist all the activities of the church in a grand missionary movement. After various announcements, conference adjourned with singing the doxology and benediction by the Bishop.

SECOND DAY.

Conference opened at the regular hour with religious services conducted by the Bishop; W. P. Forrest leading in prayer. The minutes of yesterday were read and approved. Took up the tenth question "Was the character of each preacher passed?" M. Dale, presiding elder of North New Orleans district; S. Duncan, presiding elder of Shreveport district; P. Landry, presiding elder of Baton Rouge district; and A. E. P. Albert, presiding elder of La. H. Teche district, were called, who represented their districts, and their character passed. The names of the elders on these districts were called and their characters passed, save Andrew Jackson, who had sent in a letter requesting to withdraw from the conference and church. His request was granted. The case of R. Anderson was referred to a special committee for investigation. The weak and foolish excuses ministers offer for their small collections is pretty good evidence that there is not any deep abiding desire for the education of the poor and ignorant, nor much care about the conversion of the heathen world. We know no nobler type of Christian manhood than a true, conscientious Methodist preacher attending to every part of his work.

A great amount of work was done this morning, which indicates an early adjournment of conference.

THIRD DAY.

Conference assembled at the usual hour, with religious exercises conducted by the Bishop; J. D. Knox, of Topeka, Kansas, leading in prayer. The minutes of yesterday were read and approved. Took up the fourth question: "Who are admitted into full connection?" Young men were called and addressed by the Bishop. They were to be Methodist ministers and should be governed by Methodist discipline they must place a high estimate upon the moralities of religion, and press to the highest standard of ministerial qualification. No administrator in our church more thoroughly understands the character and needs of the great mass of our people here in the South than Bishop Wiley.

Eleven o'clock was the hour fixed for the election of delegates to the General Conference. The Bishop made a few suggestions and the conference proceeded to ballot and J. C. Hartzell D. D. and A. E. P. Albert were elected. Dr. Hartzell received every ballot that was cast. The reserve delegates were S. Duncan and J. F. Marshall. It is safe to say there was no "color line" in this election. Various announcements were made and the conference adjourned.

FOURTH DAY.

Conference assembled at the usual hour with Bishop Wiley in the chair. Father Green leading in prayer. The minutes of yesterday were read and approved. Took up the second question, Who have been ordained elders? Here quite a discussion arose as to the propriety of allowing men to pass the four years course of study in two years. It was contended that the course was all that ordinary men could accomplish in four years; that this was the thought of the Bishops in prescribing it, and no man could make permanent progress who had not a good foundation. To this nearly all the Conference agreed. So long as we have a course of study prescribed in the Discipline we say let us follow it.

The committee on periodicals gave the SOUTHWESTERN and its editors a handsome endorsement.

A. H. Gillett, D. D., agent for the Sunday school Union for the South and West, was introduced and addressed the Conference. Brother Gillett believes in Sunday-schools but does not think they are to take the place of the church service; or home education and training.

Rev. Dr. Ivy, agent of the Southwestern American Bible Society, was introduced and addressed the conference. The doctor represented that society about ready to give up the ghost. The committee on the American Bible Society reported and so far as it relates to words and resolutions they gave it a good endorsement. We fear that the conference collections for the Bible cause put alongside this report will not look well. The collections are a little too small for the report. The committee on temperance deplored the almost universal prevalence of intemperance. Still ministers at weddings, and when their people give nice dinners, do drink wine, and many of them daily chew and smoke tobacco.

The appointments for Sabbath were given out and the conference adjourned.

"Visiting a Methodist Neighbor."

Under this heading, Dr. Galloway, editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, M. E. Church, South, has the following kind and appreciative words. "The Mississippi Conference, of the Methodist Church, met in Jackson on Wednesday of last week, Bishop I. W. Wiley presiding. This Conference is composed almost entirely of negroes. There were present several white men, who served a few white circuits in a certain part of the State. We visited the body, watched with interest its deliberations and heard one or two spirited debates. Several years ago we saw the Conference session, and therefore had opportunity of studying its progress. Some things we noted specially and favorably: 1. The more rigid enforcement of disciplinary law. 2. A stronger emphasis upon the moralities of religion. 3. A higher educational standard of ministerial qualification. 4. The kindly references they made to the white people in all their reports.

Bishop Wiley who was our agreeable guest during his stay at the capitol, is a conservative, clear-headed, well-poised man. His short Conference speeches indicated the vigilance and prescience of a wise administrator. He very thoroughly understands the negro's character and needs. His views as expressed to us, on that great social and religious problem, we can very well endorse. And here we take pleasure in correcting the report of the Bishop's speech before the General Missionary Committee in New York. He made no reference to our church at all, and therefore could not have uttered the sentiments ascribed to him. We were glad to put this correction on record, and to have had an opportunity of learning from him the whole spirit and tone of the much discussed discussiod.

"Dr. J. M. Reid, of New York, missionary secretary, Dr. A. J. Kynett, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Board of Church Extension, Drs. R. S. Rust and J. C. Hartzell, secretaries of the Freedman's Aid Society, and our neighbors, the editors of the SOUTHWESTERN, were the visitors from abroad. Drs. Reid and Kynett preached for our congregation, greatly to their delight and profit. They were earnest, able, evangelical, Methodist sermons, delivered with the old fire of the fathers. Dr. Reid was quite amused that a lady, in thanking him profusely for his excellent sermon, traced a striking resemblance between himself and Mr. Jefferson Davis."

Danville and Copiah.

The resolution of Mr. Sherman, ordering an inquiry into political outrages in Virginia and Mississippi, was adopted by the Senate January 29. Speeches in support were made by Senators Sherman and Mahone, and the Democrats adhered to their caucus decision and said nothing. After Senator Mahone's speech, moderate in tone, the resolution was adopted by a strict party vote. As usual the Southern press, and many of the Northern, have denounced the proposed inquiry as a partisan scheme, and even the New York Times is disposed to treat the evils sought to be remedied as "local and exceptional," and therefore not justifying an appeal to the national government. But singularly enough, the Times comes soldly to the support of Senator Sherman, and expresses the sentiment of loyal people in the South when it also says:

The inquiry which Mr. Sherman's resolution calls for may well be made. If fairly conducted it will set the facts before the people of the country and form the basis for an intelligent judgment. It will direct the sound public sentiment of the country upon the spirit in the South which still produces and sanctions outrages upon the rights of citizens, and the sound public sentiment of the country is the most powerful agency that can be employed for the remedy of the evil. It may seem to have little effect, but it is all the time working, and Southern statesmen and politicians may yet realize that it is for their interest to discountenance and condemn every assault upon the political rights of the people and endeavor to remove from their States the reproach of lawlessness and disorder.

Not a particle of doubt exists in the mind of any well-informed loyal person in the South but what a conspiracy does exist, and has existed since the days of the Andrew Johnson revival of Southern hopes, to use such power and such means as might be necessary to keep down majorities opposed to the principles of the cause lost on the battle field. The conspiracy is of a semi-military character, by day floating the banners of Democracy, and by night indulging in midnight raids and assassinations. The shot-gun, social ostracism, a slanderous press, tissue ballots, and unblushing frauds are its weapons. The Danville, Copiah, Yazoo, and Marshall affairs are its outcroppings; the recent conviction of five Georgia ku-klux, an unlooked-for accident to conspirators. If there is no immediate prospect or practical method, by which the national government can lay its hands upon the Danville and Copiah conspirators direct, Mr. Sherman deserves all praise for the attempt to point a sound public sentiment against their outlawry.

Education in Georgia.

Under date of Jan. 19th, State School Commissioner Orr issued a circular entitled "The Educational Relations of the Races." It was intended to meet the demand of colored men for representation on school boards. Commissioner Orr gives figures to show that in 1882 there was paid to teachers of white schools in the State the sum of $381,686.16, and to the teachers of the colored schools $151,428,26. A little more than a fourth of the entire school fund, therefore, was paid to the teachers of colored schools. The number of pupils enrolled in white schools was 161,384; in the colored schools 95,055; there was paid for teaching each white child $2.36, and for each colored child $1.59. In this connection Mr. Orr wants it to be observed that "when negroes enter any other field of labor requiring skill and intelligence, their service can be procured for much less than you have to pay white men. It is only as a day laborer that the negro receives the same compensation as the white man." Having brought to notice this Georgia sense of discrimination, we are not surprised that Mr. Orr should say that: "Our school law simply requires county boards to employ teachers. The terms and conditions are as they ought to be an open question," and that in some counties boards "discriminate on the ground of qualifications," and in others they engage teachers as other laborers are employed, at what their services can be procured for. The facilities for cheapness are certainly very fair under this accommodating law, and naturally suggests some inquiry as to the thoroughness of the work performed, in those instances where proper qualifications may be dispensed with, Mr. Orr in a clever Bourbon way, seriously, and not as a joke as some good people might suppose, tells the colored people if they are not satisfied with half a loaf they can go without any bread, in the educational sense;

"I am sorry to see the claim of representation on the boards put forward on a recent occasion by the colored people. I take this opportunity of saying to my colored friends this claim will not be allowed. Men who contribute only one-forty-fourth part of the expenses of government, ought not to ask to be put in control of funds raised for a legitimate object of governmental expenditure. It is true that colored people contribute nearly all of what is paid for the education of their children, as has already been shown, but they are made to do this, as has also been shown, by so electing the sources of school revenue as to put all that they pay into the school fund. I must say to them, if they persist in urging the claim set forth by them, the only effect will be to put in jeopardy the precious privileges now bestowed upon their children.

In some parts of this country it has passed into a trite saying that "taxation without representation is tyranny." If Mr. Orr ever heard of that in his early days he has been so long under the sway of the Stephens, and Toombs' idea of one class being used as a corner-stone for the governmental fabric of another, that really it is out of the question for Negroes to be allowed to exercise the prerogatives of citizenship. While Mr. Orr's logic might answer for an autocracy founded on wealth, it cannot apply to American citizens who are somewhat emancipated from the effete ideas of the middle ages. The colored voters and parents in Georgia, by virtue of their citizenship and direct interest in the welfare of their children, have a right to be heard in the school boards of Georgia, and should continue to press it. No friend of education should be disposed to deny it.

The death of Wendell Phillips took place in Boston on Saturday last, after a brief illness from heart disease. Mr. Phillips was one of the great Abolitionists, and one of the most eloquent of American orators. He belonged to that heroic band, once a mere handful, who began the moral, religious and statesmanlike war upon slavery amid persecution, and lived to see their work exalted by the nation. Mr. Phillips had attained the ripe age of 72 years, and goes to his grave mourned by all lovers of liberty in the civilized world.

The Columbus, (Miss.) Index in an appreciative editorial on our conference in that State notes, "They are increasing in membership constantly, and doining much to improve the colored people of the State." Rev J. M. Shumpert, presiding elder of Jackson district, will reside hereafter at Jackson or Vicksburg.

In Wurtemberg the Ministers of the Interior has ordered the police authorities to take care that no one of either sex under 16 is permitted, except at wedding festivities, to dance in places of public amusement.

—Sir Moses Montefiore will soon be 100 years old. A meeting of the trustees and ministers of various New York and Brooklyn congregations, with a number of prominent Hebrew gentlemen, will be held in New York to consider what steps can be taken to commemorate his birthday. The Jews have already organized for the purpose and have decided upon a convalescent home for all sects to be erected in his honor. The meeting will be for the purpose of deciding what form of of memorial will be most appropriate in this country.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

S. R. Mason, Shreveport: "On Dec. 25th, Sister Georgia Wadley, while on her way to Shreveport with Mr. R. Adkins, was thrown from her horse upon her head and back, receiving serious injuries. She was picked up and carried home. The accident is attributed to the careless driving of Henry Smallwood, thought to have been intoxicated, who was arrested and held for trial. Mrs. Wadley had been teaching school on Scott circuit for several years, had a fine school at Scott chapel, and was on her way home to see her mother. She is now unable to walk."

TEXAS.

M. Henson, San Antonio: "The cause here looms up grandly."

W. H. Jackson, Brenham: "I send you herewith eleven subscribers. I succeeded a good man, L. W. Horn. Elder Pullam held first quarterly conference during cold weather, and there was a good attendance."

W. Harmes, Jewett: "In the treasurers' report I see $6 credited to Doctor Morris. I was placed on the Leona work Aug. 19, 1883, and served until conference; nothing had been collected previously, but I collected and sent to the conference $7.50 by order to W. Ripetoe, Nov. 26, 1883. I desire this correction to be made."

E. D. Turner, Butler: "The relations of Elder Walter Ripetoe with our people were always pleasant and profitable. Many God bless him, and add to his life 15 years. We hope to see him again, and hear him sing and pray."

A. Jackson, McKinney. "I am out on my work. I found the public school going on in the church building here. The house was broken open to have a frolic and festival, and was damaged. All is confusion. We wish to hear from Elder Gates, and have him send or bring the deed."

J. R. Carnes, Waco: "Our first quarterly conference was held on the 19th inst. Rev. S. Gates P. E. was at his post. We had a very interesting time, discussing some very important disciplinary questions, in which our able elder did not fail to take a judicious part; his counsel to the officers was both wise, instructive, and interesting. The reports of the class leaders showed that there remains much room for improvement. (The weather is very changable, first cold, and then warm.) On Sunday we took a five mile drive out into the country to Bro. Brown's appointment, where we preached to a crowded house of anxious hearers. The emblems of the broken body and the shed blood of our Savior not being prepared, we dismissed the people, and started for the city again, where we met at 3 o'clock p.m. quite a number of our people, who had assembled themselves in the St. James M. E. Church, to hear their much beloved elder preach; not was their coming together in vain, for the elder preached a very interesting sermon, which seeme to carry the minds of our people up to a throne of grace. At 7 o'clock we had the pleasure of listening to another interesting discourse, delivered by him, which was like manna to our thirsty souls. Our church was crowded almost to its uttermost capacity. Had we the necessary sittings we could accommodate a hundred more, of the many who come to hear the word of God preached in the St. James M. E. Church. Collection for presiding elder, $16.40. Our love feast was a success, many spoke for the Lord. The Holy Ghost pervaded."

E. Jefferson, Hempstead: "The work here is prospering. Our first quarterly conference was held by Elder Pullam. The Sabbath-school has suffered from bad weather."

I. B. Scott, Galveston: "In reply to Rev. J. E. Shackelford, of Navasota, who corrects (as he supposes) the report of the Texas Conference Treasurer, I wish to say he corrects that which is not a mistake. The brother says his collections were $45, and not $35 as reported. Had he taken the trouble to read the entire report he would have found that the treasurer gave him credit for $45 just what he claims. But as $10 of the amount was in a receipt from his presiding elder, W. L. Molloy, it was so reported. This, no one understands better than Bro. Shackelford. Surely he did not expect me to report that receipt as cash, and become responsible to the conference for it! In future I hope he will know better than to pay his benevolent money to an unauthorized party, then he will not find occasion to reflect on the treasurer by saying, 'I desire to give credit to whom credit is due.' If this be his desire I hope he will hereafter be able to accomplish it by doing so."

A. C. Calbreath, Huntsville: "Elder Lee held our first quarter. All presented written reports. The estimating committees made their report for the ministry $466; for preacher $400; for elder $66. This is a good beginning for the circuit."

TENNESSEE.

L. M. Moores, Cleveland: "On reaching this place from conference we found all watching and waiting for us. Bro. Bristol conveyed us to our dwelling, a nice two-room building, ceiled and papered, having a nice stove, and a large pile of wood in the yard. There was a hot fire and something to eat ready for us, and a host of friends to be introduced to the pastor. Cleveland is a nice little city, with 12 churches—5 colored and 7 white—4 high schools, 3 societies, 27 stores, 5 good meat markets, 4 hotels, 7 boarding-houses, six blacksmith shops, 1 carriage shop, 2 harness shops, 2 marble yards, 1 stove foundry, 1 cotton gin, 2 planing mills, 1 flour mill, 1 corn mill, 2 livery stables, 3 shoe shops, 2 undertakers, 1 furniture store; and of course Satan has set up a few of his buildings, and is represented by five saloons, 2 printing offices, 3 doctors, 1 colored alderman and 8 lawyers. I never met a kinder people, and have not seen a drunken man since came; it is a perceable place, and all seem to be doing well."

From Columbus District.

Mr. Editor—I desire to say a few things about the Columbus District. I commenced the work of holding quarterly conferences on the district at Columbus, January 12th and 13th; found the pastor, Rev. W. H. Davis, at his post, had his people all notified of my coming, and we had a nice time. Nearly all the brethren were present and seemed to be glad to meet the new presiding elder. On Sunday we met the Sunday-school. I am sorry to say that the Sunday-school in Columbus is not what it ought to be, but I think it will be soon. I preached at 3 o'clock and at night to a nice congregation, the collection resulted in the sum of $21.10. The 16th and 17th found us at Alleyton, where we were met at the depot by Rev. E. Cogswell, the pastor. And then we enjoyed a nice little walk from there to the parsonage. We held the quarter at 3 in the evening, everything passed off nicely. On the night of the 17th notwithstanding the bad weather the people turned out and gave us $4.70. From here we went to the nice little village of Oakland, abont 8 miles from the railroad. We were met at the depot by Rev. E. E. Cooper, and we had a nice ride in a wagon from there to Oakland. On the evening of the 19th we met the brethren of the quarterly conference, and had a nice time. The reports were very good. These people are very well up with times. I preached on Sunday, at night we enjoyed ourselves in a grand love feast. The collection at this place was $11.95. On Monday morning I visited the school-room where we found Prof. M. J. Snowden engaged in teaching. I had the pleasure of addressing the school, also hearing a class in longitude and time. It has been said that the colored people could not learn, but I say they are coming. I was met there by Brother Miles, one of Rev. L. H. Ponton's stewards, who accompanied me to the place known as the Boxville circuit. Next day, the 22ed, we left for a point on this circuit by the name of Greenville, on horse back, about 10 miles through mud and water. We reached the place abont 2 o'clock and found a little school taught by a Mr. Kelley, of Halletsville. We stayed here waiting for the pastor and brethren until after 4 o'clock, but they did not come. We went up to Mr. Green's, a friend to our church, who give us some thing to eat; after supper we went back down to the little Log house where we met a few of the school children and four or five old people but no pastor. Next morning we started back to Brown's chapel, on our way we were met by a very severe Norther, and we were over taken by Brother Pontou, the preacher in charge. On meeting him I was informed that the A. M. E.'s had got in among the people and told them such awful lies that they had nearly all gone over into that church. Mr. Editor these A. M. E.'s, as a general thing, ont in such a place as this means confusion; they have got the people in such a state, or condition that they cannot do them any good, neither can we. Boxville circuit is in a bad condition, but we hope for a better. On the night of 24th I preached for Brother Cooper's people at Brown's chapel. I had the pleasure of visiting the school at this place and hearing several classes in arithmetic. This school is conducted by Prof. Williams, a nice young man of our church. Our people here have just finished for themselves a nice church, which I will dedicate for them on the 12th of April. On the morning of the 25th I left, in company with Brother Mayo, for a distance of 10 miles to Schulenberg, where we took the train in company with Rev. P. Johnson, the pastor, and came up to Flatonia. Times looked a little dry, but next day we met a few of the brethren and held the quarterly. Sunday it rained, and I went over home to see my wife, found them well, and left them so. I will leave here for Waelder and Peach Creek. You shall hear from me again. Yours truly. P. M. Carmichael.

Houston Burris.

Dear Editor.—Impelled by a sense of duty accompanied by the request of loved ones, I ask for space in your paper for a few remark in reference to the death of our much esteemed and venerable citizen Houston Burris, which occurred at five o'clock on the morning of the 5th inst. His home was Yazoo City, where he has resided from youth, and by his manly course of conduct established a reputation to be coveted by all the lovers of morality and character. He was the son of a widowed mother who spent her life in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and gave to her boy by precept and example a moral and Christian education. At the age of ten, in the town of Benton, he claims to have embraced the Christian religion. His faith and practice differed somewhat. At mature age he took a wife of the daughters of Canton, Ella Montgomery by name, daughter of the widow Garrett, of precious memory in the the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose Christian deportment and influence permeated itself through the entire family. The zeal and integrity of that wife compled with other influences, held Burris in check until his family increased to the number of three, perhaps four. During these years he acquired property, until he could boast of a considerable fortune. The confidence of the county united in him and he was once its treasurer. As a citizen, he was useful. As a son, he was obedient. As a husband, he was affectionate. As a father, he was indulgent. As a neighbor, he was kind and obliging. As a lover of the good cause, the churches of Yazoo City, without distinction can testify as they all shared largely in his Christ-like benevolence. To my personal knowledge of the fact to Hon. H. Burris more than any other do we owe our success for the erection of the church building owned by the Methodist Episcopal Church in Yazoo City. The noble traits in his character will not be forgotten. It was apparent for some time that his health was not good and in the beginning of 1884 he declined rapidly, he saw the blue taper growing dimly to a point. He said to his faithful and loving wife: "I am near the end, yet I do not regret it." His faith began to wax strong. His confidence was encouraged, his hope reviewed and his love increased until with these graces the busy wheel of life stood still. J.

A dispatch from Matamoras, Mexico, says that Rev. Father Damazo Soto, of Concordia, in the State of Vera Cruz, has discovered a key to the Aztec writings.

Chattanooga District.

Mr. Editor.—I have just closed my first round. I commenced prosecuting the work on my district the first Saturday and Sunday after the annual conference closed. Chattanooga circuit, Rev. John Crawford pastor, had but short time to get ready for the quarterly conference though the reports were fair. Mr. John L. Devine, a wealthy gentleman living three miles from the city of Chattanooga deeded to the M. E. Church two-and-a-half acres of land for church and school purposes, provided we build a respectable house. That we have promised to do. This lot is worth $250; it lies about 2½ or 3 miles from the city.

Cleveland Circuit, Rev. H. N. Brown pastor. Bro. Brown remained here half of the first quarter; then accepted appointment in the Savannah Conference, so as to go to school. Rev. L. W. Moores was transferred from the Tennessee to the East Tennessee conference and took charge of the Cleveland circuit. He anticipates trying to commence building a new church which is badly needed.

Ebeneezer Circuit, Rev. J. Warren pastor. Not many of the members of the quarterly conference ont. The reports not so encouragigg as we would like to have them. The committee on estimating the pastor's salary promised a very liberal salary. The people are very poor, but they say they will pay as far as they are able.

Sweetwater Circuit, Rev. Alex. Roach pastor. This is a new work; with no church building on the circuit. Bro. Roach has made a good impression on the people on this circuit. If we could get money to aid the circuit it would advance Methodism.

Washington circuit, Rev. James Garnell pastor. Bro. Garnell is holding his own. There has been no special revival on the work, though there had been 4 or 5 taken in full fellowship. By the request of the pastor I appointed Rev. C. W. Walton assistant pastor.

Kingston Circuit, Rev. J. T. Henry, pastor. Bro. Henry has taken several in the church since he came on the work. Finances moderate.

Robertsville Circuit, Rev. J. W. Burnett pastor. This charge has gone down to some extent. The Oakdale Blasting Furnace shut down; and the hands had to go elsewhere to seek employment. This was the best charge on the circuit. Twenty or twenty-five members have moved off. Nothing of importance has been done this year on the circuit.

Soddy Circuit, Rev. Clem Shaw pastor. Bro. Shaw is having a hard time, but he says he is going to stick to his work. I think if he will stick to his duty he will get more to live on.

Jasper County, P. P. Brooks, pastor. Brother Brooks is a transfer from the Tennessee to the East Tennessee Conference.

When I held his conference I found the people were taking right hold of him and trying to give a support. This charge had suffered last year beyond expression. Brother Brooks has had several additions to the house, also anticipates to commence building a new church at South Pittsburgh, a blasting furnace in Marion County.

Big Spring Circuit, Rev. A. J. Fletcher, pastor. Brother Fletcher is doing an excellent work. The people are well pleased with him. At Burkets Chapel they are preparing to build a church. The stewards have bought him a fine beast to ride over his circuit. They paid $125 for him. He has had some additions to the church.

Riceville Circuit, Rev. Robert Mason, pastor. There is no church property on this circuit. The people are very poor and need to be pitied.

Georgetown Circuit, Rev. Moses Cox, pastor. The pastor has moved on this circuit and has had some success on part of the circuit. The people are very poor and have very poor houses to worship in.

Chatanooga Circuit, Rev. D. W. Hayes, pastor. Brother Hayes has had no spiritual revival but has had some additions to the church. The finances were moderate. The Sunday-schools are well organized and doing a good work.

Brother Hayss has a lyceum organized for the improvement of the young people, or all who will take part with them, which is proving a blessing to all.

We do ask the church for its prayers, for we are determined to do what we can to bring this world to Christ. E. Provine, P. E.

Chattanooga, Tennessee. Feb. 15th.

Gen. Hawley's announcement that his committee will undertake a thorough canvass of the Southern States, if it is on the line suggested by the Advertiser, does credit to his sagacity and patriotism. His orators, if they really have the courage to hazard their lives in the undertaking, will have immense audiences and the most considerate treatment. The South knows how to distinguish between honorable and high-toned gentlemen and the slanderers and incendiary partisans that have brought the Republican party into such disrepute here. Not only this, but the worthy Northern statesment will meet, on the stump here Southern Democratic orators who will vie with them in respectful courtesy, and discuss with them the issues of the day on broad, enlightened principles. We have heard our fathers tell of the glorious old political contests of ante bellum times, but it really seems like a delusion to hope for a repetition of such discussions.—Savannnah News (Dem.)

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

At LaGrange, Ga., the people voted "no public school" by a large majority.

It is proposed to hold a national convention of commercial men at Atlantic, Ga., in the spring.

The Prince of Wales has received many menacing letters, and extra precautions for his protection are being taken.

Gov. Waller, Democratic Governor of Connecticut, has appointed a colored man on the Board of State Prison Directors.

The agrarian agitation continues in Russia. Appeals to the educated classes have appeared to join in struggle against absolution.

The Spanish government seized Senor Castellar's organ, El Globo, and intends to prohibit the holding of banquets on Feb. 11 in honor of the Republic of 1874.

The Boston Advertiser and the Philadelphia Press, advocates a canvass of the South by strong Northern Republican stump speakers in the coming campaign.

Herr Johan Frantz Luther heads a colony of Germans, 500 strong, who are on their way to southern California, where they will settle as farmers. They will not plant vine yards, such is their hostility to all that can intoxicate.

The Cumming, Ga., Clarion says: "Indictments are pending in several counties in the State against persons who voted without paying their taxes the preceding year. From the number that is likely to be placed on the insolvent list for this county for last year a good many will be deprived of voting this year."

Gen eral Lew Wallace, the American Minister, has demanded from the Porte an indemnity of £2,000 on account of the illegal arrest of Dr. Pfaum, an American, by the Governor of Ascos; also an indemnity for the American travellers who was recently attacked by Kurdish brigands in Anatolia.

An Alabama Justice of the Peace who was tardy in paying over a claim of $20 collected in a suit which he had adjudicated, being offended at the tone of a letter from the claimant asking for the money, promptly paid the claim by check, less $2 50, which he fined the claimant for contempt of court because of the letter in question.

The Housekeeper.

TO CLEAN THE INSIDE OF A COFFEE POT.—To clean a tea or coffee pot that has become discolored inside, put into it a teaspoonful of saleratus and fill two thirds full of water, and let it boil two hours. Wash and rinse well before using.

A BAKED OMELET.—A baked omelet is quickly made, and is certain to be light. Heat one pint of sweet milk, and put a dessert spoonful of butter in it while hot; stir in a heaping tea-spoonful of flour wet with cold milk; when smooth beat the eggs very light with it, and stir into the hot milk; add also a tea-spoonful of salt. Bake in a pudding dish in a hot oven. It may also be served with sauce as a pudding.—Cincinnati Times.

SAVORY BOULETTES.—These are perhaps best made of beef; but they are excellent made of mutton, hare, game, or any kind of brown meat. To a pound of beefsteak allow a quarter of a pound of suet, chop them together finely, flavor with chopped parsley and lemon peel, a little piece of pounded mace, a little grate of ginger, a very little cayenne pepper, a tea-spoonful of sugar and a little salt. Mix them with four tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs and the yolk and white of an egg well beaten. These be well mixed together, and then formed into balls about the size of a Tangerine orange. Have ready made a good brown gravy, which must be boiling when the boulettes are put in; let them stew gently for four hours over a slow fire, taking care that the lid of the stewpan be perfectly closed. They should be piled up in the center of a dish, with a border of dressed spinach, sorrel, endive or mashed potatoes.

TO PLANT.—Cut the plant into pieces not more than half an inch thick, remove all of the purple rind, then season with pepper and salt between each piece and cover with a plate; let them remain an hour, then dip each piece separately, first into beaten raw eggs, then into fine cracker dust, and fry them to a light brown in hot butter.

CHEESE CAKES.—Take one pound of butter, two eggs, one tea-spoonful of moist sugar, the grated rind and juice of two lemons, one stale Savoy cake finely grated. Mix all these ingredients together, and then simmer over the fire a few minutes in a saucepan. Have some patty pans lined with puff paste. Put a very small portion of the mixture into each pan, and bake fifteen or twenty minutes in a rather quick oven. This quantity will make about one dozen and a half cheese cakes.

CURRY.—Scoop out carefully the centre of a moulded rice cake, so as to leave the border entire. Fill the cavity with curry, then cover with a cover and place it in a plate with a little light wine and water. This should cover it with a little absorbed. Cover all over with sweet herbs finely chopped and cut finely, fill the dish with custard, and cover the latter with grated cheese.

TO MAKE OAKE.—Roast some potatoes in the oven. When done, pound them in a mortar, with a little warmed in a stewpan, a shallot and a little parsley very finely, add pepper and salt, shape into cakes; roll them, crumb them and fry brown.

A remedy to the Times has the following cure for the bite of hydrophobia: Take four grains of calomel, two grains of tartar emetic. Fifteen minutes after the mixture taken a tea-spoonful of whisky and repeat every fifteen minutes, should be absorbed. Wash all over with sweet spirits

The supreme court has affirmed the decision of the Howard county circuit court in the cases of Charles Wright, Henry Carr and Lige Thompson, sentenced to be hanged on the 25th inst. The court gives no reason for its action. These men are three of the thirty-three men indicted for riot and murder in the "Howard county riot" cases. The only hope now is that the governor may be induced to extend executive clemency in the cases.—Arkansas Herald.

The smallest saving bank in the world, the directors of which are the smallest directors in the world, is the Irving Penny Savings Bank, of Brooklyn, established in public School No. 9. It has, according to its last annual report, 144 accounts, and the total amount in bank on December 1, was $267.33. The bank pays 4 per cent. interest on sums over $5. Each depositor has a tiny bank-book. The officers of the bank are boys and girls. The accounts of the bank are audited quarterly by the trustees of the school. The bank receives 1 cent deposits.

Blessed Benefactors.

When a board of eminent physicians and chemists announced the discovery that by combining some well-known valuable remedies the most wonderful medicine was produced, which would cure such a range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors. These Bitters are compounded from Hops, Buchu, Malt, Mandrake, and Dandelion, and other oldest, best, and most valuable medicines in the world, and all the best and most curative properties of all other medicines, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Kidney and Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill-health can possibly long exist where the Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic, and mild Stimulant, these Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use the Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. ☞$500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

Do not suffer yourself or your friend suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

Remember, Hop Bitters is the purest and best medicine ever made; the Invalid's Friend and Hope." No person or family should be without them.

"I was troubled for many years with serious Kidney and Liver Complaint, Gravel, etc.; my blood became thin; I was dull and inactive; could hardly crawl about, and was an old, worn-out man all over, and could get nothing to help me, until I got Hop Bitters, and now I am a boy again. My blood is pure, kidneys are all right, and I am as active as a man of 30, although I am 72"— FATHER.

"For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with such a complication of ailments that no doctor could tell what was the matter or cure her, and I used up a small fortune in humbling stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flag with Hop Bitters on it, and I thought I would be a fool once more, and I tried it; but my folly proved to be wisdom, and two bottles cured her. She is now as well and strong as any man's wife and it cost me only $2. H. W.—Detroit, Mich.

A preacher in the Pacific Conference, after the appointments were made, wrote: "I never saw such a shaking up in my life. The trouncing was almost universal. We went up like beans from the end of a shingle. Many of us crossed in mid-air, and come down with astonishment."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-1y

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the Savannah MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR,

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefully edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

"I SEE THE SHIP THAT BRINGS MY LOVE."
A New and Beautiful Waltz Song, by H. J. Fulmer.
"She stood beside the moonlit sea,
Alone in the silent night,
The wind blew softly o'er the lea,
And stars in the sky were bright;
The light of joy was in her eyes,
And thus she sang in glee:
I see the ship, the gallant ship
That brings my love to me."

Editorial Notes.

There is a singular dearth of news from the hostile forces in Tonquin. The French found 25,000 Chinese regulars in possession of Bacninh, and hesitated to attack with their small army.

We know of no State that can equal Kentucky in the nature and variety of its products. According to the papers this State has actually produced a nineteen year old young gentleman, named Miles Hall, who has already married four young women, borrowed their money and jewels, and deserted them.

The reports in our church papers indicate a great degree of religious prosperity. In the last issue of the Central over one thousand are reported as converted to God, and 814 added to the church. It is evident that a genuine spiritual revival is passing over the country. Christians need to keep their feet in the way of the Lord, and their hearts and hands employed in doing their Master's work.

The victories of El Mahdi, the false prophet, have spread consternation along the Southern border of Egypt. England is censured for her failure to make her virtual occupation a complete one, and leaving the powerless Khedive to comfort El Mahdi with a mere handful of undisciplined and disaffected troops. It is probable, however, that there will be a turn in affairs, and Egypt will soon be free from fears of the false prophet.

The Senate of the United States is taking excellent care of itself. It has not exactly voted each Senator a farm, but it has done what some think is much better. Each member hereafter is to have a clerk. The reason assigned for this strange action is that the Senators have so many letters to answer that they have not time to attend to the legitimate work of legislation. In some instances this excuse is doubtless plausible, but how is it with those Senators who spend half of their time in playing poker!

Despite the opposition of the liquor dealers fraternity, the corrupt and demoralizing influences of money, political and social power, the power of appetite and avarice, it is generally conceded that the moral sentiment of this nation is on the advancing. The irrepressible conflict seems to be upon us. Politicians and political parties have declared over and over again that the one thing to prohibit in this country is prohibition. But it will not down. The friends of sobriety, morality and religion are becoming more closely united, and are terribly in earnest, and have determined that the saloons shall no longer control this country. The dilly dallying politicians have had their day. The people are calling for an aggressive movement.

For the year ending November 30, 1883, there were in Texas 433 indictments for murder, 257 trials with 114 convictions, and 130 acquittals, leaving 175 cases pending awaiting trial. There were 3,497 indictments for felony, 1,599 trials resulting in 715 convictions and 815 acquittals, with 1898 prosecutions for felony still pending. Quite a noticeable feature of the administration of justice (or the want of it) is that the acquitals outnumber the convictions. But the most startling is the immense number of criminals whose trials were pending at the time the Attorney General made this statement. One other fact worthy of notice: there were thirty-one county clerks that had not reported, so the actual indictments for murder and felony were much greater than the above figures show. The millennium has not reached Texas yet.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate, (M. E. Church South) is very much agitated because Frederick Douglass has married a white woman. It represents the colored people of the country as indignant at the course he has taken, as saying that this act is "equivalent to a declaration that no colored woman was good enough for him." It is only in the dark that men see ghosts. We do not see this matter as our esteemed contemporary. Nor do we understand why Mr. Douglass should be censured for this manifestation of affection towards the white race. He belongs to both races. The example of intermingling of races was set him by his Southern ancestors more than a century ago. He himself is the product of illegitimate miscegenation. His grandfather, we believe, was a white man. It is too late to cry out against the intermingling of the races. No power on earth can prevent it.

The Senate committee on education and labor has ordered a favorable report on Mr. Blair's educational bill which is to be modified so that the funds shall be distributed through State authorities. The bill will, provide for the appropriation of $15,000,000 the first year, decreasing $1,000,000 thereafter for 10 years. The bill makes the teaching of industrial art in the schools mandatory when practicable. To us there are two serious mistakes in this bill. The first is the allowing the funds to be distributed through the State authorities. A State that only provides thirty cents per capita for the education of her school population cannot be trusted to handle large educational funds. Second, the decrease is far too rapid. It will take ten years to get the schools well established in some sections, much longer than that if the funds are to be distributed through State authorities. We should say let there be no decreasing this fund for the first ten years, and then $500,000 each year for twenty years. These ignorant masses will not become educated in a day or a year. It will be the work of many years. There will be need of patience, perseverance and money. Let the work be done, but count the cost.

Georgia Correspondence.

Action of the Senate in regard to outrages in Virginia and Mississippi.

On the 23rd. of Jan. the following resolutions were introduced by Senator Sherman;

Whereas, among the expressed objects for which the constitution of the United States was established, were these, to establish justice and insure domestic tranquility; and

Whereas, the constitution provides for security to all citizens of equal civil rights, and to all citizens the privileges and immunities that belong to the condition of citizenship, and that the right of citizenship of the United States to vote shall not be denied by the United States, or any state, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, and further provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws; and

Whereas, among the privileges and immunities inherent in citizenship are the right peaceably to assemble for the consideration of questions of state and national concern, and in safety to discuss the same, and the right to exercise and use the franchise in every state freely, and without molestation or intimidation; and

Whereas, a general election was to occur and did occur in the state of Virginia on the 6th day of November, 1883; and

Whereas, it is alleged and currently reported in the public press that on or about the 3d day of November, 1883, at Danville, in said state, a large number of peaceable citizens of the United States and of said state, were violently assailed by an organized body of men and fired upon, and several of them killed by said armed men, conspiring to affect, and with the purpose of affecting, the result of said election, so about to occur, by creating, by means of such unlawful violence, a state of alarm on the part of peaceable citizens throughout said state, which should induce them to refrain from voting or to vote differently from their previous intention at said election; and

Whereas, it is alleged that all the victims of said attack were of one race and of one political party, and all their assailants of another; and

Whereas, it is alleged that the authorities of said state of Virginia have not brought any of the persons connected with said alleged conspiracies, violence and homicides before the courts of justice for examination or trial, whereby the equal rights of citizenship and the equal protection of the laws have not been secured to all the people of said state; and,

Whereas a general election was to occur and did occur in the state of Mississippi on the 18th day of November, 1883; and,

Whereas, it is alleged and currently reported in the public press that prior to said election, in the county of Copiah, state of Mississippi, there was an organized movement by members of one party to prevent the members of another party from voting at that election and to prevent the free and open discussion and expression of political opinions, that this purpose was carried into execution by organized plans of terror and violence; that the means used for that purpose were by lawless and organized mobs, moving by night and by day, assaulting and in some cases killing lawful voters, with a view, by terror and fear of violence, to deter others from voting; that this violence was committed by one party, upon the members of another party with the view to deprive the latter of their constitutional rights, and extended throughout said county of Copiah, and into portions of other counties of that state; that as part of this general plan and conspiracy one J. P. Matthews, a peaceable and law abiding citizen of Copiah county, was warned not to vote, and upon his voting on the day of the election was murdered at the place of election by a person selected for that purpose with the approval, express or implied, of the officers of the election, and no effort made to punish the murderer; that his killing was subsequently approved by a public meeting in said town, composed entirely of members of one party, and by such public meeting it was justified and approved, and the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, certain rumors are current that the relatives of J. P. Matthews, have threatened the peace of society in order to avenge his death by killing Democrats and destroying their property, now, therefore be it

Resolved, by the people of Copiah county, in mass meeting assembled this day, at the courthouse of said county, that if any person shall be injured or an attempt made to injure him, either in person or property, in any manner by said relatives and friends of said J. P. Matthews, that we hereby decare that we will hold his said relatives and friends who participate, acountable for the same, and that we will regard them as without the pale and protection of the law, and common enemies of society, and that we will visit upon them certain, swift retribution. Be it further

Resolved, That so long as the friends and relatives of said J. P. Mathews obey the laws and become good citizens, we hereby pledge them the protection of the law.

Resolved further, That in the opinion of this meeting it is necessary to the safety of society and the welfare of all races and classes in this county that the Matthews family shall deep out of politics in Copiah county.

Resolved further, That from henceforth no man, or set of men, shall organize the negro race against the whites in this county; and if it shall be attempted in future, we hereby give notice that it shall be at the peril of the person or persons attempting to do so.

Resolved, That we do hereby pledge ourselves each to the other our sacred honor that we will, all and individually, from henceforth hold ourselves in readiness to enforce the foresaid resolution, and to meet at any time upon the call of the chairman of this meeting.

Resolved, That a committee of twenty-four from each supervisor's district be appointed by the chair to present a copy of these resolutions to the brothers and sons of the late J. P. Matthews and that the same be published in the Copiah Signal and the Crystal Springs Meteor.

Resolved, By the citizens of Copiah county, in mass meeting, that the public trust which has heretofore been worn, and worthily so, by beat No. 2, be and the same are hereby awarded to beat No. 3, Be it further

Resolved, That this resolution is by no means intended to reflect upon the past and present services of beat No. 2, but to show our appreciation of the result of the election of the ticket in beat No. 3. It is also

Resolved, That the clubs continue their organization and consider themselves not disbanded, subject to the call of the chairman of the Democratic executive committee.

Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting be extended to the Hazelhurst brass band for their services on this occasion. Signed by J. L. Mead, chairman; Jesse Thompson, Jr., C. J. Allen, secretaries; and

Whereas, it is alleged that the authorities of the state of Mississippi have utterly failed and neglected to protect and preserve the citizens of that state in the equal enjoyment of civil and Political rights, but have, in some cases, contributed to their overthrow, and have failed to punish or bring to trial persons alleged to be guilty of conspiracies, violence and homicides above stated, in disregard of the equal rights of citizenship, in the equal protection of the law as guaranteed to all the people of that state; therefore,

Resolved, that the committee on privileges and elections be and is hereby instructed to inquire into all the circumstances of, and connected with said alleged events, and into the condition of the constitutional rights and securities before named of the people of Virginia and Mississippi, and that it report by bill or otherwise, as soon as may be, and that it have power to send for persons and papers, and sit during the sittings of the Senate, and that it may employ a stenographer or stenographers.

At a subsequent period the Senate adopted them, without opposition from the Democratic side of the chamber. This is a wholesome sign indicating that some Senator on that side of the house is well acquainted with the Scriptures and willing to carry his convictions with him into political life. Possibly he had on his mind the Sixth Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," or Paul's words to Thimothy, "Neither be partakers of other men's sins;" and, second, he was endowed with sufficient wisdom and power to sustain his associates from defending murderers or their acts. But what is the duty of the colored men of those counties in Mississippi and Virginia where their friends have been murdered? Nonresistance is scriptural, and suits their weak condition best. But one clear duty remains, and that they should do. Arise and flee from the scene of oppression. Let not a colored man remain in the county of Copiah that can get away. Stand not on the order of going, but go, and go quickly. If you have hired for a year or a month, keep all your engagements honorably, but after that go from the county. A community that in this year of the nineteenth century dares to place such resolutions on record as have been thus produced in the Senate of the United States, deserves to be left to the undisputed posession of those who enacted them. There must be other counties in Mississippi where you will be free and safe; seek them out, or go out of the State entirely. If you can not do better come to Georgia, where there are strong men on both sides of the political line to defend you.

And let me say a word to the Southern gentlemen who may chance to read this: Be careful or a clarion blast that will produce a national exodus of your most valued laborers may be sounded, and when removed you will find it hard to fill their places.

South Carolina Conference.

The 19th session of the South Carolina Conference convened at Sumter, Jan. 16. Bishop Bowman, on opening gave an interesting address on Perfect Love, after which the Lord's supper was administered. J. B. Middleton was elected secretary, W. R. Jersey statistical, J. Wofford White, D. M. Minns, and James R. Townsend assistants. The first day was taken up in discussing matters of local import, and at night there was an enthusiastic educational meeting. Prof. Thirkield, of Gammon Theological Institute, Atlanta, and Dr. J. C. Hartzell, of the Freedmen's Aid Society, made addresses. The second day's proceedings consisted in hearing reports and passing the character of the elders. There has been an increase in membership churches, and benevolences, and a decrease in the indebtedness of the Churches. Rev. A. H. Gillet addressed the anniversary of the Sunday-school Union and Tract Society. On the third day the electoral conference elected to the General Conference C. C. Bomar, of Spartanburg, and Jacob Almon, of Marlboro. The former ministerial delegates were reelected. They are, A. Webster, the organizer of the work in the State, and J. E. Wilson, a model presiding elder. L. M. Dunton and J. B. Middleton were elected alternates. Dr. Kynett, represented the Church Extension Board. Sunday morning the servicee began with a conference love-feast, conducted by A. Middleton. At 11:30 a most spiritual and useful sermon was preached by Bishop Bowman. Dr. C. H. Fowler, at 3:30 P. M., gave a most interesting and [illegible]ective address on the subject Missions. At night there was a temperance mass-meeting J. W. White, M. K. Holloway, J. E. Lowery, J. A. Brown, and E. M. Pinckney were the speakers. The enthusiasm for temperance ran high on that occasion. L. M. Dunton having been elected vice-president of Claflin University, could, therefore, remain no longer presiding elder, and resolutions in commendation of his administration, as well as the effective work of his wife in the temperance and Sunday-school causes, were unanimously adopted.

Russia appears to be losing her preeminence as the granary of Europe in face of such conpeting countries as America and India, but whether or not she can yet claim to be a great manufacturing country may be seen from the fact that acoording to statistics lately compiled in the Ministry of Finance, there are just 17,176 large manufactories and works of all kinds in the 52 provinces—an extent of land as big as the rest of Europe—with not more than 800,000 work people employed. This total does not include 15,272 small establishments of the peasants of not more than five workers to each, where chiefly articles of domestic use are wrought, and has been calculated for the purpose of regulating infant and female labor in works and factories.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

W. H. Jackson, Brenham Circuit: "I entered my work Dec. 14, 1884, and found a Christian-like band of officers in the person of Bro. Alex. Harkett and Bro. Jackson Harris, who made everything comfortable for my family. Rev. W. B. Pullam, presiding elder, held my first quarterly meeting, but the weather was so bad that we could not get a congregation. Elder's collection was $1.50. Preacher's salary was fixed at $400 for 1884. I have sent you 7 subscribers and will send as many more when weather breaks. God bless the publishers and editors. I hope that they may receive more than $70 for their labors this year. If every preacher will do his duty we can have 5000 subscribers; brethren don't forget the paper. Pray for the upbuilding of the churches."

MISSISSIPPI.

N. D. Sidney, Yazoo City: "We are pleased with the return of our pastor, Rev. P. Harris. He is one who tries to build up the cause of God, and is respected and loved by all. He has almost completed our new church; there is no dissension, and we are prosperous financially and spiritually. Bro. Harris has a loving wife, who is a helper to the work."

ARKANSAS.

G. B. Donelly: Goodlett: "I have had more trouble on my work this year than was contemplated; received for pastoral support only $125 as yet."

TENNESSEE.

A. Phillips, Murfreesboro: "We are not froze out yet. The weather has been very cold, but we have held all our regular church services and Sunday-school. Our congregations have been small. Some of our people have suffered for want of fuel. They are complaining a great deal about the cold. I tell them that God will take care of the heavens, and it is our business to prepare for them as they come. I think I will be able to send in a list of subscribers in a few weeks. I am well aware of the fact that no church can be a progressive one without reading the church literature. A great many complain that they are not able to take the church paper for the year round. I am asking them to take the paper 3 or 4 months in the year. I am trying to get all of the local preachers in charge to take the paper."

L. Massey, Martin: "Elder ——— held the first quarterly meeting Jan. 20-21. Though the weather was cold, and the ground covered with snow, the elder was on time and most of the leaders. The elder's talk upon the missions of the church will long be remembered. Collection $6. The committees promised to do more this conference year than ever before, and make better provision for the pastor. We are preparing to build a church and the sills are on the ground, and as soon as the weather permits we will begin. The elder was summoned away from us by a postal card which informed him that Rev. ——— Cook, appointed to Paris, had joined the A. M. E. Church. I have been working for the SOUTHWESTERN ever. I am satisfied that the church paper helps the pastor. I would feel lost without it; and the members who take it will always insist in."

C. Brown, Fairfield: "We commenced our Sabbath-school here one year ago, with about ——, and by faithful perseverance of pastor, superintendent and teachers we have now a membership numbering 55, added to this, the school have nearly all taken the temperance pledge. So you see Methodism is taking root at this place as never before. I find the greatest hindrance with our people right on the great subject of Sunday-schools, rightly conducted Sunday-schools. Once the door was open and the children permitted to gaze upon the face of a well-trained Sabbath-school, they are eager to unite with one, this I have done as far as I could. I have told them ——— of the money they send to the educational department. Our children here sent up five dollars for education. Remember that these 55 children have nearly all joined the temperance society, for which we thank God, for whiskey is the curse of the colored people. Now I must speak of at least some of my officers and teachers, who have so nobly and heroically assisted, and not only assisted but carried forward this great Sabbath-school enterprise. Nicholas Blain, an ordained local preacher has been exceedingly active as an organizer of this great work. Cicero Simmons is the superintendent; Mrs. Alice Blain, Miss Clorene McIlveen, Mrs. Parlee Brown are the teachers, and suffice it to say that their ability and Christian characters as teachers have never been questioned. Now, I will give the names of some of the young ladies of our school who also belong to the temperance society: Misses Martha Cragg, Martha McIlveen, Hannah Walker, Florence Hatcher, Eliza Richard and Amanda Kimbrue. Mrs. Alice Blain was appointed by the fourth quarterly conference on the committee on temperance. Her temperance cause is now 40 or 50 strong."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

How is Bryan?

DEAR EDITOR—I will try to give an answer to this question, if you will allow me room. First, I came to my work directly after conference at Paris, as it is always my custom; but I find that Bryan has taken a relapse, so far as our church is concerned, both temporally and spiritually. We have some members, and good ones, but they are few. The officers and members at first refused to take right hold with me when I arrived in Bryan, because of some dishonorable remarks made concerning me after I was appointed here by the Bishop, and before my arrival. These remarks were made by a Christian brother who I hope will read this article. The people, after hearing the remarks, believed me to be a lion or some other animal that is very dangerous, and managed to keep out of my way; but I visited them at their homes, and let them see that I was only a man and a Christian minister, one who loved to work for Christ and sinners, so they have consented to come to the church and hear me preach. Our presiding elder, W. B. Pullam, came to see us January 26-27, and held his first quarterly conference; he preached an interesting sermon to the people, and on Monday night we experienced a grand time in love feast, a thing that had not been witnessed, so said, for more than nine months. The Lord came and blessed all present, a crowded house, consisting of African Methodists, Baptists and our own members; there were also many sinners present who witnessed the shouts. The few members that are here have agreed to start to work anew for Christ. The trustees, finding the church property in a bad condition, have taken advantage of the agreement made and intend to repair the church. It will take $500 to complete it, and then have it dedicated to the Lord. It is believed that the church has never been dedicated; and them we find a debt of Church Extension money hanging over it, the amount is unknown to the trustees. We would thank Dr. Kynett to tell us the amount of Church Extension money that we owe at Bryan, and not be discouraged, as we expect to pay the bill just as soon as we get our church fixed, for that must be done; in the winter we cannot have service nor Sunday-school; the window glass is all out and the blinds destroyed; the floor is open, the roof in a leaky condition. With the help of the Lord we expect to do a good work this year. We earnestly ask the brethren of the Navasota district to convene the fall district conference here in Bryan.

Items From Big Spring.

I arrived on this circuit Nov. 1st 1882. Found the church in a lively condition. Each society was anxious to see and hear the new preacher, hence a warm reception was tendered all over the circuit. A neat and comfortable house was rented, and in a short time we were moved and ready for work.

We have a large circuit embracing three counties with six regular preaching places, and no railroads nor steamboats, no horse, and it will take a travel of 60 miles to circumference the work. What shall I do? How shall I reach the people? At first it looks too hard; but, then, this is our work, our calling, and we must obey. Then we resolved to travel if we had to ride the circuit afoot. Tried it one round; can hardly make it; too much mud. Then we read an article on "Prayer and Faith," from Mrs. L. O. Braden. This gives strength; now a horse must come, and we pray earnestly for a horse; and, to our surprise, when we returned from the district conference, Dec. 2, the stewards and friends presented us with a $125 horse as a gift. This is the fruit of prayer, and faith and work. Let me say to my fellow-travelers, if you are a-foot and need a horse pray for it believingly, for "no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly."

Notwithstanding the severity of the winter, and the open condition of our country churches, we have some success. Thirteen precious souls have been converted, fourteen received on probation, and five baptized and received into full membership.

Near Decatur we have bought a lot with a small log house, in which we are worshiping at present, but aim to build as soon as practicable. At Pond Creek a friend gave us a lot and made a deed as per Discipline. At Big Spring our house is too small, and we are preparing to build a larger. January 5th our first quarterly conference was held at Branch Creek. The day was intensely cold but Rev. E. Provine, our indefatigable presiding elder, was on hand, giving light and life to the occasion as usual. It was a grand time. Not long since we had the pleasure of visiting Kingston. We are glad to say that Rev. J. T. Henry, the pastor, is much beloved by all, and his faithful congregation is doing fine, increasing constantly.

We close with many wishes that the SOUTHWESTERN may live long to denounce the wrong and do battle for the right. May it find its way to all the homes of our people in the South. A. J. FLETCHER.

Big Spring, Tenn., Jan. 31, 1884.

Greenwood District Conference.

The first session of the Greenwood District Conference convened at Durant, Miss., Jan. 12, 1884. G. W. Barney, presiding elder, called the conference to order. Devotional exercises were conducted by J. C. Houston. On motion J. C. Houston was made secretary, and D. D. Goodwin assistant. The usual committees were appointed, who discharged their duties with an intelligence pointing to the elevation and general interest of the church. The report from the presiding elder showed that his labors were indefatigable, his journeys incessant, his health at times prostrated and his life endangered by exposure to the cold weather; still we hear from him but one language expressive of unabated fervor, triumphant faith and a yearning, weeping sympathy for souls. The total amount of the benevolent collections were $300.80. Brethren of other districts this State will not smile when they read this unless they do so because they were left behind; it places us where we hope to remain—in front. Rev. J. C. Skinner, of Roebuck circuit, deserves special mention here. A benevolent collection of $80.10 shows that he is not a man of little work and love for the growth of the church. Go on my good brother; we see that the love of your members for you and the cause of Christ goes further down than their lips. Total amount raised and expended for building and improving churches and parsonages $4,097.40. Increase of membership 652, a very good proof of earnest preaching and pure living. The Sunday-school institute on Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. J. M. Nevils, added much to the life and worth of the occasion. Subjects looking to the interest of the Sunday-school were handled with an intellectual ability that astonished all present. Reports from local preachers, exhorters, class leaders and Sunday-school superintendents showed that they had been about our Father's business in good earnest. Applicants for licenses to preach who could not write their own names failed to get them. God may have called them, but I don't believe that he is ready to send them before they are prepared to go. We give the following resolutions a place here for the benefit of those to whom they directly point:

Whereas, the Sunday-school has suffered greatly on account of the indifference shown it by local preachers and exhorters, therefore,

Resolved, That any local preacher or exhorter failing to attend Sabbath-school shall not have his license renewed.

Whereas, The use of tobacco is a very filthy habit, and is, therefore, very unbecoming to a preacher.

Resolved, That all persons making application for licenses to exhort or preach who use tobacco shall be required to stop using it.

The good people of Durant church gave the conference a warm reception. The brethren gave Elder Barney a good collection as a token of their love for him. Our prayer is that his health will improve, that God will leave him with us for many years yet.

Missions.

The American Missionary says that it is estimated that at the present rate of progress of missions in China the next forty years will report 26,000,000 communicants, and 100,000,000 adherents in the Celestial kingdom.

Somebody who understands it, says that one great trial of a missionary's life is its tremendous oppressiveness. A new world of circumstances and a demand for its conquest, and that by the spiritual life, implies a war heat which those who have not borne it can hardly know.

Mrs. Florence W. Hargis, with her three children, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Woodward, sailed on the Baltic, Thursday, January 31, for Liverpool. Mrs. Hargis intends to join her husband in Rome, where he has recently gone as assistant superintendent of the Italy mission.

The secret of successful preaching in India: A Brahman clerk told the following story to an English Judge when questioned about his interest in Christianity, after saying he had never been interested but once in the preaching of the missionaries. He began, "I was yesterday at R———. How very different the people there are from you. The temples I found in good order, and there were many doing pooja (worship), and every one had his religious marks on his forehead and seemed to think of his god and lead a religious life. But here! Look at the temples, they are out of repair, and the floors dirty, and the shrines neglected. There are no worshippers, and you seem to live as if there were no God, and no life but the present one. Can this be right? I come to remind you that there is a God, and that He requires from you worship; and I bring you from Him books that that you may know what you are to do to be good and happy, and have happiness in the world to come. Now, when you do pray how do you pray? I expect you just kneel down and say 'Ram! Ram! Ram!' Is that praying? Suppose you had a poor crop and spent all you had saved, and wanted the landlord to take off some of the rent, would you go to him and just cry 'Babu! Babu! Babu!' and nothing else? No, you would say, 'Babu! the crop has failed, you are rich, and generous and noble, have pity on me and forgive me my rent this time and I will bless you.' So when you pray to God say not just 'Ram! Ram! Ram!' but tell God of your sins, and say, 'Oh, forgive me!' or tell Him of your wants and say, 'Oh, grant me what I need!' or tell him of your troubles and say, 'Oh, help and comfort me.' And the Brahman added, with tearful eyes. "Yes, sahib, I shall never forget that preacher. I do not know his name, or where he came from, or where he went, but should you ever find him tell him I thank him, and that I now never pray as I used to, just uttering, without any thought, the name of my God, but I tell my God all my sins, and my needs, and my sorrows, and I ask for His pardon, His help and His blessing." Was not this man among those who are "not far from the Kingdom of Heaven," and is there not much of suggestion in his story for teachers and preachers among the heathen? And is there not rebuke in it for those among us to whom religious exercises, by these formal iterations, have become mere sounds and ceremonies, little better than the "praying wheels" of Mongolia?—From Leisure Hours.

Corea and Japan.—"We hail with great satisfaction," writes Dr. Maclay, "the action of the General Missionary Committee in regard to Corea. We are in communication with some Coreans now living in Tokio, from whom we receive valuable information concerning matters in Corea. At present we think our mission should commence work at the capital of Corea. The people of that country seem to be much opposed to Christianity; but this is not strange, and I have no doubt these unreasonable prejudices will gradually pass away. May the Holy Spirit direct us in this important movement."

The Influence And Position of The AmericanR epublic.

MARY S. ROBINSON.

The political effect of the economic revolution, wrought by American competition, are increasingly perceptible. "The American farmer is undermining the foundations of the English aristocratic system," continues Mr. Morley. "While driving his plow through the virgin pairie, he is uprooting the fendal institutions which linger beyond their time in the older world."

France has had a commission in the American republic to report on the question of American agriculture as affecting her peasantry. Its verdict is that French agriculture can not long stand the competition. Even her wine industry is ultimately threatened. European manufactures are not less imperiled. Not only do English and French dealers sell American flour, beef, butter, and cheese, but American watches, cutlery, heavy machinery, and also sewing-machines, American pianos and portable organs are exported to nearly every part of Christendom; and so we might go through the whole list of the more important manufactured articles.

The most stupendous fact, although one of the least noticed, in last year's record, was the exodus of human beings from the Old World to the New. We again quote Mr. Morley: "In numerical proportions the exodus of the children of Israel to the Promised Land was a bagatelle compared with the vast fertilizing stream of life that is emptied upon the soil of the Republic of the West. The rate of immigration into New York averages two thousand a day, as we have said. The outcast, the proscribed, the oppressed, the hunger-smitten of Europe have found in the American Republic a safe shelter and a well-spread table. Ten millions of Europeans have migrated to the American Republic within the last half-century. That republic has land enough to give every European peasant a farm; and it appears as if ever peasant is about to accept the gift. One-fortieth of the population of London has latterly accepted it. All Germany will soon be found in America, if German emigration continues without check. Her latest annual hegira includes about 330,000 of her subjects. Ireland, beyond the sea, counts more sons of Irish descent than can be found in the Emerald Isle. One of the recent governors of Massachusetts, and the present Chief Magistrate of the republic are Irish Americans. Even little Switzerland whose population is less than 3,000,000, sent seven thousand souls a year ago to the great States of the West. More than fifty per cent of this multitude of emigrants are able bodied men, under forty years of age. They are the cream of the population of the countries they abandon. The "feckless loon" stay at home. The man of intelligence, enterprise, and energy emigrates, and takes upon himself the role of immigration agent, by sending back to his old world kinsfolk glowing accounts of his newly found prosperity. Bismarck, and with him the masters of many legions over all Europe, tremble at the continual drain of their best fighting men to the New World. The Irish revolution owes its origin to the Irish Americans, who supply it with its funds, its leaders, and its organ. Germany is not free from a like contingency from its socialistic element. The Nihilist disseminates information about the American republic throughout the vast dominions of the czar, and reminds the Russian citizen that the French Revolution was the legitimate successor of the American Revolution. American influence moulded the Bulgarian constitution—a significant hint of things to come. A late uprising against Austrian rule was incited by returned emigrants from America, who brought with them the democratic "ideas of the West." These are solemn, glorious facts. We leave them to the reflection of our readers.—Western Christian Advocate.

Georgia Regulators.

To the Editor of the Witness:—On January 4, 1884, my wife and I and a friend minister took the train at Union Point, Ga., for Augusta. After the train started the conductor came to us and said, "Colored people don't generally ride in this car." I answered calmly, "I came in here to avoid the smoke. There was a great deal of smoke in the smoking-car." I looked for him to scold and drive us out, but he did not. We were not troubled any more until we got to Harlin, Ga., about two hours later, when twelve or fifteen rough-looking men boarded the train and drove us into the smoking car like dogs, and would probably have murdered us if we had refused to go. They then got off the train, saying, "You are not free in Georgia," etc. I am told by a reliable man in Augusta, who was treated in like manner (only revolvers were presented at him and his company), that it is a common occurrence. He says in cases of the kind the conductor telegraphs ahead and these regulators are gathered up for this mean, low work on the arrival of the train. When these roughs were driving us out the conductor and other train-men could not be found to protect us.

Are railroad companies expected to protect their patrons, and if not, would it not be well for Congress to look into this matter a little? This scheme is taken to shield the company. Respectfully.

(REV.) J. C. FIELDS.

A man in Portland, Oregon, like Diogenes, lives in a tub, only on a grander scale than did the old philosopher. It is oblong, being ten feet long, six wide, and four feet deep. The habitation has a tin-covered roof, and the space between the top of the staves and the ceiling, serves the double purpose of ventilation and light. A carpet is on the floor, pictures on the walls, two chairs, and a bed, swinging hammock fashion, occupying prominent positions.

Civilization in Georgia.

The Westpoint (Ga.) Enterprise very properly corrects the Lafayette (Ga.) Sun for a glaringly inaccurate account of the flogging of a school-teacher from the North at Westpoint during the Christmas holidays. It seems that the white man, who teacher a colored school, "took a bright mulatto girl, a pupil of his school," to an amateur dramatic entertainment in that place. Now, the Sun said that he "purchased reserved seats, and his fair companion being of such a white tinge the managers did not notice the civil rights performance," but "their attention was called to the matter, and the couple was forth-with moved out of the house." "It is useless to add," it went on to say, "that the teacher was of Northern parentage, and a resident of North America, and that he hardly knew himself the next morning, after receiving a sound thrashing by the boys of Westpoint. The Enterprise very properly corrects this, and shows that all though it is true that the Northern man did "carry a mulatto girl into an opera-house," it is not sure that he bought reserved seats. "He purchased two tickets, and he and the mulatto walked to the front part of the hall," but were soon found out and made to sit in the rear, where they remained till the close of the performance. "It is true," adds the Enterprise, that the boys gave him a good whipping, but it occurred just after the show, and not next morning, as the Sun says. Now the public have the true facts." This shows how calumnies about the social condition of the South are got up and circulated at the North and elsewhere to prevent emigration to that region. If it had not been for the Enterprise it would have gone all over the country that "the boys" whipped a white school-teacher on the following morning for taking a nearly white mulatto girl, one of his pupils, into the Westpoint (Ga.) "opera-house," when the fact was, they whipped him immediately after the performance.—Evening Post.

When we read the frequent cordial invitations from the South extended to Northern men to settle in the South with perfect assurance of freedom and safety, we are inclined to believe them, and to think that the time of beatings and murders for alleged political or caste views has passed away. But no sooner does this pleasing view of the South begin to assume shape than some new cases are reported, which show that any one entertaining the views current in the North and giving practical expression of his opinions, is no safer in the South than an Egyptian or European in the Soudan. The above instance of barbarity and the series of murders of Negroes in Mississippi, which have just occurred, are cases in point. A country where boys may with impunity whip people for no crime except disregard of a Creator-insulting caste sentiment is no place of residence for men with human hearts in their bosoms. What the South needs, and what would add 25 per cent. to the value of real estate all over the South, is a well-executed law against lawless violence of all kinds. If these boys were heavily fined and had a year each in the penitentiary, Georgia would be entitled to the place she claims among American States.—New York Witness.

The New York Sun has some interesting ideas about what issues the Democracy ought to make in the coming campaign. The first is the election frauds of 1876. Second, the opposition to give Grant, when he was President, the power to suspend the writ of habeas corpus. Third, the suspension of Gen. Sheridan at New Orleans, and, fourth, the tariff policy in the Polk campaign in 1844. If the Sun would tack on an eloquent denunciation of the stamp act and British tax on tea it would undoubtedly secure the support of all the surviving veterans of the Revolutionary war. —Savannah News.

A Strange, Strong Letter.

The following letter, taken from the Covington Commonwealth, was evidently written by a father to a son of dissipated habits;

"My dear Son: What would you think of yourself if you should come to our bed-side every night, and, awakening us, tell us that you would not allow us to sleep any more? That is just what you are doing; and that is just why I am up here a little after midnight writing you. Your mother is nearly worn out with turning from side to side and with sighing because you won't let her sleep. That mother who nursed you in your infancy, toiled for you in your childhood, and looked with pride and joy upon you as you were growing up to manhood, as she counted on the comfort and support you would give her in her declining years.

"We read of a most barbarous manner in which one of the Oriental nations punishes some of its criminals. It is by cutting the flesh from the body in small pieces—slowly cutting off the limbs, beginning with the fingers and toes, one joint at a time, until the wretched victim dies. That is just what you are doing, you are killing your mother by inches. You have planted many of the white hairs that are appearing so thickly in her head before the time. Your cruel hand is drawing the lines of sorrow on her dear face, making her look prematurely old. You might as well stick your knife into her body every time you come near her, for your conduct is stabbing her to the heart. You might as well bring her coffin and force her into it, for you are pressing her toward it with very rapid steps.

Would you tread on her body if prostrated on the floor? And with ungrateful foot you are treading on her heart and crushing out its life and joy—no, I needn't say 'joy,' for that is a word we have long ago ceased to use, because you have taken it away from us. Of course we have met friends with smiles, but they little know of the bitterness within. You have taken all the roses out of your sister's pathway and scattered thorns instead, and from the pain they inflict, scalding tears are often seen coursing down her cheeks. Thus you are blighting her life as well as ours.

And what can you promise yourself for the future? Look at the miserable, bloated, ragged wretches, whom you meet every day on the streets, and see in them an exact picture of what you are fast coming to, and will be in a few years. Then in the end a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's doom! For the Bible says 'No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God.' Where, then, will you be? If not in the kingdom of God you must be somewhere else.

Will not these considerations induce you to quit at once, and for all time? And may God help you, for He can and He will, if you earnestly ask him.

Your affectionate, but sorrow-stricken father."

Honduras.

The Central American republic of Honduras is bounded on the north by Guatemala, the Gulf of Honduras and the Caribbean Sea, on the east by the Caribbean Sea, on the south by Nicaragua, and San Salvador, and on the west by Guatemala and Salvador. It is the largest of the Central American republics; contains an area of 58,170 square miles, or 37,228,800 squares acres, and about 450,000 inhabitants.

Commerce begun to revive under the fostering care of the government of President Soto. The exports will reach about $1,500,000 per annum; the imports nearly as much.

The products of the country are tropic fruits, precious woods, hides, skins, cochineal, rubber, etc. Of late coffee planting has begun to engage the attention of the agricultural class, while banana, plantain and cocoa cultivation, by reason of the protective or bounty system lately inaugurated by the government, has received a most favorable impulse.

The traffic in bananas alone has, within the last decade, assumed quite important proportions.—Times Democrat.

Paddling and Praying.

Said Thomas Jones, an old colored preacher: "When I was escaping from slavery, and found myself out on the ocean, I prayed God to help me, and he did help me. I found some boards and got on to them. Well, what did I do then? Did I stop praying, and think because I had got a few boards I could go alone now, and didn't need the Lord's help any more? No! I kept on praying, and held on to the boards. Well, what did I do then? Sit still, and expect the Lord to carry me safely through, and think that I had nothing to do? No! I took a stick for a paddle, and went to paddling and praying. I did not sit still, like those who have a name to live, and are dead; but I just went to paddling, and I did not forget to pray; and by paddling and praying I got through. So God expects us to pray and also to paddle, and not wait for him to do the work that he has set us to do."

There is sound philosophy in the old man's talk. Paddling is needful, as well as praying; and a more ancient teacher once declared that "Faith without works is dead, being alone."

What to Read.

Are you deficient in taste? Read the best English poets, such as Thomson, Gray, Goldsmith, Pope, Cowper, Coleridge, Scott, Browning, and Tennyson.

Are you deficient in imagination? Read Milton, Akenside, Burke, Shakespeare, Bunyan, and Spenser.

Are you deficient in powers of reasoning? Read Chilling worth, Bacon, and Locke.

Are you deficient in judgment and good sense in the common affairs of life? Read Benjamin Franklin.

Are you deficient in sensiblity? Read Goethe and Mackenzie.

Are you deficient in political knowledge? Read Montesquieu, The Federalist, Webster, and Calhoun.

Are you deficient in patriotism? Read Demosthenes and the Life of Washington.

Are you deficient in conscience? Read President Edwards, Jeremy Taylor, and Thomas a Kempis.

Are you deficient in any thing? Read the Bible.

What We Spend.

We spend annually for saving 700,000,000 blood-bought heathen souls the sum of not more than $2,500,000, while the total contributions of all the churches in America for all causes do not exceed $77,000,000. For intoxicating drinks, on the other hand, we spend $900,000,000 every year. For tobacco, $80,000,000. For ladies' foreign dress goods, about $125,000,000! New York alone spends for theater going and other amusements three times as much as our whole country gives to foreign missions. The kid gloves it imports alone costs ten times as much. The ladies of America actually spend more for artificial flowers each year than do all churches for the spread of the gospel! How does this seem to the conscience? For Christ, $77,000;000. For Vanity, liquor and tobacco, $1,105,000,00."

"Don't tell me you won't," said an Elmira father to his little daughter of six summers. "Well, but, papa," said the artless little one, "what shall I say when I mean I won't?"

A wife, having lost her husband, was inconsolable for his death. "Leave me to my grief," she replied, sobbing; "you know the extreme sensiblity of my nerves; a mere nothing upsets them."

The light of friendship is like the light of phosphorus—seen plainest when around is dark.—Crowell.

We Gather as We Scatter.

BY BELLE BUSH.

When weeds grow in our garden,
Instead of golden grain,
Shall we blame the weeds for growing,
And upbraid the careless sowing,
Or rise and sow again?

Will the thistle cease its growing,
Or the nettle lose its sting,
If we sit us down in sorrow
Bewailing for the morrow
The harvest they will bring?

Will our chiding or our sighing
Clear the field to plant anew?
Where an idle soul reposes,
Will a bed of thornless roses
Ever drink the morning dew?

Where only tears are planted,
Shall we taste the tasselled corn?
On the bleak and barren mountains
Where flow no singing fountains,
Dawns there e'er a harvest moon?

Far reaching and eternal
Is the law of love and hate.
In the realms of mind and matter,
We shall gather as we scatter,
Come the harvest soon or late.

Earnest Words.

I have a mission—God help me to fulfill it! So have you—the humblest of you. And what is that mission? That mission, to use the words of the poet, is to leave your

"Footsprints on the sands of time:"

that mission is to leave the world better than you found it. Are you on the Rock yourself? Well, I say down with your hand to pull a drowning wretch up. I would rather a man were employed in God's work, pulling another up when he is on the Rock himself, than I would see him down on his knees thanking God for his own safety. In the language of the poet

"I live for those who love me,
For those who know me true;
For the heaven that shines above me,
And waits my spirit too;
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance
And the good that I can do."

Our mission in this sin-cursed world is to dry the cheek of grief, feed the poor, heal the sick, clothe the naked, teach the ignorant, bring sinners to the Savior's feet. Oh, there are grand days in store for this world yet; the brighest has to come; prophecies wait fulfilment. Whether you help to do it or not, brethren, I say there is a God in heaven, and the day will come when sinners shall flee to the Savior like doves to their windows, and nations—not politically, but spiritually—shall be born in a day; and converts be as thick in this land and in this world as the dew of a Summer's morning on the grass, topping every blade, lying in every flower-cup, hanging like pendant diamonds, sparkling on every branch. Help on that noble course. Go to work for God, work for Christ, work for humanity; your motto: "The love of Christ constraineth me; and I thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead, that they who live should not live to themselves, but to Him who died for them and rose again."

Good humor is rightly reckoned a most valuable aid to happy home life. An equally good and useful faculty is a sense of humor, or the faculty to have a little fun along with the humdrum cares and works of life. How it will brighten up things generally to have a lively, witty companion, who sees the ridiculous point of things, and can turn an annoyance into an occasion for laughter. It does a great deal better to laugh over some domestic mishaps than to cry or scold about them. Many homes and lives are dull because they are allowed to become too deeply impressed with a sense of the cares and responsibilities of life to recognize its bright and especially its mirthful side. Into such a household, good but dull the advent of a witty, humorous friend is like sunshine on a cloudy day. While it is always oppressive to hear persons constantly striving to say witty or funny things, it is comfortable, seeing what a brightener a little fun is, to make an effort to make some at home. It is well to turn off an impatient question sometimes and to regard it from a humorous point of view, instead of being irritated about it. Laughter is better than tears. Let us have a little more of it at home.

Deal justly with God as to your substance, then look for blessings.

Paring Down the Gospel.

Mr. Spurgeon, with characteristic plainness and vigor, said in a recent sermon, "When a man gets to cutting down sin, paring down depravity and making little of future punishment, let him no longer preach to you. Some modern divines whittle away the Gospel to the small end of nothing. They make our divine Lord to be a sort of blessed nobody; they bring down salvation to mere salvability, make certainties into probabilities, and treat verities as mere opinions. When you see a preacher making the Gospel small by degrees and miserably less, till there is not enough of it left to make soup for a sick grasshopper, get you gone. . . . As for me, I believe in the colossal; a need deep as hell and grace as high as heaven. I believe in a pit that is bottomless and a heaven that is topless. I believe in an infinite God and an infinite atonement; infinite love and mercy; and everlasting covenant ordered in all things and sure, of which the substance and the reality is an infinite Christ."

The Walton, (Ga.) News says: "When Gen. Sherman passed through this section of country in 1864 his men took from Mr. Robert Crawley every horse and mule he had, and left in his lot in their places a small skinned up, wornout mare, as she was altogether worthless to them. Uncle Bob, as Mr. Crawley was usually called, finding this helpless and apparently useless animal in his lot, and having none other, began to nurse her. He daily greased her sores for several weeks until they healed. As she was his only chance, he then began to use her. He found her willing to do all she could, and with extra pains she became a first rate animal, and afterwards brought him eight fine colts, all of which made excellent horses. He named the old mare Fanny and kept her until his death. Just before his death, as he realized that his time was short in this world, he gave the faithful Fanny to his daughter Tempie, afterwards Mrs. Baker and now Mrs. George W. Knox, to be well cared for. She served her mistress well until the 22 inst., the date of her death. She was thought to be 8 years old when Sherman's army left her, and she was consequently at least 28 at her death. She leaves a young mare colt 2½ years old, bearing the same color and name as old Fanny. The old mare was almost human, as she seemed to understand everything said in her presence. For years she was only required to carry her mistess to church and her master a fishing, and when the latter would get on a pond in a boat the faithful old animal would closely watch him and frequently neigh to warn him apparently of danger. She always seemed to be elated when her master succeeded in catching a good string of fish for her mistress, and she would never fail to express it by being particularly sprightly and anxious to get home and bow her head to Mrs. Knox."

Royal, Rich, Red Blood.

In this country we are all kings, and we are all entitled to have as good blood as that which courses through the veins of emperors.

There are princes and millionaires languishing in feebleness and broken-down bodily health who would be glad to have the strength of the humblest laboring man.

And there are many people who are neither kings, emperors, nor millionaires, whose blood is thin, whose circulation is poor, who are suffering from lassitude and debility, and who know not the pleasure of a hearty meal, nor the enjoyment of being able to do a good day's work.

If such people will put some iron into their blood, they will vitalize and enrich it. They can do this by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters, the purest and most excellent iron medicine ever made. Thousands who were weak, languid, pale, and prostrated, are now happy to say that Brown's Iron Bitters brought them up and gave them new life. 5

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn. and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, FEB. 14, 1884.

El Annario Metodista, 1885, has been received from the editor, Rev. J. W. Butler, City of Mexico. It is a neatly printed almanac and Methodist hand book.

The Utah Christian Advocate, of Salt Lake City, is published monthly by a board of managers, at 75 cts a year. It is the organ of our brethren in the land of Mormonism.

It is announced that Hon. H. W. Sage, of New York, has presented to the authorities of West Bay City, Michigan, a building worth $50,000 for a public library. New Orleans has an Educational Society, 120 strong, and the question of a public library is being considered. Which one of its numerous wealthy citizens will offer $5000 or $10,000 to begin one?

Our column of "Lost Friends" continues to reunite scattered families, and brethren in Georgia who are interested are invited to make use of it as other subscribers do. Pastors are requested to scan the column each week, and read from the pulpit the letters, and if any one to friends inquired of is found, to report to this office or to the inquirers at once.

There is a sensible saying which avers that "the Iliad never came from a dice-box." Homer might have shaken up the Greek alphabet and poured the letters out at random for a century and never a line of that immortal poem would have appeared on the table. The Iliad is the result of close study and hard work, and not the offspring of a dice-box, an idle brain, an indolent man.

We have never been a special admirer of J. P. Newman, D.D., but we cannot see just why our old friend Dr. Buckley should have a special reporter at a meeting, and give publicity to disgraceful proceedings where "only blows and profanity were necessary to put it on a line with the most turbulent assemblies." It is a shameful nakedness, and belongs to New York, and we suggest that it be kept there.

We have read of a young man who, while he was kneeling at the altar seeking religion, was told that he was converted. "No," he replied, "I must have something more than I have got, for if I were to lose this I should not miss it." A religion is the worst thing a man can have in this world. It is a religion that he will not miss when it is gone. We know persons who have been at the mourner's bench, professed conversion and joined the church, but if they were to lose all they would not miss it. They know nothing about sound, substantial, thorough and scriptural conversion to God. The man who has not religion enough to make him tell the truth, pay his debts, and live peaceably at home, might lose the whole of it and not miss it.

The South India Conference, which has just chosen William Taylor as its lay delegate to the General Conference, is his own child in the Gospel. It was organized in Bombay, Nov. 9, 1866, with [illegible] members, without a dollar of missionary funds, on the self supporting principle. It has done its [illegible]. The last report shows 54 [illegible] and teachers, 83 appointments, 42 churches, 12 parsonages, [illegible] schools, 807 Sunday [illegible] teachers, 3363 scholars, 2154 members and probationers. These statements seem incredible. We know they are true, but they are true. [illegible] than fine, [illegible] Here is [illegible], a clear [illegible] your [illegible] Who will say; "here

Tests.

The test of preaching is the reward of the heart by the Holy Ghost. It may be eloquent. It may draw large crowds. It may receive a large salary. But all of this is naught if it does not save souls. A comely face is pleasant, but of no value without a comely soul. Theological sermons, large congregations avail naught without the gift of the Holy Ghost. Without Him you can do nothing, but with Him you can do all things. The poorest is rich if he has His presence. The rich in speech will become honey-tongued if their lips are touched with this coal. What say you, brothers; are you this sort of a preacher? If not, hasten away to Him who can give you the anointing. The day of investigation is at hand. His priests, the officers of His church, must be first examined. How have you used the talents He gave you? Where are the men and women that you have led, not to admire yourself, but the Lord Jesus? It is the souls saved that are to be the stars of your rejoicing. There has been a heap of chaff called eloquent preaching that has been piled up in the pulpits of this country. The times call for effective preaching. Dress parade, firing salutes, will not do. Execution is the one word. Look at the tests; count souls gained of the greatest value. Preach the word. Build up the weak. Instruct the ignorant. Lead men to admire Jesus, and your reward shall surely come.

Amalgamation.

The marriage of Frederick Douglass to a white woman, and the proclamation of Abel Stevens, D. D., one of the most astute thinkers and able writers in America, that he is in favor of amalgamation, and regards it as the only safe solution of the Negro question in this country, has created quite a breeze. By one class it is affirmed that the action of Mr. Douglass has offended the entire colored race who now threaten to repudiate him altogether. This class of writers show that they have no just conception of the Negro race. They might have understood the Negro as a slaves, a chattel, a thing bought and sold, but not as a man owning himself, wife and children. We venture to say that there is not a colored person in America, except some one who had hoped to become his wife, who does not have a feeling of thankfulness on account of the late marriage of Mr. Douglass. It is only the purblind devotees of an infamous system of wickedness that can see no good to come to the colored people by this act. We say nothing of social equality. There never was in this world a nation or community where such a thing existed. The social spheres arrange themselves. Men always chose the circles for which they have affinity. No laws promulgated by State or church can change the affinity of men. But we want it distinctly understood that we do not belong to that class who are in constant mortal terror lest the long abused Negro should, after all, become somebody. We can see no special harm that can come to the races because of amalgamation. We deprecate all mixing outside of the marriage relation, and would repeal all laws which make mixed marriages a crime. No race problem was ever yet truly solved by mere repression. Avarice is mean but this discounting and repressing people merely because of their color is meaner. In root, tree, branch and fruit it is utterly un-Christian. We look with distrust upon the State that makes the marriage of white and colored a crime, and yet has no statute defining and punishing adultery. Illegitimacy is hateful to God and harmful to society. We have no more right to refrain the races from marrying than we have to compel them to marry. "The golden mean," says the Northwestern, "is in permission to all to do as they please, limited only by a marriage license."

Over thirty Haytian revolutionists were shot at Miragoane.

Louisiana Conference.

Conference Sabbath was a delightful day. The love feast at Union Chapel was one of the most wonderful that we have ever attended. It was a sort of monument of transfiguration and a day of pentecost united. A tidal wave of glory swept the congregation. The glory of the Lord filled the house. Old men and young men shouted aloud for joy. It sometimes seemed as if we were admitted into heaven to converse with God, and angels and saints. Glory and praise, and blessing be ascribed unto God forever and ever.

At 11 o'clock Bishop Wiley preached, taking for his text 1 John 2, 3. Of the sermon we shall not attempt to give any outline, of its effect upon the congregation we can give no adequate description. It was one of those sermons and seasons never to be forgotten. The constant drift was heavenward; the joy kindled in the hearts of those who heard him seemed kindred to that of those immortals who, far up over the plains of Bethlehem once chanted to the wondering shepherds, the song of glory, peace and love. At the close of the sermon the deacons were ordained. At three in the afternoon Rev. Mr. Bennett, of Iowa, preached a good sermon, after which the elders were ordained.

In the evening, the Sunday-school anniversary was held, J. F. Marshall presiding. Bro. Gillett, the Sunday-school Agent for the South and West, was present and gave an address divested of all unnecessary words and every foolish digression. Sister Williams, from Baton Rouge, and Sister Williams, from Houma, both gave excellent addresses.

The last day of the session of the Louisiana Annual Conference was one of special interest. The influence of the overflowing baptism of the day before had not died away. The Conference assembled at the usual hour, Bishop Wiley presiding. Prayer was offered by T. J. Johnson. The minutes of Saturday were read and approved. Resolutions and reports were the order of the day. The centennial report elicited grand speeches from Dr. Hartzell and Bishop Wiley. Quite a number of young men were received into the conference on probation. Be patient, brethren, storms will fall upon you and beat hard against you. Thick darkness may overshadow you. Your familiar friends may lift up their heel against you, but be patient. Stay on your own farm, chop down the weeds in your fields, and plant flowers in your own garden. Nothing is accomplished in this life except in the use of appropriate means. Let this thought stay with you. If you do good work the church will see it, and you will get your reward. Gritle and muscle are not alike.

The committee on memoirs made careful and tender mention of those who had died during the year. The stewards reported, and were only sorry that they had not more to distribute among the superannuated and worn-out preachers. Father Ross, one of the old and honored members of the conference, asked for a superannuated relation. The conference and congregation gave him a collection of $24. He is needy and worthy. The work of the conference being finished, Dr. Hartzell moved that after reading the appointments the conference adjourn sine die. When the Bishop, after a few remarks expressing his joy and satisfaction, proceeded to read the appointments, and the conference adjourned by singing the doxology, and the benediction by Bishop Wiley. The Methodist Quarterly.

In the first article Dr. Whedon furnishes a review of an article in the North American Review entitled "Science and Prayer." This paper cannot fail to interest all who are interested in the true philosophy of prayer to a supreme being. Dr. W. F. Warren, of Boston University, shows that mankind started with a true theory, and fell away from it. Dr. Warren has no faith in the evolution theories of Max Muller, Herbert Spencer and others. In the third article Bishop Hurst wisely discusses our periodical literature. Prof. Morgan Calloway, Jr., of Emory College, has a paper that will be interesting to those ladies of culture whose husbands are more in love with authorship than their wives, entitled "Letters and Memorials of Jane Welch Carlisle."

The "Administration of Discipline" is discussed by Dr. W. N. McElroy. Abel Stevens, D. D., has an article on "The Problem of Our African Population," that must suggest to the Christian patriot problems relating to the future of the white and colored population of this nation. Dr. Stevens speaks of the Negro population as one of the great elements in "the working force of the nation, and as constantly becoming better," and says that it "deserves well of the Republic for worthy conduct generally, and especially in critical times of our history." In population, without the aid of immigration, the Negro is outstripping the white race, and within the lifetime of some of our children numerically will equal our entire population in 1880. What is to be their future? The answers are, first, colonization to Africa; secondly, emigration to Mexico and Central and South America, and mixing with the races there; or thirdly, amalgamation with the whites where they are. To Dr. Stevens this is the solution of the Negro problem. "Amalgamation, and nothing but amalgamation in some way or other must be the final solution." He pleads for the removal of all the political grievances and social and ecclesiastical disparagements, and the "color line" in our church work. D. A. Whedon discusses "Probation after Death," and Dr. H. B. Ridgway has a well written biographical article on Dr. E. Clark, of Portland, Me. The book notices and criticisms are set forth in Dr. Whedon's best style.

According to the statistical reports gathered from the minutes of the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the Baptists in Maine, we gather information not of an encouraging character. The reports show 252 churches, less by three than the preceding year. The largest number of members ever recorded was 23,860 in 1844. The largest number of churches ever returned was 300 in 1846. The total number of church members now is 20,039, that is 2,721 less than they had 40 years ago. It is true that men may come and men may go, but the church is supposed to have in herself the power of an organic life, and to be here to stay. Sometimes God calls for the service of patient suffering, but generally the service that makes this world better takes the aggressive form. Our Baptist brethren in Maine need a little more of an aggressive service.

The Bible abounds in sayings which have a twist in them against popular prejudice and popular practice. If the injunction "In lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves" only read, "In satisfaction of mind let each esteem himself better than others", it would give the most perfect satisfaction, and would be regarded the world over as it now stands it is nearly a dead letter.

PERSONAL.

—Correspondents of Rev. Z. T. Gayden will address him at Thomson Chapel, New Orleans.

—Just as we go to press there comes a telegram announcing the death of Rev. G. W. Barney, presiding elder of Greenwood district, Mississippi Conference.

—Dr John R. Lee, who died recently in Hartford, Conn., bequeathed $10,000 to the American Missionary Association, and over $14,000 to different institutions of learning.

—Ex-President Hayes contributes $4,500 for the building of the new Methodist Episcopal Church in Fremont, Ohio, and agrees to pay whatever the building costs in excess of $18,000.

—Prof. and Mrs. Thirkeld of Clark University are tobe congratulated on the advent of a fine daughter to their household. The happy event took place the 21st. inst. Mother and child are doing well.—Atlanta Herald.

—Prof. I. N. Failor, formerly president of New Orleans University, has located at Abilene for the practice of law. We have known him in other days as an earnest Methodist layman, and he is welcome to Texas.—Texas Methodist Advocate.

—Two letters and a special telegram to this office bring the sad intelligence that Rev. G. W. Barney, presiding elder of the Greenwood District, Mississippi Conference, is lying at the point of death, at his home in Yazao City, Miss. We met Bro. Barney at the session of the Mississippi Conference, his brethren were anxious about him, but he was cheerful and hopeful, and felt sure that he was to regain his health. We suggested that he take a year of rest. He replied: "I would, but I am poor and must work on and take my rest on the other side."

—We are glad to announce that what the papers said was a second attack of paralysis of Rev. J. L. Inskip was only an attack of vertigo, or rush of blood to the head, caused by indigestion. Sister Inskip says, "Some reporter heard, I suppose, of this, and ran before he was sent." She believes that God will bring her husband through.

Circuit—College Study.

BY D. M. BIRMINGHAM, D. D.

In a former article I tried to urge the expediency and the necessity of young men who are looking to the ministry as well as some already in the work, of fitting themselves for their calling by a course of systematic study, in a theologic seminary. The great and increasing work of the future, it seems to me demands this. Those who may act upon this suggestion will surely reap a much richer harvest in consequence, while those who, by a little special effort present and self denial, can control their circumstances so as to take a seminary course of study, yet fail to do so, will have many regrets before they reach the end of their ministerial course. Surely all who wish to be victorious must be fully armed for the contest. While many may avail themselves of collegiate and seminary help and discipline, all cannot. Yet all to secure desired success, must heed Paul's injunction and give themselves to study and reading.

The preacher's course is laid down in the church discipline, must be read, studied and mastered, and be supplemented, as far as possible, by other books, on these same topics and those connected with pastoral and pulpit labors. Among the studies of the "Preacher's course," the most needful to the preacher is, what is called "Systematic Theology." And yet this is found usually the most difficult to those who have had only moderate opportunities for mental discipline. It has occured to me that I might, by the permission of Editor Cushman, speak through the ADVOCATE to many who may not be able to hear me in the lecture room, and thus, if possible, be helpful to a large number. I propose, therefore, to give briet outlines of systematic theology; and any of the brethren who feel disposed can use this outline, as a guide in this study. And when they have completed the course or any part of it, I shall glad to have them write out in their own language a brief account of the several topics and send it to me for review and friendly criticism.

The Discipline specifies the books for this study, "Pope's Compendium" and "Watson's Institutes." As I shall arrange these outlines by topics, these authors or any others, supplemented with help of lexicons and encyclopedias, will answer.

INTRODUCTION.

Theology is from the Greek language and is formed from theos, God and logos, discourse, and is the science which treats of God and divine things. The ancient Greeks called their poets and philosophers, theologians, who wrote concerning divine things and the origin of all things through divine power. Among them Mythological Theology embraced a knowledge of the myths, or legends which were found in the writings of the poets about their deities. Physical Theology treated of the investigations of the philosophers concerning the origin of the world. Civil Theology included all that pertains to public worship. When the Christian writers first adopted this word from the Greeks, they employed it in their doctrinal discussions on the nature of the Godhead. Afterwards it was applied to all the doctrines of the Bible, until finally it embraced, as at the present time, the whole science of the Christian religion. We make use of the terms Natural Theology, which attempts to prove the existence of God by arguments founded on human raeson simply; and Revealed Theology, which gives us in a systematic form, the doctrines of the Bible, as maintained by the Church

Revealed Theology is usually treated under four divisions, Historical, Exegetical, Systematic and Practical Theology. Historical Theology embraces the history of the Church, the Christian doctrines, heresies, etc., Exegetical Theology seeks by just principles of interpetation to find out the true meaning of the Bible. Systematic Theology includes the system of Bible doctrines. Practical Theology comprises homiletics, church liturgies, ecclesiastical law, etc. We find also in some theological writers two other divisions: Apologetics and Polemics. These, however, are also properly used as subdivisions of the first named divisions.

Systematic Theology is commonly divided into four parts: Theology, in its usually limited meaning, or doctrines concerning God. Anthropology, or doctrines concerning man. Sateriology or doctrines concerning salvation. Eschatology, or doctrines concerning the future or final things.

OUTLINE.

Part First—Theology, or the doctrines concerning God.

THE BEING OF GOD.

I. Origin of the idea of God.

1. By intuition. 2. Inference from reasoning. 3. Revelation transmitted by tradition.

II. The Bible idea of God.

1. Significant names, actions and attributes of God. 2. General names applied to the true God and false gods. 3. What distinction must be made between our conception and our comprehension of God?

III. Proofs of the existence of God.

1. Ontological—From the idea of the most perfect being. 2. Cosmological—The existence of the universe necessitates a first cause. 3. Teleological—evidences of design in the unverse. 4. Moral—man's consciousness of his spirituality, his sense of dependence, of sin and of his moral obligation.

IV. Anti-theistic theories.

1. Atheism—How is it disproved? Show its difficulties and absurdities. 2. Materialism—Matter is eternal and contains in itself inherent force which, by evolution, produces all that is. Show how this is disproved by facts. 3. Pantheism—That the unverse is one substance and that substance is God. Two classes, materialistic and idealistic. How does pantheism lead to fatalism? 4. Dualism—Two views, that there are two eternal spirits, one good and one bad, or that God and matter are both eternal entities. How does this theory destroy man's responsibility? 5. Polytheism—Origin and debasing tendencies.

NATURE AND ATTRIBUTES OF GOD.

1. Unity.—Pure uncompound being. 2. Spirituality—Pure spirit, not matter. Distinguish between matter and spirit. 3. Eternity—Self existence, without beginning or end. 4. Immutability—Unchangeably perfect. The same yesterday, to-day and forever. 5. Omnipotence—All-powerful to do whatsoever He wills. How is the philosophy of the absolute disproved? 6. Omnipresence—"The divine essence is everywhere always." 7. Omniscience—Knowing all things, both the actual and the possible. 8. Wisdom—Comprehends the best ends, and a choice of the best means to secure those ends. 9. Goodness—That quality in God's nature that leads him to seek the well being of His creatures. How can the existence of evil be reconciled with the goodness of God? 10. Holiness—That quality in the nature of God whereby He loves the right and abhors the wrong. 11. Justice—That quality of God's nature that leads Him to exact what is due. What relation has it to the penalty due to sin?

Note 1. Anthropopathy—Man's conception of God's nature from His own. Give scripture representations. Note 2. Give Bible representations and proof texts of the nature and attributes of God.

This outline will be continued, as opportunity offords, in later numbers of the SOUTHWESTERN. In the meantime I shall be glad to hear from any of the brethren who many begin this course of study, and I will reply to inquiries direct or concerning points of general interest, through permission of the editor, in the columns of the ADVOCATE.

January, 1884.

The Chattanooga Unversity.

The Chattanooga Times of Feb. 7 gives an interesting account of the exercises of driving the stakes and breaking the ground for the new Methodist university to be built in that city. The site is the most advantageous that could be selected. The exercises were opened with a welcome address, to which Bishop Wiley responded.

He began by expressing his pleasnre at being thus welcomed. It is a good providence that we have secured this very eligible town in which to erect the university. It would prove a benefit to the city, the State, and to a large territory around it. He saw from the hill-tops at his feet a rapidly growing city and one destined in the near future to be a very important central location for this Institution. He enlarged in beautiful terms on the growing importance of Chattanooga and its brilliant prospects.

This Institution would be a great center of education. In choosing its site the claims of all cities were carefully considered, and it was at last concluded that this was the strategic point, and he now felt more thoroughly convinced of this fact than ever before. He alluded to the hearty co-operation the citizens had given and their earnest efforts to secure the location from the beginning. He beautifully described the admirable location and the commanding view and magnficent prospect presented on all sides, and paid a very graceful compliment to Adams Bros., the architects, for their very excellent plans their good fortune in having prepared plans which stood the test of such searching examination.

We are gathered here to-day on an important occasion. This is an incipient movement, and it is impossible to measure its bearing on the future. No one can divine the outspreading consequences. Nor can any one anticipate what will be the result of driving this first stake and beginning the work of erecting this structure. It is an educational institution; one of great fundamental importance. It is just that it should be at the foundation of all things great and good among men. We greet here, to-day, the representatives of the church, of labor and of capital. It augurs well that we find the intelligence and education of the city, representatives of its commerce and industry, and the church present to-day. These are the essential elements of the highest civilization. The building of the college is every man's concern. First of all, it is an affair of the city of Chattanooga. It means no harm; there is no hidden purpose. There is but one supreme design, and that is your good, your prosperity and the upbuilding of your moral character. There is no motive other than the common, the highest and best humanity to rear a university that will stand for ages, disseminating light, intelligence and a higher morality.

He then referred to Chattanooga's location on the border land between the North and the South, and in the future would be the city that would give the first and best illustration of how we can better understand each other. Here in this valley where battles were fought, in sight of the graves of the fallen heroes of both sides, where the South and North meet as brothers, let us shake hands together, forget the past and feel that we have a common destiny in the future. We will better know each other's minds, our hearts will beat side by side, and there will be no North, no South, no East, no West. Here our citizens are working hand in hands, heart to heart, mind to mind, to promote the best interest of the nation. Here Northern money is placed beside Southern money; Northern men as trustees with Southern men. Northern boys will meet in the school room with Southern boys and Northern girls with Southern girls, to meet and mingle and in meeting and mingling make but one. He drew an eloquent picture of the future of the city thus united, and expressed the belief that those present would yet feel that one of their proudest and grandest memories in all time to come would be the erection of this building, and all would point to the magnificient buildings and say with pride, "I was there when the stake was driven."

Dr. Hoyt, editor of the Western Christian Advocate, offered prayer. The stake was driven by Bishop Wiley. The ceremony of breaking the ground then took place. Bishop Wiley removed the first shovelfull, he was followed by the Mayor, Dr. Rust and others. In the evening there was an educational meeting, and addresses were delivered as follows

DR. HOYT,

Editor of the Western Christian Advocate, was the first speaker. He delivered a very instructive discourse, showing the relation of education to moral culture. He congratulated our citizens for contributing to Christian education, when they could have as easily turned their surplus to the development of our material interests, showing that they desire an intelligent community. He predicted a bright future for the University.

DR. HARTZELL,

Associate secretary of the Board of Trustees was the next speaker. He stated that his duties called him to all parts of the country and familiarized him with the development of educational work. The number of persons over ten years in the United States who could not read or write is 6,258,000; this is a fact before which all differences as to church and party should be forgotten. The Methodist Episcopal church believes in education. John Wesley, its founder was a University graduate. Methodism was born in a University. It established the first Female Seminary in the world at Macon, Ga., and has planted its institutions in every land and clime. It is its purpose to put the school side by side with the church. The value of the Methodist Episcopal property alone in the United States exceeds $75,000,000. It has numbers of Universities whose endowments exceed $1,000,000. These institutions were not permeated with sectarianism [loud applause], but an earnest Christian intelligence. The Methodist Episcopal churches builds two churches every day. Since 1864 it has built 3,385 churches in the South. It does not come to antagonize, but to place itself side by side with other churches. The speaker eloquently alluded to the marvelous progress of the South and its wonderful development. The Methodist Episcopal Church is keeping pace with this growth by establishing seminaries and colleges throughout the South and disseminating its literature. He spoke of the brilliant prospects of the University, and pictured its prospective development in eloquent terms.

DR. R. S. RUST,

Secretary of the Board, closed the regular speeches in a very facetious and brilliant address, full of bon mots, eloquent periods and sound reasoning. He spoke of the significance attaching to the ceremonies of the day and the great results it would accomplish. He referred to the wondeful advantages and possibilities of this city, and said in his judgment no city in the country possessed superior resources. Six Conferences, the Holston, Kentueky, Alabama, Central Tennessee Georgia and Blue Ridge, will be dependent on this University and it will grow in importance and influence. It will welcome to its walls all creeds and persuasions. It is Methodist only in that the Methodist Church will control it and be responsible for its morality.

The speaker showed that he was thoroughly imbued with the spirit of Chattanooga, and during his entire speech, kept his audience loudly applauding.

The meeting was concluded with a characteristic adddress by Major Connor, as master of ceremonies.

Wendell Phillips.

Wendell Phillips was born in Boston on Nov. 29, 1811. His father was John Phillips, the first Mayor of that town, and he was a lineal descendant of a Phillips who came over from England in 1630. He was sent to Harvard College after he had studied in Boston schools, and from it he was graduated in the class of 1831. He then entered the Cambridge Law School, where he remained two years, and in the following year he was admitted to the Suffolk Bar. Mr. Phillips thus entered upon active life at a period full of political and moral activity, and he was a man already possessed of convictions on the great questions of the time. William Lloyd Garrison had already made his declaration of principles on the slavery question, and the impending great conflict had already given more than one sign of its coming. One year after Mr. Phillip's admission to the Suffolk Bar occurred the celebrated attack of the "broadcloth mob"—called the "broadcloth mob" because set on foot by men of wealth and position—on a meeting of the Women's Anti-Slavery Society at which Mr. Garrison was assisting, and which was obliged to disperse. Mr. Garrison being dragged through the streets by means of a rope tied about his body, barely escaping death, Those were tumultuous times in Boston, and many souls were stirred by them there and elsewhere in the North; but nowhere was a soul fired with deeper indignation than the soul of a young man not yet 25 years of age who witnessed these monstrous doings, and whose name, still unknown, was Wendell Phillips. Not only do the biographers trace to this scene the beginning of Mr. Phillip's anti-slavry enthsiasm; they also find in it one of the first impulses that afterward made him an advocate of the rights of women. The women whom the "broadcloth mob" attacked were women delicately born and bred, and of the President of their society, Mrs. Chapman, it has been said that "America never knew a better-trained, more cultivated, or more earnest woman, with nobler manners, with a larger heart, or richer in saving common sense." At the same time those who attacked the women have been described as "gentlemen, well dressed, rich, and the inheritors not only of money, but of all that had been done for culture and enlightenment in Boston for 200 years."

One year later than this scene Mr. Phillips was found formally enrolled among the Garrison abolitionists, and in 1837 he made his first great mark as a public orator It was at Faneuil Hall in Boston, when a public meeting had been called to protest against the murder at Alton, Ill., of the Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy, the editor of an anti-slavery newspaper. Mr. Lovejoy's office had been attacked by a mob, and in his efforts to save his printing-press from its fury he was killed. He was a native of New England and had friends there who deeply deplored his loss. The Boston meeting was attended by many persons who did not sympathize with the abolitionists, and by many others who were lukewarm in their advocacy of anti-slavery principales. It has even been said that but for Mr. Phillips the meeting would have ended in a few perfunctory resolutions under crafty leadership. Some difficulty was found in securing the use of Faneuil Hall, and the permission was finally granted with reluctance. Several addresses had been made when Attorney-General Austin in a violent speech defended the Alton rioters, and said Mr. Lovejoy came to his death by his own imprudence, and that the utterance of sentimeuts such as Mr. Lovejoy had uttered should be suppressed. Mr. Phillips at this point gained the floor, and, as Mr. Clarence Cook has said, "took the meeting out of the hands of the Sauls who who held the clothes of the slayers of the martyrs and were consenting unto their death." At first the audience had been indisposed to hear Mr. Phillips, and some were decidedly opposed to his being allowed to speak at all, but when he had once begun they listened with amazement at his eloquence, and the parallel he drew between Warren at Bunker Hill, and Lovejoy at Alton finally called forth a storm of cheers. From this time forth Mr. Phillips was a famous man, and the fame of his eloquence soon spread across the continent. He gave up his commission as a lawyer, knowing he could no longer hold himself bound to obey the Constitution, which protected slaveholders' rights which he had determined to destroy. In this he made a great personal sacrifice, for his prospect at the Bar were brilliant, and since the Faneuil Hall speech they had become more brilliant than ever.

From this date forward Mr. Phillips, until 1861, was everywhere known as a prominen, leader of the abolitionists and their most gifted and popular orator. Rarely has eloquence like his been known in this country. "He had united," says Mr. Cook, "such weight of matter and such manliness of manner, with only so much grace as may be allowed to a man, that no audience though it was packed with enemies when he began but would be his friend when he had ended." Whenever he was asked to speak he spoke, when it was physically possible to do so. It may be doubted if he ever declined to speak for any other reason than a physical one, and it is known that he always spoke on slavery without pay, and that he very often paid his own traveling expenses besides. He never used notes for these anti-slavery speeches, and the rule was that he did not write out his speeches beforehand. The full measure of his services to the anti-slavery cause it would be difficult to mete out, nor is it necessary to do so for a public with which the memory of his services is still vivid and green. Mr. Garrison was the author of the cause, but it was given to Mr. Phillips to "take the water out of his great cistern and with it refresh the whole land." Year after year he appeared at the anniversaries of the Anti-Slavery Society to review the progress made and cast upon his opponents storms of invective which are remembered to this day. Until the opening of the civil war Mr. Phillips advocated disunion as the only road to abolition, but after the war began he sustained the Government, and his reason in this case was the same as in the first. He advocated in 1863-4 the arming, educating, and enfranchising of the freedmen, and, in order to secure the two latter ends, he secured the continuation of the Anti-Slavery Society's existence until after the adoption of the fifteenth amendment in 1869. He had become now a prominent advocate of temperance and labor reform, and on those issues became a candidate for Governor of Massachusetts in 1870. He received nearly 20,000 votes. His next notable appearance in public for a public cause was made in 1875 at Faneuil Hall. It was a meeting called to denounce the Lonisiana policy of President Grant. Mr. Phillips made a speech that attracted wide attention, in which he declared in favor of that policy. Woman suffrage is another topic to which he has of late years given his energies and eloquence, and he has also been prominent as an advocate of prohibitory liquor laws, prison reform, and the abolition of capital punishment. In March, 1875, his financial views were set forth in a speech delivered at Boston, but this and other positions taken by him have caused deep regret among his admirers, one of whom, Mr. Cook, has well said: "In his way of advocating his favorite doctrines of temperance and woman's rights, a world that loves him and freely pays the gratitude it owes him forgives what it can but think his frequent wrong-headedness and lack of judgment. But it finds it more difficult to forgive his soiling his great name, never flecked before, by striking hands with that least-erected spirit, Benjamin F. Butler, in any enterprise, and, of all enterprises, in the advocacy of such a fallacy as that of paper money."

As a popular lecturer Mr. Phillips's reputation is as broad as his reputation as an advocate of human rights. He has been heard in most of the Northern States, if not in all, and everywhere with great delight. Delane, of the London Times, once heard him, though he went into the hall somewhat under protest, having in mind only the slavery associations of Mr. Phillips's name, but when he came away on being asked if he had been pleased, his answer was: "Pleassed! I never heard anything like it. We have no orator in England who can compare with him. He is the most eloquent speaker living." Probably the most famous of Mr. Pillips's lectures are those on "The Lost Arts" and "Toussaint l'Onverture;" the former of which has been delivered some hundreds of times. His funeral enlogies on Theodore Parker and John Brown are also celebrated.

About three years ago an intimate friend of Mr. Phillips, one who had known him for 25 years, made public some interesting facts about his private life. Though in comfortable circumstances, worth probably $200,000, Mr. Phillips then lived, and since his marriage had lived, in an old-fashioned, meagrely furnished house in Essex-street, Boston. For 30 years he had dwelt there and the encroachments of ordinary boarding-houses and retail shops could not drive him away. Finally, when a street improvement made it necessary for him to go, he went deep regret. He has been a great lover of art, though he collected no pictures, or bronzes, or marbles, because he preferred to give the money they would cost to the poor. No really needy, deserving man or woman ever appealed to him, said this friend, in vain. "He is constantly doing good, but he is so secretive and silent concerning his benevolence that nobody hears of it, unless by accident." His manner in private was wholly simple and natural; it put persons at their ease; yet it was the manner of a patrician, and "men of the common sort who meet him esteem and admire him, though they always feel the difference between him and themselves." His wife was long a chronic invalid; he had no children. To his wife he ascribed all the best things he had done. He was a member of the Old South Church, but he rarely, if ever, attended church anywhere, having been repelled by the course taken by orthodoxy in slavery times.—New York Times.

A Call for a State Convention of Colored Men in Mississippi.

ROOMS CORRESPONDING SECRETARY,
STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE,
JACKSON, MISS., Feb. 7, 1884.

Pursuant to instructions received at a meeting of the State Central Committee, held January 15th, a Convention of Colored Men is hereby called to meet in this city on Wednesday, April 23, 1884, for the purpose of considering questions of vital importance to the colored people of Mississippi, and to elect delegates to the National Convention of Colored Men to be held in Richmond, Va., in July next.

By order of the Committee.

J. J. SPELMAN, Chm'n.
EDW. L. GILLIAM, Cor. Sec'y.

The Housekeeper.

A RECIPE FOR WASHING.—My way of washing calico for forty-five years, says an Iowa lady, has been to take one-half peck or more of wheat bran, put it in the wash-boiler, and pour on from four to six gallons of water; let it come slowly to a boil; strain through a coarse cloth, cooling it just enough to bear the hands in. Wash the calico in it, not using any soap, as it is of a lathery consistence; rinse and starch in the shade, and it will set the color of the new calico so that it can afterwards be washed in the ordinary way.

There is nothing better for a cut than powdered resin. Get a few cents worth, pound it until it is quite fine, put it in a cast-off spice box with perforated top, then you can easily sift it on the cut. Put a soft cloth around the injured member, and wet it with water once in a while, and it will prevent inflammation or soreness.

POTATO FRITTERS.—One pint of boiled and mashed potatoes, half a cupful of hot milk, three tablespoonfuls of butter, three of sugar, two eggs, a little nutmeg, and one teaspoonful of salt. Add the milk, butter, sugar and seasoning to the mashed potatoes, and then add the eggs well beaten. Stir until very smooth and light. Spread about half an inch deep on a buttered dish, and set away to cool. When cold cut into squares. Dip in beaten egg and bread crumbs, and fry brown in boiling fat.

ROLLS.—Flour, two quarts; sugar, one tablespoonful; butter, one tablespoonful; one-half cup of yeast; one pint of scalded milk, or water, if milk is scarce, and a little salt. Set to rise until light, then knead down hard, and set to rise, and when wanted make in rolls. Place a piece of butter between the folds and bake in a slow oven.

CUCUMBER CATSUP.—Here is an excellent rule for cucumber catsup. Take one dozen large ripe cucumbers, make a bag of thin muslin, put them in it and hang them up to drain over night; chop two or three onions, two or three green peppers, add a tablespoonful of salt and the thin substance left in the bag; one quart of the best vinegar is needed. This will keep and will be delightfully fragrant and fresh in midwinter.

A HINT FOR IRONING DAYS.—Collars that are laundried at home often fail to please, because they are not ironed out flat, and when the edges are put in the cuffs blister and wrinkle. This can be avoided if the laundress only knows how to iron cuffs until they are perfectly dry, and then takes the broad side of the flat-iron, and, pressing rather hard on the edge, places it at the end of the cuff, and slowly passes over the length of the cuff. The cuff will roll as the iron leaves it. This is so simple an operation that one is likely to succeed the first time she tries to do it.—Mes.

REMEDY FOR BURNS AND SCALDS.—It is now many years ago, says Mr. F. Peppercorne in Popular Science Monthly, while I was in some investigations as to the qualities and effects of the acids in inflammation of the skin, etc., that he was fortunate enough to discover that a saline solution, or a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda in either plain water or camphorated water, if applied speedily or as soon as possible to a burned or scalded surface was most effectual in immediately relieving the acute burning pain, and when the burn was superficial or not severe removed all pain in the course of a few minutes, having also the great advantage of cleanliness, and applied at once, of preventing the usual consequences—a blistering of the skin, separation of the epidermis, and the formation of pus. For this purpose all that is necessary is to cut a piece of lint, several pages, or even thick blotting paper, of a size sufficient to cover the burned or scalded parts, and to keep it constantly well wet with the sodaic lotion, so as to prevent its drying. By this means it usually happens that all pain ceases in from a quarter to a half an hour, or even in much less time. When the main part of a limb, such as the hand and forearm or the foot and leg, has been burned, it is best, when practicable, to plunge the part at once into a jug or pail, or other convenient vessel filled with the soda lotion, and keep it there until the pain subsides; or the limb may be swathed or encircled with a surgeon's cotton bandage previously soaked in the saturated solution and kept constantly wet with it, the relief usually being immediate provided the solution be saturated and cold. What is now usually sold as bicarbonate of soda is what he has commonly used and recommended, although this is well known to vary much in quality according to where it is manufactured; but it will be found to answer the purpose, although probably Howard's is most to be depended on, the common carbonic being too caustic.

The Sweetest Joys.

Very many of the sweetest joys of Christian hearts are songs which have been learned in the bitterness of trial. It is said of a little bird that he will never learn to sing the song his master will have him sing while it is light in his cage. He learns a snatch of every song he hears, but will not learn a full separate melody of his own. And the master covers the cage and makes it dark all about the bird, and then he listens and learns the one song taught to him, until his heart is full of it. Then, ever after, he sings that one song in the light. With many of us it is as with the bird. The Master has a song He wants to teach us, but we learn only a strain of it, a note here and there, while we catch up snatches of the world's song and sing them with it. Then He comes and makes it dark about us till we learn the sweet melody He would teach us. Many of the loveliest songs of peace and trust sung by God's children in this world, have been taught in the darkened chamber of sorrow.—Christian Weekly.

Neuralgia.

A lady in Virginia, after using the Treatment for two weeks, writes:

"I am a great deal stronger than when I commenced its use. * * * One thing I must tell you. It stopped the neuralgia. I took cold and feared that I would have it for two or three weeks, as I generally stood the pain for that long before I would take chloral, the only thing that ever stopped it before, and I disliked to take it so much that I would put it off until I thought I could not live for the agony. But this time it only lasted two days. When I began the Compound Oxygen I could scarcely sit up an hour; now I can sit up most of the time."

Our "Treatise on compound Oxygen" containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address, DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard St., Philadelphia.

Bulgaria is the great natural highway of travel between Eastern and Western Europe, and the door to Southern Russia. The Bulgarians because of their thrift, sobriety and pertinacity, have been called the Dutch of Eastern Europe, and it is said that to them alone can we look for any hopeful prospect for these regions. Their religion demands of them the observeance of 180 days in the year as fast, or feast, days.

One of the draw backs of married life is sickness of the little ones. For a Cold or a Cough you cannot find a better remedy than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Nearly all physicians prescribe it and no family should be without it.

It requires some grace to say: A humble place is the place for me, and if it be God's will I prefer it; the humblest work is the work for me, and by his grace I will do it. Do we ever consider what Christ meant when he washed his disciples feet?

Ants at Play.

The old story of ants indulging in games and play was for a long time thought to be a fable, but grave scientific gentlemen of our day have seen it, and we shall have to believe it now, queer as it seems. The old story was told by Huber, who saw the ants on a fine day assembled on the surface of their nest, and behaving in a way that he could only explain as simulating festival sports or other games. They raised themselves on their hind legs, embraced each other by the antennæ, feet, or mandibles, and wrestled, but all in the friendliest fashion. Then they let go, ran after each other, and played hide and seek. When one was victorious it seized all the other in the ring and tumbled them over like ninepins.

So much for the old writer now says the new: The players caught each other by the feet or jaws, rolled over each other on the ground like boys playing, pulled each other inside the entrance of their nest, only to come out again, and so on. All this was done without bad temper, or any spurting of poison, and it was quite clear that all the rivalry was friendly.

Frederick Douglass is intellectually and morally the superior of thousands and ten of thousands of white men. He has more learning, more culture, more political and general knowledge than two-thirds of the members of any ordinary legislature. Some of our senators can claim the credit of being "self-made men" in the matter of dollars. They have nothing but their money to thank for their positions. Frederick Douglass has the greater honor of being a self-educated man, and the learning he has acquired has won him both fortune and respect. What offense does a lady commit who marries such a man? She takes a husband with a dark skin, and a little negro blood in his veins. That is the head and front of her offending. If she had married one of the many low, ignorant white scamps, who, have been kicked out of all decent circles, have found a resting place in the public departments, her friends would not have objected. But she has chosen an intelligent, honorable, able colored man, and has given a terrible shock to "Washington society." Is it not time these prejudices against race should cease? Are they not out of place in a republican government in which all men are now happily considered "free and equal?"—New York World (Dem.)

I have been sick for the past sick years suffering from dyspepsia and general weakness. I have used three bottles of Hop Bitters, and they have done wonders for me. I am well and able to work and eat and sleep well. I cannot say to much for Hop Bitters.

SIMON ROBBINS.

A holy life is made up of a number of small things. little words, not eloquent speeches or sermons; litile deeds, not miracles or battles, nor one great heroic act of mighty martyrdom, make up the true Christian life. The little, constant sunbeam, not the lightning; the waters of Siloam "that go softly" in the meek mission of refreshment, not the "waters of the river, great and many," rushing down in noisy torrents, are the true symbols of a holy life. The avoidance of little evils, little sins, little inconsistencies, little weaknesses, little follies, indiscretions and imprudences, little foibles, little indulgences of the flesh; the avoidances of such little things as these go far to make up, at least, the negative beauty of a holy life.—Bonar.

Almost Insane and Cured.

"Most of the eminent doctors in the East, as well as several of the medical faculty in New York City," writes Rev. P. P. Shirley, of Chicago, "failed to help our daughter's epilepsy, which began to show signs of turning into insanity. By the good providence of God we tried Samaritan Nervine, and it cured her." Your druggist keeps it. $1,50.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to inquire for Betty Hadden. Her husband was Benjamin Lonis; he used to belong to the same man, Hadden; and I have an uncle, Fred. Hadden, who lived near Mansfield, La., with my young master. My name was Millie Hadden, and I lived on Red River, but my name is now Millie Randolph. Address me at Musson P. O., La.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find my brother. I left him in Mississippi. His name is Jeff. Brower, and I understand that he belongs to the M. E. Church. There were three children of us, two sisters and one brother. My sister is Chaney Hale. If there is a brother of that name I would like to know. Write me at St. James Church, Houston, Texas, in care of Peter Butler.

BETSEY WILLIAMSON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire from Louis Bush, whose name I see in your paper, did he ever live in Georgia? If so, did he ever belong to James Larke. Answer, addressing your letter to me at Midway, Ala. ELIJAH H. WATSON.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives whom I left in North Carolina. I left my mother in 1846. My mother and three children belonged to Elijah Polk. My mother's name was Chaney, the three children were brother Albert, sister Mary, and the other's name I cannot remember. I belonged to Wm. Yore. My father was Jesse Ward. I was sold from my people in 1846 to a negro trader. I wrote to my mistress' daughter, Annie Yore, and she answered that she knew where my sister was, and that she was married and had two children. We lived in Halifax, N. C. My name was then Morning Ward, but it is now Lucy Morrow. Address me at Elgin, Texas, P. O. box 54.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my brother, Henry Hamilton, who belonged to Charley Hamilton, and went to New Orleans with him horse racing, and then came back to Texas about 12 years ago. He went back to New Orleans, and I have never heard from him since. His mother is living in Waco, Texas. Address me at Mooresville, Falls county, Texas.

FRANK HAMILTON.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to find my brother; his name was Robert Cofield. He left me in True county, Ga., in 1851. He belonged to Col. Willis Cofield, and went to Chambers county, Ala., with our young master, Dock Cofield, in 1852; he left there for Arkansas. Our mother was named Lettie Cofield; my name was Mahallah, but they always called me Puss, for short. I got a letter from him in 1870; his postoffice was then Magnolia, Ark. We had a half brother, Sandy, and a half sister, Kitty. Our stepfather was Joe Cofield. We lived ten miles west of LaGrange, True county, Ga. I remember that brother Robert got his forehead split open with an iron wedge, splitting rails for a Mr. Joe Greene, at night, and he will be known by the scar on his forehead. I will be obliged to all the readers of this valuable paper, especially the ministers of Arkansas, in helping me find my brother, Robert Cofield. I have a good start in this world, and would like to find my brother. It may be that my brother has gone back to Tennesse or to Alabama. I will be under obligations to any one who can assist me in finding him. Please address me at Brenham, Texas, care of my husband, Thomas J. Escoe, or Rev. W. H. Jackson, pastor, Brenham, Texas.

MAHALLAH ESCOE.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire through your paper for my two children that I left near Chester village, Chester county, South Carolina, about 1837. I left them on Jesse William's place, about five miles from Chester village, on a little creek called Pea Ridge. Both my children were girls, named Caroline Williams and Sarah Williams. Their mother died in five years after I left them. Her name was Eliza Williams. She belonged to Jesse Williams. I belonged to James B. Pickett, and I was hired out to Jesse Williams at the time I married Eliza, and I went by the name of Tally Williams; but when I was taken away from Jessee Williams by my master, James Pickett, my name was changed to Tally Pickett. I lived on Turkey Creek two years after I was taken from Jesse Williams, and then I was brought to Louisiana, on Red River, by Col. Williamson. The last account I heard of them they were in Houston, Texas; that is what I heard. I don't know whether it was so or not. Since freedom my name has been changed from Tally Pickett to Tally Miller. I would like to hear from my children very much. Write to me in care of H. W. Ogden, Shreveport, La., 3t TALLY MILLER.

The celebrated "beer law" of England was enacted in the interest of temperance. The idea was advanced by temperance men that the free use of beer and wine would decrease drunkenness. That it had the opposite effect, and that drunkenness increased, is a matter of history; and yet even now the Century argues that the "ill success of the present movement is due to the fact that there is no discrimination made between the lighter and stronger drinks." Every close observer knows that the use of light drinks leads to the use of stronger ones; and the great hindrance to "the cause" we believe is not the lack of "discrimination," but rather the negative influence of these quasi reformers, many of whom cannot see as others do because they are still looking through a (wine) glass darkly.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

"I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, two years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, and TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have cleaned me out nicely. My appetite is splendid, food digests readily, and I now have natural passages. I feel like a new man." W. D. EDWARDS, Palmyra, O.

Plantation Melodies —AND— REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. E. S. Hunt. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Kreshel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Bound in cloth, gilt, 272 pages, and portrait. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price, 60 cents.

Address, PHILLIPS & HUNT, 32 Natchez street, New Orleans.

The Ordinary of Cobb county, Ga., officially advertises an election, to be held March 5, to decide the question of prohibiting the sale of whisky.

Some Albanian tribes revolted and endeavored to prevent the cession of terrltory to Montenegro, bnt were driven ont by Montenegrin troops.

It is believed that M. de Brazza, leader of the French expedition in Africa is dead. At last acconnts he was snrronnded by hostile natives who refused to allow his followers to approach him.

The new bond of Gen. Longstreet as Marshal at Atlanta has been disapproved. Gen. Longstreet has been advised by the Department of Justice to send forward a better and more satisfactory bond.

James G. Blaine, Jr., Mr. Blaine's youngest son, was recently expelled from Georgetown College for drunkenness. He is only seventeen years old, bnt this is the third college which has fonnd it necessary to prohibit his attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Blaine are nearly heartborken over their son's condnct.

A special from Cullacan, Chihuahna, Mexico, says: Jndge Henry Cooper, formerly United States Senator from Tennessee, was killed by robbers near that city. He was manager of the famons Polk Silver Mine, and left Nashville in November with $30,000 United States exchange to pay off the debts of the concern and start a mill. Soon after his arrival in Mexico he wrote back that he had struck very rich ore, many pockets rnnning thonsands ofdollars per ton, and that he wonld start a mill as soon as supplies were received from Culiacan. He was on his way there for that pnrpose when he was killed. The mine is high np in the Sierra Madre Mountains, and the conntry between there and Culiacan is invested with robbers.

The Dundee Whaler Thetis has been purchased for nse in the Greeley relief expedition.

Baker Pasha was defeated near Tokar; his losses were 2,000 men, four Krupp cannon and two Gatling guns. The Turks and Europeans fought well. Baker Pasha will retire at once to Suakim with the remainder of his force. A portion of Baker Pasha's force of 3,000 left Trinkitat Saturday, and threw up intrenchments on the shores of lagoons four miles distant. The rest of the troops followed Monday. Baker Pasha intended to advance to Wellof Tebe, five miles further and half way to Tokar. Nothing was heard afterward of his movements nntil there came the news of his defeat. It was rather expected, as his force consisted of raw and badly eqnipped, drilled and disciplined recruits, some of of whom were sent to the front without arms, and some with muskets. Baker Pasha lost all of his camels and baggage in the fight. Most of the Egyptian officers and men bolted. Col. Sartorious tried hard to rally them, but without success. The Europeans behaved splendidly. Col. Sartorious narrowly escaped with his life. The enemy pursued the defeated force almost into Trinkitat. The European police and Turkish infantry were cut to pieces. Fourteen Europeans and three native officers are missing.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of California, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Josh Billings on Infidelity.

Impndence, ingratitnde, ignorance and cowardice make up the kreed ov infidelity.

Did yon ever hear ov a man's renonncing Christianity on his death-bed, and turning infidel?

Gamblers, nor free-thinkers, haven't faith enough in their profession to teach it to their children.

No theist, with all his boasted bravery, haz ever yet dared to advertize hiz unbelief on hiz tnme stnn.

It iz a statistikal fakt that the wicked work harder to reach hell than the righteous do to enter heaven.

I notiss one thing: when a man gets into a tight spot, he don't never send for hiz friend the devil to get him ont.

I had rather be an ideot than an infidel; if I am an infidel, I have made miself one; if an ideot, I waz made so.

I have never met a free-thinker yet who dldn't believe a hnndred times more nonsense than he kan find in the Bible ennywhere.

It iz alwuss safe to follow the religious beleaf that our mothers taught us—there never waz a mother yet who taught her child to be an infidel.

A man may learn infidelicy from books, and from hiz assoshiates, but he kant learn it from hiz mother nor the works ov God that surround him.

If an infidel could only komprehend that he kan prove more bi hiz faith than he kan bi hiz reazon, hiz impudence wonld be mutch less offensive.

Unbeleavers are alwuss so reddy and anxious to prove their nnbeleaf, that i hav thought they mite be just a leetle doubtful about it themselfs.

The infidel, in hiz impudence, will ask yu to prove that the flood did occnr, when the poor ideot himself kant even prove, to save hiz life, what makes one apple sweet and one sour, or tell whi a hen's egg is white, and a duk's egg blne.

When I hear a noizy infidel proklaiming hiz unbeleaf, I wonder if he will send for a brother infidel to kum and se him die. I guess not. He will be more likely to send for the orthodox man who engineers the little brick church just around the korner.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retird from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent onre of consnmptlon, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervons Debility and all Nervons Complaints, after having tested its onrative powers in thonsands of cases, has felt it his dnty to make it known to his fellows Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of chargo to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and nsing. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N Y. jan10-19teow

Three human bodies packed in whisky casks were shipped from Batimore to John Carlson, a veterinary snrgeon of Chicago, and there found at his place of business.

Religion is not a thing of noise and spasm, bnt of silent self-sacrifice and qniet growth.—James Spilling.

Some days ago Governor Robinson, of Massachusetts, was asked by a personal friend why he did not give a son of his the post of a private secretaryship. He is reported to have replied: "I think too much of my boy to start him riding on the top of a bnbble. He has got to prepare for a solid and useful career in life. Besides, I do not intend to fit out my family with offices."

A yonng lady, who is a member of the First Baptist Church, Elizabeth, N. J., lately refnsed an offer of fifteen hundred dollars a year to sing in a Unitarian Church becanes she would not accept a position in a society which denies the divinty of her Lord.

A queer example of religious zeal was witnessed at the little town of Anstin recently. The colored church was snbmerged by the sudden rise of a bayon, bnt the minister, an old-fasioned plantation negro preacher, took a position on the roof and the congregation gathered abont in skiffs and listened to the sermon.

The Church Extension Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church disbnrsed last year $229,284.82, and had on hand 195 applications Nov. 1, 1883. The society is stimulating and encouraging church bnilding all over the conntry. Its loan fnnd of $500,000 is kept moving. We can never build permanently nntil we build churches wherever we preach.

Half a loaf is, no donbt, better than none, but a newspaper man never gets a chance to loaf at all.—Rochester Post-Express.

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the Savannah MORNING NEWS makes a new departnre in jonrnalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

inclnding its mammoth eight-page Snnday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the futnre as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will he, as it has heen always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a rednction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will he served by snch rednction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be fonnd.

Special attention will he given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regnlar and snpplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON VII. Feb. 17, 1884. THE CONVERSION OF THE JAILER. (Acts xvi, 25-40.)

The miracle of the earthquake was a divine attestation to the apostle s that they had been summoned to carry the Gospel to Macedonia, and to the Philippians, that the Gospel was from God. Recalling the wounds and the torture of the stocks, it seems marvelous that Paul and Silas triumphed over their bodily afflictions and rejoiced in God. Tertullian remarks, "The leg feels nothing in the stocks when the mind is in heaven." What a rebnke for fainting under light afflictions! How elevating and fortifying the grace of Christ! God answered them speedily and powerfully, even when they looked not for such a display. Well pleasing in the sight of God is joyful faith in his people which rises above every form of trial. The other prisoners were powerfully affeted by God's dealings with his own. They heard and attended to the songs, the doors were opened for them as well as for Paul and Silas, their chains also fell off. They had a better jailer thenceforth. They had an intimation of a divine Gospel for all men. Observe Christianity's utterance about suicide, "Do thyself no harm." Suicide is a harm, a doctrine emanating from Christianity, which has raised the valne of human life. The fearful prevalence of suicide calls for renewed and impressive publication of this doctrine. How clearly in this narrative we behold the play of emotion in the jailer's transition from sin to salvation, conviction, faith, baptism, spiritual life, joy through the gift of the holy spirit. Paul and Silas, as examples to those who should receive the Gospel, accept the scourge, the prison, the stocks. They might have saved all by simply exclaiming: "I am a Roman." Nor was it possible in the summary and tumultuous manner in which they were dealt with could have prevented their suffering this; but then there would have been no earthqnake, no jailer converted, Christianity not nearly so well impressed on the city, and manifested even in the eyes of the magistrates themselves. Apparent calamities are not always wholly evil.—Western.

Waste no time; delays have dangerous results. If a member of your family is suffering with a sliget cough or cold, don't wait until it develops itself into consumption, but procure at once a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and cure that cough.

NEW BOOKS.

THE METHODIST CENTENNIAL YEAR BOOK for 1884. The one hundredth year of the separate organization of American Methodism. Edited by W. H. DePuy, D.D. Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, New York; 420 pages, price $1.50.

The year 1884 will be one of extraordinary interest to every Methodist family in this country. It will complete the first one hundred years of the separate organization of American Methodism. To meet the demands that are sure to come, this centennial year for information, Dr. DePuy carefully prepared this book, every page of which is filled with carefully prepared facts and figures that every Methodist preacher and member of the Church should have. The General Methodist Statistical Outline gives an instructive record of the data of every important event in any branch of the Methodist family throughout the world. The historical notes and statistics relating to every branch of Methodism are the latest published and the most reliable. The various departments of church work, to-wit: Publishing Houses, Educational Institutions, the Benevolent and Charitable Associations, Bishops, General and Annual Conferences, are clearly stated. It furnishes a complete, instructive and inspiring history of the preparatory measures of the Christmas Conference of 1784, as well as the deliberations and conclusions of that body. The Centennial Year Book is the book for Methodist preachers and Methodist people. It presents a helpful outline for the use of our preachers in their Centennial service this year. For sale at 32 Natchez street, New Orleans.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

In The Current of Feb., 2, John George Bourinot, the distinguished Canadian anthor, gives the first of two remarkably beautiful and graphic papers entitled "Some Old Forts by the Sea," which will have subsequent publication in "The Transactions of the Royal Society of Canada," of which Mr. Bourinot is an honorary Secretary. They are replete with poetry and romance, and have a rare historical value.

Rev. Dr. Charles S. Robinson's "Open Letter" in the February Century on "Artistic Help in Divine Worship" will be followed by others from the same writer on the general subject of church music. "Organs and Orchestras in Church" will appear in the March number, and "Worshiping by Proxy" later.

The Sidereal Messenger for February has an interesting article on "The Nucleus of the Great Comet of 1882." Northfield, Minn., Carleton College Observatory.

The Season for March (New York; International News Co.) has been received. Cuts and patterns of latest fashions and fancy work are given profnsely. Price 30 cents, at the news stands.

Our Little Ones for February, (Boston Russell Publishing Co.) opens with Grandmother's Clock; Scamp and His Pupil, Four Years Old; Toddie Lights a Match; charming stories, fine engravings. One year $1.50.

DeLesseps has been invited to take charge of the canal which is to make St. Petersburg a seaport, independent of Cronstadt.

At Mansfield, La., B. F. Jenkins, jr., was found guilty, without capital punishment, the murder of Rev. J. Lane Borden. Ned Jenkins was acquitted.

In a spasm of virtne, one of the lynchers of Wesley Posey, a Negro, at Birmingham, Ala., was fined $25 or 20 days in the coal mines, with time additional for costs, say six months in all. Leniency was due to "mental weakness and drunkenness."

The Senate of Massachusetts adopted an order for a committee to report measures expressive of grate-appreciation of "the distinguished philanthropist and matchless orator," Wendell Phillips. The council of Boston voted to open Faneuil Hall from 10 a.m.. to 4 p. m., to enable the people to view his remains, and adopted a resolution of regret.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

J. Smith, Willis: "I have to walk 8 miles to meet my appointments. There is no place for idlers here. The laborers are few. I am trying to meet a debt on the church at Willis, when I shall complete it. I shall have to work steadily and patiently with a slender support."

W. H. Ponton, Boxville: "After a long and lonesome drive I arrived at this place and found a host of sinners preparing for a dance. About an hour after night five members of our church came to the dance. I began to inquire about the church, and found there had been no preaching for three months. No one knew how many members there were, and Bro. Caesar had no church book ready, and could not find it. I found ten members. I have a forty mile circuit, and only one house to preach in, which is the Mt. Zion church. Elder Carmichael visited us, and the people welcomed him."

J. S. Tillory, Hempstead: "We have had no revival, and but few conversions. Our pastor and presiding elder give the church great satisfaction. He will have to cut off the dead limbs, and then the church will take her growth. Paid pastor $20, elder $19; 84 communed at first quarterly meeting. Sabbath-school is prospering. Church trustees want to do a great deal of improvement this year. Many young people have promised to attend church, and contribute to the pastor's support. Sister Georgiana Morton, Bro. Berry Boone; and Bro. Louis Day, 105 years old, active until death, a useful member, have crossed Jordan."

I. B. Scott, Galveston: "In reply to Brother Wesley Harmes of Jeweff, I wish to say my report shows that Bro. Ripetoe paid me $15.20, pehaps his $7.50 was included in said amount. The $6.00 was received from Dr. Morris in person, therefore he is credited with it. The Bishop was cutting so close about money matters that presiding elders prefered to have receipts in their own names for monies paid."

San Francisco has ordered a statue of President Garfield from Nuremberg, Bavaria.

The Presbyterian women stand first among the denominations of the United States who during the past year gave $600,000 to Christianize the heathen, their share of this amount being $200,000. The Baptists gave $156,000; Congregationalists $130,00; Northern Methodists $108,000 Southern Methodists $25,100.

Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volnme of addresses is the most interesting collection of popnlar educational docnments ever given to onr people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Panperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should he in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Editorial Notes.

High license in practice has not proven much better than free whiskey.

A "Methodist paper for every Methodist family," should be the inspiring motto in pushing the canvass.

Bishop Bowman wrote to the Central from South Carolina: "We found in Sumter some families who were loyal to the Union and whose lives have been in danger ever since the war."

The Union Signal, of Chicago, was informed by high authority that the American Express company has decided to dismiss every employe using intoxicating liquors, as a purely business matter.

On Jan. 31, J. N. Stearns, president of the State Prohibitory Amendment Association, in the Assembly Chamber at Albany, before the joint committees on internal affairs, delivered an address in opposition to any law for the license or sale of intoxicating drinks. It has been printed in pamphlet, and shows that high licenses do not prohibit, and that "high license whiskey will kill at as short range as low licensed whiskey."

The Wesleyan Christian Advocate says: "If the friends of temperance continue firm and active and united, they will achieve a complete victory at last. Let us in no place seek to go ahead of the sentiment of prohibition, but build securely on that even if we have to build slowly. Georgia will not much longer consent to derive her public revenues from drunkards and the widows and orphans of drunkards."

Gen. G. T. Beauregard, who fired on Fort Sumpter in 1861, and who supervises the drawings of the Louisiana State Lottery Company and the parades of the White League militia of Louisiana, in a general order to the latter speaks of their participating in the ceremonies to be observed in unveiling the statue of the "most illustrious American the nineteenth century has produced." The statue referred to is that of Robert E. Lee, an associate conspirator in the attempt to destroy the American Union.

Geo. D. Watson, D.D., during the month of November last, held a meeting in Mobile in the interest of Bible holiness. Speaking of a church that had two hundred and seventy nominal members, he says he could not find over eight that would profess the experience of present conversion, and not one that made a clear profession of heart purity. The remark of Dr. Lovick Pierce that "the mass of church members were not up to the point of grace where sanctification begins," he thinks strikingly true of that city. We believe in the instantaneous sanctification of the soul, but we do not know the exact point of grace one must occupy before God can begin the glorious work. We should be glad to have Dr. Watson, if he can, give us light on this question.

Break down the barriers implanted in the breast of the white man by God and enforced by the statutes of many of the States of this Union, and we should have the country filled with a mongrel population weak in intellect and physically diseased. At the end of the mighty struggle which resulted in the prostration of the South, the civilized world was amazed and shocked that the conqueror suggested miscegenation as one of the woes to the conquered.—Macon (Ga.) Telegraph and Messenger.

When we contrast the gigantic intellect of the Georgia editor with the "weak intellect" and "physical disease" which embarrass Frederick Douglass, who may not live a full century; or with John M. Langston, who may drop off at the early age of 70 years; or thousands of others of mixed blood all around us, possessing wealth, education and fair repute among their fellowmen, how can we fail to see that the barriers evaded by Southern slave holders before the war are to be adjusted at last? The slaveholders of the South practiced miscegenation for pleasure and profit. They are now requested by the civilized world to cease polygamy and adultery, and to maintain the barriers common to all decent society. Their progeny lives to refute the heresies of their fathers on race relations. Not a Georgia statesman, living or dead, has excelled in patriotism to his country or service to the cause of human rights, Mr. Frederick Douglass; certainly not he who would found a confederacy with slavery as its corner stone, or he who dreamed of calling the roll of his slaves on Bunker Hill.

A Conference on Literature.

A Conference on Literature for Youth will be held at Plainfield, N. J., Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 27 and 28. Essays will be read by the Rev. A. E. Dunning, of Boston, the Rev. Jesse Bowman Young, of Philadelphia, and others. Mrs. G. R. Alden ("Pansy") will hold "Primary Teachers' Conference." Lectures will be delivered by Dr. Lyman Abbott, Dr. W. M. Taylor, of New York, and others. Dr. J. H. Vincent and Dr. J. L. Hurlbut will be present during the entire conference. Persons interested in the subject are requested to send written suggestions to the Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent, Plainfield N. J.

The Negro's Position.

The Negro, as part and parcel of the great American Republic, is an established fact. No one can deny his identity with the earliest days of the republic. Nor can any one successfully say that the Negro came to America by mere chance, and leave out the migration of other people to America under similar circumstances. On the contrary, the citizenship of the African race has been legally inherited as that of any other race. Everywhere, in the earliest as well as in recent American history, the Negro stands conspicuous in all its troubles or undertakings. He may not have been raised to generalship or statesmanship, in the earliest times, but to whatever post of duty he is placed in trying times, truthfulness to his trust and devotion to the cause are his religion. Perhaps historians of the seventeenth century, and the early part of the eighteenth century failed to give the colored race credit for his share of the heroic deeds committed by men of those periods. They may have decided that the colored men, being slaves, form no part of the drama of human performance, and concluded not to give them any of the glory of victory or the endurance of hardship. Historians, have been accused of leaving unrecorded, important events. This was probably done for fear of weakening their cause, or strengthening that of their enemies. Yet, who knows, but what some of the most heroic deeds during the revolutionary periods, were performed by colored men? But, as history is silent on those points, the world will remain ignorant of the fact.

The Irish, the German, and other European nations came to the United States because they were oppressed at home. They also came to enrich themselves and help build up a great nation founded upon slavery. They fled from the terror and misery of oppression, seeking for a better country, but as soon as they reached the land of the free, they spurned the persecution of others. O, how incousistent are human ideas of right and justice!

The Negro was brought over as slaves or servants. In that capacity they came in contact with the different nations. With the white race they have learned a great many simple but useful things. But the acquirement of the fine arts by the Negro was jealously kept from his reach. Thus, the colored race occupy the position of agriculturalists, rather than mechanics. The causes which brought about the servility of the colored race, is generally known, but can not be too often spoken of. This servility would have been transmitted to any other race, under the same circumstances, be it ever so high spirited. But, take all things together, the race ought to feel proud of its record. Submissive the race may be, but treacherous it is not. The Negro is a friend to everybody, even his foe, be he in the gutter or in the palace; in times of trouble he is willing to lend a helping hand. Stanley, to-day, is as safe among the uncivilized, in the heart of Africa, as he would be on the streets of New York, while a colored man is not safe in some part of Indiana, according to Petroleum Nasby. This is the well known character of the race. The Negro has suffered wrongs, no doubt, but he must forget the past and look for the future; all that has happened detrimental to him, must be buried in the dark mist of time, to be called forth only to prove his wrongs or his virtues. Things have changed now, and what we see is the dawn of a new era upon the race. Slavery is abolished by common consent, in the United States; it is no more recognized by the civilized nations. Fanatics in Sondan, and Catholics in Cuba and Brazil will soon be commanded to let go the slaves.

In returning to the subject, I must say that the position of the Negro is like that of the other races. He stands side by side with the white man on every hand; at the ballot, in the school-room, in the pulpit, and in every department of human occupation except where he is forbidden to enter through prejudice. The race astonishes the world in its rapid strides in education and everything else, though he labors under disadvantages.

Politicians, or at least those who have expected a great aid from the colored race in their ostentations desire for wealth and power, and the misanthropists, are the only class of people that have discovered the retrogression of the race: the former for their disappointment—the latter for their uncompromising aversion. But heed not the growlers; make education the common concern of your race, and march on to proficiency. The position of the colored race will, sooner or later, give it a supervision over the race throughout the world. The white people of the United States have used their influence in favor of the oppressed in other countries with much effect, and so can the colored citizens wherever their race is oppressed. Colored men of the United States, think of your position; remember that each of you is a power with your white fellow-citizen, and the same wherever that power extends. Those of you in good circumstances leave sumptons dressing and riotous living, alone and educate yourselves in all the useful business of life. Thus you would make your position so impregnable that it would be useless for any enemy to assail.

More About Home Life.

The kitchen occupies a prominent place in the home. To be able to preside there faithfully and gracefully is a great accomplishment. In the kitchen may be found a fine field for usefulness; either for the mistress of the house or the person who may be hired for the position. There is no place where one can have a better opportunity to do little acts of kindness for the comfort of others, where one can give so many "cups of cold water" in the name of Christ. Regularity in the kitchen forms a foundation for a prosperous home, and a want of order there is fruitful of much discomfort. Badly cooked food, sour bread and bitter, black coffee, with disorderly surroundings, always have a depressing influence. Nothing can so cause ill health, mental depression, and bad tempers. It is thought that much of the desire for intoxicating drinks is caused by the effect of indigestible food upon the stomach. If in their homes men could always have appetizing and nourishing food, their temptation to use spirituous liquors would be much lessened. At this time when so much intemperance prevails and the subject is so much discussed it is proper to consider these things. As women are everywhere workers in the cause of temperance, it would be well for them to suggest that reforms, where they are needed should begin at the homes.

Good food, a cheerful dining room, and kind words there, have a happy effect upon all the inmates of a house. Indeed, I have heard it said that one pretty good way to reach people's hearts is through the stomach.

The value of the work in the kitchen, is not always properly estimated. A woman once told me that her family always lived in a boarding-house. She would very much like a home, but she could not think of keeping house, because in this Southern country, a woman was not considered quite respectable, and could not go into the best society, who would go into her own kitchen and assist in the housework. She did not believe that home could be made attractive or comfortable, unless the lady of the house was willing to do much of her own work, and so she sacrificed a home, and the comfort of those whom she loved above all others, for a foolish custom.

Custom is very arbitrary and inconsistent. To some it says: "Do as little as you can yourself," and to others, "You do a great deal too much, sew elaborately, and cook more than is necessary, and sweep and dust and scrub, never finding time for anything else. Be sure to do whatever is customary, never mind about the comfort."

The many false views upon this subject rob many people of much good in life. The whole fabric of society would soon totter were it not for the places of refuge from temptation, that are supplied by the well ordered homes. I have lately read an article on "Home Life," in which the writer deplored the many homes in the South, among the poorer classes, that are destitute of all refining and elevating influences, poor houses, without windows, and in which are few comforts. In the days of slavery colored people had little to encourage them in making pleasant homes for themselves, and now in some instances, their old habits cling to them. Sometimes, perhaps because they cannot afford to have very beautiful houses, they do not do what they might. I have noticed the fact that where people are earnest Christians they have pleasant homes. To improve in one's surroundings is a result of right living.

As soon as the love of God reigns in the heart, people go right to work, not only to improve themselves, but those around them. They will soon find a way to be comfortable and happy. Jesus Christ created a new power of life in the soul. Where there is a genuine Christianity, there is activity and growth, and a coming out from poverty and filth.

Well directed efforts succeed, and whosoever wishes a happy home can have it. Why we were not created so that our wants might have been supplied as were the Israelites, with manna, right from heaven, we know not unless in this life of probation we need the discipline of labor. No doubt the disagreeable and perplexing work we have to do comes as directly from God as does our greatest blessings.

The kitchen is a battle field, the scene of conflicts, with many perplexing things—little things—which seem to be trying to gain the supremacy, and in reliance upon our own strength we sometimes suffer defeat. Happy is the woman who can rise above the little things and not live merely to keep house, but in the midst of her duties see a higher purpose.

MR. EDITOR—Immediately after conference the brethren entered upon their new fields of labor with renewed zeal; having been greatly inspired with the encouraging reports presented to the conference showing a healthful increase in all departments of church work. As these facts have been made known to the people by the pastors, it has seemed to animate to renewed diligence for greater success during the present year. It was truly refreshing to meet with so many eminent divines, such as our beloved Bishop Bowman, Dr. Stowe, our book agent, and Dr. John Braden, our old, tried and true friend, who has stood at the head of affairs in our Central Tennessee College for nearly a score of years. During all of these years he has shared with us in our joys and sorrows, and has always had a word of cheer and consolation for us in our distress. Long may he live to continue this good work. I think he is fully satisfied that he has our hearty support in the great work of education and the uplifting of our people.

Morristown Seminary is doing well under the labors of Rev. J. S. Hill, the president, and his earnest co-laborers, and we hope that it will prove a good feeder to the Central Tennessee College in the years to come.

Prof. W. P. Thirkield, of Gammon School of Theology, Dr. C. O. Fisher and Rev. A. P. Melton of Savannah Conference, Rev. T. C. Carter, of Central Tennessee Conference, and Rev. Chas. Bullington, of the Tennessee Conference, were also with us. To all we feel grateful for their presence and words of cheer, and hope to meet them again. Many of us can truly say, "Did not our hearts burn while they talked with us by the way," and we still feel the influence upon our work. We have had some revival interest on most of the circuits, with good results. The membership has been greatly edified, and many converted and added to the church.

In Knoxville we had 25 professions and 32 accessions; at Morristown 27 professions and 30 accessions. Our great need in Knoxville is a suitable church house, and our membership of 100 and Sunday-school of 100 are doing all they can to begin the building this year. We are moving on nicely with our collections for general and benevolent causes, and on the whole our work is quite encouraging.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Bishop Warren wrote to the Central Christian Advocate of St. Louis, of our work in New Orleans: "The Methodist Episcopal Church has 3,000 members and sixteen houses of worship in the city. The colored people have just bought a church of the Southern Methodists at Carrollton, and general prosperity attends the churches. The SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE is prospering. It made much larger collections at the three Texas conferences this year than ever before. The General Conference ought to give it a far more generous subsidy. The one thing for every Methodist to be ashamed of in New Orleans is the insufficient character of the buildings of our University. God gave us the people and the churches, and we have not provided the schooling. Situated in front of a beautiful square in the midst of a dense population, needing the advantages the school ought to afford, we have been too niggardly in our appropriations, too negligent in our duty. The colored people themselves paid in $2,200 last year in cash for a building fund, and are struggling to do as well or better this year. Gad is no doubt calling on some one or more to come to their help. Who will answer, "Here am I?"

"Local Preacher, Washington: "Our pastor, T. Larkins, spent two years with us, and we regret to part with him. He lived with us spotless to the world. Such men are needed in the land."

The Morgan City Review publishes a testimonial signed by the St. Mary parish School Board, of the efficient services of the Rev. [illegible] W. Wells, as a teacher of the public school at the Orphans Home. They commend him as competent and reliable, and endorse him generally.

MISSISSIPPI.

W. E. Logan, Oktoc: "I have been taking the paper several months, and find it all it was recommended to be. I am frequently reminded by the lovely letters of that good warrior, Dr. J. Braden, of Nashville. My next school shall be the Central Tennessee College."

Ben. Holiwell: "On Slate Spring Circuit we have three churches and we need a good preacher. There are two very good schools for colored children. The white people would help support a minister if we could get one who would think more of saving souls than of himself."

A. Lemon, Pickens: "I felt deeply the closing words of Bishop Wiley, and was gratified by the responses of Elders D. A. Williams and H. R. Revels. I acknowledged in my heart that I was in love with my brethren regardless of color. I referred to the time spent in Clark University, Atlanta, under President J. W. Lee. If I have ever received any instruction it was through his talents; and I will not forget Dr. Rust's advice in regard to education; or our beloved Bishop Haven, whose words will never die, though he rests in the kingdom. He ordained me and sent me to Senatur. Dr. Fuller, who fell in the field with his face Zionward, recommended me to Mississippi Conference, where I was met with the open hand and appreciative feeling of A. C. McDonald. Let us love one another."

TEXAS.

G. Bragner, Hubbard: "My work shows a good spirit. Shall move my family with me soon."

M. Henderson, La Grange: "On my circuit here the people received me warmly. A leap year entertainment was given and $44.00 realized. A lot of hands came and built a nice fence around the church. There are many faithful workers here. A protracted meeting is going on, and the altar is filled. Many kind friends at Georgetown, where I shall have more of them here."

Hon. Frederick Douglass as a Teacher of Social and Religious Science.

BY MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D. D.

This gentleman has recently published a history of his life and time, which I have read with care, and interest, and I trust to some profit.

So far as this work is what it purports to be, a history of Mr. Douglass' own practical actions and the actions of others touching his bondage and his freedom, it will be admitted as the truth, though of course ex parte.

As a most creditable contribution from a representative co'ored man to American literature it should receive a warm reception, and a generous patronage; especially from the colored people. The writer wishes for it a good sale and financial prosperity. But in this book Mr. Douglass has undertaken to do more than write a history of himself and the times in which he has lived. He has assumed the place of social and religious teacher and written a criticism on the moral, social, industrial, and political economics of the colored people. He presumes to lay down for them certain religious maxims, and advises that they adopt special reformatory measures in their future religious worship. Soon after his freedom Mr. Douglass took a leading position before the country, partly because of his ability, partly because of the circumstances, by which he was personally surrounded, and partly in consequence of the state of the country at that time. His prominence in the anti-slavery conflict gave him no little notoriety with our white fellow-citizens, who came to regard him as the political leader of his race in this country, as they have since learned to estimate Dr. Blyden of Liberia, Africa, as the most scholarly Negro in the world. Formerly the colored people were not disposed to accept this leadership, but lately there has been a change more favorable to it; there is still quite a considerable minority of them who dissent from his political leadership. The writer must be classed with the minority. Whatever may be said of his views and actions touching moral, industrial and political affairs, his cosmopolitanism on social subjects, and his liberalism on those of a religious character, renders Mr. Douglass an unsound if not a dangerous person to lead a people whose minds are in a formative state on these questions. That these religious ideas fail to do harm is no fault of his, but because the colored people do not accept them. This he admits. When at the 583 page of his book, while discussing the subject of cause and effect, he remarks that "My views at this point receive but limited endorsement among my people." His social and religious ethics, Mr. Douglass thus admits, are wrong when tested by the judgment of the colored people. They are no less erroneous in theory and practice when measured by the full light of right, reason and intelligent Christian jurisprudence. It is not my purpose at present to review the cosmopolitanism of Mr. Douglass and its liability to result injuriously to the colored people if approved by them in practice. Reserving that matter for consideration at another time, deo juvante, my intention is to examine his religious doctrines and his right to teach them. I find in Mr. Douglass' monograph a kind word for all his friends and for every form of public beneficence except Christ and orthodox Christianity. For these I have found no kind word there. On the contrary it seems that his object has been to make what progress he could in degrading the great exemplar of mankind and his system, because forsooth his followers have not always been in practice equal to their professions. We begin our examinations at page 562, where he gives his experience as a guest of Mr. R. G. Ingersoll and his family, and his views of that notable gentleman's irreligious conceits.

THE HUMANITY OF AN INFIDEL.

Mr. Ingersoll was at home, and if I have ever met a man with real living human sunshine in his face, and honest, manly kindness in his voice, I met one who possessed these qualities that morning. I received a welcome from Mr. Ingersoll and his family which would have been a cordial to the bruised heart of any proscribed and storm-beaten stranger, and one which I can never forget or fail to appreciate. Perhaps there were Christian ministers and Christian families in Peoria at that time by whom I might have been received in the same gracious manner. In charity I am bound to say there were such ministers and such families, but I am equally bound to say that in my former visits to this place I failed to find them. Incidents of this character have greatly tended to liberalize my views as to the value of creeds in estimating the character of men. They have brought me to the conclusion that genuine goodness is the same whether found inside or outside the church, and that to be an 'infidel' no more proves a man to be selfish, mean, and wicked, than to be evangelical proves him to be honest, just and humane."

If Mr. Douglass only intended to state his experience of and his gratitude to Mr. Ingersoll for his hospitality to him, he has said more than he needed to have said for that purpose. If he meant his remarks only to smite the conscience of such as had neglected to extend humane treatment to him, and his race, and to spur them up to the performance of this duty, in that case a plain recital of the facts, omitting the philosophy relating to his visit in Peoria would better have served his purpose. We would not deny Mr. Ingersoll any praise that may be due him as a man of more or less philanthropic turn of mind respecting the mere bodies of men. But we maintain that Mr. Ingersoll's humanity is in spite, and not the result, of his infidelity. His actions in recognizing the manhood of Mr. Douglass as a Negro, if he did so, proves nothing to the praise of his infidelity. Quite to the contrary, his humane principles prove him to be better than his creed in these particulars. A churchman who would make a less display of humane sentiments under similar circumstances is simply worse than his creed. In one case the no-creed has been unable to fully destroy humanity; while in the opposite case the creed has not yet been able to entirely overcome the depravity of nature. Mr. Douglass must ascertain how far the character of Mr. Ingersoll has been supported by his father's and mother's creed, and degraded by his own, before he can fairly measure the influence of creeds in building this philanthropic character. He must know also to what extent the prejudices of professors who still exhibit a want of brotherly kindness have been overcome by their creeds before he can give an intelligent decision as to their value or deny their utility in the elevation of such characters. To reach a conclusion by any other process would simply convict Mr. Douglass of extreme pessimism toward progressive Christianity, and inordinate optimism toward unfinished infidelity. Mr. Ingersoll's creed has left him hospitality for congenial spirits possibly without regard to color; he is making the best of this world, but what about the next? Take him all around Mr. Ingersoll is just the reverse of what Mr. Douglass pronounces him to be. And Mr. Douglass proves himself wanting in essential qualities for a religious teacher by and because of what he has here said concerning him. The want of which disqualifies him for the important task he has assumed as a religious teacher. Now let us pass on from this statement of his ideas of Mr. Ingersoll and his skepticism to a consideration of the religions fancies of Mr. Douglass in his advanced years, for in early life he was a Methodist local preacher, and "evangelical" in his views. On page 582 we have a summing up of his present thought with reference to Providence and the fixity of Natural laws. Under the running title, "The Laws of the Universe Unalterable," he says, "Neither institutions nor friends can make a race to stand unless it has strength in its own legs; that there is no power in the world which can be relied upon to help the weak against the strong, the simple against the wise; that races, like individuals, must stand or fall by their own merits; thus all the prayers of Christendom cannot stop the force of a single bullett, divest arsenic of poison, or suspend any law of nature." We must regard this quotation as expressive of the mind of the author, because he is able to say just what he means. It is pregnant with skeptical notions touching religion, opposed to any reliance upon God's providence, complacency toward His creatures; and justice in the final disposition of human affairs. It is the impatient expression of a "man who has seen affliction" and tired of waiting on God for the correction of his wrongs, the punishment of his oppressor, and the adjustment of all human differences, has appealed from the Law-giver to the law, from heaven to earth, from God to himself; a reductio absurdum. It is a fact of universal application and acceptance that men or races must do for themselves whatever they can, and at this point there can arise no controversy. It is no less a fact that friends and institutions have in the past, do in this present, and may in the future, inspired by Christian philanthrophy under God uplift the bodies and minds, and advance the every interest of man either as races or individuals; by supplying required opportunities for the reproduction and development of latent almost quiescent forces, which by one cause or another have lapsed into a dwarfed, attenuated and dormant condition. This paralyzing of the mental and moral powers proceeds as in the case of Mr. Douglass himself, who from "Miss Lucretia's" kindness passed to the control of the inhuman "Mr. Covey;" and with broken spirit came to the dizzy, sickening heights, which overlooked the valley of despair. Then, supported by a power not of but in himself, he took courage, resisted, and thus was his tormentor made to respect him for his strength, though not for his humanity. Mr. Douglass was at that time a professed Christian, and through prayer the way for his escape was opened in due time. "He that tempereth the wind to the shorn lamb" and "heareth the young ravens when they cry" had not forgotten him in his dejection and misery. His deliverance came just when the nation was ready for it, and he or his like was needed in the North and in Europe as an object lesson against the oppression of men. He learned the nation to respect him for his rapid and increasing intellectual growth. He arose rapidly, but the means of his resurrection were furnished by friendly institutions and not by himself. He had "legs" but they were not yet strong enough to support him. Strength in mind and morals as in muscles is the product, not the cause of surrounding circumstances, as Mr. Douglass' philosophy improperly teaches. This is equally true in physical or metaphysical, temporal or eternal, material or spiritual things. All the powers of man have suffered a fearful debasement by sin. Since the fall of Adam, mankind has in itself no inborn power to perform works pleasant and acceptable with God. Hence he needed the friendly offices of our Savior working out the plan of redemption. "For while we were yet weak, in due season Christ died for the ungodly." "Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ came into the world to save sinners"...."that by the grace of God He should taste death for every man." Mr. Douglass probably overlooked, as he cannot doubt the truth of this revelation. "Behold the weak are made to stand on the legs of another, the helpless defended against the strong," and "the simple against the wise." This friendly power we have discovered was "God, in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself, not reckoning to them their trespasses." This friendly power was and remains "in the world." Upon it the colored people must rely. It is the same friend who guided Mr. Douglass from Easton jail to a conspicious place as an honored guest on the floor of the British Parliament, and can be relied upon to help the rest of us. God is this power, and He "is no respecter of persons." "If God is for us who can be against us." "For the work of the Cross is to them that are perishing in foolishness; but unto us that are being saved it is the power of God. For it is written I will destroy the wisdom of the wise; and the prudence of the prudent will I reject. Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the disputer of this world? Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? For seeing that in the wisdom of God the world through its wisdom knew not God, it was God's good pleasure through the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

OF FREE WILL.

The condition of man after the fall of Adam is such that he cannot turn and prepare himself by his own natural strength and works to faith, and calling upon God; wherefore we have no power to do good works pleasant and acceptable to God without the grace of God by Christ preventing us, that we may have a good will, and working with us when we have that good will. Imagine Mr. Douglass seated to write his reminiscences almost in sight of the place, and in hearing of the groans where the beloved and lamented Garfield lay in pain, bleeding to death, the prayers of Christendom ascending to heaven for his restoration to the nation. The country brought perilously near the bald foreland of disorder, and his own future in some degree related to the overshadowing calamity. Then it is not difficult to comprehend the intention with which he wrote "All the prayers of Christendom can not stop the force of a single bullet, divest arsenic of poison, or suspend a single law of nature." This is more than rationalism, it is a passionate outburst of genuine fatalism, which would be dangerous but for the fact that it, like all kindred theories and sentiments is a sophism. Nothing can take place in this universe only as God wills or permits it. There is no room for God's foreknowledge, and hence none for foreordination or unconditional predestination. God is, not was or will be. He is an eternal "I Am." He wills what is pure and good and permits, though he does not authorize, what is vile and bad. His approval of one and disapproval of the other class of actions with respective effects upon the intelligent actors He has made known to us. In the economy of grace it is provided, "And we know that to them that love God all things work together for good." We cannot accept God without the acceptation of this truth, because it is a part of his written word. In the sense of present non-intervention whatever is is His will; but His present non-intervention with things forbidden and yet permitted presupposes a future intervention or judgment. Hence His will is the law of both nature and grace. The quality of faith enters into and conditions every effectual prayer addressed to God. It therefore follows that though a marvelous, not to say miraculous thing takes place in answer to prayer, we can not decide whether "any law of nature" has been "suspended" or not. Because God's will is the law, and this we understand only so far as He has been pleased to unfold it in His word and visible works. It would, hence, be sheer presumption to affirm that "any natural law could not be suspended," unless we as fully comprehended God's will, the original and independent cause of every effect, as we do these effects in their relation to visible objects. Part of God's ways, that is, His law, His will, is revealed to us. But by wisdom, science if you please, we can not fully understand the thunders of his power. Though there is much in nature which we do not understand, by the history of God's doings in the world some things are made known to us. We do understaud by the Word of God, which is a revelation of so much of His will or law as we are to know: 1st. That it is a law of nature for fire to burn, and though their very chains were melted off the person of three valient Hebrew captives, Hanniah, Misheck and Azriah were unharmed in the midst of a burning fiery furnace: 2d. It is natural for hungry lions to devour any weaker animal within their reach, but they failed to hurt the prophet Daniel who was cruelly thrown among them. 3d. The virus of an asp, worse than arsenic was divested of its poison passing from the serpent's fangs to the veins of the Apostle Paul herein was a marvelous occurrence contrary to all known law. That the elements of nature were subdued and hungry thousands fed on a few loaves and fishes by our Savior; and that Jesus Christ arose from the dead with the same body he possessed when upon the cross these are all wonderful things; they are contrary to any natural laws which we understand. We call them miracles because we do not understand the laws by which they were caused, only that it was God's will revealed in the acts.

He further says, on pages 582 and 583:

"In my communication with the colored people I have endeavored to deliver them from the power of superstition, bigotry and priestcraft. In theology I have found them strutting about in the old clothes of the masters, just as the masters strut about in the old clothes of the past. The falling power remains among them long since it has ceased to be the religious fashion of our refined and elegant white churches. I have have taught that the "fault is not in our stars, but in ourselves that we are underlings," that "who would be free, themselves must strike the blow." I have urged upon them self-reliance, self-respect, industry, perseverance and economy, to make the best of both worlds, but to make the best of this world first, because it comes first, and that he who does not improve himself by the motives and opportunities afforded by this world gives the best evidence that he would not improve in any other world. Schooled, as I have been, among the Abolitionists of New England, I recognize that the universe is governed by laws which are unchangeable and eternal, that what men sow they will reap, and that there is no way to dodge or circumvent the consequences of any act or deed. My views at this point receive but limited endorsement among my people. They, for the most part, think they have means of procuring special favors and help from the Almighty; and, as their faith "is the substance of things hoped for, and the evidence of things not seen, they find much in this expression which is true to faith but utterly false to fact.

But I meant here only to say a word in conclusion. Forty years of my life have been given to the cause of my people, and if I had forty years more they should all be sacredly given to the great cause. If I have done something for that cause, I am, after all, more a debtor to it than it is debtor to me."

Now Mr. Douglass lays his strictures directly upon the religious faith and habits of the colored people. But for my part, I agree with very little he has said in doing so. I have heard much of the superstitions by which it is alleged the colored people have been enthralled and in matters pertaining to politics and "Old Saws" I have reason to suspect that they have in many instances and places been over credulous. But my experience has been against anything which might be justly termed superstition in their religious beliefs. Their religious prejudices are in general, obstinately strong, and their denominationalism some times so prominent as to impede rather than advance the cause they earnestly espouse, but I do not perceive that they can be called "bigots" in any other or worse sense than this. Even here they probably surpass neither the general mass of Protestants or Romanists, and they are far behind the most cultured skeptics or infidels in all that can be properly denominated bigotry or fanaticism. The colored ministry of this country before the war was simply fellow slaves with the laity like Mr. Douglass himself and but very little better informed than those to whom they preached. After the war this condition could not be immediately altered. There were a few men under both the old and new regime who, having secured their freedom without running away to get it, were in the main tolerably well informed. They were fore runners of the present body of able and pious gentlemen who hold the more influential pastorates among the colored people. The term "priest-craft" as employed by Mr. Douglass implies the stratagems and frauds of priests; fraud or imposition in religions concerns, management of selfish and ambitions priests to gain wealth and power, or to impose on the credulity of others. I think the poverty of the colored clergy generally, the modest position assumed by those who are surrounded by constituents that could support their ambition for place, and yet do not desert their sacred calling for these other and more lucrative places sufficiently refute the charge of "priest-craft" so loosely made by implication in Mr. Douglass' "Life and Time." No class labors so earnestly against so many discouragements, for such poor pay, as the colored ministers receive. Yet they are manfully toiling on. What they are doing, and have already done, deserves a laudatory chapter in Mr. Douglass' book. To no other class does the nation, and the colored people owe so much, for the correct progress made in the last few years by the late slaves, free blacks and mulattoes, as to the colored clergy of all the denominations, especially of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The race has grown in wealth, numbers, morals, literature, grace and economy. In this advance, who have been and are their leaders, trainers and teachers except the colored preachers? Perhaps their greatest hindrance has been that class of mercenary men, who entered the ministry as a stepping stone to more lucrative places; who in their transition from preachers to professional office-beggars, and other like professions, deported themselves as to strain the relation between the races, and, to some extent, bring the ministry into contempt. But the people are rapidly learning to separate the vile from the precious, and to honor for their work sake, the men who went forth weeping and bearing precious seed, and who have already returned rejoicing, bringing many sheaves with them. It must be admitted that the theological "clothes" in which the "colored people strut about," are tolerably well worn. They were prefigured by the patriarchs, symbolized in the law of ceremonies given to men by the eternal Master of the Universe through "Old Master" Moses. The outlines of these theological "old clothes" were drawn by the "old masters" Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel, with the minor prophets. The suit is still in a sound condition, being adjusted to the needs of humanity, and its use and beauty realized through the incarnation, life, passion, death, resurrection, ascension, mediation, intercession, and advocacy of Jesus for us sinners at the Throne of the Father. The colored people hold that these primitive, prophetic and apostolic theological "old clothes" fit them quite readily; and with very few exceptions comparatively, those who are religiously inclined are still found strutting about in these same old clothes of the Master and the masters of the past, or in other words of Jesus, the Apostles, and holy fathers, of early as well as later Christian times. The history of the rise, propagation and prolixity of Christian theology from one man in Jerusalem 1800 years ago, to many millions of men of every clime and complexion now living, and many more millions dead, and whose lives were towering monuments of purity, and whose death bed scenes were the imagination of a triumphal march to heaven, demonstrate that these grand "old" doctrines are not the "Shibboleths" of a "falling power." Nay they are the "Swords of the Lord and of Gideon, the Shibboleths of the advancing, all conquering army of the Lord. If this kind of religion has gone out of "fashion in refined and elegant white churches" (which it has not done in any comparatively great degree) then thank God it may still be found where it was first planted, among the poor and so called ignorant colored and white people. These people will "make the best of this world" in the sense of using it as a place of preparations for the next. "We are sojourners here as all our fathers were," we ought of course to make, "the best" of our sojourn here, but ever with the idea in mind, that it is transient, and probationary. Other wise any use we may make of this world will be little to our comfort when we come to leave it. We were some where else, before we were here, we must soon leave here at the longest and go some where else again. The Bible alone looks into this otherwise unknown some-where else, and describes its character, the way to it, and the conditions upon which it may be joyfully entered. The colored people and all people should make the "best of this world first," in preparing for that eternal sojourn in the next world second. They should seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these other things will be added. That is a Godly self reliance, honest industry, a perseverance in the service of God, and man, not omitting self, and rigid economy with these ends in view will follow a faithful seeking after God's kingdom and His reighteousness. This kind of a life alone gives assurance of fitness for the good world to come. The colored people are a faithful people and well may they be so, what people ever had such signal realizations of their faith in the "facts" following as they. In answer to prayer God delivered four millions of them, and raised them from chattels to men. When it was predicted that a state of freedom would result in their annihilation, and every cruel artifice was invented to verify the prediction, God miraculously almost doubled their number in less than a score of years after their emancipation. They have exhibited their faith by their works. They have raised more cotton, sugar, rice, hemp, corn, tobacco, oranges and other products of the soil in freedom than in slavery. They have built more and better churches, bought more land, and did more "shouting" since they were free than before. Let them still believe on, work on, and "shout" on. They are evidently free and substantially prosperous, and they have in this a shadow of good things yet to come. Verily "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen," by the colored people previously. But which they now see and largely enjoy. Whereto we have already attained let us work by the same rule, let us mind the same thing." Let us "stand first in the liberty where with Christ has made us free, and be not again entangled in the yoke of bondage." This will we do if God permits.

BY D. W. HAYES.

A few of our Southern Conferences, the Louisana marching in the van, have of late taken hold of the educational work within their bounds in a manner that clearly indicates a determination to lift our institutions from servile dependence upon outside aid, often uncertain and seldom adequate to the demand, up to a solid basis of self support. This is a commendable movement and no time should be lost in pushing it on to an early consummation. The sooner the goal is reached, the better. Our friends whose heaven inspired liberality has for many years furnished us superior school facilities, have waited patiently to see if we would at any time reach a point where we should no longer be willing to have them bear the whole burden of paying the expense necessary to secure an efficient management of our schools. It must, no doubt, prove highly gratifying to them to observe the gradual development of a more healthful sentiment respecting the importance of self-help among the brethren of these conferences.

This sentiment will command an increased measure of respect, and at the same time enlist a wider sympathy and call forth much freer giving. Men delight to give when they discover that the recipients of their bounty are struggling hard to render themselves independent of such aid, and they give reluctantly, if they give at all, where no effort in the way of manly self reliance is seen to follow. Struggling manhood will ever receive more unstinted aid than imbecile pauperism. The proper initiative step has been taken. Now let all our conferences fall in line. Most of our schools, like the Central Tennessee College, are literally crowded with students. More room must be furnished, in many cases applicants will have to be denied admission. More and better qualified teachers are needed. Can we afford to remain indifferent when facts such as these plead so strongly? Not if we are true embassadors. We may not be able to do much at present, but we are bound by obligations from which it would be unmanly to swerve, to do what we can. Even a little self denial on our part, along this line, will be sure of great reward. The work of the Freedmen's Aid Society is just now beginning to bear its best fruits. It is developing self reliance and bold enterprise, which are among the higher and nobler productions of education. The society wants years yet in order to complete its work. In my opinion the time has not arrived when a change of its name should be seriously contemplated. Let that honored title, with all the good will it has earned in a most heroic struggle extending over a series of memorable years, stand as it is. We are in no danger of manifesting too much reverence for that name while the debasing effects of slavery continue so widespread. We have no objection to making our educational work as broad as the needs of the whole field, but we do oppose sacrificing the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society under the pretense of promoting such an end. If others wish to share with us, let them not be ashamed to place themselves under our glorious banner, a banner that hides no caste prejudice within its fold. Let us have more self reliance, more zeal, more devotion, more concentration, but no new policy and no new name.

Getting Rid of Bad Company.

Dr. Bonar in an address recently delivered to young converts in the Christian Institute, on "Communion with God," said: "I have a case vividly before me just now of two godly men who, before their conversion, were very well known in this district. Their house was frequented by persons of all kinds, not only in the way of business but for company's sake. When they were brought to the Lord the question was, How are we to get quit of all this company—this carnal, worldly company? The Lord guided them wisely. They did not say one unkind word, but they just let their countenances shine, they just showed their acquaintanecs how happy they were in their new-found salvation What was the effect? In a fortnight their house was as quiet as they could wish. Their worldly friends did not care for their society. Now, if you are troubled with worldly people who will insist that you go out to dinner, and so on, go out and shine, and then they won't ask you back again. Your very presence will condemn them, and they will feel you are right."—Messiah Herald.

INSIDE THE GATE.

I sat inside the gate,
No more a wandering child;
No more the loathsome weight
Of sin my heart defiled;
Sweet peace was in my soul,
Love in the place of hate;
And yet I tremble oft,
Praying inside the gate.

"Saviour!" I loudly cried,
"Give others rest from sin."
"Go, then," his voice replied,
"Bring them the gate within;
Show them then arrow way,
Led them the cross beside;
I'll meet them at the gate,
It shall be opened wide."

"I go, my Lord," I said,
"I would not idly rest,
But would perform the work
For thy own glory best;
Help me that work to do
Before it is too late;
Help me some soul to bring
To thee inside the gate."

And now inside the gate
I kneel in joyful prayer,
For Jesus helped me lead
Another pilgrim there:
Together now we call
To all oppressed with sin,
"Come, knock at mercy's gate,
Jesus will let you in."

The Young Chaplain.

One night in 1825, a clergyman was taking tea with John C. Calhoun, then secretary of war. Suddenly Mr. Calhoun said to his guest:

"Will you accept the place of chaplain and professor of ethics at West Point? If you will, I wil appoint you at once."

The clergyman was Chas. P. McIlvaine, then but twenty-five years of age, and subsequently known as the Bishop of Ohio.

He accepted the appointment because West Point then had an unsavory reputation. There was not a Christian among officers and cadets. Many of them were skeptics, and the others were coldly indifferent to religion.

He was received as gentlemen receive gentlemen. But no one showed the least sympathy with him as a clergyman. For months his preaching seemed as words spoken in the air. His first encouragement was an offensive expression.

He was walking home from church one Sunday a few feet in advance of several junior officers. "The chaplain's preaching is getting hotter and hotter," he heard one of them say.

In a few days he received another bit of encouragement. He was dining with a company at the house of an officer. A lieutenant, a scoffer, hurled a bitter sneer at the clergyman. The chaplain left the table.

The officers threatened to send the lieutenant to "Coventry" if he did not apologize. He called and asked the chaplain's pardon.

Another officer took occasion of one of the chaplain's sermons, and wrote him a bold avowal of skeptical opinions.

The chaplain, seeing in these evidences that the chronic indifference was giving way to opposition, persevered. But opposition was all the encouragement he received during the year.

Not a cadet had visited him, or even sought his acquaintance. But one Saturday, the only day on which the cadets were allowed to visit an officer, without special permission, one of the most popular of the cadets knocked at the chaplain's door. He wished to begin a Christian life then and there, and asked for counsel. In a day or two, another cadet called on a similar errand; then another and another. Then several officers came. A meeting of prayer was appointed twice a week. It was the first public prayer-meeting held at West Point.

Officers and cadets crowded in, though all who came professed thereby to begin a religious life. At first, it required as much courage to enter that room as to lead a forlorn hope.

One of the cadets was Leonidas Polk, afterward Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Tennessee. Intelligent, high-toned, and commanding in person, he was the conspicuous cadet. Seeing that it was his duty to make a public profession of his faith in Christ he asked for baptism.

After baptizing him, the chaplain made a brief address, closing with a charge to be faithful. "Amen!" responded Polk, in a voice that rang through the chapel. The "Amen" was from the heart. Immediately the baptized cadet became a missionary to his comrades.

A solemnity pervaded the academy during the two remaining years that the devoted clergyman served as chaplain. Half the corps became Christian men. Several of them, leaving the army, were promoted to the ministry. Many of those who entered the army rose to eminence. They adorned their profession and the Christian religion.

This era in West Point was created, through the divine aid, by a young man who simply did his duty patiently, and left the result with God.—Youth's Companion.

Florida Conference

Bishop Bowman wrote as follows to the Central Christian Advocate:

The Florida Conference is a mixed one, consisting of 30 colored and 12 white preachers, and embracing about 3,000 members, by far the larger portion of whom are colored. Our white work is quite new and is growing substantially and rapidly. The colored preachers and people are evidently improving as fast as we have reason to expect. The white population of the State is larger than the colored, and is increasing more rapidly. Some of the older settlements are as yet, not occupied by our Southern brethren, and, of course, in the newer ones they have not come. So that there are many places open to us. We were greatly surprised to find that we were the first to occupy the old city of St. Augustine.

The reports of the preachers, as compared with those of last year, do not show as much advance as we desired. But upon careful inquiry, it was found that the figures of last year were not very correct. The preachers are learning how to make up their reports so as to show the exact facts. Upon the whole the work of last year has been fairly satisfactory. In the matter of self-support, the people are advancing. Several congregations support their pastors and others are getting near to it. Many of the preachers are so poorly supported that they are obliged to work in order to take care of their families. This, of course, interferes with their usefulness. But, upon the whole, they seem to be doing about all they can.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate
In Impaired Nerve Function.

Dr. C. A. Ferald, Boston, Mass., says; "I have used it in cases of impaired nerve function, with beneficial results, especially in cases where the system is affected by the toxic action of tobacco."

The governor of New Jersey sent a special message to the Legislature reciting the refusal of the Hackensack Cemetery Company to allow the burial of a colored man. The governor says it ought not to be tolerated that a corporation whose existence depends upon the Legislature's will, and whose property is exempt from taxation because of its religious uses, should be permitted to make a distinction between a white and a black man. He recommends the passage of a law which shall make such refusal based on color a criminal offense, with such penalty as shall prevent a recurrence of such act.

The Doctor's Mistake.

One of the old mistakes of the profession was to think that there were no other ways of curing disease except those which had been handed down from former times. It is not to be denied that the doctors have done great things for the world. But when it comes right down to the real curing of disease, it must be admitted that Brown's Iron Bitters has done enough to earn the generous gratitude of this whole present generation, including the medical profession. There are no mysteries or secrets about the compounding of Brown's Iron Bitters. This preparation of iron is the only preparation which will not injure teeth or stomach. In this it is beyond comparison better than the other preparations, which are mischievous and injurious.

You need not fear a mistake in trying Brown's Iron Bitters. Your druggist has it. It gives vigor to the feeble, and new life to the dyspeptic. Children take it, not only with safety, but with great advan-

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
TO
Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. THURSDAY, FEB. 21, 1884.

Papers are stopped on the expiration of the time of subscription. Let the pastors use a little effort, and nearly all will be renewed.

We have received copies of the minutes of the Tennessee conference 1883, Dr. J. Braden, Secretary. Thanks.

Do not wait on the movements of new pastors. If they fail in their duty in presenting the claims of our church paper, send the money and order to this office direct, by postal note, order or registered letter.

In Georgia an ordinary has been called upon to decide whether a Mormon is a fit person to have the custody of a child. The mother alleges that the doctrine of polygamy unfits the father to have possession of the child, and she refuses to give up her son to reside in Utah.

A note from Dr. Braden informs us that the Meharry Medical commencement occurs on Thursday, 31st inst., when a class of eight will graduate. The spring term of Central Tennessee College begins on Monday, Feb. 25, and continues twelve weeks. There will be a few vacancies in the boarding hall, and a few new students may be admitted. The year so far has been the best in the history of the college.

Those who study the life of Christ with care will be struck with his regard for humanity. He never looked upon any one with scorn or contempt. The meanest and meanest form of humanity that crawled into his presence, no matter how trampled, torn and defiled, seemed sacred in his eyes. Two things are to be noted. He never despised any human being. He never stood before men as a haughty and imperious being, demanding attention, reverence and service. He never seemed to think of what was due Him. He only wished to serve, to help to lift up, to comfort. And if any man has not the spirit of Christ, no matter about his other attainments, he is none of His.

In 1877 Mr. Roscoe Conkling said: The true political question of this country is not between parties, but between civilizations, each type of civilization utilizing party organizations as an instrument. The line of demarcation is as thoroughly geographical, and the conflict along the line as irrepressible now as in the time of Mr. Seward. Mr. Hayes' policy, predicated upon the idea of breaking the solid South, is a farce based upon a chimera. No political effort or experiment will prove effective in disrupting the solidity of the South. The question now is and twenty years hence will be, whether the Northern majority shall control the destinies of the country in peace as it has determined them in war, or a Southern minority regain by diplomacy, exercised upon weak minds, what it has lost through force wielded by strong arms.

From our boyhood we have read of the brave men, handsome women, hospitality and generosity of Kentucky. Henry Clay was our ideal of all that was great and noble as a statesman, and we really thought that the person who did not agree with us was hardly fit to live. But now in the face of one of the greatest calamities ever known to befall a people the Legislature of this grand old State, after haggling and quibbling over the matter several days, voted to appropriate the sum of $75,000 for the relief of the flood sufferers. This would not relieve the wants of Newport alone. We say that in the presence of Kentucky's destitute people, men, women, mothers, newborn babes, the sick and infirm driven from home homeless and destitute that $25,000 is a pitiable contribution, and Kentucky should do better than that, or forever hereafter quit boasting about the hospitality of her people.

Cowardice.

A coward is almost always a petty tyrant, and is sure to shrink from responsibility and duty. Lying and cowardice are linked in perpetual bonds. Most of the falsehoods men utter spring from a mean sort of fear. We are not able to enumerate the falsehoods, mean equivocations and deceits cowardice paves the way to. From the cradle to the grave it is always appealing to the low and bad impulses of our nature. To stand well in the eyes of the world men deny, or make some wretched apology for their misdeeds. It prompts us to appear wise when we are ignorant, rich when we are poor, pious when we are sinners in the sight of God and man. Every time we yield to it our courage lessens, our strength for resistence grows feebler, and in the end we become miserable makeshifts. We are told that it is the tendency of some animals to be bold and fearless, while it is the tendency of others to skulk, sneak, and steal. Thus men are either skulkers, sneaks or open and grand fighters in the warfare that is going on in this world between truth and error, right and wrong, vice and virtue. What some men call shrewdness is nothing more nor less than cowardice. The face of the merely shrewd man fronts at least four ways, and cowardice under the name of shrewdness is gaining upon him every day. The minister whose chief desire and aim is to please, who makes his hearers laugh when they ought to cry, has more of cowardice than Christian courage in his moral make-up, and will have but little success either in pleasing or saving men. While he who has the courage to speak the truth, whatever may be the sneer or the unspoken contempt of the people, may be sorely tried, but he cannot fail.

A Roman Catholic paper published in St. Louis, makes the following statements as to the conduct of the Catholic people which if true, indicate a degree of ignorance and indifference to sacred things that is painful to contemplate:

"Catholics seldom read Catholic books. Pious Catholic literature is an abomination in their sight. Protestants accuse them of not reading the Bible. This is only half the truth. They read neither the Bible nor anything else of a religious character. The majority of our people read their Mass prayers and look over the table of sin, and farther into Catholic literature they do not go. How can interest in the church and matters ecclesiastical be maintained under such wide spread indifference. The daily papers talk up politics, plays, billiards, base ball and the scandals of the day, and people become so interested in these subjects that these news boys are chased on the streets by anxious purchasers of the latest intelligence. The great empire of the church, the great interests of Catholicism, the doings of the churchmen from Leo XIII, down to the priests of the parish, the latest views from the different seats of battle between pope and czars are not subjects of interest and none inquire about them. Why? The papers do not write them up. The business of a Catholic paper is to supply just this want. Their duty is to write up the church. This they do, all of them."

Had any Protistant said that Catholics "read neither the Bible nor any thing else of a religious character," it would have been called by the Catholic press a vile slander against the church. But note what is said as to the religious condition of St. Louis:

"St. Louis is religiously the deadest town on this continent. We have the richest Catholics in the land and the poorest churches. There is little intercourse between the clergy and laity, and no intercourse between the clergy whatever. Our people go to the sacraments and keep away from the parish meetings. They attend devotions, but shun sermons. Very little is being done in the way of improvement, and that little is paid by festivals. Why is this? We have no religious bourgeoisie. We are all nabobs or paupers. The one patronizes religion; the others lives by it. There are fewer Catholic papers read in St. Louis, than in any city of its Catholic size in the world."

We had supposed that the Catholic church did include many of the intelligent, reliable and thorough business men of St. Louis, as well as a large portion of the laboring classes. In this it seems we are mistaken, they are all "nabobs or panpers." It must be there is some other way to heaven, than through a church composed of "nabobs and panpers."

The Great Flood.

No one can form any correct idea of the terribleness of the great flood that is sweeping the valley of the Ohio by what he reads of it in the newspapers. During the past week we had occasion to visit Cincinnati, and saw a little of its awfulness. We first came in contact with it at Louisville. Here water had reached 46 feet above what was called the line of danger. Over two thousand families had been driven from their homes; the water climbing upon their houses had buoyed them up from their foundations, and they seemed to float about like so many dry goods boxes or if in search of a harbor. We think it safe to say that hundreds of small cottages were unloosed from their foundations and turned over, and vast numbers swept entirely away. The unfortunate owners of these homes look on the scene of desolation with thoughts of the gloomiest character, and manifested their despondency in various ways. All along the route from Louisville to Cincinnati we could see in the submerged sections the roofs of some houses just above the water, families living in the attic rooms of two-story dwellings, and now and then a cottage turned over on its side. Reaching the Ohio, as we were crossing the bridge into the city, we saw a house floating down the river; on the ridge-pole there sat a poor lone cat that had evidently resolved never to forsake his home. Verily there must be no place like home, whether among cats or members of the human family, in fair times as in flood. Crossing the river, we stepped from the cars into rudely constructed and suspicious-looking flat-boats, which were soon filled, and four strong men pulled and pushed us to the landing. Here we began to take in the enormous proportions of the flood. The Ohio runs for hundreds of miles through large towns, great manufacturing industries, a great commerce, great mining industries, farms with valuable buildings and a thick rural population. But this unprecedented flood has covered and swept away nearly all. Extensive iron nail-works and rolling mills, brick-yards and tanneries are covered with water, and nothing is seen but the high smoke-stacks. At certain points all that can be seen of once thriving towns is the church steeples and chimneys that appear above the water. The appalling scenes which one constantly beholds cannot help but cause intense sympathy. Here we see the earnings and savings of years, of rich and poor, all swept from them in a few short days. It is easy to speak it or write it, but it is hard for the mind to take in the fact that the Ohio had risen to a height of over 71 feet above low water, and that this vast volume was sweeping on at the rate of from five to eight miles an hour. Two years ago we had a great flood in the Mississippi Valley, but the destruction of property, business, capital, dwellings, employment, shelters and substance was not a fourth as compared with this along the Ohio. Individual contributions do much to relieve present sufferings, but little or nothing towards repairing the actual losses of the people. These call for city, State, and national aid.

A full house will give signs of being inhabited. There may be an attic chamber, a back room or damp cellar occupied in a house which seems closed and empty, but when every room is full there will be signs of life on the outside. If there is life inside it will show itself outside the dwelling. Even with blinds on the windows, after dark the light will come streaming through the cracks; those within will make themselves known. The dwellers may desire to be secluded, but they cannot be concealed. The house they keep, the guests they receive, the clothes they wear will all be known. So an indwelling Christ in the heart cannot be hid. He will shine out through the windows of the soul. He will be seen in the expressions of the face, in the tones of the voice, in the words spoken and acts performed. He will be seen in home life in social and business life, to the advantage and honor of all who may give him a residence in their hearts.

Alcohol in the Household.

The following is from a letter of Mrs. Caroline A. Richardson, Austin, Texas, addressed to the editor, and is heartily commended and endorsed:

These "tipsy cakes," brandy peaches, wine sauce, brandy mince pies, and all of these forms of "alcohol in the kitchen," I have been talking and teaching against with all my might, because, above all other things, I desire to save the children. And to do this efficiently the mothers must stop using it in preparing dainties for the table. Let me give you a scrap of my experience. Nine cases out of ten where children violate their pledge, who have been instructed in the "nature and effects of alcohol," is because their mother put alcohol into their nice cooking, or offer them egg-nog or beer at Christmas time. This use of alcohol in the kitchen, and especially at Christmas, is a device of the enemy of souls to destroy the blessed peace and good will that this Christian festival was intended to bring. Please leave out the wine and brandy receipts. Good, wholesome cooking can be done without them, such as we can ask God's blessing upon when we sit down to the table.

The poorest economy any church can make is to diminish their pastor's salary. An archangel would preach poorly if he was poorly fed. We doubt as to the ability of the Lord Jesus to interest a congregation who had not interest enough in religion to pay their preacher. A poorly paid preacher will always have a dull discourse and a sleepy congregation. What shall be done? Pay the preacher still less? No! pay the preacher; pay him well, and pay him promptly. "Bring all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it." There should be plenty of meat in the house of the Lord. Try it, brethren, then look out for the blessing.

PERSONAL.

—Joseph Cook, has begun his Monday lectures in Boston.

—Thomas Chenery, editor of the London Times, died Feb. 11th.

—Gen. James Longstreet's new bond as Marshal of Georgia has been accepted.

—Phillip Phillips, is about to lose his son James, who is gradually sinking.

—Rev. Dr. W. P. Harrison, Book Editor of the M. E. Church South, married at Columbus, Ga., Jan. 16, Miss Mary Hodges, daughter of the Rev. Samuel K. Hodges.

—Lord Bute has given an order to Miss Edmonia A. Edwards, the American negro sculptress, to execute a marble statue of the Virgin Mary for one of his chapels.

—Correspondents of Rev. O. Tolson, will address him at Canton Mississippi; of Rev. S. H. Nevils, at Hazelhurst, Miss; Rev. D. A. Williams, at Columbus, Miss.

—Eliza Howard Powers, of Paterson, N. J., who spent a fortune during the war in caring for the wounded, is an invalid and in needy circumstances. She has asked the government for $2,500.

—The lectures of A. D. Mayo, of Boston before the New Orleans Educational Society, have been appreciated and increased the interest of the Society and the public in educational work.

—Dr. Howard Henderson, a gentleman whose literary tastes and habits would seem to peculiarly qualify him for the task, has undertaken to collate the choicest specimens of Southern eloquence, romance, and song.—New York Advocate.

—A manager of a theatre published that Mr. Beecher intended to go and afterward that he did go to a theatre to see Mrs. Langtry in New York. At that time Mr. Beecher was in Boston. The manager lied.

—The Methodists in Baltimore sent a gold headed cane to Bishop Pierce on the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding Feb. 5. The Episcopal Methodist says: "The cane is made of wood from the old Lovely Lane meeting house—the first Methodist Church in Baltimore."

—Mrs. Layyah Barakat, a native of Syria, addressed a missionary meeting in Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, Feb. 15. Mrs. Barakat gave an account of her conversion, and of her escape from Alexandria during the terrible massacre.

—Hans Larsen Martensen, Danish preacher and theologian, is dead. He was born on August 19, 1803, at Flensburg, and was educated in the ideas of Hegel. In 1841 he was elected to the Danish Academy of Sciences. Two years later he was Bishop of Iceland, and in 1845 Court preacher.

—Rev. Pennell Coombe, one of the oldest members, was recently found dead in his bed. Few men occupied a more prominent position in the Philadelphia conference than Brother Coombe. He was born in 1811 joined the church in 1829. For a number of years he was Secretary of the Philadelphia conference. He was a delegate of the General Conference in 1856 and 1860. He was a masterly preacher, vigerous and logical in debate. He was a good man, and ready for the summons.

—An orator unsurpassed, if not unrivaled, in the recent history of this country and of English-speaking nations is dead. A philanthropist whose motives were beyond suspicion, whatever opinion may be held of his judgment and methods, has finished his stimulating and instructive career A hero who never knew fear, and whose moral courage was sustained by a nervous system which was adequate to every draft upon it, has fallen before the "insatiate archer" whose arrow has pierced and stilled a heart which neither crime nor timidity nor shame ever made to suffuse the face with an unworthy blush.—Dr. Buckley on Wendell Phillips.

—He was called to be an orator. In literature widely read, in person magnificent, in manner most polished, gentle as a babe, sweet as a new blown rose, and in voice, clear and silvery, yet he was not a man who tempered himself upon an orchestra of 100 pieces. No organ, mighty and complex. The Nation slept, and God wanted a trumpet large, wide, winding, narrow, and intense. And that was Mr. Phillips. The long roll in not agreeable music, but it is better than harps or lutes when the alarm is needed. He did not flow as the Gulf Stream; he did not dash as the ocean does on the continent. His eloquence was a flight of arrows. He gave himself to the work of God on earth, and had reflected back upon him some of its majesty. When the pigmies are all dead the noble countenance of Wendell Phillips will still look forth, radiant as the rising sun, a sun that will never set. His life was a reason; his death a memorable encouragement for mankind and heroic deeds."—Henry Ward Beecher.

Prince Bismarck has returned to Herr Von Eisenbecher, German minister, the resolution of condolence on Herr Lasker's death, passed by Congress, with the counter request to return the resolution to the House of Representatives, as the position of Herr Lasker in Germany was not such as to justify the resolution.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

P. Morgan, Galveston. "My work is prospering so far. The signs of the present speak well for the future."

L. Felder, Bryan: "I have added 18 souls to the church, 15 on probation and 3 accesions. Sister Barner went to work with the members and raised money to get a bell, and it was ordered. Elder Pullam visited us and preached interesting sermons."

Abner Thomas, Pitts Bridge: "The presiding elder held first quarterly conference. His sermon was very interesting. Sacrament was administered to a good many persons."

W. McKenzie, Cold Springs: "The church is growing. We have first-class seats and new sash. The day school is taught by J. S. Stanton, of Houston. First quarterly conference was held by Elder Lee, and we had a grand old Methodist time. Collection $12.50. Nine joined on probation. Monday night at love feast, a large congregation came out, and it was a happy time."

John Yancey, Columbus: "I desire to say a few words about our Sunday-school. We have not a band of advanced teachers. The young people who would be useful are out teaching day school, and that leaves a few settled people to carry on the Sunday-school. We are trying to make it as good as we possibly can. We have the Sunday-School Journal and the Berean Leaf, and make good use of them. Pray for us."

TENNESSEE.

Samuel Williams, Paris: "Although our pastor, D. Cook, left us and joined the A. M. E. Church, Elder Price was here Jan. 26th, held our quarter, visited and preached at all the churches, and left us wonderfully cheered. We are at work on our new church in town. The elder promises us a preacher soon, and he will remain with us some time.

D. B. Lawton, Knoxville: "I have built a church a little out of town and am now building one near the city; have been preaching over fifty years; am now a superannuate."

The Southern Work of the M. E. Church in Its Relation to the M. E. Church, South.

It is known to our readers that the Southern work of the Methodist Episcopal Church was discussed at the last meeting of the general Missionary Committee. It is also known that reports of that discussion were published in the various papers and dispatches sent to the leading newspapers in the South. It is further known that many of the papers of the Church South interpreted the reports of the discussion as exhibiting hostility to that Church, and as showing that it had been traduced. It will not be forgotten that Bishops Simpson, Foster, Wiley, and Bowman were charged with having taken a prominent part in these hostile movements, and that the editor of the Christian Advocate was animadverted upon extensively in the Southern papers as having made the most offensive and misleading assertions. It may also be remembered that, owing to the necessary absence of the editor for some weeks afterward, he was not aware of these discussions until, on his return, he began to read up the religious exchanges. He then denied the correctness of the reports which were made the basis of the criticisms to which he had been subjected, announcing that there was a verbatim report of his remarks by one of the most expert stenographers in the country, and that in a short time we would take up the subject, and quote the verbatim report upon the matters referred to, that there might be an intelligent discussion of the truth, wisdom, and brotherly kindness of his utterances. That promise we now fulfill.

It is necessary to explain the exact situation of the debate. The subject before the Committee was the amount to be appropriated for the support of our white work in a particular Conference in a Southern State. From the particular question the discussion drifted into the consideration of our entire place and work among the whites of the south. One or two of the speakers intimated that we had done so little that it was useless for us to continue there, declaring that we should concentrate our entire efforts upon the colored people. A layman asked whether we should be at work in the South, side by side with a Methodism in all respects identical with our own, and asked whether it would not be better to leave the evangelization of the whites of the South entirely to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, so far as they were to be reached by Methodism.

It was at this stage of the debate that the remarks of the writer were presented. It is not our purpose to devote this article to their vindication, but to do in the Christian Advocate what was then done, namely, to discuss our relation to that work. The above explanatory remarks are necessary that the point of view of that debate may afford the materials for an intelligent estimate of its spirit, methods, and purpose.

I. The Methodist Episcopal Church is in the South. (Here follows a verbatim quotation.)

The first act for us to consider is that we are in the South. It is not a question of going in. We are there; and, being there, we have to do one of two things—plan to stay, or plan to die out. That is the issue. Planning to stay there must proceed upon principles exactly the opposite of planning to die there. So that whenever we discuss this question we must have clearly before our eyes this idea.

In the next place, the question is, Were we wise in going there at the time we went? Did we use sound business and religious judgment in determining to go to the South at the time and in the way we went? Upon this point it seems to me that no one can entertain a reasonable doubt. We were right, upon the whole, in going there as we did. [Here some incidental remarks were made which do not refer to the general policy of our Church, nor to any action of the Church South, and are therefore omitted.] That we ought to have gone South at the close of the war, in view of the fact that a large number of Methodists were Union men, and that we owed it to these men who were Methodists to carry them a Methodist free Gospel uncontaminated with rebellion, no one can deny. In the next place, a very large number of our Northern Methodist soldiers had settled in the South at the close of the war. They were scattered all over the Southern country. Men from every Northern State—some men that belonged to my church in Manchester, N. H.—are now living in the South that at that time could not have joined with the Methodist Episcopal Church there. If they had attempted it they would have been insulted and ostracised, and in every way unfavorably affected. We did right, therefore, to go to the South to establish our free Methodism there in order to give to emigrants from the North and the old soldiers a place to worship after the manner of their fathers.

In the next place, at the time the war closed, no one could foresee what the people of the South were going to do. The experiment of universal suffrage was thrown upon the county, the negroes were thrown upon the country and upon the evangelical denominations of the North, and it did appear very reasonable to infer that it would not be possible to carry on a successful work among the negroes unless there were at hand churches of white Methodists who sympathized with them and would sustain them. So on this point I have no doubt we acted wisely in undertaking to establish our Church in the South.

II. Concerning the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the writer demurred to the statement that in all parts of the country it was a Methodist Episcopal Church after our manner. He stated that the probationary system had been abolished, and that in some places all were taken in who applied, without any examination worthy the name, and without having ever attended a class. We will here state that the writer received much of his information upon that point from some important ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He also stated that he had seen in one church fifty persons taken into Church in this way. On the subject of class meetings he observed that he had made inquiry in "eleven of the societies of that Church, and not found a solitary class-meeting." In addition to that he declared that "in some places in the South," the Southern Church "had no appreciable effect upon the morals of the people, judging from our standards," and in illustration of that remark referred to the enforcement of discipline upon the temperance question and upon profanity. He stated that when he was in a certain city (which has been incorrectly reported through the South as Dallas, Texas), he found that a leading member of the Church South was the principal owner of a railroad that carried excursionists out to grounds that he owned, where there were beer-saloons and carousals on the Sabbath. Speaking of temperance, he said that in some parts of the South members of the Church were engaged in the liquor business, both wholesale and retail, and in the business of distillation, and that some of them occupied prominent positions in the Church. On the subject of revivals he did not say that the revivals in the Church South were generally of the nature of "wild-cat effusions." The expression "wild-cat effusions" was born in the brain of the reporter, and was probably his way of expressing the idea which he supposed the writer had. But the illustration of the kind of revivals he was speaking of was taken, not from the Church South, but from revivals that occurred in the North. If he had represented the Church South in general as in the condition above described, he would have been a falsifier and an accuser of the brethren unworthy of attention, except the attention of contempt and reprobation. Or if he had held up the societies of our own Church in the South as paragons of perfection in comparison with these cases, or in some instances free from charges of a very serious character, he would have exposed himself to the scorn of all those who know the facts.

Side by side with this impeachment of neglect of the class-meeting, and failure to enforce discipline on temperance, profanity, and intimidation and corruption at the polls, he placed a just characterization of others of our churches in the South, which it is not necessary to reproduce here. Leading representatives of our Southern work were present, and know precisely what was said.

The questions, then, to be settled, are: Is what was alleged true in some parts of the South? Second, Did the speaker attempt to represent what was true of parts of the South—of certain societies—as true of the whole Methodist Episcopal Church, South? To show how utterly false and misleading were the garbled sentences which were sent out, we quote the following passage verbatim:

In other places in the South the Methodist Episcopal Churches, South, are in magnificent condition. They are in favor of education, of missions, of every thing essential to a live Church. But I can find churches there that would serve as an example to many of our best churches in the North. While that is so, you can't make an issue on a generality. If you could charge them all with being in sympathy with rum, then you could make an issue on that. But you cannot do that when some of their churches are as good as ours.

Following that passage was the following:

On the other hand, it must be confessed that some of our churches in the South are certainly a disgrace, but they are the best we can make with the materials we can get

The application of those remarks concerning the sections where the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is not enforcing Discipline on the subjects referred to, and not making any special impression upon the character of the people, and where its church buildings are poor, was that if we were established in such places, there was a work for us to do. There we could live. In connection with that the writer observed that where there was no Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and we existed, we should strengthen our work. And the whole was concluded as follows:

When we see the spirit of fraternity as it was in the Ecumenical Conference, and as it is now all through the South where there is no local irritation, we cannot reject the spirit of fraternity as a fact. The best men in the South do feel kindly toward us. Whenever that develops itself, it destroys our local church. Wherever the Church South says, "Come in brethren, and we will treat you as well as we do any body," our Church cannot live. My conviction is that where we can live, we ought to put in our money and live, and where we cannot live we ought not to keep wasting our money. There are places in the South where we cannot live; where the Church South is doing well enough; what is the use of our going on, and pouring our money in there? * * * If we keep on in the places where our men succeed, and improve the character of our men, the future will determine what we can do.

Here, then, is the case. If our Southern brethren will explicitly deny that there are cases in the South such as they alleged, we will undertake to give them information which will be of great value. If they admit that there are such cases, in perfect candor, we propound this question: Was it proper for us to mention them in our own meeting in a discussion relative to our work in the South in our own committee concerning the particular localities in which we were to appropriate money? These are no new sentiments for The Christian Advocate. In an editorial for April 7, 1881, the following passage occurred:

But what of fraternity? Formal fraternity was established and recognized under existing conditions. There was and could be no misunderstanding on this point. The spirit of fraternity is increasing. Our true relation to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is that of independent friendliness. If there be those who consider hostility to that Church, per se, a virtue, they understand neither the spirit of the Gospel nor that of the Methodist Episcopal Church. To do our own work as well as we can, and to rejoice in every indication of good, are the duties of the hour. If assailed, we must answer, but we will gain by doing so calmly and with the force of logic rather than of epithets, and in the spirit of Christ father than that of Belial. To taunt those who are doing what they can for their people and for the cause of Christ by referring to past events, or to narrow and bitter men among them, belongs not to the "Church constructant," nor to the Church nobly militant, but to the "Church termagant."

And again, Nov. 2, 1882, in an editorial entitled, "A Frank Expression," etc., we said:

In view of these facts our judgment is as follows: The spirit of fraternity should be cherished and in every way promoted; our white work should be as well sustained as we are able to do it, not by endeavoring to disintegrate any other Church, but by building up our own. The citizens of any particular place will then be attracted to us by the law of affinity wherever there is a call for our work. In the next place we believe that we should establish new societies wherever Methodism is not already in existence, if there is a reasonable prospect of success; further, where the Church South is allowing its societies to die out, either from inability to maintain them or from any other cause, if there be reason to think that we can do any better, we should establish societies. Where there is a work to be done, and there is reason to believe that if it is not done by us it will not be done at all, there we should go.

As to the future of the work, we need not specially concern ourselves. In some places it has died out, and it is clear that it is not needed there; it may be left to the ordinary religious agencies of the country without respect to us. In some places it is dying, and it is clear that no results commensurate with the money and toil required can be reached. There, as we do in every Conference in the North, it should be cared for, and, if it cannot be resuscitated, be left to decline. In many places, as Dr. Stephenson's able articles showed, it is prospering; there let it be sustained and continue to flourish, and let the spirit of fraternity be cultivated, without our failing to maintain our principles, justify our history, and show our distinctive spirit. In every new or old work that is hopeful let the best men available be placed in charge, and let liberal appropriations of money be made. We believe that every right-minded Southerner will be glad to see us moving forward on these principles, establishing schools, and educating, as we are doing, the young men and women of the land. We believe that our presence in this way is a real benefit to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and to every other Christian denomination. It is not our duty to regard the opposition of unreasonable men; our true policy and Christian duty is to disarm it by good conduct, a Christian spirit, and achieved success in beneficent work.

If by fraternal conduct and meeting the wants of the community in a right way the Church South can make our success in any particular place impossible because we are not needed there, we need not mourn. The years will pass away; the next century will soon be here; we may leave all questions of organic union to settle themselves pro or con when death and new life shall have brought about a new set of conditions. To give up our white work in the South is not, we think, a proposition which will find any support among us.—New York Advocate.

Family Worship.

DEAR EDITOR:—I desire to say something concerning family worship, for it is something which should not be neglected at our firesides. We ought to deem it as one of our most special duties. What scene could be more lovely on earth, more like the heavenly home, and more pleasing to God, than that of a pious family, kneeling with one accord around a family altar, and uniting their supplication to their Father in heaven. How lovely is the scene of a pious mother, gathering her little ones around her, at her fireside teaching them the privileges of prayer. Happy are those children who at that altar, have been consecrated by a father's blessings, baptized by a mother's tears, and borne up to heaven by their joint petitions. The homes that has honored God with such an altar of devotion, may well be call blessed. The influence of family worship is great, silent, irresistible and permanent. Like the calm, deep stream, it moves on in silence but over whelming power. It strikes its roots deep into the human heart, and spreading its branches wide over the back of his father's house. Family worship should be regular and devout, and the whole family be earnestly engaged in it. There is nothing on earth equal to it. It is the source of all pleasure and enjoyment, and is an action to the likeness of the Holy Ghost. The spirit of gentleness and dove like simplicity. It is the peace of our spirit, the stillness of our thoughts. Prayer is the issue of a great mind, and has self controling power. A prayerless family is no other wise than irreligious, for if we neglect such a duty as prayer we neglect our Savior, and His commandments, and therefore become short of the means of grace.

Good Giving.

Good giving is giving to a good end and with a good spirit. Be reasonably sure that good results will follow, and then give cheerfully. "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." Good giving secures not only the divine favor but the favor of man. Social standing is affected by it. To have the approbation of the wise and good is a blessing above silver and gold. Even bad men feel kindly toward the benevolent. Another advantage is your own inward consciousness of duty performed and good done. To be on good terms with yourself, to have the favor of men and the smile of the King of Kings is a consummation greatly to be desired.

The complete rule of giving, where the object is good, is well illustrated by the reported proceedings of a missionary meeting of colored people in the West Indies. The following resolutions were adopted:

1. We will all give something.
2. We will each give according to our ability.
3. We will give willingly.

Sow and then reap. Religion and benevolence have their harvest fields. Dr. John Todd once said to a friend, "A few days since I met a gentleman, the owner of a large paper mill. He took me through the mill and showed me great piles of paper and a world of things which I did not comprehend. I said: 'Will you please, sir, tell me the secret of your great success, for you told me you began life with nothing.' 'I don't know that there is any secret about it. When sixteen years old I went to S—— to work. I was to receive $40 per year and my food; no more, no less. My clothing and all my expenses were to come out of the $40. I then solemnly promised God I would give him one-tenth of my wages, and also that I would save on-tenth for future capital. I then promised the Lord, whether he gave me more or less, I would never give less than one-tenth to him; to this vow I have conscientiously adhered, and if there be any secret to my success I attribute it to this. I believe God has blessed me and made my business to prosper, and I have so learned to be careful and economical that my nine-tenths go far beyond what the whole would. I believe any man who will make the trial will find it so.'"—Paths to Wealth, by J. D. Knox.

Stirring News from India.

We have heard of nothing so remarkable as the simple accounts given by the Rev. S. Knowles of the North India Conference of his work among the people in his district. We take from the last India Witness the following. "Wednesday, 13th of Nov., being puru masi mela on the grassy banks of the beautiful Sargu river, we all marched out in the early morning through crowds of village families in their gala dresses, singing their mela songs, on into the thick of the fair crowded with 30,000 people. We spread our carpet under the shade of two large mango trees and began our work in real earnest. Our modus operandi was the same here that we use at all melas; that is, seated on our carpet with the crowd seated in rows before us; in all ten brethren join in singing to the sound of the sitar, triangles and a smart drum; then we all stand, the crowd generally rising, while a brother leads in prayer; all seated again, another preaches from a selected text, suitable to the occasion, for ten minutes; thus each in time prays and preaches. Then we give our invitation to any present convinced of the truth to come out and declare themselves. One young man of the Kori caste came forward and confessed Christ. We prayed with him and baptized him before the crowd. After this a Parim Hans devotee, with a big chignon made of his own hair and dyed sheeps wool closely woven together, came forward and most earnestly entreated us to pray for him. This we did, and then on his confession of Christ we baptized him before the astonished crowd. All that morning he had been worshiped by his followers before they took the puru masi plunge into the river near by. After his baptism this devotee untied and shook out his mass of true and false hair, which reached to his feet, and asked us to cut it all off; but, as we had no scissors and had never practiced much in the barber's line, we had to tell him to wait until we got to our tents. Two of his followers came to us when we reached our tents to inquire, and said they would come to God soon and bring others with them. As they were leaving they tried to give their old guru his usual salute, but he cried out "You must not worship me now, but Jesus Christ." This man afterwards showed his sincerity by shaking hands with those once low born, but now, we trust, Christian high born Chumars. In the fifty miles traveled over, this company preached in thirty towns and villages and one mela to seventeen thousand people of all classes. Over two hundred convinced inquirers were gained, and six high caste men were baptized.

General Beauregard's Military Operations,

The Military Operations of General Beauregard in the War between the States, 1861 to 1865; including a brief Personal Sketch and a Narrative of his Services in the War with Mexico, 1846–8. By Judge ALFRED ROMAN, formerly Colonel of the 18th Louisiana Volunteers, afterwards Aide-de-Camp and Inspector-General on the Staff of General Beauregard. In Two Volumes. 8vo, Cloth, over 600 pages each. Prices per vol.: Cloth, $3.50; Sheep, $4.50; Half Morocco, $5.50 Full Morocco, $7.50—payable on delivery.

The book is in essence and effect an autobiography, and has that special value to the student which always attaches to the autobiographies of men of action who have had to do with important historical events.As a contribution to the history of the war the book is really invaluable.Frankly Southern in its point of view, it nowhere offends by the employment of harsh epithets or by forgetfulness of the courtesy due to adversaries.No Southern writer has given us so large or so valuable a store of historical matter and interpretative criticism as is contained in these two volumes.—N. Y. Tribune.

The work has been prepared at leisure and with the utmost deliberation.So far as strength of support by documentary evidence is concerned, it is unique among works of its class relating to the Civil War.A singularly vivid and picturesque presentation of some of the leading events of the war.Merely as a mine of materials for historical investigation, the book is one to be glad of. It sets at rest a good many questions of fact which have hitherto been unsolved and seemingly insoluble. It corrects a good many errors by means which leave no occasion for doubt or question.—N. Y. Times.

Copy of a letter from Mr. CHARLES A. DANA to General BEAUREGARD.

It is, in my own judgment, a very valuable and important work. It sets forth many facts hitherto unknown or unappreciated. It sheds new and valuable light on some controverted questions; and it narrates in a simple, unaffected, easy and engaging style the story of the most important facts of the great struggle. It is especially worthy of commendation for the moderation and freedom from excitement with which it discusses points that have been the subject of embittered disputes in the hands of other writers. While the view of the author is powerfully maintained and fortified by unquestionable documents, I have not found anywhere an angry word, or an undignified rejoinder. In this respect the book seems to me worthy of the highest praise."

The House keeper.

During the rush of business, conference week a recipe for "Tipsy cake," slipped into this column, made from ingredients which are out of place in temperance households. We shall guard against a similar accident in the future, and are obliged to the Texas and Louisiana lady readers, who promptly reminded us of the grave error.

CHILI SAUCE.—Eighteen large ripe tomatoes; two cups vinegar; one cup sugar; two tablespoons cinnamon; one table-spoon of cloves; four green peppers; four onions; one table-spoon ginger; one table-spoon salt. This is excellent. Cook tomatoes till soft, sieve them, and add the rest after chopping fine. Boil till thick; add vinegar when cold, and bottle.

SPICED FRUIT.—Take 10 pounds of fruit, 5 pounds of sugar, 1 ounce of allspice, 1 ounce of cinnamon, 1 ounce of cloves, ½ ounce of mace. Tie the spices in a bag. Take enough vinegar to moisten the sugar; boil to a syrup; pour over the fruit hot. Let stand until the next day, when put in the spices and cook until done. This will answer alike for nearly all kinds of fruit, including melons, peaches, etc.

LADDIES' CABBAGE.—Boil a firm white cabbage fifteen minutes, changing the water then for more from the boiling tea kettle. When tender, drain, and set aside until perfectly cold. Chop fine, and add two beaten eggs, a table-spoonful of butter, pepper, salt, three table-spoonful rich milk or cream. Stir all well together, and bake in a buttered pudding dish until brown. Serve very hot.

SUBSTITUTE FOR LARD.—A Committee of the Baltimore Grocers' Exchange, recommend cotton seed oil as a substitute for lard. The oil can be retailed at 80 cents per gallon. Standard weight is 7½ lbs. per gallon, so the customer only pays 11 cents per lb., or thereabout. It is claimed that the oil is so much richer than lard that two-thirds of it is equal to a unit of the latter. So the saving to the customer approaches 50 per cent. when using this oil. The oil being liquid, it is much more convenient for mixing with other ingredients and for measuring, than if solid, and the facility with which it is kept in all seasons without in the least losing its sweetness, makes it a desirable acquisition.

A FRUIT SPONGE.—One pound of loaf sugar, five eggs, one pint of raspberries, one pint of currants, two ounces of gelatine. Soak the gelatine in half a pint of water, and then stir it over the fire until perfectly dissolved; make a syrup of the sugar with a very little water, scald the fruit, and let it boil in the syrup until it will squeeze through a jelly bag. Strain through the bag into a large bowl. Strain the gelatine into another bowl through a sieve. When both are cold mix them. Add the whites of the eggs, well beaten. Whisk all well together for half an hour, and stand on ice two hours before serving with cream.

The melted fat cooks by contact of heat, just as water does in so-called boiling of meat. If this is correct, it is evident that fish, etc., should be completely immersed in a bath of melted fat. Well-educated cooks use a smaller vessel than our common frying-pan, charge this with a quantity of fat sufficient to cover the article which is simply laid upon the wire support, or frying-basket, and left in the hot fat until the crust forms at its surface, as of the bread crumbs, with which it indicates the sufficiency of heat. At first sight this method of dressing appears extravagant, as compared with the practice of greasing the bottom of the pan with a little dab of fat; but housewives who will try the frying of sprats, whitebait, etc., in the method described above, will find that, in the end, it is the cheapest.

WATKIN'S PUDDING.—One quarter pound of raisins stoned and opened and laid round a basin or mould, half pound suet, half pound bread crumbs, quarter pound brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two eggs, a little candied peel. This pudding can be served with the following sauce.—Juice of two large lemons, quarter pound sugar simmered and poured over warm; the lemon peel cut, and decorate over the pudding.

LEMON MARMALADE.—Cut up the lemons very finely, removing all seeds. To every pound allow three pints of water; soak lemons in water twenty-four hours. Boil till quite tender, and let it stand for twenty-four hours; weigh a pound and half of sugar to each pound of fruit and water, and boil till it will set. This recipe is excellent for lemon or orange marmalade; and for the former, if liked, a few sweet or Seville oranges may be mixed with the lemon.

If you are to spend the evening out in company or at an entertainment, it is good policy to take a nap, or at least a thorough rest during the afternoon. Care like this, which seems to be but trifling, to preserve the health, really makes a great difference in the aggregate of one's life.

American Ornithologists' Union—Bird Migration.

At the first congress of the American Ornithologists' Union, held in New York City, September 26-28, 1883, a Committee on the Migration of Birds was appointed. It is the purpose of this Committee to investigate in all its bearings, and to the fullest extent possible, the subject of the migration of birds in the United States and British North America. The work will not be limited to the accumulation of records of the times of arrival and departure of the different species, but will embrace the collection of all data that may aid in determining the causes which influence the progress of migration from season to season. For example, severe storms, gales of wind, protracted periods of unusually high or low temperature (for the locality and time of year) are among the atmospheric conditions that are known to exert marked effects upon the movements of birds. The opening of the leaves and the flowering of certain plants, with the correlative appearance of a multitude of insects, are also among the factors that have to do with the abundance of many species. Hence the careful registration of certain meteorological phenomena, and of the state of advancing vegetation from day to day, will constitute prominent items in the record books of the observer.

For the purpose of rendering the result of the season's work as full and valuable as possible, the Committee earnestly solicits the co-operation of every ornithologist, field collector, sportsman, and observer of nature in North America. Indeed, a large corps of observers is absolutely essential to the success of the undertaking, and the Committee hopes to receive substantial aid from many who profess no knowledge of ornithology. Efficient service can be rendered by those familiar with only our commonest birds, and the Committee will gladly accept data concerning any of the following well-known species:

Robin, Mockingbird, Catbird, Brown Thrasher, Bluebird, House Wren, Yellow-rumped Warbler, Myrtlebird, Yellow-breasted Chat, Redstart, Maryland Yellow-throat, Cedarbird, Waxwing, Cherrybird, Purple Martin, Barn Swallow (fork-tailed), Violet-green Swallow, Scarlet Tanager, Pine Grosbeak, Bullfinch, Purple Finch, Red-poll Linnet, Yellowbird, Thistlebird, Snow Bunting, Eastern Chewink, Towhee, Junco, Slate-colored Snowbird, Cardinal Redbird, Rose-breasted Grosbeak, Indigo-bird, Bobolink, Ricebird, Cowbird, Yellow-headed Blackbird, Red-shouldered Blackbird, Meadow Lark, Oriole; Hanging-bird, Crow Blackbird, Horned, Lark Shore Lark, Kingbird, Bee Martin, Pewee, Phœbe, Eastern Hummingbird, Eastern Chimney Swift, Whippoorwill,* Nighthawk,† Kingfisher, Fish Hawk, Wild Pigeon, Also, any of the Waders, "Shore-birds," and Ducks.

PLAN OF THE WORK.

For convenience in collecting and arranging the enormous mass of material which will be accumulated by the joint labors of this army of field workers, it has been deemed advisable to divide the vast expanse of territory embraced in the United States and British North America into thirteen Districts, each of which will be placed under the immediate direction of a competent Superintendent.

Mississippi Valley (Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Indian Territory, Arkansas, the small portions of Kentucky and Tennessee west of the Tennessee River, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi), Supt., Prof. W. W. Cooke, Caddo, Indian Territory.

The home of each observer is called a Station, and is recorded by number upon the books of the Committee. The Committee particularly requests that all persons who read this circular, and are willing to aid in the work, will immediately communicate with the Superintendents of their respective Districts. Those residing in Districts whose Superintendents have not as yet been named may address the Chairman.

It is the duty of each Superintendent to exert himself to the utmost to increase the number of observers in his District; to answer the questions they may put to him concerning the details of the work, etc.; to collect at frequent intervals the product of their labors; to ascertain from these data the whereabouts of certain species in winter, and the times of leaving their winter homes; to determine if possible the number and extent of the chief avenues of migration within the limits of his District, and the average rate of speed at which the different species travel; to locate the breeding areas of the summer residents; and, finally, to submit the result of the season's work to the Chairman of the Committee. The Chairman shall, in turn arrange, condense, and systematize the material received from the Superintendents of the several Districts, and shall present to the Union the fruits of the joint labors of all the collaborators, together with any comments, deductions or generalizations he may have made upon the same.

INSTRUCTIONS TO COLLABORATORS.

The data collected may conveniently be arranged in three general classes: a. Ornithological Phenomena. b. Meteorological Phenomena. c. Contemporary and Correlative Phenomena.

(a) Ornithological Phenomena.

Each observer is requested to prepare, at his earliest convenience, a complete list of the birds known to occur in the vicinity of his Station, and to indicate (by the abbreviations enclosed in parentheses) to which of the following five categories each species pertains:—

1. Permanent Residents, or those that are found regularly throughout the entire year (R).

2. Winter Visitants, or those that occur only during the winter season, passing north in the spring (WV).

3. Transient Visitants, or those that occur only during the migrations, in spring and fall (TV).

4. Summer Residents, or those that are known to breed, but which depart southward before winter (SR).

5. Accidental Visitants, or stragglers from remote districts (AV).

It is desirable also to indicate the relative abundance of the different species, the terms to be employed for this purpose being: Abundant, Common, Tolerably Common, Rare.

In many species the males arrive in advance of the females, hence it is important to note the sex of the first comers, and the date at which the opposite sex is first seen.

In recording arrivals and departures it is highly important to distinguish between the movements of the great bulk of the species and those of the forerunners or advance guard. For this purpose two dates should be recorded for the incoming, and two for the outgoing of every non-resident species, as follows:—

1. The first appearance of the species (F).

2. The arrival of the bulk (BA).

3. The departure of the bulk (BD).

4. The last individual seen (L).

In addition to the above, which may be regarded as essential data, there are many other noteworthy details that bear more or less directly upon the complicated problems involved in the study of migration. Among such may be mentioned the bodily condition of the bird (whether fat or lean), the moult, and the periods of song. The time of mating, when observed, should always be recorded.

(b) Meteorological Phenomena.

Extended meteorological data are not required, though the observer would derive material assistance from a systematic weather record. The Committee desires information upon:—

1. The direction and force of the wind.

2. The direction, character and duration of storms.

3. The general conditions of the atmosphere, including rainfall.

4. The succession of marked warm and cold waves, including a record of all sudden changes of temperature.

(c) Contemporay and Correlatrive Phenomena.

The Committee desires that the data under this head be as full and complete as possible, and requests exact information upon:—

1. The date at which the first toad is seen.

2. The date at which the first frog is heard.

3. The date at which the first tree toad or "peeper" is heard.

4. The dates at which certain mammals and reptiles enter upon and emerge from the state of hibernation.

5. The dates at which various insects are first seen.

6. The dates of the flowering of various plants.

7. The dates of the leafing and falling of the leaves or various trees and shrubs.

8. The dates of the breaking up and disappearance of the ice in rivers and lakes in spring, and of the freezing over of the same in the fall.

*When first heard. †When first seen.

Two boys, the one a gentleman's son, and the other the son of a poor widow, applied to a merchant for a situation; when the latter was chosen. A trifling incident decided the choice. Just as the two boys came together to the merchant's door, a poor ragged girl fell on on the icy sidewalk, and lost her pennies, and cried bitterly. The first boy laughed rudely; but the other went to the girl's aid, and fishing in the gutter for the pennies, found one, and replaced the other from his own little purse. The merchant observed all; and though the first had strong recommendations, and the other none, the poor boy's politeness secured him the place.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. Jesus.

Jesus! How does the very word overflow with sweetness and light and love and life; filling the air with odors like precious ointment poured forth; irradiating the mind with a glory of truths in which no foar can live, soothing the wounds of the heart with a balm that turns the sharpest anguish into delicious peace, shedding through the soul a cordial of immortal strength. Jesus! the answer to all our doubts, the spring of all our hopes, the charm omnipotent against all our foes, the remedy of all our weakness, the supply of all our wants, the fullness of all our desires. Jesus! at the mention of whose name every knee shall bow and every tongue confess. Jesus our power—Jesus! our righteousness, our sanctification, our redemption—Jesus! our elder brother, our blessed Lord and Redeemer. Thy name is the most transporting theme of the church as the sing going up from the valley of tears to their home on the mount of God: thy name shall be the richest chord in the harmony of heaven where the angels and redeemed unite their exulting, adoring songs around the throne of God. Jesus! Thou only canst interpret Thy own name and Thou hast done it by Thy works on earth and Thy glory at the right hand of the Father.—Dr. Bethune.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. E. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

A Christian should never be troubled because he is asked to give. If he cannot give, he ought to be more than sorry—he should be alarmed. Lack of money is by no means as sad as the lack of a disposition to contribute of what one has. MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people—mother, three sisters and three brothers. Mother's name was Ellen Vannoy; sisters were Harriet Vannoy, Corela Vannoy, and Hannah Buckner; brothers were Charles, Richard and Milton. Mother, myself, Corela, Harriet all belonged to Vannoy. The last time I saw them was in Warren, Mo. Sister Hannah and brother Richard belonged to Buckner in Kentucky. Brother Charles stayed with mother until most a young man, and then was taken to Kentucky by one Peddis. Brother Milton, the last I eeard of him he was in Missouri. My name was Matilda Vannoy at that time. I was sold to Granville Blaky; and taken to St. Louis, and brought from there to Texas. I am now married, and go by the name of Matilda Jefferson. Ministers will please help me find them. Any information will be gladly received. Address me at Bryan, Texas.

METILDA JEFFERSON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives, Uncle Moutgomery and Aunt Martha Middling. They belonged to Hawkling Middling. Before the war he carried them to Texas. I last heard of them in Galveston. I belonged to Thomas Williams before the war. Address me at Mason, Tenn.

J. W. WILLIAMS.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find my father and mother, Jesse and Lettie Williams. I was about 15 years of age when I saw them last. They were living with Ned Holland who owned a tobacco factory on Blackwater river in Virginia, on the northeast side. There was a church on the west side. Billie Dunn raised me and sold my mother when I was a small boy. I was her oldest son, and she stooped down and kissed me when she left. I was raised near Franklin Court House, on Snow Creek. Myself and sisters Mary and Aggie were left together. Mr. Dunn sold Aggie to a trader, and Mary was married to Burrell Rinkid. She had three children, the oldest a girl. Dunn sold me to a negro trader. When I saw them writing out the papers I ran away to my father who hid me over the spring house near the dwelling of Mr. Holland. A heavy rain came up one night and father had to go to the spring for me. He carried me to the house and put me in a little room on the north side, the door opened outside; he spread a pallet over some onions and I remained until day, and he went across the river to get a man to buy me, but as the contract had been signed there was no chance for him to get me. Mother had 12 children. Sister Julia went to Monrovia. Next brothers were William and Pollock. I left father on Sunday evening, returned to Mr. Dunn; and a week after the trader got me and carried me to Richmond. He sold me to Silas Mahnnder, who bought me for his sister, Jane Johnson. She brought me to Texas. I was called Jessie. Address me at Clarksville, Texas, care of W. S. Thompson.

JESSIE JOHNSON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for Rose Hamilton. I last saw her in Kansas City. We were sold by Charlie Hamilton, and went from Georgia to Lynne county, Kansas, and thence to Kansas City, Mo. There were three boys, Lee, Sqnire and Frank. The last time I heard of Rose she was in Lonisiana, between Shreveport and Marshall. Her mother was Silvie Scott; her sister Caroline belonged to a Mr. Baxter. Address me at Mooresville, Texas. FRANK HAMILTON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire about my people. My sister belonged to Sallie Drone in Atlanta, Ga. Her name was Isabella. I left her in Chattanooga in 1862. Sister Ellen also belonged to Mrs. Drone. Mother belonged to the same family, and lived about six miles from Atlanta. I had brothers George and Giffel. Address me at Auvergue, Arkansas.

ROYETHER BROWN.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my father, brothers and sister. I was born near Maplesville, Ala. and belonged to Mr. Cole. Father was Eli and mother Dethoney; she died when I was seven or eight years old. Brothers were Noah, Allen, Green, Young, Dave and Ezekiel; and sister was Lucinda. I left them when very young, and was bronght here 25 or 30 years ago by Mr. John Cole. I now call myself Wash Allen. Address me at Conshatta, Louisiana.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire through your paper for my two children that I left near Chester village, Chester county, South Carolina, about 1837. I left them on Jesse William's place, about five miles from Chester village, on a little creek called Pea Ridge. Both my children were girls, named Caroline Williams and Sarah Williams. Their mother died in five years after I left them. Her name was Eliza Williams. She belonged to Jesse Williams. I belonged to James B. Pickett, and I was hired out to Jesse Williams at the time I married Eliza, and I went by the name of Tally Williams; but when I was taken away from Jessee Wilhams by my master, James Pickett, my name was changed to Tally Pickett. I lived on Turkey Creek two years after I was taken from Jesse Williams, and then I was brought to Louisiana, on Red River, by Col. Williamson. The last account I heard of them they were in Houston, Texas; that is what I heard. I don't know whether it was so or not. Since freedom my name has been changed from Tally Pickett to Tally Miller. I would like to hear from my children very much. Write to me in care of H. W. Ogden, Shreveport, La., 3t TALLY MILLER.

including its mammoth eight-page Snnday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the futnre as in the past the MORNING NEWS will snpport the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliqnes, either local, State or National. It will continne to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by snch reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Angnsta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regnlar and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

A STEM WINDING WATCH FREE, to every Subscriber to the PEOPLE'S FIRESIDE JOURNAL.

That old-established paper, the PEOPLE'S FIRESIDE JOURNAL, of New-York, never does things by halves. The "Herald," "Tribune," "World," and other New-York papers are reducing their prices, and warring for supremacy, while the PEOPLE'S FIRESIDE JOURNAL enrolls its subscribers by thousands, by treating every new subscriber to a handsome
NEW STEM-WINDING WATCH.
Petty, unprincipled publishers attempt to follow our liberality, but give worthless watches. Against these you should be guarded. Remember, it would not pay an old-established prominent New-York paper to do anything dishonorable. We give the watch we describe, viz.: A Genuine Swiss Movement, Stem-winding Watch, Silver Nickel Cases, rock crystal back and front, made of the best material, and Warranted to keep good time. Imported direct (by a member of our firm) from Switzerland, "that paradise of watch makers," who are known the world over for their excellent watches. We will send one of the above-described Watches FREE, on receipt of $3.00, to pay for the PEOPLE'S FIRESIDE JOURNAL one year, and help pay packing, postage, and this advertisement. For 50 cents extra, we will send you a handsome Goldplated Chain and Charm (either for lady or gent). In order to further insure confidence, if desired we will send you a sample watch C. O. D., on receipt of 50 cents, balance collected when watch is received. If you send the full amount with order, we will send the watch and chain, prepaid, by mail. Still better, if you get 25 new subscribers, at $3.00 each, every one of whom gets the above-described Stem-Winding Watch, we will give you a
HANDSOME GOLD WATCH
(either lady or gent) free for your trouble.
We are determined to get 100,000 new subscribers, and if necessary are willing to pay $10,000 to do it, feeling sure that those who subscribe for the Fireside Journal will always want it. You must cut this advertisement out and send it to us as a voucher that you are entitled to the watch. We are obliged to do this, to guard against dealers ordering in large quantities.
We are making the PEOPLE'S FIRESIDE JOURNAL more popular than ever this year. We have added many new features and beautiful illustrations by the best artists, and have also secured letters, stories, and sketches by Messrs. H. W. Beecher, Wilkie Collins, Miss Braddon, Charles Reade, and other eminent writers for every issue, and we will guarantee our readers that they will be more than pleased with this sparkling, illustrated family and story paper. Humorous articles and jolly illustrated laughs in every number. Agents are JUST COINING MONEY by taking subscribers for us, and the WHOLE COUNTRY is BEING AROUSED to our LIBERALITY.
If you are in the city, or if you have any friend in the city, have them call on us at 240 Broadway, opposite the Post-Office Building, and verify the facts above stated; or address
People's Fireside Journal, 240 Bway, New-York.

"I SEE THE SHIP THAT BRINGS MY LOVE."
A New and Beautiful Waltz Song, by H. J. Fulmer.
"She stood beside the moonlit sea,
Alone in the silent night,
The wind blew softly o'er the lea,
And stars in the sky were bright;
The light of joy was in her eyes,
And thus she sang in glee:
I see the ship, the gallant ship,
That brings my love to me."
Charming words and music, most happily blended together in a thoroughly artistic manner. Equally well adapted to parlor and concert use.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER LESSON VIII. Feb. 24, 1884.

THESSALONIANS AND BEREANS. (Acts xviii, 1—14.)

Observe the part played by the synagogue in the spread of Christianity. Wherever Judaism existed it became the starting-point for Christianity whenever its missionaries appeared. Its historical and providential relation to Christianity is therefore plain. This relation was broken when the Jews with one accord rejected Paul and the Gospel.

Paul reasoned out the Scriptures. He first set forth the Scriptural idea of the Messiah; and in the second place showed how Jesus fulfilled it. Who can deny the power of correct deep reasoning in proclaiming the Gospel?

God gives to his faithful ministers those who are willing to receive his grace. A notable change comes over them through receiving the gift of the Holy Spirit. They are no longer of the world, but belong to God, and naturally company with his disciples.

Christianity does not set its disciples in opposition to the prevaling civil governments, as these enemies falsely set forth. It is a kingdom, and there is a King Jesus; but this kingdom is within and spiritual. And it regards the powers that be as ordained of God. But this was not the first nor last time falsehood has been resorted to retard the progress of the kingdom of Jesus. Candid study of the Word of God convinces. Our Berean lessons have a noble derivation. The prayerful study of the Word of God always conduces to intelligent and solid piety.—Western.

voice over the land goes up from that say, "My daughters are so and sad, with no strength, all out and life at the least exertion. can we do for them?" The answer le and full of hope. One to four ase of Hop Bitters will make them , rosy, sprightly and cheerful.

NEW BOOKS.

Ireatics—A series of essays showing the virtual agreement between 1. Science and the Bible; 2. Nature and the Supernatural; 3. The Divine and the Human in Scripture; 4. The Old and the New Testament; 5. Calvinism and Armenianism; 6. Divine Benevolence and Endless Punishment. By James Strong, S. T.D., L.L. D., Professor in the Drew Theological Seminary. Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, New York.

Dr. Strong is well known as an eminent scholar and able writer. We only announce this book in this issue with a hope of a fuller notice at some subseqnent time.

Of Worman's Chantauqua Language Series we have received the First Spanish Book, after the natural or Pestolozzian method for scholars and home instructors; by James H. Worman, A. M., P. H. D., author of a series for the modern languages, and Professor in the Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and H. M. Mastanto, B. A., Professor of Modern Languages in Packard Business College, New York City. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York and Chicago.

Godliness—Being reports of a series of addresses delivered at James' Hall, London, doring 1881, by Mrs. Catherine Booth, with an introduction by Daniel Steele, D.D. Published by McDonald & Gill, 36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.

These sermons by Mrs. Booth will be read with eagerness by all who love an earnest and aggressive Christianity. The introdnction by Dr. Steele is in his best style. The sermons are needed as a preventative to sloth and as a safeguard against practical errors in dealing with the souls of men. It seems to ns that they cannot be read with ont real religious benefit.

Outlines of the Doctrine of the Resurrection. Biblical, Historical aod Scientific. By Rev. R. J. Cooke, A. M., with an introduction by D. D. Whedon, L.L. D. Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, New York.

The idea of the resnrrection has existed in all ages and is traced in the literature of all nations. Mr. Cooke in the present volume shows this to be the doctrine of the Word of God. He finds it in the Old and New Testament, and we think conclnsively proves this point. Dr. Whedon speaks of it as "the completest treatise in our language on the snbject." We regard his summing up of Paul's argnment of the resurrection as unanswerable. We heartily commend this volume to our ministerial readers. It can be had at 32 Natchez street, New Orleans. Price $1.50.

Garden and Farm Topics.—By Peter Henderson. Published by Peter Henderson & Co., 35 and 37 Courtlandt street, New York.

This volume will form a useful companion to all who are interested in garden and farm topics.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The February Wide Awake celebrates the month with a charming frontispiece "St. Valentine's Day," representing a group of merry young folk at the Post-office on St. Valentine's morning. There is also a capital Valentine story, by Mrs. Frances A. Humphrey, "Molly St. Leger's Valentine," in which is wrought an incident of the Boston Tea Party, with Mrs. John Hancock as one of the characters. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has a serial story of Smith College life, "A Brave Girl," and Arthur Gilman by No. V. of his Pathfinder Tales, "Stamping a French Name on the Map of America." "The Donkey and the Lion's Skin," is versified by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates. After February 1st, the price of Wide Awake will be $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers. Boston, Mass.

The Hon. Wayne MacVeagh contribntes to the March Century a paper on "The Next Presidency," in which the ideal president is pictured, and the author ventures the opinion that the political party nominating the man who approaches nearest that ideal will be successful in the coming election. Another important essay in this number of the Century discusses methods for "The Suppresion of Pauperism."

The Egyptiau question, which is now exciting so much attention in Europe and this country, will be discussed by Gen. W. W. Loring, Pasha, in a paper entitled "What will Become of Egypt," in the Manhattan of March. Gen. Loring's service of ten years under the Khedive Ismail, during which he conducted the campaign against the Abyssinians, makes the General one of the greatest living anthorities on all matters relating to Egypt.

The Current of Feb. 23d will contain a paper of very great interest from the pen of General James S. Brisbin, entitled "Garfield at Home," in which many heretofore unpublished facts regarding the dead president's home life, methods of work and public career are given.

The numbers of The Living Age for February 2d and 9th contain, Lord Melbourne, a Sketch, and Statnes and Monuments of London, Nineteenth Century; The Sondan and its Future, by Sir Samuel Baker, and The Ontdoor Poetry of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, Contemporary; History in Little, Gentleman's Magazine; Earthqnake Weather, Cornhill; Helen's Tower, Good Words; The Eton Days of Sir Stafford Northcote, Temple Bar; Camp Life on the Prairies, Macmillan; British Guiana, Month; Traditional History of Hagar's Well at Mecca, Lancet; Old Writers and Modern Readers, Saturday Review; The Secrecy of Modern Despotism, Economist; The Happiness of Some Women, Spectator; with the conclusion of "Old Lady Mary," instalments of "The Wizard's Son," "The Baby's Grandmother," and the nsual amount of poetry. Snbscription price $8. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter from Pine Bluff.

MR. EDITOR—As this closes my stay at Pine Bluff, thinking that the many readers of the SOUTHWESTERN wonld like to hear from the charge, I deem it proper to make a statement of onr work here. Three years ago I was appointed here by Bishop Foss who presided at the conference held at Hot Springs, Febrnary, 1881. When I moved here and saw onr church honse not finished and ready to fall down, with a dozen members or more and a long tin horn nsed as a bell to call them together, it made me feel poor in spirit, and came very near breaking me down; yet I felt that the conference and Bishop sent me here not to break down bnt to bnild np. So I went to work to finish the church, spending a hundred or more dollars on it. We fonnd that by the time we would get it done, or before, it would fall down, so we stopped work on the house and started a spiritnal interest in our band, which resnlted in a few converts, and some thirty-six joined us from the A. M. E. Church. This moved us to bnild a new church. We went to work and talked the matter np with the trnstees and members; all of them wanted a new church, bnt claimed that we could not bnild a brick church, while some said that we could, and that we would build, God being onr helper. Some that said yes without meaning it left us and went back to their church, or somewhere else. The few faithful who remained went to work, appointed a committee to look out a lot in as suitable a place as the old church was near a mile out of the way and in the woods at that. The committee retnrned and reported that they had found a lot which wonld cost ns $210; so we found the lot, also the cost, bnt nothing to pay the cost with. We got some friends to stand for us, and got money from the bank on sixty days time, hoping to be able to get it by the time it was due; but failed, yet friends helped us ont. After getting the deed we commenced to lay the foundation for a brick bnilding according to plan No. 5, B. Church Extension plan. The front foundation wall was laid, and we were not able to go any further; so we concinded to have the corner-stone laid in order to get money to go on with onr work. We thought we would raise at least $200 or $300. We got ready and invited the mason to lay it. Forty-fonr dollars was raised, and the grand master got $18 of that for his services and the stone cost $7 freight and all. You see that we were moving very slow in money getting. You conld see that some of our members were getting weak, and under the circumstances they conld not help it. We made one grand rally and raised $14. The preacher began to get weak too, but did not tell any one but his wife and God. Working on throngh discouragement, by the 29th of Jnne, 1883, one year from the time we laid that corner-stone, we had the roof on, and everything paid for with a few exceptions. We owed abont $80. Now all of this was done with abont twenty-five members. After getting the roof on and the floor in, we commenced protracted meeting, which resulted in eight conversions and fifteen accessions to the church. This moved some, who came ont and worked with ns. We have now a good church house, in fact one of the best in the State when it is finished, and a grand opening for a good society. We have had some trouble this year, yet God has blessed ns with a good church house, eight conversions and twenty-two accessions. We also have a good Sunday-school. S. JOHNSON.

The Senate snb-committee, composed of Senators Hoar, Camerou of Wisconsiu, Frye, Salisbnry, and Jonas, will visit Jackson, Miss. They will thence proceed to Copiah county, and after looking over the ground there will probably return to New Orleans as their headquarters for examination of wittnesses. They wish to complete their work and return to Washington before March 1. The snb-committee that will investigate the Danville tronble will begin their work at Washington, and will probably visit Danville before their labors are concluded.

Cow and Horse.

MR. EDITOR—The Y. M. C. A. held their literary exercises last evening, in which some excellent essays were read; after which the next thing in order was debate. Subject: "Resolved, Which is the most nsefnl to man, cow or horse." Affirmative: C. C. Pierson, J. B. Johnson. Negative: J. Cheeks, D. J. Williams. The judges after examining the question closely, rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative. Among the gnests present was Rev. I. N. Marks, who who gave the young men some encouraging remarks, and said he would help them in their undertaking. Yours truly,

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be nsed when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Panperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Editorial Notes.

So far as school purposes are concerned, Kentucky has treated her white and colored school children with equal justice. By a majority of 17,000 the people ratified an act equalizing the school money. Last year white and colored received alike $1.30 per capita, and this year will receive $1.40. A better day is coming. The right will triumph.

A special telegram from Austin, Texas, Feb. 23, says, "the Comptroller ruled that the clause in the the State constitution exempting church property from taxation included parsonages. As many churches have been paying taxes on parsonages in some counties for years, the lawyers think the taxes will have to be refunded."

Small boys are not allowed to attend court trials at LaGrange, Georgia. The recent jury trials in New Orleans, bringing out indecent testimony, accompanied by unaccountable jury verdicts, totally at variance with the law or the evidence, make it advisable to have a similar enactment in this State. The lessons to be learned in such court rooms will not develop a reverence for the law, or promote the best interests of society.

Sabbath, 17th inst., was Missionary day at Union, St. Louis Bishop Bowman preached. The subscription and collection in the congregation was $1,234.20, the Sunday-school reported $503.92. This will be the largest missionary collection ever reported by this church. The other connectional collections amount to over $1,200, total $3,243.12. This single church contributes more for the benevolent purposes of the church than some two or three entire conferences whose names we do not care just now to publish. We will say, however, this ought not to be. Let us wake up to the truth that there is a work for us all to do.

We are sorry to learn that Dr. Birmingham, Dean of the School of Theology of the Central Tennessee College, has been compelled to resign his position and leave the school, partly on account of his health, "but mostly because the salary was so small that he could not afford to stay." Now the theological department of the college is closed and all the teachers, bearing six or seven recitations daily and are in school from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m., with twenty-five minutes intermission at noon. We know of no institution of learning that has a nobler or more self-sacrificing corps of teachers than the Central Tennessee College, with its magnificent administrative abilities, clear head, tender heart and resolute will, was born to fill the position he has occupied for the past sixteen years with so much credit to himself and satisfaction to the church. If we could get at the ear of some of the managers of the Freedmen's Aid Society we should say to them that it was a mistake to allow the theological department of the college to be suspended and certainly where teachers are hearing from six to seven recitations a day there could not be much mercy in asking them to take more. To prosecute her educational work here in the South the church has great need of money. Cheapness is one of the poorest qualifications a teacher can have. With us the simple fact that a person will offer to come for little or no compensation, would be a sufficient reason for their rejection. We need teachers who will demand good salaries in our institutions of learning in the North, and it will take money to employ them. Money is needed, and money must be had to prosecute this work. We earnestly desire to have the attention of some of our people who have large ideas, far seeing wisdom and princely liberality turned toward some of our institutions of learning here in the South. In the meantime would it not be wisdom to concentrate the little means in hand and focalize our educational work a little more? Is not a little well done better than much poorly done?

The City Item within the past few days has published several columns on the subject of gambling in New Orleans. In violation of the revised statutes of the State it is openly aided and abetted by the city officials, who in response to repeated demands have finally made public their statement of receipts and expenditures of illegal assessments on gambling houses.

The real character of beer is being carefully considered in many quarters. In a late issue of the American Reformer, published in New York city, there appeared a highly significant article, by a leading German lawyer of Rochester, for several years one of a large brewing company, declaring beer a deadly beverage, and giving his personal experience. The Reformer proposes to get at and to make public the bottom facts on this question, and invites all interested to contribute information, whether it helps the beer interest or hurts it.

Just now our city is filled with strangers from all parts of the country. There are a number of things that they will of necessity do. They will make personal observations. They will see all along our streets the scrapings of the gutters piled up on the side waiting the action of the sun and heat to generate poisonous gases actually injurious to the public health. They will see garbage boxes in front of public residences where they have remained for weeks, fulfilling the mission of propagating disease. On some of the streets in the heart of the city they will come in contact with an atmosphere poisoned by noxious smells and gasses that are disgusting to the most brutal. The style of the entertainments may please them, but the condition of our streets will disgust them, and we fear that instead of being attracted they will be repelled.

Cost of Methodist Publications

A special committee, appointed by the Book Committee a year ago, submitted the following report to the Book Committee at its recent session in Cincinnati, and the report was adopted.

At the annual meeting of the Book Committee in New York, February, 1883, a resolution was adopted calling for the appointment of a committee of five, and designating the chairman of the Book Committee as chairman, to inquire into and report at the next annual meeting, the cost of production and selling of our own publications compared with those of other houses; whether our publication can be cheapened, and whether in order to such cheapening it is expedient to consolidate our Eastern and Western publishing houses.

Pursuant to the resolution the following gentlemen were appointed: Homer Eaton, chairman, by special resolution, D. C. John, Amos Shinkle, I. S. Bingham, and C. B. Fisk.

The committee met immediately after the adjournment of the Book Committee and divided itself into two sections, the Eastern and Western, the Eastern consisting of Homer Eaton, I. S. Bingham, and C. B. Fisk, and the Western of D. C. John and Amos Shinkle.

The Eastern section met in New York, November 20th, and spent several days investigating the comparative cost of producing books and papers, and the selling price of the same. On comparison of cost of production and retail price of our publications generally with those of other leading houses, it was found that, when there is any difference, it is always in our favor. For details of this investigation we refer you to documents herewith submitted. (See documents A and B.)

The Western section of the committee met in Chicago, Dec. 18, 1883, and spent several days in ascertaining the comparative cost and selling price of our publications and those of other leading houses. After careful investigation, it was found that the difference if any, is invariably in favor of our house. The details of the investigation are exhibited in accompanying documents. (See documents C. and D.

The Committee met in joint session in Cincinnati, Feb. 9, 1884, with all the members present except C. B. Fisk, who was unavoidably detained. After a free and full interchange of views it was unanimously agreed that it is not expedient to consolidate our Eastern and Western publishing houses. In the judgement of the committee such consolidation would effect but a slight reduction in expense, and incur great danger of a large decrease in the sale of our publications.

In view of the fact that our books and periodicals are already cheaper, on the whole, than those of other leading houses, and the further fact that we are expending a large amount annually in the payment of our funded debt—incurred in the purchase and improvement of property to meet the demands of an increasing business—we are clearly of the opinion that it would be unwise to make any reduction in the price of our books and periodicals at the present time. Respectfully submitted.

HOMER EATON, Chairman.
D. C. JOHN, Secretary.

From Austin District.

DEAR EDITOR:—I began my district work on the second Sunday after the close of our annual conference. Bro. Swann at Wesley chapel had things in good shape. The business of the conference passed off nicely, the leaders and other officers of the church were all on hand with written reports, showing the work in good condition. Pastor's salary was fixed at $750 for this year; some of the brethren thought it was too much, but it is only $1.75 for each member to pay, if they have 400 members and they reported 500 to the annual conference.

January 12 and 13 found us among the brethren of the Austin Mission. They are well pleased with the appointment the bishop made for them. Rev. S. Smith, the new pastor, was at his post the first Sunday after the annual conference. The first move was to build a parsonage which was done and ready for his family by Jan. 8. The quarterly conference was good, brethren all present but two. The pastor's salary was fixed at $395 or $3 per member. The services on Sunday were fine. It must be remembered that this little band paid nearly $400 to the pastor in 1882 and the same in 1883: "God loves the cheerful giver."

Rev. G. Norman's people were glad to receive him again as their pastor for another year on the Manor circuit. The quarterly conference was held Jan. 19th, a very cold day; the house being open and having no fire the meeting did not do much. The pastor's salary was fixed at $250, about $4.50 per member.

Jan. 26th found us on the McDade and Giddings work, where all was in good order and the people well pleased with the return of Bro. Lott as their pastor another year. Brother Lott is getting his people worked up well; they are few in number but they work well. The quarter passed off well. The members at Giddings were on time but not one from McDade put in an appearance. The brethren in some of the charges and circuits are just as cold and unconcerned about the quarterly meeting as they can be. They think they are good enough without the blessings of a quarterly meeting. I hope the pastor will get rid of all such officers. They are not fit for leaders among the people. Some people are always doing something to please the Devil, but they will not do one thing to please a preacher or presiding elder. They think they are doing us too much honor. Do your duty and honor God, we don't want any in this world.

Feb. 2d quarterly meeting for the LaGrange circuit was held by Bro. Lott as the presiding elder was sick. The reports were not very encouraging, though the brethren and people are pleased with the new pastor, Bro. Mosebey. They promise him $300. May the Lord help them to pay it. They report 160 members, so they will not have to pay more than $2 per member, if they have 150 members. All of these estimations are good enough if the people would pay them, but only a few churches pay or even try to pay. The preachers have to pay all their bills. If we owe one dollar and don't pay it we are called every thing that is mean, but the churches can owe us two or three hundred dollars at the end of the year and there is nothing said about it. The farmer sells off his crop for, say from three hundred to one thousand dollars per year. The daily laborer makes from seven to ten dollars per week; say from $336 to $480 year. At the end of the year they say they made nothing more than a living, but the preacher has had the promise of two or three hundred dollars and got probably half, yet he must pay all he owes while the other men can carry their debts over for another year. This looks like men doing to others as they would not be done by. Let the stewards pay the pastors every dime.

Feb. 9th finds me at LaGrange. The people are delighted with Rev. E. Henderson, their new pastor. The first thing I saw when I got in was a nice new fence around the church and parsonage, Bro. Henderson don't like to have the cows, hogs, horses, dogs and other tramps bothering him, so he may be known as a fence builder; he does this everywhere he goes, nor does he fail to build a spiritual fence around the members of his charge. The love feast was fine, the quarterly good. Pastor's salary $350, about $3.64 per member. Sunday was a grand day; four joined the church. More as we move on.

Letter From Navasota.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to speak of this, my new appointment. I had the honor of meeting this people on the second day after the adjournment of the Annual Conference. It suffices me to say that Navasota is a beautiful little town, and the outlook for business in future is favorable. It is now populated to a large extent with quite a thrifty people. There are only two churches in this town—Baptist and the M. E. Church—both of which are to a large extent in Christian harmony with each other. Yet there was a division among themselves not long since, but they have had a reunitation recently. The M. E. Church here is a good old-fashioned Methodism, full of the fire and "Holy Ghost." As all good Methodists do, in obedience to the discipline of the good old church, they received me with apparent gladness. And not only did they receive me with seeming gladness, but they are working with me in this great field of Methodism with not what seems to be "work," but with what is in reality real and faithful work. I feel safe to eulogize our Methodist people and friends to Methodists here with emphasis, from the fact that they are genuine Methodists, and not simply bearing that name. This is to say that those we have here claiming the old insignia of Methodist are worthy of trust. They are true to the church, and that is what we need in any of our charges before we can anticipate success. It suffices me to say that our church edifice here is a grand one. Not many better structures for divine services can be found in any of our conferences in Texas. Men sometimes speak of what they have done, but are never prepared to show it; but this is not the case with Rev. E. Lee, who has the honor, and well deserved, too, of building this well-polished edifice here in honor of the great flag of Methodism. He was not exaggerating, no, not the least, when he said to the public, through your invaluable paper, that this church here was richly worth $3000. In short, everything that is attached thereto foreshadows a wise master builder. I must say, too, that this church is not stuck, as it were, into some nook, but it is in Navasota, and it is so far therein that our people came very nearly getting on the cold side of their worthy white friends here, thinking that they would be so badly disturbed by their meeting that they could not sleep at night from the effect of their religious noise, but they fail thus to think now. They love it. Who can despise decency and right? Only those who are destined. Rev. E. Lee has been successful in getting our people here to take music in their homes, and in their church and Sabbath school. This, in most of our churches, is of but little value in the estimation of our people—especially as an aid in divine services. They had much rather have the old farm melodies. But in that as in many other old-fashioned things which they have forgotten and resorted to new ones. So I am very glad to say that our church here has an aspiring disposition, which will certainly lead them to conquest if they faint not, and I have their word that they are determined not to faint. Happy am I to the depth of my soul to say that we have here, for the first time in the ministry for me to find, forty children that are being led by the auspices and insignia of the old church once a week. May the Lord strengthen sisters King and Hunter, who lead them from time to time. We have a Sabbath school which needeth not be hissed at. Its roll speaks for a number of 80 pupils, all of whom are as a general thing prepared to respond to their names on the Lord's day. We have an active group of officers and teachers. Mr. N. Jones is our Superintendent. He is only a probationer in the church, but faithful is he to his duty. Prof. J. E. Williams, a young man, and local preacher of our church in Jamaica, is our organist and week day school teacher. He is faithful and well competent for both.

The Rev. W. B. Pullam, P. E. of this district, held his first quarterly here on the 9th and 10. The quarterly conference business began in our house of worship at 3 p. m. on the 9th, Rev. W. B. Pullam in the chair, who read a portion of the Scriptures and sang and prayed; after which he gave us words which appears to me to have taken a perpetual place in the hearts of all that were present. We had quite an instrustive conference. The brethren all seemed to have been benefitted by having gathered themselves there on the occasion. The worthy presiding officer gave notice of a fact that our benevolent apportionments for this conference year are $31. The committee on estimating the pastor's salary reported $500. Sunday, the 10th, the presiding elder gave a gave a delightful address to the Sunday-school at 11 a. m., and in the afternoon he preached a sermon that will be long thought of for its powerfulness, to a large audience, and administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper to 105, which was good considering the inclemency of the weather. The day passed off with praises of great joy in honor to Him who died to take away the sin of the world. The presiding elder remained with us several days. Seems that it would be good if the General Conference would only allow the presiding elder 12 appointments, so as to give a week to each.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

Robt. Cline, Waelder and Peach Creek: "Presiding Elder Carmichael held first quarterly conference; most of the brethren were present and put in good reports. We have promised pastor next year $350 and a suit of clothing, and are willing to give our presiding elder $50. Benevolent collection during the year is $37,87½. We wish to do more for the Lord on Peach Creek than we ever did. We are a hard working people, make plenty of corn and cotton, and we want to give back some of what we make so that the Lord will bless us. Rev. L. Carper is with us this year; he is easy to please and is loved by the people."

Mrs. Alice Blain, Fairfield: "Our Sabbath-school is largely increasing; there are 61 scholars, and a regular attendance of 50. Our little house is not large enough for the school. We expect to build or enlarge the house this year. We need books and something to arouse the people to give money to the church and Sabbath-school.

S. Coleman, Waelder: "Our pastor, L. Carper, has got a lot in Waelder to build a church on, and when the weather is fair expects to go to work on it. The white people want him to have the church in town; three of them gave the lot to build on, and three gave him $30 to start on. Elder Carmichael will assist us, and we hope to have a nice church in Waelder. We are pleased to read of Rev. Mack Henson's work in San Antonio, and too much praise can not be given Rev. Lee Reed and his wife for their grand work on Peach Creek."

W. H. Jackson, Brenham: "A week's protracted meeting resulted in 32 accessions; 2 backsliders reclaimed, 2 conversions, 4 by letter and recommendation from the Missionary Baptist. The trustees are going to repair the church at Pleasant Grove; when completed it will be a nice church 40x60 feet."

Rev. J. C. Mays sends us a communication in which he expresses the opinion that without regard to other qualifications. Methodists are not eligible to positions as school teachers in DeWitt county. At a season when schools were without teachers for near two months, and the patrons were demanding public schools, himself and wife applied to boards of trustees in school communities, and were told "all right, we will see about it in a few days;" and at that time young men from abroad, from the Baptist University, with diplomas as graduates, who were barely able to give satisfaction to the board of examiners for second grade certificates, were employed by the trustees. Bro. Mays thinks it is wrong to carry denominational contests into the public school work of the State.

TENNESSEE.

J. Sinclair, Woodbury circuit: "I found the people looking for me at conference. The church was full. The weather has been cold. We are at work, and have received several in the church."

T. M. Hanson, Brownsville: "Why is our church not doing better? Is it because it is not a good appointment, or its ministers inferior to those of other churches, without enough magnetic attraction; burning zeal for the Lord, or power to win the affections of the people? I think not, for none have been assigned here without making their mark and doing some good for our Methodism. The great trouble I fear is that the good has been too much scattered—not enough in one place. The preacher is needed at all the meetings, whether it be Sunday-school, prayer, class or public worship. He is needed for advice, words of cheer, reproof, for encouraging in righteousness. As I looked for the country last Sunday morning, looking to see if I could guess by the church sheds, I saw several heads in the doors and doors, seeming to say, Our pastor could be with us Sunday-school he will not be here, I shall not attend"—and they did not go. The few Sabbaths that I spent in the Sunday-school showed me that our church was not the best here, but needs constant feeding and watering. I am thankful to say that on last Sunday night God manifested himself to us, as he does not to the world. I am encouraged from the foretaste that was given. In the near future much good can be done in the name of the Lord Jesus. I ask those who are at a distance to "come over in Macedonia and help us," for we have ten new oppositions to fight (latterly poked its head up in the form of an adder) called drinking saloons."

LOUISIANA.

The State Central Express, of Alexandria, says: Rev. J. F. Marshall "is highly esteemed by this community, and his return here will be very gratifying to his friends." A note from Bro. Marshall says: "I came to this place under very pleasant circumstances. All seem glad to have me return. As is always the case with us Methodist preachers, I find plenty to do."

MISSISSIPPI.

L. J. Terrell, New Albany: "On reaching my new field of labor we had a regular Methodist hand-shaking. Have made a fair beginning."

Woman's Work in the Temperance Cause.

BY A. W. MCKINNEY.

Read to the College Hill Temperance Society, Feb. 6, Nashville, Tennessee.

In the great battle with rum, woman must do her part. In every great work of reform, in mercy to mankind she has ever acted nobly and well. She must do so still, for God has a work for her, a work that none other can do. She has an inducement to work in this cause which none other has. Do men advocate temperance, that the money spent for drink may be saved? Do they labor for humanity's sake, that they may rescue the poor and weak who are so unfortunate as to succumb to the tempting glass? Do they seek the expulsion of this evil lest it come nigh their own doors, enter their peaceful and happy families, and nip the fairest flowers that bloom around their hearthstones? Woman has all these inducements to entice her to such work, and one more which outweighs them all: viz., self interest, for the sake of her own honor. Do men fight and war that the flag of their country may not go down in dishonor? Let the women of to-day remember that in this conflict, all that is honorable and sacred to her is at stake. Which class protects honor and womanhood, the temperance men or saloon keepers and drunkards? Man may drink and spend all his property. He may waste his substance in riotous living; he may waste even his bodily strength; he may drink until the last drop of strength is drawn from his sinews, the rosy hue from his cheeks, the fire from his eyes, until he is a mortal wreck, a walking skeleton, pickeled in rum. And yet he little remembers the exalted stand from whence he has fallen: he drinks and forgets his poverty and remembers his misery no more. With his drinking comes a moral deadness, so that he is insensible alike to shame and reproach. His former friends and associates forsake him and he seems to know it not. They scorn him, but he lays it not to heart. All he wants is the glass. He is petrified. But what about the woman, the wife and mother, and the daughter? They are alive to every reproach, and feel most keenly the slightest word or look which indicates that the father and husband and son was a drunkard. Yea though they should be surrounded by sympathizing friends, the thought of such dishonor is enough to make the head forever hang down. Add to this, the fact that she is homeless, moneyless and friendless. For a drunkards wife has no home, no money, no friends. As one forlorn, struggling with weakness, she must go forth to meet the cold gaze of strangers and wring a living from a greedy and uncharitable world. If any one thinks this to be extravagant let him walk the streets to-morrow with his eyes open. Has not woman a right then for her own sake, to take a bold stand against intemperance? No right is diviner than hers. But what can she do? She can do all things through Him who strengtheneth her. 1. She can speak with a most persuasive eloquence. It may not be sky sweeping but it is soul moving. 2. She can sing. Her voice can make music sweeter than tuned Apollo's lute. How often I have heard her sing in church and on the stage and gone home saying to myself, let me be a better man. If I be any thing more than an out cast, I owe it largly to the power of song.

Music will soften,
Where language will fail us,
Feelings long buried
'Twill often restore.

Then let mothers, daughters and wives all sing. "Sing on, sing ever." 3. She can teach, her services as teacher are being more demanded and appreciated. Thus the field widens, let her enter it with the grace of God in her soul and do her work cheerfully and willingly in the name of Christ and humanity. Let her see to it that the all important subject of temperance is taught from every desk that she occupies. She can teach in the home by precept and example. Let her do it. She can wield an influence in the church by giving her voice against whisky drinking members, whose cases may from time to time come before the church for trial. Let her do that. If the church should be slack and not inclined to discipline members who drink and vote for whiskey, she can so arouse public sentiment as to have them expelled from the church. Let her do it.

Woman should have convictions, make them known, and stick to her principles. In so doing she will do much to bring many to temperance and sobriety. Few men on this side the grave, however degraded they may be become totally insensible to the influence of woman. Show me a man that is, and I will show you a man who is only fit for the prison walls and for hell, for such a man is a reprobate. On the other hand, he likes to have her good opinion, and will often put himself to great inconvenience to gain it. She should not abuse this influence. It is a power for good if rightly used. Let her use it well. Use it for man's own benefit, and for the protection of all that is honorable and sacred to herself. There were once two young girls who vowed that no young man should accompany them who were known to smoke and tipple. This simple act broke up the habit in that community, and caused those girls to be more respected than they would otherwise have been. "The women of this country will yet save the men," said Mr. Whittier; and not only may she save the men, but the women themselves also. I saw in the paper to-day that English women frequent drinking saloons in London; and I myself have seen in this fair Southern land women coming out of saloons, their lips wet with what Mr. Hall called "Liquid death and distilled damnation." And now ladies of the College Hill Temperance Society, there is work for you; a work for each and a work for all. Behold the harvest is already white. They who reap shall receive wages.

Let none hear you idly saying,
There is nothing I can do,
While the souls of men are dying,
And the Master calls for you.
Take the task he gives gladly,
Let His work your pleasure be,
Answer quickly when He calleth
Here am I, send me, send me!

Metropolitan Church.

Let not those who pledged $5 to pay the Metropolitan Church debt misunderstand the situation.

The cards of my subscribers were accepted as so much money. Each card was counted as a five dollar bill. I am yet $770 behind of the whole $50,000. Once more I earnestly request every person who signed one of those five dollar cards to raise and forward the money at once. Do not delay my final report.

Special Providence.

"Consider the lilies of the fields how they grow; they toil not neither do they spin," are very suggestive words, and are capable of affirming the fact that the watchful care of God extends not only to man, the noblest of His creation, but even hovers around and watches over the simple, delicate and isolated lily of the field. Every animated being or thing exhibits more or less the watchful care of their Creator. He has so provided for the lily that it attains the highest forms of beauty, sublimity and grandeur without a single effort attributable to itself. Solomon in all his glory comes far short of equaling this simple flower, which is only nourished and protected through the care of God. If He so careth for the flowers of the field, will He not also provide for thee thou faithless man? Will He not clothe thee when destitute of clothing, feed thee when thou art hungry, comfort thee when in distress, and enable thee to pursue thy journey through life undisturbed and in peace with all? David declared he never saw the "righteous forsaken nor their seed begging bread." Is this not a soul-cheering comfort to the humble followers of Christ, who feel the bitter pangs of poverty day after day, and yet are not forced to beggars, life? They are derided and scorned, yet they are not forsaken, for there is a friend that "sticketh closer than a brother." His eyes are ever upon us and His ears open to hear the prayers of His meek and humble followers. When we ask of Him peace, will he give in return disquietude and strife, or will He not give unto his children such blessings as they need? Has not our Savior said that whatever ye ask of the Father in my name that shall ye receive? Does not the scripture teach us that the hairs of our head are numbered; and does not this sufficiently demonstrate the care of God over man as well as over the fowls of the air and the lilies of the field? He replenishes the little sparrow with mirth, man with comforts of every description, and is within Himself a Father of love and care over all his creation. If we be poor and destitute of worldly comforts we need only to consider the memorable words of our Savior, setting forth his humble condition in life, when He said, "Foxes have holes, the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head," and rejoice that we have God to our father, who shall supply all our needs out of His abundance of grace in glory. Let us accept with joy the truth, that our once deserted Savior has endured all the pangs of earth's severities for our sake, yea our heavenly Love laid down his life for a sinking world. Became a victim to death, an inmate of the tomb, to make plain our pathway to glory. Oh, thou King of Kings, forcibly impress us with the truths contained in this simple expression of thine. "If he so careth for the flowers of the field will He not also provide thee." A. J. FLETCHER.

Three Minute Talks—No. 3.

Our colored delegates to the next General Conference will have a good opportunity afforded them, when that body meets, to reflect credit upon themselves and upon the people with whom they are especially identified. All eyes will turn toward them, and attentive ears will try their words. Nothing in their tone, manners and actions will escape a critical notice, and nothing discovered in them that savors of true manliness, profound culture and sound discretion will be under-rated. Happily for them if they regard their position as a grave and responsible one, and strive to their utmost to measure up to its demands. They should keep before them the fact that our people are not now judged so much by what they suffered during slavery as by the advantages held out to them since slavery was abolished. But the object of this talk is not to indicate what the delegates should do, but what they should not do. I will enumerate. (a.) They should not endeavor to make color conspicuous in the assembly by the too frequent mention of "our people" and the "race I have the honor to represent." (b.) They should not assume in all the discussions a militant attitude, unless the issue is thrust upon them, and, even then, they should show no disposition to prolong it beyond the nearest point of an amicable adjustment. (c.) They should not be drawn unprepared into debate, nor manifest impatience when some proposed measure in which their feelings are strongly enlisted is passing the muster of sharp criticism. (d.) They should not, upon any occasion, however great the provocation, exhibit the least sign of the unfairness and prejudice which they may feel called upon to combat in others. (e.) They should not show unreasonable ambition nor should they, through jealousy, quarrel among themselves in order to prevent one getting a promotion which could not be tendered to all alike at the same time. (f.) They should not hastily bestow praise upon any delegate who may happen to give expression to some sentiment which seems to favor them as a class, nor should they too readily count him an enemy who may oppose some favorite measure. (g.) They should not forget, that, while a colored Bishop may be desirable, there are other positions in the church, such as clerks, agents, secretaries and editors, which are not beneath the worthy aspiration of the truly capable colored man. I do not claim that the bishopric is too high for us, but I do say most emphatically that the inferior positions instanced above ought not to be despised. It has been wisely said, "nothing educates like responsibility," and I may add that light burdens properly borne at first seldom fail to develop the strength necessary to bear up under weightier ones that come afterward. (h.) They should not yield one single inch of ground to the advocates of the hateful caste policy which is loudly clamoring for countenance by the church. They are to be opposed because, to quote the language of another used to describe time-serving politicians, "not what is right and permanent, but what is expedient and likely to succeed, is what they seek." I would not place such men on a level with politicians of low morals and selfish aims, but I charge them with trying to substitute policy for principle, and caring more for the success of the church than they evidently care for its purity. (i.) They should not carry around during the session subscription papers soliciting money to help needy churches at home. They are not sent to beg, but to legislate; and lastly they should not do anything below the dignity of cultivated Christian gentlemen.

D. W. HAYS.

Notes from Nashville.

The students of the Central Tennessee College listened to an address by Rev. W. O. Lynch, of Kansas, on the evening of the 15th inst. The speaker was formerly a member of the Alabama Conference, then of the Central Alabama. When the Methodist Episcopal Church, yielding to the color line pressure of the whites in the South and to the general spirit of caste, made the provision at Baltimore for dividing her ministers into black flocks and white flocks, Bro. Lynch was set off among the blacks. He is black, and glories in the fact that no white blood courses in his viens. His theme was "The Colored American and his Responsibilities." He spoke of the relation of the Negro to the material, social and moral development of this country. He showed quite clearly that the Negro had in the past a controlling influence in the growth of the material prosperity of the South, and since free, was doing still more for its progress in this direction. In the future, the Negro's power would increase with his thorough education, in his social political and moral relations to the whole nation. He did not advocate social equality, but considered it a humbug over which multitudes of the American people were making themselves ridiculously uneasy. He expressed the hope that no young man before him would seek a white wife, or any young woman a white husband. He warmed up considerably and was quite indignant at what he called Dr. Able Steven's theory that the elevation of the Negro is to be accomplished by wiping out the Negro with infusion of white blood. The great responsibility of the Negro lay in his religious nature, his orthodoxy, his strong faith and his emotional worship; this the speaker thought, would perhaps both save himself, and in some future conflict with infidelity or false religions, save the country from ruin. The lecture was listened to attentively, and quite frequently applauded. Bro. Lynch is a forcible speaker, uses plain Anglo-Saxon, and is at times quite animated. He realizes his lack of early mental discipline, and calls himself the "classmate" of students in school, and will use his endeavors to remedy his own defect as far as possible by hard study.

There seems to be a movement on foot to change the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society, or in other words to have a funeral and bury this association, or start it out under a new name, the "Southern Educational Society," the "General Educational Bureau," or some other euphonious title. It may be that it is best, provided the old society has done its work, and the circumstances which called it into existence have ceased. Some of the facts which made it necessary to organize the Freedmen's Aid Society were: 1. Freedom—four millions of slaves in 1863 were made free. These freedmen have remained free; multitudes of them are now in the schools of the South seeking education. 2. Sympathy for a mass of ignorant, degraded, poverty stricken, helpless people. The ignorance, degradation, poverty and helplessness, have been in some measure removed, but all still remain in such measure as to arouse the greatest fears. Has sympathy ceased for these people, who for generations were made beasts of burden, whose instincts for purity were crushed by brutalists, whose natural affections were trampled under the heel of power, whose aspirations for intellectual growth were punished as crimes, and whose whole being is still under the blighting influences of the two hundred and fifty years of such treatment. 3. Inability to support and manage their own needed educational institutions. If the whites North and South, who have had all opportunities of growing intelligent, and of accumulating property, are yet dependent for the support for their higher educational work on endowed universities and colleges, what can be expected of a people who have been imprisoned until their mental and moral faculties were blunted and rendered comparatively useless, and then turned out, with nothing, in the midst of people who were largely hostile to every effort which recognized them as men, and sneered at the idea, (and many of them still do so) of giving the Negro a collegiate education? If poverty of the freedmen called the Freedmen's Aid Society into existence it should still live on. 4. However unsettled the plans of the founders of the Society were at first, controlled as their plans were by circumstances, these founders were wise men, and as the smoke of battle cleared off, the primary school, in the cabin, was in their minds the germ of the high school, academy, college or university. These primary schools, in accordance with this foresight, have developed into the high school, academy, college and university—in name at least. These schools are all in their infancy. Their names, college and university, are in some cases misfortunes, as they have not the equipment to do the work. They lack in buildings, in apparatus and professors. They are normal schools and academies, with comparatively few classical scholars. This Society should live until the work it has so nobly begun should be completed, or at least a few thoroughly equipped schools, colleges or universities should exist as its enduring monument. 5. The Freedmen's Aid Society was founded because there was a specific and great demand for education by the freedmen. The writer is now closing his seventeenth year in this work, and from his standpoint he is of the opinion there is as much need of education among the colored people to-day as ever. It is true some of it is of higher grade. Teachers, mechanics, farmers, and especially preachers of the Gospel, are demanded, with better qualifications than formerly.

During the former year has the attendance been as great as this at the Industrial Tennessee College, and this is true of all the freedmen's schools, and the cry is more room, more teachers, better facilities, so that these colored youths can have at least an fair an opportunity to become educated as the whites in their colleges. It is the reason which called for the existence of the Freedmen's Aid Society in 1866, still exists, there is no reason for a funeral just now. It may be that the work can be carried on under another and broader name, but has the time come for this specific work of the church among the colored people to cease or are the colored people to such a condition financially, socially and morally to step on the platform with the whites, in a general appeal to the church for help? These are questions which should be well considered. There may be most excellent reasons for such a change, if it be made, and no doubt the members of the General Conference will have the wisdom to decide this question for the best.

From Columbus District.

MR. EDITOR.—I promised you that you should hear from me again soon. Now I am seated to fulfill my promise. I left Flatonia on the 29th ult. for Waelder and Peach Creek, where I was met at the depot by S. Coleman, a nice young brother of our church, who carried me down to the church where I met the pastor and brethren and held the quarterly. Next night, the 31st, I preached to a crowd, house; collected $3.85. This place and Flatonia are very close together in their collection, the latter giving $2.40. From there I went to the nice little town of Luling, where on Feb. 2nd, at 3 o'clock, I met the quarterly Conference and union time. At this place the people greatly need a house of worship, and as I committed in the quarterly Conference brother Reed to get up a subscription for that purpose, at which we were successful, promised us aid, and got more to subscribe to the building of the church. I went to meet the Sunday-school at 10 o'clock next morning, but it was 12 o'clock before any children came. Then the Sunday-school Superintendent dismissed them for preaching. Oh! God help the preachers on the Columbus district to start the Sunday-schools for their use. I preached at 11 o'clock, and administered the sacrament to 108 persons. Bro. T. Watkins and Bro. James Herbert assisting. Bro. Herbert is of the Protestant church. At night I preached and presented my list for [illegible] for the new [illegible] Monday night we [illegible] for benevolent [illegible] for [illegible] Col. [illegible] presiding elder, $15.75, raised during the quarter by subscription for the new church, $234.25. Thus ends the work at Luling. Mr. [illegible] hopeful about Luling, [illegible] make any mistake in putting these figures as you [illegible] the collection at Columbus [illegible] in my last letter. It was $12.10 not $21.10, you put the 1 on the wrong side. From Luling I was carried to Lockhart by brother F. Callihan; here I met a warm hearted people and a loving pastor; preached several sermons. Sunday at Lockhart was a day the Lord poured out his spirit on both preachers and people. Collection for presiding elder $10.05. On Monday the 11th I returned to Luling, where I had to preach at night, though very tired. I left there on the east bound train for Columbus, a distance of 71½ miles, where I met Bro. Banks waiting my arrival. I found a great deal of difference on a wagon than on the train, for there was a fierce wind blowing from the north, but after a five miles drive we reached our destination, cold the quarter, though very cold. I feel encouraged about this work. (Weimar circuit.) Next night, the 13th, was so cold that there was no turn out. I feel a little better satisfied with this district than I did at first. Though it is far behind, especially in the Sunday-school work. But all the preachers I trust, will go to work to build up their part of the work of the church; but this cannot well be done until we get good church houses, suitable houses for the winter. The Columbus district came up behind last year with her benevolent money, but we don't intend that it shall be so next conference. I leave here for Industry to-morrow. Pray for our work.

The New People's Church of Boston.

The seven years of building at the People's Church in Boston are at an end, and the largest Protestant church edifice in New England in now ready for its opening services. This is proably the largest church in Methodism, as it is certainly a novelty in construction among Methodists. About 3,000 persons can be brought within its walls, all within easy compass of the voice. The dedicatory feast is to continue several days, and be worthy of the great structure to be dedicated. The services begin Sunday morning February 10th, with a sermon by Bishop Simpson, D.D., L.L.D., to be followed, in the afternoon by a sermon from Rev. Joseph Cook, whose subject is "The Church for the Times." The pastor, Rev. J. W. Hamilton, will preach in the evening; the Rev. Phillips Brooks will preach Monday evening; the Rev. J. P. Newman, D.D., L.L.D., Tuesday evening; the Rev. J. M. Buckley, D.D. L.L.D., Wednesday evening; the Rev. O. P. Gifford, Thursday evening; the Rev. J. O. Peck, D.D. Friday evening; Bishop Jabez P. Campbell, D.D., L.L.D., in the afternoon, and the Rev. W. F. Mallalieu D.D., presiding elder of Boston district, in the evening. Nearly fifty other ministers of the different denominations in New England, including many well known throughout the country. The programme which is a very handsome pamphlet of fifteen or twenty pages, and includes a full view of the church, will be sent as a souvenir to any person addressing the pastor at the People's Church, Boston, enclosing two five cent postage stamps. The sermons are all to be published in a volume, which will be styled "The People's Church Pulpit," and forwarded to any person sending in their name on or before the conclusion of the services, and enclosing $1; after that time the book will be given to the trade, but will not be sold for less than $2.—Boston Letter.

Does it pay to have a thousand homes blasted, ruined, defiled, turned into hells of misery, strife and war, that some wholesale rum-sellers may build up a large fortune?

John Hogan's Bravery.

PHILADELPHA, Feb. 3.—The many people who stopped on the Callowhill-street bridge just before dusk this evening, to watch the moving crowd of skaters and revelers on Schnylkill, just below the dam, witnessed a thrilling and exciting scene that they will never forget. There were hundreds of men and boys skating, and hundreds of others who were either watching the skaters or being drawn on sleds or sliding swiftly on the smooth ice. The scene of the constantly moving masses attracted the attention of all who walked over the bridge, and throughout the afternoon there was always a line of men and women hanging over the northerly hand-rail and gazing at the spot.

At 5:30 o'clock when the crowd of sightseers had some what thinned out, there was a cry of horro from the bridge, for those who stood there had seen a sled, crowded with boys, go through the ice. They had seen, too, the rush of skaters and other revelers to the scene of the accident, and they had heard the cry of agony from the boys who were struggling for life in the icy river. "Get a boat," nearly all cried out at once, but there was no boat to get, and nobody on the bridge could help the strugglers without running to the shore and thence upon the river. Like most crowds this was utterly helpless, but it was noticeable that a few of the skaters and sightseers were ready and willing to give their aid. "There are twenty men drowning," yelled an excited spectator, and there was a grand rush for the shore. The persons struggling in the river nine or ten boys, who a minute or two before had been going gaily over the ice on a sled, shouting in great glee and enjoying themselves as only boys can. About 30 yards from the eastern shore and about 10 yards north of the bridge the ice had broken and the sled, with the boys on it, dropped into the water. The sled belonged to John Hogan, and is about 7 feet long and 2½ feet wide.

Hogan was one of the boys pushing the sled when the accident happened, and he proved himself a brave and cool-headed lad. Lying flat on his face on the edge of the broken ice, he reached out with both hands and landed a little boy who was struggling near him. Throwing him out on the firm ice, he siezed another, and so in less than a minute, for the boys were all within a few feet from him, he rescued all but two of the little fellows. One boy was trying to get on the ice on the other side of the hole but it broke repeatedly, and each break threw him back into the water. Hogan jumped into the river without even removing his coat, swam to the struggling boy, and finally threw him upon the firm ice. He again swam across the open space and rescued another boy, who was clinging to the edge in the same way. In all, he rescued eight boys, and so far as known, only nine were on the sled. James Donalan, 10 years old, was among those on the sled, and is supposed to have been drowned, as he has not been seen since. Hogan came near being drowned by the last boy he rescued, who threw his arms around his neck and nearly dragged him under, and would have done so had not Charles Alley, a barber, plunged in and swam to Hogan's assistance. When Hogan got home he was nearly frozen to death. He was put to bed and a doctor send for. Late to-night he was said to be doing well.

"The Washerwoman's Song.

BY HON. EUGENE F. WARE.

In a very humble cot,
In a rather quiet spot,
  In the suds and in the soap
  Worked a woman full of hope.
Working, singing, all alone,
In a sort of undertone,
  "With a Savior for a friend,
  He will keep me to the end."

Sometimes happening along
I had heard the semi-song,
  And I often used to smile,
  More in sympathy than guile,
But I never said a word
In regard to what I heard;
  As she sings about that friend
  Who would keep her to the end.

Not in sorrow nor in glee
Working all day long was she,
  As her children three or four,
  Played aronnd her on the floor;
But in monotones the song
She was humming all day long;
  "With a Saviour for a friend,
  He will keep me to the end."

It's a song I do not sing,
For I scarce believe a thing
  Of the stories that are told
  Of the miracles of old;
But I know that her belief
Is the anodyne of grief,
  And will always be a friend
  That will keep her to the end.

Just a trifle lonesome she,
Just as poor as poor could be,
  But her spirits always rose,
  Like the bubbles in the clothes,
And though widowed and alone
Cheered her with the monotone,
  Of a Saviour and a friend,
  Who would keep her to the end.

I have seen her rub and scrub,
On the washboard in the tub,
  While the baby sopped in suds,
  Rolled and tumbled in the duds,
Or was paddling in the pools,
With old scissors stuck in spools,
  She still humming of her friend,
  Who would keep her to the end.

Human hopes and human creeds
Have their root in human needs,
  And I would not wish to strip
  From that washerwoman's lip
Any song that she can sing,
Any hope that song can bring,
  For the woman has a friend
  Who will keep her to the end.

Restiution in Boston.

A pleasant incident occurred in one of our public schools not long since. It seems that the boys attending the school, most of whom are at the age of from seven to eight, had, in their play of bat and ball, broken one of the window panes in a neighboring house. No clue could be obtained to the boy who had broken it, as he would not confess his act, nor would any of his associates expose him.

The case troubled the teacher. The next day a gentleman called to see the school, an acquaintance of the teacher, who knew how to talk to children. After telling him of the breaking of the glass and her inability to ascertain who of the boys had broken it, she asked him to make some remarks to the school and to speak of the wrong the boys were doing in not acknowledging the act.

The address to the school, therefore, was upon the conduct of boys in the streets and at their sports. He told them in simple words that honesty, truthfulness and kindness should govern their conduct everywhere, even when they were alone and no one but themselves and God knew what they were doing. The scholars seemed interested and somewhat impressed by the remarks of the speaker.

A very short time after he had left the school, a little boy rose in his seat and said:

"Miss Lane, I batted the ball that broke Mr. Dash's window. Another boy threw the ball, but I batted it, and it struck the window I am willing to pay for it."

There was almost death-like stillness in the room as the little fellow was speaking, and it continued for a full minute after he sat down.

"I don't think it would be right for Charley Drake to pay the whole for the glass," said another boy, rising in his seat. "All of us who played ball then should pay something, because we were all playing the same as he was. I'll pay my part."

"And I."

"And I."

A thrill of pleasure seemed to run through the whole school at this display of honesty and right feeling by the boys. The money was brought the next day, and the lesson will not be forgotten either by teacher or pupils.—Youths' Companion.

Why is it?

What it is it that makes all men who associate habitually with women superior to others who do not? What makes that woman who is accustomed to, and at ease in society of men, superior to her sex in general? Solely because they are in the habit of free, graceful, continued conversation with the other sex. Women in this way lose their frivollty, their faculties awaken, their beauty and captivation in the spirit of intellectual rivalry. And the man lose there pedantic, rude, declamatory, or sullen manner. The coin of the understanding and the heart changes continually. Their asperities are rubbed off, their better materials polished and brightened, and their richness, like gold, is wrought into finer workmanship by the fingers of women than it ever could be by those of men. The iron and steel of their characters are hidden, like the character and armor of a giant, by studs and knots of gold and precious stones, when they are not wanted in actual warfare.

San Salvador.

This is the smallest of the Central American republics. It contains an area of 7226 square miles or 4,624,640 square acres. The population is somewhat more than 500,000 souls.

San Salvador is the most flourishing of the Central American republics. Its commerce is constantly augmenting. In 1881 its exports amounted to $4,992,000, and its imports to $2,706,000. Its principal exports are indigo and coffee, but sugar is also exported in small quantity, while rubber, skins, hides, etc., are shipped to California and Europe. In fact, England enjoys at least half the entire commerce of the republic.—Times Democrat.

The Toledo Blade is leading a crusade on beer, that bids fair to engage the thought of the country. This journal has published, in one or two weekly issues, lengthy interviews with a dozen physicians of repute and standing in the community, regarding the deleterious effect of beer drinking. In every case the testimony is strongly condemnatory of the "favorite beverage" as producing diseases of the liver and kidneys especially, and in all cases, lowering the vital forces to such a point that disease has little to do in sweeping its beer drinking victims out of the world. One physican claims that in his own practice and observation he has found that forty-nine out of every fifty cases of Bright's disease of the kidneys, are the cases of beer-drinkers.—Union Signal.

Three Western country people—an old man and two daughters—happening to be in the city, entered a store in idle curiosity. The first object to attract their attention was the elevator silently moving up and down with its cargoes of passengers. "What's that pan! that thing going up and down, with sofys in it!" asked one of the daughters. The old man gave the elevator a long, calm deliberate stare, and exclaimed with awe-struck voice: "It's a tele phone! The first I ever see!"

THE MORAL OF IT.

We may moralize as much as we please about pain; but the fact is, that we don't like it while it lasts, and that we want to get rid of it as soon as we can. Whether caused by rheumatism, gout, disordered liver, weak nerves, irregular kidneys, bad blood, or anything else that is just the reverse of what it should be, the sooner it is out of the system the happier we are. Whether pain is the result of imprudence or of accident, or is sent as a punishment for our sins, may be a nice question for the philosophers to argue; but people who are suffering want first to be rid of the pain, after which those who are fond of argument may argue the matter to their hearts' content.

Above all theory, argument, and philosophy, comes the delightful fact that BROWN'S IRON BITTERS drives pain away. Sufferers run no risk in trying this medicine, the only compound containing iron which carries no mischief with it. Those who have used it will tell you so; and you can try for yourself by buying a bottle of the nearest druggist. 7

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
TO
Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, for emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, FEB. 28, 1884.

A correspondent asks for a short space in our paper because "it is ever ready to denounce its goodness towards all men." This brother is an heretic; exactly what he means we do not know. We are sure, however, he is on the right side, as he loves the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Little Rock Lay Conference has elected Sister Susan Johnson, of Pine Bluff, wife of Rev. Samuel Johnson, as a reserve delegate to the General Conference. This, we think, is the first instance of a woman being elected to the General Conference.

Prohibition is not ineffectual. It is the police force of the State, arresting the murderer just as his finger is aimed. It is the common sense of the State providing against a common curse. It is the wisdom of the State declaring a free, sober, healthy, productive citizen worth more than an imprisoned sot, whose value went to enrich the fat man of the saloon.—American Reformer.

Rev. John D. Knox, wrote to the Kansas Methodist the following: "The temperance people of New Orleans need to go to work hopefully, perseveringly, and vigorously for there is much to be done. Drinking places seem to be as numerous as grasshoppers once were in Kansas, and are about as successful in eating up the substance of the people."

The Elevator, published by the students of Clark University, Atlanta, Ga., describes a "memorable excursion," in which "we were borne along on the current of the eloquence of Mr. ——, whose words fell upon us so forcibly that it was like sitting under the falls of Niagara." It is surprising to behold the imagination such intense vitality gives a writer who had been sitting under the falls of Niagara; one would suppose that such a watery mind would have forever unfitted him for editorial service.

According to Rev. W. R. Carson, Waco, Texas, the Palestine Conference of the A. M. Church reported only $11, contingent $32, missionary money $500 dollar money, and $7 collected for their church paper the Christian Recorder. He also makes what seems to us a strange statement, namely, that D. L. Coleman was appointed presiding elder of the district, notwithstanding he never been ordained deacon yet.

"You must lose a fly to catch a trout," says the old proverb. That there is nothing good gained without some loss. Whatever is worth having in this world must be had at a cost. If you desire to be a good preacher you must yield up personal pleasure and give much time to your books and the study of your congregation. Honest, earnest, hard, persistent work will build up your Sunday-congregation, while mere advice or standing on the corners of the streets will only scatter. Be at your post, do your work, and God will give the expected blessing.

Wendell Phillips, one of the great apostles and champions of the slave, has ceased to live. (and no doubt would have been then crucified on the altar of fame had not the lifting arm of police interfered to save) "Cover me with odium, all your arrows aim at me from this time forward, from the Senate, the platform, I will bear it all, so that I may take the slave by the hand and lift him up into an equality with myself." Perhaps it may be truthfully said that no Bostonian ever was more lauded by the press than Wendell Phillips. Not even that Boston made him famous in society. He lived, and thanks to knock-down blows of the hands of every class, and at the time of his death Boston wept at his bier.

Helping Others.

There are two pictnres drawn in the Bible showing the difference between the spirit of the world and the spirit of Christian life. In the world men regard greatness as ruling over others, exercising anthority, receiving reverence and snbmission. Bnt in Christian life greatness consists in serving. "Whosoever will be great among yon let him be your servant." He who regards himself as deserving special attention from others is sure to be disappointed. He will go through this world fretting and chafing because he does not receive it. We are not in this world to be waited upon, and we must not measure men by their ability or willingness to serve us. We are to regard ourselves as the servants of others. "I made myself," said Paul, "servant unto all, that I might gain the more." He was a free man, under obligation to none; he had claims like others, and could urge them, but voluntarily he put himself in a condition making it necessary for him to deny himself that he might help others. No man would do this who had not greatness of intellect and nobleness of heart. Here we have an instance of self-denial worthy of our imitation. Paul did not feel that he was here to receive and gather, bnt to give and scatter. He was not here to be served and exalted, but to serve regardless of the character and condition of men. Regardless of neglect, persecution and cruelty he went right on thinking only of doing good to others. Like his Master he was here not to be ministered unto, but to minister. With him there was no room nor time for the play of self-seeking. The Christian minister who thinks much of himself, and what is due him from others, will never minister to a large nnmber of people. There is a great chasm between him and He who was here not to be ministered unto, bnt to minister and to give his life for others.

Bishop Pierce's Opinion of the M. E. Church and Negroes.

Very few recent events have attracted the attention of the press of the M. E. Church, South, more than the celebration of the golden wedding of the venerable Bishop Pierce, the senior Bishop of that Church. In close proximity with it, a member of the staff of the Atlanta Constitution interviewed the Bishop at considerable length, to whom he gave his opinion on a number of topics with the greatest freedom. Some of these opinions will be read with close attention and great astonishment. His spirit toward the Methodist Episcopal Church is much the same now as when he said, we "could not and ought not to be tolerated in the Southern States;" that "no quarantine would justify our admission, no fumigation could disinfect us. Rank, rotten with the foul virns of an incurable disease. foes of God and man, spies and traitors to their country and their kind, let them stay where they belong." This is a specimen of virulence we have never seen surpassed. Now he says the "Southern Church" is "strictly non-political;" and yet nineteen-twentieths of its clergy and membership belong to one political party. There is no church in this country so thoroughly partisan as the M. E. Church, Sonth. Read again:

We want peace and brotherhood. We are willing to wend our way alone, having a Christian salute for all fellow-workers, but upholding our own colors. We have made no strife, nor wonld there have been strife at any time if the Northern Church had not intruded its preachers and government into our territory. Their presence here is an insult to us, as it implies that we are either incompetent or not preaching a pure Gospel.

Such are the spirit and sentiments inculcated by the leading and senior Bishop of the M. E. Church, South, towards the members and preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church. For years this has been his spirit, and these his sentiments, repeated over and over again. Looking over this matter, as a Methodist, we think that it is best to let each other alone. We can see no need of any unbrotherly contest; there is certainly work enough for both churches to do. We like the sentiments expressed by Bishop Hargrave, who is reported to have said, "The word South in the name of his church included all Sonth of the North pole." To ns few things are more out of place than his talk abont territory. Our brethren of the M. E. Church, Sonth. are in Kansas, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, California, Colorado and Oregon, and we say to them, pnsh on, do not stop for a moment, bnild yonr churches, colleges and schools. Bnt please let the Methodist Episcopal church go where she pleases, no matter if our conferences do overlap each other. The following are his views on the Nego qnestion:

The negroes are entitled to elementary education, the same as the whites, from the hands of the State. It is the duty of the Church to improve the colored ministry, bnt rather by theological training than by literary education. In my judgment higher education, so-called, would be a positive calamity to the negroes. It would increase the friction between the races, produce endless strifes, elevate negro aspirations far above the station he was created to fill, and resolve the whole race into a political faction, full of strife, mischief, and turbulence. Negroes ought to be taught that the respect of the white race can only be attained by good character and conduct Their well-doing and well-being all right-minded citizens desire, and would rejoice in. Agriculture and all the mechanical pursuits are open to them, and in them they might find luorative employment. In these directions they may support their families, get property, and become valnable citizens. If negroes were educated, intermarriage in time would breed trouble, bnt of this I see no tendency now. My conviction is that negroes have no right on juries, legislatures, or in public office. Right involves character and qualification. The appointment of any colored man to office by the government is an insult to the Southern people, and provokes conflict and dissatisfaction, when, if left as they ought to be in there natural sphere, there would be quiet and good order. The whites can never tamely and without protest submit to the intrusion of colored men into places of trust and profit and responsibility. There never can be stability and good order except when intelligence and virtne preside and direct the affairs of the country. The negro ought to be protected in all his rights of persons and property by the righteous administration of the laws. He is entitled to respect and kind consideration in all his pursuits and wants, while he himself is upright and industrious and well-behaved.

We do not care to discuss at length the opinions here expressed. We simply remark they smack a little too strongly of the spirit that was dominant when Negroes were bought and sold, transferred, mortgaged, attached, leased, distribnted and inherited, to please us. However, the good Bishop has made some advance; he does think that Negroes are entitled to an elementary education, and that colored ministers should have a theological training. That is infinitely better than it was when men were fined or imprisoned for teaching them. Evidently "the world does move." But nothing is more evident to us than this: Bishop Pierce, while he knew all about the Negro as a slave, a thing, a chattel, does not know him as a man. We believe that the objections so frequently urged against the higher education of the Negro has its root in ignorance, and prejudice. The apprehension that education is to spoil him as a laborer has its root in ignorance, and if this be worth anything it proves too much. It is just as good against the education of the whites as the colored, bnt the argnment is false all throngh; and the spirit that is capable of suggesting it "is selfish, cowardly, and essentially mean." Ignorance is not a qnalification for anything God wants men to do. Intelligence harms no man, has no tendency to increase friction between men. After all, and in the midst of all, it is well to remember that the good and wise God reigns among men, and in his own good time will work ont and accomplish His own good will among all people.

Meeting of the Book Committee.

The annual meeting of the General Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at the Publishing House in Cincinnati Feb. 14-16. The Committee is elected by the General Conference, and hold office four years. During the intervals of the General Conference the Committee has general supervision of the pnblishing interests of the whole Church, fixes the salaries of the Book Agents and connectional editors; the salaries of the effective bishops, and the amount necessary for the comfortable snpport of the non-effective bishops; also the amount necessary to assist the widows and children of deceased bishops; and the amount necessary to pay the traveling expenses of the bishops; and the amount is apportioned to the annnal conferences. It is the duty of the annnal conference to divide this sum among the several presiding elder's districts, and to see that the amonnts apportioned to the several charges are raised and forwarded to the treasurer of the Episcopal Fund. In case of vacancy dnring the interval of the General Conference, snch vacancy is filled by the Committee. It is composed at present as follows: C. J. Clark, Maine Conference; Homer Eaton, Troy Conference; I. S. Bingham, Northern New York; W. J. Phaxson, Philadelphia; L. A. Belt, Central Ohio; C. O. Fisher, Savannah; Clement Studebaker, Northwest Indiana; P. H. Gillett, Illinois; D. C. John, Minnesota; F. S. Beggs, St. Lonis; J. D. Hammond, Nevada; Wm. Schreiner, Northwest German. J. B. Cornell, C. B. Fisk and Wm. Hoyt are the local committee at New York; Amos Shinkle, E. A. W. Bruhl and Edward Sargent are the local committee at Cincinnati. All the members of the committee were present save the local committee at New York. Thomas Eaton, D.D., is the president of the Committee, and I. S. Bingham, D.D.. Secretary. The annual reports of the Book Concern at New York and Cincinnati for the fiscal year were presented by the Agents, and while we omit all reference to the figures of their reports, we take pleasnre in saying that they show a year of great prosperity, and we have no doubt will give the most perfect satisfaction to the church in general. The outlook for the future as it relates to the publishing interests of the Chnrch was never more hopeful than now. The following editors were present and represented their papers: Dr. Hoyt, editor of Western Christian Advocate; Dr. Edwards, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate; Dr. Wheeler, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate; Dr. Leibhart, one of the editors of German Periodicals and Books; and the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN. Dr. Leibhart in representing his paper said his hope of the final salvation of this country was in the Germans and Negroes; that every third German member of the Methodist Episcopal Church was a snbscriber to some of the church papers. All of the editors gave encouraging reports as to the circulation of their papers. To ns personally this gathering was a source of fresh inspiration and gratification. And while our success in the past has not been all that we could hope, the future of the SOUTHWESTERN is full of promise. We are not standing at the point where two seas meet. We have learned to labor and to wait, and now there are on all sides the most encouraging signs of enlargement and future usefulness. We feel under special obligations to our agents and the Book Committee for their expressions of confidence and approval.

It is an old and trne saying that a thing worth doing at all is worth doing well. But no man will do as well as he can who gives himself heartily to his work. He is a poor worker who does not work in any direction he may undertake as it his life did not depend on it. The young man who finds himself in a low position on a farm or in a store or office, will never be promoted unless he does his present work well. He onght to feel that just now there is no other work on earth so well worth his doing well as his present work. The Christian minister who desires a better appointment mnst not neglect his present charge. No man is worth anything for a higher sphere who fails in a lower sphere. No matter about the books he has read or the languages he can speak, if he has not learned to give himself heartily and thoronghly to his work he will never succeed. Do present work heartily and do it well and yon will go np higher.

Civil Rights in Ohio.

The following is the full text of the Civil Rights Bill which has passed the House of Representatives and Senate the Ohio legislatnre, both Democratic, and is now a law:

Whereas, It is essential to just government that we recognize and protect all men as equal before the law, and that a democratic form of government should mete out equal and exact justice to all, of whatever nativity, race, color, persnasion, religions or political; and it being the appropriate object of legislation to enact great fundamental principles in law, therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, That all persons within the jurisdiction of said State shall be entitled to the full and equal enjoyment of the accommodations, advantages, facilities, and privileges of inns, public conveyances on land or water, theaters and other places of public amusement, snbject only to the conditions and limitations established by law, and applicable alike to citizens of every race and color, regardless of any previous condition of servitnde.

Sec. 2. That any person who shall violate any of the provisions of the foregoing section by denying to any citizen, except for reasons applicable alike to all citizens of every race and color, and regardless of color or any previous condition of servitude, the full enjoyment of any of the accommodations advantages, facilities, or privileges in said section enumerated, or by aiding or inciting such denial, shall, for every snch offense, forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed $500 to the person aggrieved thereby to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction, in the county where said offense was committed; and shall also, for every snch offense, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and npon conviction thereof, shall be fined not to exceed $500, or shall be imprisoned not less than thirty days, or both; and provided, further, that a judgment in favor of the party aggrieved, or pnnishment npon an indictment, shall be a bar to either prosecution respectively.

Sec. 3. That no citizen of the State of Ohio, possessing all other qnalifications which are or may be prescribed by law, shall be disqualified to serve as grand or petit jnror in any court of said State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitnde; and any officer or other person charged with any duty in the selection or summoning of jnrors, who shall exclnde or fail to snmmon any citizen for the cause aforesaid, shall, on conviction thereof be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be fined not more than $500, or imprisoned not more than thirty days or both.

At the time of the meeting of the General Missionary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch speeches were made by Bishops Simpson, Foster, Wiley, Bowman, and Dr. Buckley, of the New York Advocate, that were sharply criticized by the Southern press in general, but especially by the papers published by the M. E. Chnrch, South. Dr. Buckley, in the most positive terms, denied the correctness of the reports so far as they related to his speech. "In no respect," he said, "was there a single sentence qnoted verbatim." He had, however, a verbatim report of what he said, "taken by one of the most expert stenographers in this conntry." Upon that snbject he intended to write in a few weeks, and wonld incorporate from the verbatim report what was said that related to the matter nnder consideration. In the issne of the Advocate of the 14th inst., he prints two colnmns and a half having more or less reference to the matter discussed at the meeting of the Missionary Committee. But evidently there is but little of the original speech the Doctor delivered pnblished. The space is mostly occupied with observations and explanations more or less wise according to the standpoint one occupies. After all, would it not have been better to give the verbatim report? The observations and explanations look too many ways to give the most perfect satisfaction either to our friends or enemies.

The liqnor dealers all over the conntry are just now terribly disturbed. They all claim that the high license system now so popular with temperance people in certain States increases the sale of intoxicating liqnors, and yet they do all that they can to impede all such legislation. They complain that legislative bodies listen to the testimony and opinions of temperance men, who know nothing abont the bnsiness, while they who are familiar with all of its phases are never consnlted. "the assnrance of these promoters of vice, crime and demoralization to the bodies and souls of men is astounding. But the days of their nefarious business are numbered, and soon they will be counted among the evils of the past." The cause of temperance is constantly being reinforced, whose efforts must and will be prodnctive of great good. Some of the best criminal lawyers in the land say publicly that they will no longer appear in courts as defenders or apologists for men prosecuted for a violation of the law relative to the sale of liquor.

The following sharp words from the bench are merited and timely. We honor Judge Greer. "Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 7, 1884.—The jury in the case of Patrick Haley, an Irishman, charged with killing Alex Dunlap, an aged negro, last summer, by cutting his throat with a butcher knife, returned a verdict at noon to-day of not guilty. This was Haley's second trial, he having been convicted of murder in the first degree, but a new trial was granted on a legal technicality. When the jury to-day announced their verdict in a body Judge Greer remarked that it was a perfect surprise to the Court and a disgrace and an insult to any civilized community. He had the jury polled and their names spread upon the minutes, with instructions that they be never again summoned as jurors in his court."

The sugar planters could gain nothing by voting with the Republicans unless a bargain was made by which the Republican party agreed, in the event of success in the national contest, to maintain the present sugar tariff if Louisiana voted for the Republican electors. It is probable that the sugar planters could deliver the State to the Republican party, because, on a full vote, the Democratic majority is not very great, but it is not at all probable that they will enter upon any such undertaking. All things considered, their interests stand a better chance of being protected by the Democrats than by the Republicans. The talk they are now indulging in is a species of bulldozing that is as amusing as it is impotent.—Savannah News.

The testimony before the Senate sub-committee of investigation, in session in New Orleans, is abundant and clear on the point of conspiracy to intimidate and kill and break down the large Republican majority in the county of Copiah, Mississippi. Bnt for the presence of the committee here a general policy of denying all details, or silence on the part of the press, would have impeded a sound expression of public opinion on the subject. Taking of Republican lives is complacently regarded as a disagreeable necessity in Copiah and elsewhere in the South, and according to Democratic philosophy can simply be avoided by voting the Democratic ticket.

The ceremonies connected with the unveiling of the statne of Gen. R. E. Lee in this city, on the 22d inst., were suddenly terminated and the speeches that had been prepared for the occasion with so much care not delivered. Just as the ceremonies were about to begin there swept through Lee circle one of the most terrific storms that we have experienced for months, that scattered the crowd almost in a panic. The statue occupies an elevated position, and is an enduring proof of the love of the people of Louisiana for a man who did all he could to break up one of the best governments God ever gave men, and to perpetuate the system of human slavery.

The Beacon is a new Boston weekly devoted to art, music, literature and the drama. Cyrus A. Page, 295 Washington street, publisher. Terms $2.50 a year. Heavy paper, well edited, two illustrations each week.

PERSONAL.

—H. M. Johnson, Esq., has been succeeded by Dr. H. M. Wallis, as editor of the Terrebonne Times of Houma, Louisiana.

—Correspondents will address Rev. John Qualls at north corner of Rocheblave and Onzaga streets, New Orleans.

—Nubar Pasha, an Armenian Christian, became prime minister of Egypt on January 8th. He is 54 years of age and was educated in England.

—Dr. W. H. Gray, on his return from Bethel, Maine, to Morgan City, La., where he proposes to remain for some time, called last week. The Doctor appears to have thrived during the vigorous Northern winter, and is in usual fair health and spirits.

—In the death of Elisha Harris, M. D., sanitary science has lost an unselfish and efficient disciple. It was largely through his influence that the Metropolitan Board of Health of New York, and the American Public Health Association were created.

—The colored cadet at West Point promises to make a very creditable record. He has by quiet attention to his studies and business, won the rank of No. 9, in a class of 100, and the respect of officers and classmates. No. 1 is from Ohio, so also is No. 100. Maryland claims gladly cadet No. 3.

—Last week John D. Hammond, D.D., of Navada gave us a pleasant call. Dr. Hammond was on his way home from Cincinnati where he had been to attend the annual session of the Book Committee. For thirteen successive years he has served the church as presiding elder on the Pacific coast.

—The following are the graduating class of Meharry Medical department, Nashville, Tennessee, eighth annual commencement 1884: "A. Sidney J. Burchett, Mason; N. Hill Middleton, Charleston, S.C; J. Paul Pratt, LaGrange, Ga.; Benjamin F. Reed, Pulaski; Greene J. Starnes, Victoria, Texas; G. Reed Townsend, Oakland, Texas; C. Francis Thompson, Boston, Ga.; James M. Vaudavell, Nashville.

—Bishop Simpson exclaims: "Be in earnest. men are dying; be in earnest: souls are perishing. All the good which the servant of Christ could possibly do, by being wholly consecrated to God, and fails of doing through want of that consecration, will be visited upon him a sin; and he will not be pure from the blood of all men."

—It is stated that at a love-feast in Philadelphia, many years ago, there were present the venerable Bishop Soule, and an Episcopal bishop. During the service, Sister K—gave her testimony. She was intelligent, influential, and earnest Christian lady. Bnt she clapped her hands, shonted, and jnmped. At the close of the service, the two bishops walked out, and in conversation the Episcopal bishop remarked: "Mrs K—is an estimable lady, bnt she is a most violent Christian." "Yes, she is," responded Bishop Soule; "and the kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by storm."

—Our genial friend Dr. Fisher, of the Atlanta Herald, seems to take it hard because we failed to mention his name as among the members of the Book Committee, that met in New York, in February of 1883. It is true we met the Dr. there, we boarded at the same hotel, and had frequent pleasant conversations with him. We also met a host of other royal good men, bishops, editors, as well as members of the Book Committee, not one of whose names did we ever mention in any communication of ours. As to the amities between the secretary of the Savannah conference and the SOUTHWESTERN, we presume the secretary is competent to speak for himself.

—Two days before his death the Hon. Dudley C. Haskell, of Kansas, called to his bedside Ed. Smith, the clerk of his committee, and a Kansas friend, and gave him his left hand, a hand bony and thin. He placed his right arm abont his grief-stricken wife and drew her toward him. He was silent for a moment; then turning to his clerk he said: "Ed., it pays to be clean. Next to my God, my wife and my children, I value my good name. Personally I do not care to live, but would like to live for my family. I have nothing to leave bnt my good name; I am proud ot that name; my record is clean, and my children can look baok npon it with pride. Ed., I'd rather have a good name than all the world."—Kansas Methodist.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

E. Henderson, LaGrange: "Elder Madison held our first quarterly conference. Reports of class leaders showed there was room for improvement. Love feast was an ontpouring of the Holy Spirit; 48 arose and professed a hope in Christ. The elder preached an instructive sermon; 64 came to the altar. Elder's collection, $12.85. Four joined the church. The SOUTHWESTERN has already found its way into 13 towns, and the number will be increased."

Rev. E. O. McIntire: "The Broadway M. E. Church of Galveston, is enjoying prosperity and is gradually growing in nnmbers and nsefulness. The spirit of the Holy Spirit is manifest at every service. Recently nine persons came forward for prayers, 2 of whom were converted. During January 11 were added to the Church, and the good work goes on quietly, but thoronghly evangelical. Onr Sunday-school and congregations are increasing. We have 6 meetings a week."

R. Lightner, Hearne: "Wade Hampton, our pastor, together with seven members, bnilt a church in Hearne, where for 12 years his predecessors failed. Some of the people had gone to other churches to worship. His meetings are well organized and give satisfaction to all. In my class alone 25 new members have been received since conference. Bro. Hamilton is building a parsonage 28 feet in length and 20 feet wide, and will soon have it finished. All the money was raised since conference. Pray for us."

W. H. Moseby, LaGrange: "I had some difficulty in getting a congregation together on this circuit. Elder Madison being sick, Bro. M. Lott held the first quarterly conference. The reports showed 175 members on the work, one church and three preaching places. The law forbids preaching in the school houses. We are trying to build as soon as the weather will favor us. The white friends have allowed us to preach in their church this year. Bro. Lott administered sacrament to 82. Collection $6.75."

E. W. Hall Caney: "Church is crowded every Sunday, and is in lead of the five denominations on the circuit. The work is in better shape than it has ever been since elder Cushman left. The Methodist church is sailing on, contracting steam and straining every nerve, and the Gospel machinery is moving up and down Caney. My chnrches are two miles apart. there are some faithful yonng brethren. The Sunday-schools are waking up. I am trying to strew the field with Methodist books and papers. There are a few members at Matagorda."

TENNESSEE.

Presiding Elder Jesse P. Price has appointed Rev. A. F. Lane as preacher in charge of Linden circuit.

C. H. Bullington, McMinnville: "My first quarterly conference was held by Elder Key, 13 brethren present. My work is doing very well. Prayer and class meetings are well attended. Books are needed in the schools. Paid elder $8.05. The weather has been very bad for six weeks. We will try to raise all apportionments. Pray for us."

F. Walker, Mansfield: "On last Friday morning I arrived at my place of labor, and on Saturday I rode ont nine miles, preached two sermons, and rode back to Mansfield and preached at night to a crowded house. The people received me gladly, Sister Rebecca Smith lost her husband on the 10th, after a year's illness."

A. P. Blakemore, Springfield: "The paper rejoices me every week, and it is part of my study. I tell my people abont it on Sunday, and at other times. My quarterly meeting was held by H. Primm on the 9th, and was a good one: Collections: For elder, $6.25; pastor, $14.54."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. H. Cook, Crystal Springs: "Our first quarterly conference was held by Elder McDonald. He preached three excellent sermons on Sunday, and 83 partook of the Lord's Snpper Apportionments for 1884: for pastor, $375; elder, $45; conference claimants, $3; bishops, $1.50; benevolent purposes, $16.50. Snnday-school is improving."

L. L. Shumpert, Columbus: "Onr first quarterly conference convened Feb. 9-10, our new presiding elder, D. A. Williams, in the chair. He gives general satisfaction. The brethren were all pleased with him. On Sunday morning he addressed the Sabbath-school and the children were encouraged by his talk. He preached two able sermons. The church was full. We had a glorious time. He administered the Lord's supper at night to 200. Collection $27. My people received me kindly for the third year. We hope to have a good time this year."

LOUISIANA.

The singing by the choir in Union Chapel was inspiring, and bnt few audiences anywhere enjoy such artistic and yet soul inspiring music. The Lord has wonderfully endowed many of the colored race with marvelous musical power. They have three important qualities, a large month, good teeth, and a sound stomach. Orators and singers need these three things. Some people have the large month ont of which comes neither music nor eloqnence.—Rev. John D. Knox, in Kansas Methodist.

At Pleasant Plains church, New Orleans, onr people have received Brother Forest to their homes and hearts. They remember with gratitude the year's service of Brother Hudson. But Brother Forest is now their pastor, and, like trne Methodists, they welcome him to the charge. Everything at the quarterly conference was pleasant. They believe that if they want their preacher to be a gentleman they must furnish him the sinews of war, and give him a good support. They do not think that their pastor can live on the income of the chimney sweep. The quarterly conference made good provision for this pastor. Brother Forest is aronnd among the people looking after the old and yonng, giving special attention to the work of the Sunday-school. This year will be one of great achievements for onr people at Pleasant Plains. Take heart, brethren, do present dnty, stand by your pastor and go on to victory.

Onr people at Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, are starting off the new year well. The first quarterly conference was harmonions and well attended. They made liberal provision for their pastor, fixing his claim at $1040, not including house rent or fuel. This was certainly a liberal allowance over previous years. Brother Dale is devoting all of his energies and time to the work of bnilding up the church. He, as every pastor should be, is regular in his attendance npon the Sunday-school. He thinks there is no consistency in allowing our children to grow np ignorant of the great truths taught in the Bible. Sister Dale is in every respect a helper in the work of the Lord, pushing the work of the Woman's Home Missionary Society. We expect great things at old Wesley this year.

Murfreesboro District Conference.

DEAR EDITOR—I beg space in your colnmns to make the following statement. I have jnst returned from the Murfreesboro District Conference, which convened at McMinnville, Tenn., Jan. 30. It was one of great interest. Our beloved elder, H. W. Key, presided over us with all diligence and care. We met many friends with open doors who received us gladly. This was one of the grandest district conferences I ever met. The temperance and freedmen's anniversaries were grand. The canses were ably discussed by the brethren. As many of the brethren were not at the conference, I wish to publish the amounts assessed each charge for benevolent purposes:

Dear brethren, pnsh np and let us raise all these benevolent collections before conference. Put ont yonr committees, and put yourselves out after yonr committees, and raise this money. The church is in great need of it, or it wonld not be called for. We are determined to do more than we ever have done. Don't wait till the day before conference to raise this money. It can and onght to be raised. May the Lord give our people a working spirit this year. We have been carried by our good Northern friends and church so long that we are inclined to sit still and look for help. Let us do something for onr Church and people.

S. KNIGHT.

Las Casas, Tenn., Feb. 6, 1884.

A secession movement is nnder way in Manitoba, and a convention will be held at Winnepeg, March 5.

Bigotry and Superstition Will Soon Pass Away Before the March of Progress.

Education does not imply creation, nor infusion, it simply implies nnfoldment. Plato, and indeed almost every celebrated Greek philosopher acknowledged the existence of latent talent the innate possibilty in every individnal born npon the earth, and very wisely claimed that academies and academisians could only properly discharge their duties when they songht to bring into active external prominence those gifts which lying dormant in the mind of the pnpil qualified him for a special place in the world; a place as important as any, even thongh by no means necessarially an elevated station in the eyes of mem. The ignorant have at all times superstitiously venerated the priest and the physician; and in proportion to the iguorance of the people these professionals have always received from them blind and unqnestioning obedience. The Catholic church is opposed to public education, because the more ignorant and superstitious they can keep their people the greater their power over them. They teach the ignorant that they have life (eternal) in the faith of their priests; they remit sins, they save whom they will, they sell salvation, thus arrogating to themselves what are properties of Divine Power alone. Their religion is mainly external, made up of of image worship and costumes of the priests, aided by elaborate ceremonies, the perfnme exhaled by bnrning censors, the paintings, the statues, the grand architectural cathedrals, awe-inspiring as they are to the ignorant and snperstitious mind, are doomed, however convenient it may continue to be for the rich who believe that with money they can obtain the remission of the sins in which they live, satiating themselves in every luxury and vice that money can procure, and obtaining periodically, through a partial confession to their priest, a formula of absolntion that is an assumptive and fatal delnsion. From their monasteries they send out priests, monks, spies, and guards in all directions, they are to be found in every quarter of the globe. On the mountains of everlasting snow, among the icebergs of the Polar sea, and in the sandy desert, on inhospitable shores, in the torrid zone, nnder the burning rays of the equatorial sun, with the savage and with the sage. All this they do for one sole end, that they may possess the world and its treasures, and live in congenial delights and be the mightiest of men while the rest are their slaves. And who have these priests often been? The almost brainless, thongh very egotistical and bigoted boys, younger sons of families whose reputation was stainless because they owned lands stolen by their ancestors by brnte force from the original possessors, placed in a position as mediators between God and man, representatives of the hand of the whole church of God on earth and in heaven, with no other qualification for holding snch offices than a college career, almost entirely wasted in dissipation, and the imposition of a bishop's hands, a formal, oftentimes soulless, rite. Bnt education, and the increased civilization of the masses of mankind will soon pervade the entire globe, and then both bodily and mental slavery will be at an end. As the inquisition has fallen into disuse before the advance of civilization, and would not be tolerated at the present time even in Spain, so will all formal ceremonies and assumptions of vice-regenoy of God upon earth soon come to an end. But another century will scarce elapse before mankind will have so far progressed that bigotry and snperstition as now practiced will have become as the legends of Olympian gods are to us to-day. And the monastery, and that attendant abomination of desolation, the nnnnery will be nnmbered among the things that were. And the now tottering Papal chair will go down among the tombs of antiqnity, the wonder world of ancient Rome the catacombs.

Advices from the province of Poltava, South Russia, state that Jews there unable to show that they are possessed of landed property are expelled from the province. Many of them have been forced to cross the Austrian frontier. A petition presented to Count Tolstoi, Russian Minister of the Interior, begging for time to enable the Jews to purchase land, remains unanswered.

A well-known clergyman, Rev. N. C. Cook, of Trempeleau, Wis., says, "I find Kidney-Wort a sure cure for kidney and liver troubles."

"I will recommend it everywhere," writes John B. Moyer, Carriage Manufacturer, Myerstown, Pa., "because it"—Kidney-Wort—"cured me."

"Mr. Walter Cross, my customer, was prostrated with rheumatism for two years, tried, in vain, all remedies; Kidney-Wort alone cured him. I have tried it myself, and know that it is good."—Portion of a letter from J. L. Willett, Druggist, Flint, Mich.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Talks About Cooking.

I always read the housekeeping department in the SOUTHWESTERN, and I have found there many hints that have helped me in my own housekeeping, and no doubt they have helped others. I wish to tell some, who are just starting homes of their own, one way to make good coffee. Of course the coffee pot should always be clean, with not any of the old grounds in it. For [illegible] two tablespoonfuls of [illegible] coffee, put into it just [illegible] cold water to moisten the [illegible] pour over it one quart [illegible] boiling water. If more water [illegible] needed, more coffee is needed. Place it on the stove where it will [illegible] slowly for five or ten minutes, [illegible] set it where it will keep hot [illegible] the meal is ready. Hard [illegible] makes coffee taste bitter. To settle it, put in a little white of [illegible] or egg shell. It will clear [illegible] if allowed to stand a little [illegible] the table before pouring [illegible].

I will also write something [illegible] the much slandered mince [illegible] Most people like to eat it, but [illegible] generally considered indigestible. [illegible] it is so, it is because too [illegible] ingredients are used. It is [illegible] for the stomach, to have [illegible] variety put into it at one [illegible] I have read a receipt for [illegible] mince pie in which the in[illegible] were meat, apple, cur[illegible], cloves, allspice, [illegible], wine and sugar. I [illegible] that would produce a pie, [illegible] people could not [illegible] their ancestors [illegible].

I have a [illegible] which I find that my pies [illegible] long, for some one [illegible] I will tell how I make [illegible] I have a medium sized [illegible], and I prepare as much [illegible], and I prepare as much [illegible] I use suet in it, which [illegible] or roast—I [illegible] fire. I pare, quarter [illegible] apples, chop [illegible] two pounds ap[illegible] I put half a cup of [illegible] I put in some seasons [illegible] tablespoonful cinna[illegible] and sugar to taste. I make [illegible] of good pie paste rolled [illegible] until it is [illegible] I do not need to make use [illegible] at once I set it [illegible] and the cooking im[illegible] I never put wine or [illegible] any thing I cook, I [illegible] consider it a sly way of put[illegible] to my neighbors lips. [illegible] I added a piece of mince pie [illegible].

He had argued the [illegible] he did not intend to [illegible] taste. My pie would [illegible] my brother to of[illegible] I suspect his scruples [illegible] there is an evil so in[illegible] into our pies [illegible] loved [illegible] vegetables, but pies and [illegible] not so necessary [illegible].

Mother [illegible] cooks in the [illegible] I know cases who are [illegible] that perhaps [illegible] they may console [illegible] the wife who, [illegible] circumstances, gave vent to her feelings in the following poetical effusion:

"I'm mistress of a pretty house,
And often do I try
To make my worthy faithful spouse
A dainty apple pie.

He tastes, and says, "You'll do, Irene,
With some of Bridget's aid,
But oh! you should have seen,
The pies my mother made."

"But, then, it comforts me to see Him gobble what I make,
Tho' mince or apple pie it be,
Or loaf of bread, or cake."

L. C. BRADEN.

STEWED OYSTERS.—Put two quarts of oysters with a little of their own liquor into a kettle over a furnace. As soon as they boil remove the scum and stir in a tablespoonful of butter well creamed with a very scant one of flour, a trifle of powdered mace, and pepper to taste; let them simmer gently, and stir constantly until the butter is dissolved; as soon as well mixed and hot, but not boiling, stir in a pint and a half of very rich milk, and let it boil hard, stirring all the time until done; just before serving add the salt. In all cooking that contains either milk or cream the salt should be put in after taken from the stove, otherwise there is danger of curdling. Inattention to this seemingly trifling point will even cause the freshest milk to turn in cooking.

A Georgia woman says copperas beat fine and sprinkled in the nest of hens, or where young chickens roost, will drive mites away. A solution of this put in whitewash should be applied to sides and roosts of the chicken house, and this would perhaps drive them out entirely.

FIG PUDDING.—Six figs chopped fine after boiling them, three cups of bread-crumbs, one-fourth pound of sugar, one lemon, grate the rind; one nutmeg grated; boil three hours in a tin mold or bag.

The Talmud says that bile may be avoided by an early breakfast of bread and salt and a bottle of water.

TOAST WATER.—Cut a slice of stale bread, half an inch thick, and toast it brown, without scorching. Pour over it half a pint of boiling water; cover closely till it cools; then pour off and strain it.

PARMESAN OMELET.—Beat up three eggs, with pepper and salt to taste, and a tablespoonful of grated Parmesan cheese. Put a piece of butter the size of an egg into the omelet pan; as soon as it is melted pour in the eggs, and, holding the handle of the pan with one hand, stir the omelet with the other by means of a flat spoon. The moment the omelet begins to set cease stirring, but keep shaking the pan for a moment or so; then with the spoon double up the omelet; keep on shaking the pan until the under side is of a good color. Turn it on a hot dish, colored side uppermost, and serve quickly.

FRICASSEE OF RABBIT.—Cut up a young rabbit into neat joints and lay it in lukewarm water to draw out the blood; drain and put into a stewpan with one half pound of streaky bacon, an onion stuck with two cloves, a little mace and parsley. Cover with water and simmer for half an hour, skimming well; strain the stock and take out the rabbit and bacon. Into another saucepan put a couple of ounces of butter, melt, and add a tablespoonful of flour. Moisten with stock and stir until it boils. Trim the rabbit neatly and put it with the bacon into the sauce; add some button onions and simmer until tender. Arrange the rabbit in a dish. Skim off all fat from the sauce; add to it the yolks of two eggs beaten up with a gill of cream, and let it almost come to the boil. Pour over the rabbit and serve.

CROQUETTES OF PORK.—Cold roast pork is the best for this purpose. Take about half a pound, chop it very finely, mix with it a tablespoonful of flour, well chop a small onion and an eschalot and boil them in a teacupful of good stock; add to this the floured meat, flavoring it with pepper, salt and a tiny bit of sage, also well chopped. Make this up in the form of sausages, slightly flattened; egg and bread crumb them and fry them a light brown color. The remains of any cold meat may be used for croquettes made in the same way, omitting the sage and adding a little mushroom catsup or Harvey sauce; in doing so care must be taken not to make the mixture too moist. A few spoonfuls of cold mashed potato, of bread crumbs or of cold well boiled rice may be mixed with the mince; less meat will will then be required and the croquettes will, if anything, be nicer.

Lured to Death.

The celebrated Rowland Hill startled his congregation one Sunday morning by a sharp illustration. Said he: "My friends, the other day I was going down the street, and I saw a drove of pigs following a man. Of course I was interested, my curiosity was greatly excited, and so I determined to follow. I did so, and, to my great surprise, I saw them follow him into a slaughter-house. With some there seemed but little hesitancy, but they all finally went into the enclosure. I was anxious to know how this was brought about, and so I said to the man, 'My friend, how did you induce these pigs to follow you here?' 'Oh, didn't you see?' said the man. 'I had a basket of beans under my arm; so I occasionally dropped a few as I went along, and they followed me!' Yes, and so I thought the Devil has his basket of beans under his arm, and he drops them as he goes along, and what multitudes he induces to follow him by a few beans, to an ever lasting slaughter-house!"
—Gospel in All Lands.

Hon. John Eaton, LL.D., United States Commissioner of Education, in Dr. Hertzell's "Christian Educators in Council," which is multum in parvo as to thoughts and facts of the great questions of time, quotes statistics which show that England pays about six times as much for war as for education, Prussia five times, France fifteen times, while Switzerland's war tax is only four-fifths of its school tax. These items are food for thought. He also has among his deductions from the records of history in regard to education in different lands, two that are worthy to be specially mentioned: "We observe that the final effect of all great moral movements, like those of Luther and Wesley, is determined by their educating power;" and "We see how the quality of man's education determines the quality of man's improvement."

Remarkable Restoration In the Case of a Clergyman.

Rev. —. W. Moore, of Darlington, S. C. sends us for publication the following results in his case:

DARLINGTON, S. C., Jan. 16th 1883.

"MESSRS. STARKEY & PALEN:—Though you have not solicited, I feel it to be my duty to give the following testimonial in favor of 'Compound Oxygen.' I inherited pulmonary taint from my mother; and have suffered with Bronchitis from my youth. For the last three or four years, in the early fall, I have been prostrated with an acute attack of severe Bronchial Asthma. Last fall this attack was unusually perilous, being complicated with a general derangement of the liver, kidneys, etc. My medical advisors could not give much hope of any further work in the ministry."

"In December I commenced the use of your Home Treatment. Shortly after I began its use, nearly all the symptoms were greatly aggravated, but for the last three weeks I have been improving. The constant expectoration has to a great extent ceased. I have a fine appetite; my digestion is good. I sleep well. I am now preaching twice on Sunday without lassitude. I feel more vigor—more life than I have for years. I believe the 'Compound Oxygen' a blessed, providential discovery, to which you were unconsciously directed by the great Healer." Gratefully England had addressed a note to the French Government relative to British losses through the bombardment of the ports of Madagascar.

"In the South slavery became a very important industrial element. Rice, sugar, and cotton were the trinity that dominated the industry of the South, and slave labor was most favorable to those simple industries. Slavery became, therefore, a pecuniary interest in the South, as it never was in the North, and after a time it became a political interest. Political reasons, rooted in pecuniary reasons, gave great strength to slavery and its propagandism at the South. The North emancipated, the South fortified. It has been said a thousand times, and each time falsely—it was said by one of the most eloquent sons of the South, in Cooper Union, where I presided a short time ago—that the North sold out and, having realized on its slaves, it invested in liberty. It is absolutely a lie, which has no historic foundation to it. In Massachusetts, where slavery existed but slightly, it died by a very simple legal decision. A high court decided that every man was free and that slavery was inconsistent with the Constitution. After that there was no more enactment, and in that State slavery was dead. In New York a bill was passed for the manumission of slaves, and on the attainment of a certain age they were to become free. After a trial of some ten years it was considered to be a great deal better to get rid of the evil at once. Now, as against those who falsely accuse the integrity and love of liberty of this great State, let me say that if you will go back to the laws you will find throughout the declaration of emancipation and that, previous to that, the rights of the slaves were protected. No man was permitted to take a slave out of New York without first giving bonds for his return, and they were not allowed to be sold to the South. Now and then one might have been, although I never heard of such a case. Whatever the statute could do to maintain the slave in comparative liberty was done, and this cheap and rotten gush that 'the North sold out' and then went into the business of emancipation is false. —H. W. Beecher.

Decided steps ought to be taken to cure a Cold or Cough at once. We should recommend Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. This valuable medicine is indorsed by the physicians and you can rely on its doing the work every time.

A witty person has said of people of one idea, "They are not lovely in their lives, and only in death are they divided." In what then, does their unloveliness appear. Loveliness of life and character are of ever increasing value as civilization civilizes and Christianity reveals to men its blessed possibilities. We cannot afford to cultivate unlovely traits either as individuals or as classes in society. The greatest foe to a lovely disposition of mind and heart is selfishness. Columbus with his "New World Idea," Luther with his Justification by Faith, Galileo muttering in chains "It does move notwithstanding," Cobden moving to the people's relief with even the people damning him, Garrison dragged through Boston streets and Phillips egged and mobbed for human freedom—all these and more "of whom the world was not worthy,"—what were they but the blazing examples of the force, the wisdom, the gospel of one idea!—Union Signal.

Clearly the denominational school that by the concentration of money and talent is intended and is good enough for all, will in every case be attended by all in that vicinity who have any thirst for an education under the auspices of that denomination.—Bennett Seminary Visitor.

Let moderate drinkers know that light wines pave the way for whiskey and rum; and moderate drinking for drunkenness, disease and death.

COLORLESS AND COLD.—A young girl deeply regretted that she was so colorless and cold. Her face was too white, and her hands and feet felt as though the blood did not circulate. After one bottle of Hop Bitters had been taken she was the rosiest and healthiest girl in the town, with a vivacity and cheerfulness of mind gratifying to her friends.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to hear of my friends. Father was Jackson Jennings, and he was set free before the war by his owners, and went to Alabama. Sister was a girl about ten years old, and left with her young master, Frank Sloat. When he died her father left her with her grandmother, Fanny Sloat. Her name is now Victoria Wright. Address her at Meridian, Miss., care of S. Young.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to hear from my brothers William, Robert, Martin and Thomas Hill; and sisters Nancy, Sallie, Eliza, Caroline and Mary Hill. I left them in Huntsville, Ala. Father was Wm. Hill. Address me at Capleville, Shelby county, Tenn. ROSA A. WILCOX.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister Nancy. Mother is Henrietta. I left her at Poindexter's trade yard. We belonged to a man named Scott. Address me at Lockhart, Texas. PHILIP SCOTT.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for a little boy, Henry Scott, who got lost last June. He lived near Columbus, Texas, and he is about 8 years old. I wish also to hear of a boy named Ed. Jarman. I also had a brother, Henry, who was sold to Bill Atwood. He then lived in Harris county, Texas, near Houston. Address me at Baazoria, Texas. J. M. SCOTT.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea, or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

Plantation Melodies —AND— REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Talks About Cooking.

I always read the housekeeping department in the SOUTHWESTERN, and I have found there many hints that have helped me in my own housekeeping, and no doubt they have helped others. I wish to tell some who are just starting homes of their own, one way to make good coffee. Of course the coffee pot should always be clean, with not any of the old grounds in it. Put into it two tablespoonfuls of ground coffee, put into it just cold water to moisten the coffee, then pour over it one quart of boiling water. If more water is used, more coffee is needed. Place it on the stove where it will boil slowly for five or ten minutes, then put it where it will keep hot until the meat is ready. Hard boiling makes coffee taste bitter. To clean it, put in a little white of an egg, or egg shell. It will clear it. If allowed to stand a little while on the table before pouring into cups.

I wish also to write something about the much slandered mince pie. Most people like to eat it, but it is generally considered indigestible. If it is so, it is because too many ingredients are used. It is not good for the stomach, to have a great variety put into it at one time. I have read a receipt for making mince pie in which the ingredients were meat, apple, currants, citron, cloves, allspice, cinnamon, wine and sugar. I should think that would produce a pie, that few people could not partake of without recalling their ancestors. Very few people have a receipt which I like, and that my pies are not long, for some one asks me for it, I cannot give exact measure, but I will tell how I make mine. I have a medium sized bowl, and I prepare as much meat as I can make in it, which is about as much as I put in a pint bowl of cooked meat, that I prefer to have—beefsteak or roast—I chop very fine. I pare, quarter and chop fine apples, about two thirds as much as I put half a cup of sugar, three tablespoonfuls cinnamon, one of cloves, one of allspice, one of salt, sugar to taste. I make a crust of good pie paste rolled out and baked until it is tender. If I do not need to make use of it at once I set it in a cool place. It is better for it will keep better and the cooking improves it. I never put wine or cider in any thing I cook, I consider it a sly way of putting rum to my neighbors lips. I once offered a piece of mince pie to a friend. He had signed the pledge he did not intend to break, but my pie would have it. My brother to offend my brother to offend I respect his scruples. I think there is an evil so insidious that it gets into our pies and many tempt our loved ones from our tables. Let us be supplied with good bread and vegetables, but pies and cake though not so necessary to health as bread and vegetables, are not to be despised. Mothers, I have a theory which I have proved by experiment, which I find

Rev. G. R. Davis writes from Peking of a visit of several weeks in the Tsin Hua and Liang Tsu Ho circuits: "I found the work in good condition. While at Tsin Hua we held a two days meeting in our commodious chapel, which was attended by about 65 native Christians. During our visit 14 adults were baptized and received into full communion, also a number of children. Among the latter was little Paul Young, around him stood as sponsors his father, mother, grand-father and mother, and great grand-father and mother, all most earnest Christians. It is estimated that 10,000 square miles of this province are now flooded, (Nov. 6th.) While villages have been swept away, countless thousands are homeless and destitute. The government is doing its utmost to relieve the distress. Pray for these people and for all missionaries."

The man who does most to enlighten human darkness, mitigate human distress, and comfort human hearts, is more likely to be true and sound in spiritual philosophy and doctrine than the man who is only critical and not self sacrificing. What have we done for the Lord Jesus? Could we choose an epitaph that would be so sublime as this: "A man who hazarded his life for the Lord Jesus"!

Francis Power Cobb thinks there is more philosopy in Luther's throwing his inkstand at the Devil than is generally imagined. Ink has done more to abridge the powers and narrow the empire of the Prince of Darkness than all of the holy water of the saints.

Oliver Cromwell once said to a lawyer; "Sir, I perceive that you have been vastly wary in your conduct of late. Be not to confident in this. Subtlety may deceive you, Honesty never will."

The Shakers of South Union, La., one of the thirteen Shakers settlements in the United States own 20,000 acres in one of the best parts of Louisiana.

According to Henry Ward Beecher it is a great crime to print a newspaper in small type; because, although God might wink at such a crime, a man who continually reads such type would soon be deprived of the pleasure of winking at all.

A farm in the town of Eliott, Me., has been the home of nine generations of one family, having been handed down from father to son for nearly 250 years. We fear that some of our old Louisiana families may be called upon to take a back seat.

Addison once wrote: "Laziness grows on people. It begins in cobwebs and ends in iron chains. The more business a man has to do the more he is able to accomplish, for he learns to economize his time."

Dr. Burton, in the second lecture of the Lyman Beecher Course, amused the Yale students by his answer to the question, How plainly should a preacher show the skeleton of his sermon? "About as plainly as he would show his own." The answer is as wise as it is witty. What the people need is neither homiletical skeletons nor corpses, but living thought.—New York Advocate.

"The world's only estimate of religion is holiness. The world wants men who are saved from secret faults. A little crack will spoil the ring of the coin. The world expects that a Christian man shall be free from little tricks of gain and all crooked ways of business."—Mark Guy Pearse.

Tony Peace, a well-to-do colored citizen of Rocky Comfort, Ark., was murdered at 10 o'clock at night by five unknown men, all well masked and supposed to have been white men. Peace was a man of about 60 years of age and was supposed to have had money.

Let not any one say that he cannot govern his passions, nor hinder them from breaking out and carrying him to action; for what he can do before a prince or a great man, he can do alone, or in the presence of God if he will.—Locke.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retird from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y. jan10-19teow

"Yes," said the reverend gentleman, "I am rector of the church, my mother-in-law is di-rector, and my wife is cor-rector." Poor man he has "become as one of us."

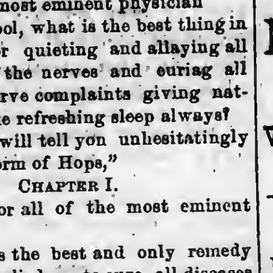
The living Christian—pure of heart and unspotted by the world—is the best preacher of the Gospel in these days.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this pader. n44-14t

The colored people are doing well in Kansas.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. [e14-1y



Vital Question!

Ask the most eminent physician
Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nerve complaints giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always?
And they will tell you unhesitatingly
"Some form of Hops,"

CHAPTER I.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians:
"What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to Women"—
"And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically "Buchu"
Ask the same physicians
"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia; constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever.
Mandrake! or Dandelion!"
Hence when these remedies are combined with other equally valuable
And compound into Hop Bitters, such a

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the Savannah MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Manhattan for March is beautiful in its art and varied and entertaining in its literature. The frontispiece is a masterly engraving of one of the finest pictures of the Spanish painter, Fortuny. The article on "Dartmouth College," the Alma Mater of Webster and Choate, by B. B. Vallentine, is interesting and profusely illustrated. Another illustrated paper is "Rafting on the Alleghany," a breezy and vivid description of that peculiar industry by William Willard Howard. This article and drawings are the result of a special expedition made for the magazine last summer. An amusing paper by Cope Whitehouse, whose researches in Egypt have given him so much reputation in Europe, disposes of "The Myth of Fingal's Cave," of which the picture is in most school geographies. Mr. Whitehouse, with the aid of some engravings, demontrates that there is no Fingal and no Cave. When Egyptian affairs are attracting so much attention, timely is a paper by Pasha Loring, "What will become of Egypt?" Gen Loring's services under the Khedive Ismail for ten years make him one of the first authorities on Egyptian matters. A pleasant natural history paper is "A Walk in Winter," by Chas. C. Abbott. Mrs. Spofford's vigorous story, "Transformation," is concluded, and Edgar Fawcett's "Tinkling Cymbals," which is becoming of absorbing interest, is continued; and there is a bright and well-told short story, "What Came of a Kit of Mackerel." The poets, Recent Literature, Town Talk and Salmagundi are agreeable.

Reputation with posterity is esteemed one of the most powerful incentives to deeds of heroism; and one modern school of philosophy recognizes as the only true immortality of man, the enduring beneficent influence of his virtuous actions. If, however, the fabric of our civilization were seen to be tottering, it is plain that this particular stimulus to virtue would fail. "Is our Civilization Perishable?" is asked in the North American Review for March, by Judge J. A. Jameson, who considers the several agencies by which the overthrow of the existing civilization might be effected. In the Review there is an article on "Agricultural Politics in England," by William E. Bear, editor of the Mark Lane Express. "A Defenceless Sea-board," by Gen. H. A. Smalley, is a description of the unprotected condition of the harbors and coast cities of the United States; and though the author employs none of the arts of the rhetorician, his statement cannot fail to awaken the people of this country to the importance of being in peace prepared for war. "Neither Genius nor Martyr," is the judgment pronounced upon the wife of Carlyle by Alice Hyneman Rhine. In "The Story of a Nomination," W. O. Stoddard recounts the hitherto unpublished history of the means by which the nomination of Abraham Lincoln for a second presidential term was brought about. Other articles are "Literary Resurrectionists," by Charles T. Congdon. "How to Improve the Mississippi," by Robert S. Taylor; and "The Constitutionality of Repudiation," by D. H. Chamberlain and John S. Wise. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York.

The return of Mr. Henry Reed to literary work in the issue of The Current of February 23, will have no small interest for the members of the press throughout the country. Mr. Reed is a brother of S. R. Reed, at present a leading editorial writer on the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette. From 1851 to 1858 he was at the head of the Commercial, and it is said of him that he "educated a generation of men in Ohio and the West." He was everywhere recognized as an essayist of great breadth and power, and an unequaled controversialist; and, though now seventy-five years of age, his paper in The Current, "The Nose as an Ethnologist," shows that his pen has lost none of its old time force and vigor.

The leading paper in The Popular Science Monthly for March—"From Moner to Man," by Dr. Frances Emily White, of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylania—traces, in a manner which will secure the interest of the reader, the development of the human body from a microscopic speck of living matter, the primary protoplasmic cell. In a second paper on "College Athletics," Professor E. L. Richards considers the side of "Evils and their Remedies," with conclusions decidedly in favor of the organized system of the larger institutions. In "Green Suns and Red Sunsets," Mr. W. H. Larrabee has collected the facts concerning the remarkable lurid sunsets of the last months of 1883, and there connection with the volcanic outbreak of Angut 26th in the Straits of Sunda. Dr. P. J. Higgins in "Study, Physiologically Considered," deduces principles concerning the meals, rests, school-sessions, and recesses of school-children. Mrs. Ada H. Kepley's "Fashion and Deformity in the Feet," exposes the uncouth shapes into which we press our feet, with our popular styles of shoes. Professor Tyndall gives a study "On Rainbows." The editor considers the influence of the colleges on the courses of study in the lower schools, and the other departments maintain their usual high standard of excellence. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

Thousands are reported dying of fever in South Java.

The Pine Bluff Republican think the progress of the colored race in the nineteen years of 'halfway' freedom they have enjoyed is very encouraging, and asks: "What can we not do after the 1,000,000 young men and ladies who are now in school shall have been educated? If in one State (Georga) they own 680,000 acres of land, and then say in the other nine Southern States they own 1,000,000 acres or 900,000 acres, this would be 1,580,000 acres of land owned by colored men. Now if the colored men should continue to buy land at the same rate, say for a hundred years, how much land would we own? What amount of taxable property would we own?

We say to the colored men, be a little more economical and buy homes, and become property owners and we will be a part and parcel of this Government. It is true that we are not more than one-eighth of the 50,000,000 in this great nation, but we are a strong and working people, and this is not all the colored man is good for; it is said he makes a good soldier. There are 6,000,000 of colored people in this country, 1,000,000 of this number makes as good soldiers as ever carried a gun. Yes, we are a part of this Nation, and this Government is proud of us."

Gen. Gordon's manifesto informs the insurgents that the Sultan, commander of the faithful, intends to dispatch a great army to conquer the country. Gen. Gordon exhorts them to accept his offer of peace in order to preserves themselves from Turkish invasion.

Ex-Lieutenant-Governor Cumback, of Indiana, says: "The average saloon keeper has no politics. He will be a rampant Republican to-day and a roaring Democrat to-morrow, just as he may promote his traffic. His politics may be said to be the unrestrained right to sell a cent's worth of beer for five cents, and two cents' worth of whisky for a dime. No other question in politics interests him beyond that."

The work of saving men, and of advancing Christ's kingdom in this world is a work of labor rather than of contemplation. All through the Old and New Testament we find the records of the efficient work of good men, a good deal is said about well trained workers, and but little about judicious observers or good talkers.

INDIGESTION AND CONSTIPATION ARE CURED BY AYER'S PILLS.

Dyspepsia

Is one of the most dangerous of the diseases caused by these complaints. Affecting as it does the centre of life—the stomach—it quickly deranges and imperils the whole system, physical and mental. Its symptoms are manifold, and many of them so serious that they are generally regarded and treated as special maladies.

The Only Cure

For the various forms of dyspeptic diseases, is in a medicine that will remove its primary cause, by restoring the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels to a healthful condition. Any other treatment is as useless as an effort would be to make a watch keep time by simply gilding its case, when it had a broken main-spring.

Ayer's Pills

Are the best medicine to accomplish the necessary work of cleansing, stimulating and restoring. They are more thorough in their purgative effect than any others, yet are not violent in their action, exercise a powerful influence for good upon the other vital organs as well as the bowels, and effectually

Banish Disease.

For Biliousness, Jaundice, and other evil consequences of hepatic disorders, there is no remedy so prompt and thorough as AYER'S PILLS. They are also, by their efficacy in regulating the digestive functions, of the greatest value to women in the most critical stages of existence.

Kidney Diseases

Also spring from disorders of the digestive functions, and are not only exceedingly painful in themselves, but have symptoms, such as Dropsy and Rheumatism, which are of the gravest character. The work of the kidneys is the purifying of the blood. When, through disease, they cease to do this,

Prompt Relief

Must be accorded to avert most serious consequences. Medicines that lull their pain by dulling their sensibility, or that stimulate them to unnatural activity, do infinitely more harm than good. To restore them to health, the kidneys must be cleansed, their inflammation allayed, and their strength restored.

Ayer's Pills

Do this more effectually than any other. Their diuretic effect is not less marked and beneficial than their purgative power. Not only do they, at once, by a moving dose, free the clogged, and rouse the torpid organs, but their continuous effect, when taken in small doses, is to regulate the machinery of life, and Restore Health and Vigor.

For all the several varieties of Piles, and for the many Cutaneous Disorders produced by Blood Impurities thrown into the circulation during attacks of constipation, no cure is so quick and easy as AYER'S PILLS, which free the bowels and aid nature.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON IX. March 2. PAUL AT ATHENS. (Acts xvii, 22—34.)

Observe Paul's intrepidity. There was a holy boldness, a gift of the Spirit, for just such a time and place (ix, 27; iv, 13; xiii, 46; Eph. iii, 12). Skillful introduction of a subject guarantees attention to it. No art could surpass Paul's in this. He changed their attention from him to themselves; availed himself of their own material; acknowledged what was good in their system; supplemented it by the real and true; failed not to get Christ and the resurrection before them. God rules the nations. The friends of reform and of the kingdom of God may take heart from this. How intimate is the relation of God to mankind, he being the very element in which man lives! How natural and easy the step between this and his abiding in us by his Spirit, which consummates our conversion to him. Art, philosophy, and culture successfully resisted the Gospel. There is nothing essentially religious in any of them.—Western.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF The Pedestal Fund
—OF THE—
Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

The Little Rock Conference reports showed marked improvement and increases in several particulars in conversions, accessions, benevolences, etc. The session was one of the most pleasant ever held.

The application for national aid to public school systems in the South should not be made with a plea of poverty for its justification. That would be an untenable standpoint in view of general and increasing prosperity. As a measure of national safety it should be asked for and granted.

The eighteenth annual report of the Board of Church Extension is before us. It contains a map showing the location of the 442 churches in the United States that were aided by the Board during the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1883. Of the loans heretofore granted $44,268 58 had been returned; the loans granted and outstanding last October amounted to $345,710 64. The report presents a clear statement of the work the Society is doing. And just here we add this word, we exhort our preachers to look after the collection for the Church Extension Society.

The sixteenth annual session of the North Carolina Conference was held at Greensboro, North Carolina, Feb. 6, Bishop Bowman presiding. W. F. Steele was elected secretary. At the educational meeting $1050 was secured towards the erection of a ten thousand dollar building for Bennett Seminary; Bishop Bowman giving $50, another gentleman offered to give one dollar for every ten dollars that was actually paid in. Rev. Alex. M. Turner, an elder in the A. M. E. Church, was admitted into the conference upon his credentials. W. F. Steele was elected delegate to the General Conference, and J. E. Champlin reserve delegate. Sabbath, Bishop Bowman preached a sermon of great beauty and strength and ordained five to the office of deacon, and one elder.

President Arthur in transmitting the first annual report of the Civil Service Commission to Congress says: "I congratulate Congress and the people, and I avow my conviction that it will henceforth prove to be a still more signal benefit to the public service. I heartily commend the zeal and fidelity of the commissioners and their suggestions for further legislation, and I advise making such appropriations as shall be adequate for their needs." The commission reports that 15 per cent. of all who entered the service through competitive examinations were educated in common schools. Official testimony of the beneficial operation of the law is given, and the constant and unswerving support of President Arthur has been given at every stage of the work. It is suggested that party test be no longer applied in the selection of collectors and postmasters, and that every corrupt exercise of power in nomination, promotion, transfer or confirmation, even though the corrupt consideration may not be a thing of value, should be an offense under the bribery laws.

There is now and then a paper published here in the South, whose Democratic soundness is never questioned. Mississippi has the honor of publishing one or two of these papers. The Meridian Mercury is a paper of marked ability and recognized Democratic soundness. Its ability and fidelity to the Democratic party of the South no one will question. Recently, without the least modification, it expressed itself as follows:

The honest truth is there is no great love of the United States Government among the more respectable and intelligent classes of Southern people. The ruling classes have discussed it, and only liars or fools will admit that it is satisfactory or lovable, or that they do love it.

It may be denied by some, but we suspect that, among what the Mercury calls the more respectable and intelligent classes of Southern people," nothing is more galling than the fact that they are obliged to live nuder a government which they fought so hard and did the best they could to destroy. They are as rebellious in spirit as at the close of the war.

The New Orleans SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIHN ADVOCATE says: "It is too late to cry ont against the intermingling of the two races. No power on earth can prevent it." The Reverend editor does not appear to have observed that the mingling process is not as active as it was "befo de wah, sah" A century more of slavery would have found the colored race in the South paled into insiguificance, unless the original stock had been reinforced from Africa. It would have been impossible to have distinguished the races by the color of their faces. Fred Douglass is a living mouument of the forced blanching process that was stopped by the disastrous termination of the Democratic rebelliou. — Dayton (Ohio) Journal.

All that we have to say to the above is, we should be gratified to have our esteemed contemporary come and visit our schools for our colored children, and we are sure that he will soon become satisfied that the minglug and blanching process is going on "as active as it was 'befo de wah sah" The Democratic rebellion was suddenly stopped, but the mingling of the races was not. Here all the nations of the earth are fast becoming one blood.

"It will come by and by,
When the race out of childhood has grown."

It is with the greatest pleasure that we give the following item a place in the columns:

MR. EDITOR—On my own proposition, and that for a wise Christian reason, I have been appointed presiding elder of the Greenwood district. Rev. J. C. Eckles is presiding elder of Holly Springs district.

H. R. REVELS.

Holly Springs, Feb. 24, 1884.

We hardly know who most to congratulate, Dr. Revels or Bro. Eckles. We feel assured that our brethren of the Mississippi conference will regard this an eminently wise and Christian arrangement.

A Reply to Bishop Pierce on the Negro Question

BY A FORMER SLAVE.

[One who knows the Negro better than the Bishop does himself].

I have certain objections to the sentiments of the Bishop. Although he admits "that the negroes are intitled to elementary education the same as the whites from the hands of the State, in his judgment higher education, so called, would be a positive calamity to the Negroes. He says it would increase the friction between the races etc. I should think that a limited friction in an intelligent way would be an advantage to both races, from the very fact, that the white and colored races constitute humanity, and humanity itself is like all other questions, it has two sides. Every body knows that one side of a question cannot be intelligently discussed, without some knowledge of the other side. I say, that a limit-d friction would benefit both races, because the Southern public mind has been ill-formed by the study of unwholesome literature, which has left the mind in its blind conclusions relative to the black race especially. This friction of which the Bishop speaks would help to bring about a remodeling of public opinion. The whites have been educated to overate themselves on natural grounds, while the colored people have been taught to underrate themselves. In my judgment every man is a man, and no man is more than a man, and all common treatment should be on merits, or demerits, and not upon that unfair claim of natural distinctions. Then let higher education be given to both white and colored alike, this alone would prevent positive calamity to the Negroes. In the first place, the white man would find his equal in the black man, and thereby be convinced of the fact, that the black man is capable of the highest human development. In the second place, the white man would learn that the black man is a man, and a brother, possessing all the qualities of the human, and the divine natures. And in the third place, the white man would find that by allowing the black man an equal chance as to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness in common with himself, that he is industrious, patriotic, having no less interest in the welfare of this country than himself; because by his labor he has helped to make this country rich in wealth, and by his heroism helped to save this country against British imposition in the colonial struggle of revolutionary times, and in Jackson's war of 1812, and in the late civil war, and by true faith in God, Christ and the Bible, the same as the white man, He helps to sustain Protestant religion in this country, against Catholicism which is already predominating in the Western States and Territories. In view of the very important relation the colored man sustains to this country by reason of the things which I have above mentioned; and the colored man knows that he is a citizen and has a right to prepare himself to serve in juries, legislatures or in any other office in the gift of the nation, and will never stop the cultivation of himself until he measures up to the hight of a man, regardless of what divines, or statemen may say to the contrary.

As for the Methodist Episcopal Church coming into the South, the colored people needed the old church; this I speak from experience. Soon after the war closed I was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, as all my owners and relatives were members of that church, but there was such ill feelings in the church against us that our membership was no pleasure to us; when we attended church could occupy seats within the house when there were but few whites present, otherwise we stood out of doors and in that situation, learned all we could through the windows. About this very sad time, the Methodist Episcopal Church had sent a missionary into that portion of Alabama, a white man, who commenced preaching to the colored people in the groves. I heard of him, and that he had come to preach the Gospel to the poor, and to receive all men alike without regard to race, color or previous condition of servitude. I soon found the way to the old church through that man, and united and led the whole of the colored membership into that church. I have received no encouragement outside of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The colored people whose eyes have become open do not regard the Methodist Episcopal Church as an imposition with her money, schools, and churches.

Yours very truly and for the elevation of man, W. O. LYNCH.

Philander Smith College, and Adeline Smith Industrial Home Dedication.

The Adeline Smith Industrial Home, which is to be an important adjunct to our college at Little Rock, was dedicated on Monday, February 25th. This building, which the Freedmen's Aid Society has been able to build through the munificence of Mrs. Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., who has already done so much for education in Little Rock, is a beautiful and substantial two-story house, with all the modern conveniences for a comfortable and model home.

The object of this enterprise is the same as that of similar institutions, namely, to make it a model home for girls, under the control of a competent Christian woman—a place where from six to twelve girls can live for a few months at a time, and take practical lessons in all the departments of housekeeping.

The occasion was one long to be remembered. The generous family by whose liberality the Home has been built were present, consisting of Mrs. Adeline Smith, her daughter and son-in law, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blackstone. These good people enjoyed the occasion very much, and were heartily welcomed by those for whom they have done so much. The Arkansas Conference had just closed its session, and most of the preachers were present. Quite a large number of distinguished personages from abroad were also present and spoke on the occasion. Bishop Bowman and Dr. Fry, of St. Louis, were present for a short time at the beginning of the exercises, and made short but apptopriate speeches. They had to leave for the train, however, before the regnlar exercises began. Mrs. Bishop Wiley, of Cincinnati, presided on the occasion, and after prayer by Rev. G. W. Sams, and some appropriate and soul-stirring music, Prof. Thomas Mason, A. M., president of the college, made the opening address. He welcomed the visitors, and spoke briefly of the objects and purposes of the Home and generally of our work in the South.

Mrs. Dr. R. S. Rust then delivered an address, explaining the work being done by the Home Missionary Society in various parts of the country, especially in behalf of the girls. The real object was "to give the daughters a better chance than the mothers ever had." This desire and porpose was the origin of the society. The society has been endorsed by nearly all the annual conferences, and is doing much good, especially in the South—in the Louisiana, the Texas and West Texas conferences. The object of this Industrial Home is to give opportunity to girls to learn the practical duties of life, with lessons of neatness and economy. The Home is to be neatly but cheaply furnished, the yard to be nicely cultivated, and all made a model to be imitated when they get a home for themselves—in fact, to give all that Christianity and education can give in this direction.

Bishop Wiley made the principal speech on the occasion. He eulogized the ladies for their undertaking, explained the workings of these industrial homes, and showed the necessity for them. He said the nicest thing in this world is a good, neat, clean, comfortable Christian home. The ugliest thing in the world is a mean, dirty, nasty place called a home, but really having no elements of a home about it. He had seen both kinds. There are too many of the latter. The object of these ladies is to show how to make the better homes and to avoid the meaner ones. Our education for girls should tend more in the direction of practical home culture. The woman is to make the home, not the man. The home would be poorly made if man had to do it. The Home is to be an annex to the college where girls can learn all things pertaining to neat and practical house-keeping. The time has come when the youth should leave school with the hand educated as well as the mind and heart. The Bishop's speech was strong, sensible and eloquent.

W. E. Blackstone, of Oak Park, Ill., spoke briefly and pointedly concerning the educational work in the South, and rejoiced in what he had seen in Little Rock. Dr. T. C. Carter, editor of Methodist Advocate, Chattanooga, Tenn., said he was born in the South and was a product of the old and big Methodist church, and rejoiced in the fact. He indorsed heartily the object of the Home. Good cooking is essential to good religion. A man with biscuits in his stomach that would give a bull dog the dyspepsia could not preach or be religious. Let the Home be devoted to good cooking, inculcating temperance principles, and above all to the eradication of snuff dipping, so prevalent in the South. Mrs. Libbie McIntosh, of Syracuse, N. Y., the new matron of the Home, was introduced and spoke briefly of the objects and plans of the institution; said she "had not come here because her home was not pleasant, but to teach them to make their homes pleasant." She asked the prayers of the people and the co-operation of all.

Dr. R. S. Rust made the closing address in his usual impressive, captivating and eloquent manner. Bishop Wiley then offered the consecratory prayer and dedicated the building to the sacred purposes of home culture and Christian purity. A liberal collection was taken up for furnishing the building. The Misses. Richmond, daughters of A. L. Richmond, gave a center table for the parlor, and the balance for completely furnishing the building was assumed by the generous family for which the Home is named. Mrs. Adline Smith will long be remembered by the people of Little Rock for her noble efforts in their behalf. The Home will go into operation at once, and its success is assured. Let the Lord be praised for His wonderful works to the children of men.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

His Home was a Preacher's Home and a Stranger's Shelter.

Brother Benjamin Baily, a faithful member of St. Paul's M. E. Church, departed this life January 16th, at his residence, 402 Live Oak street, at 8.15 a. m. Brother Baily had suffered many years with dyspepsia and phthisis. From these consuming diseases he suffered much, but with great faith and patience. He finally died of senile gangrene after the best medical skill had been exerted for his recovery. When our church here had but few friends, Brother Baily was one of the first and foremost. His fidelity and integrity pointed him out, and recommended him to the pastors and brethren as a useful man. He was steward and trustee of the church for many years, but, losing his health, gave up his office as steward, but held that of trustee to the day of his demise. The writer visited him very often during his last illness, and he always delighted to discourse on the subject of the love of Jesus, in whom he trusted to the end. His departure was expected, and the end sweet. Our loss is his eternal gain. He left a wife and two orphan children, and many friends to cherish and keep green his name and memory. He has a large connection, and two sons whom he left with their mother, Hettie Baily in Va. In the spring of 1845, the year President James K. Polk was inaugurated, being sold to Gen. Jefferson, in Mississippi, who moved to Texas in 1854. In looking through old files of papers and letters, we find that regular correspondence was kept up between him and his oldest son, Henry Baily, for many years, especially since the emancipation. Benjamin, his younger son, was born a few weeks after his father was brought to Mississippi. Henry wrote to his father from Bell Haven, Northampton county, Va., that his brother Benjamin visited his old home in 1871. The last letter from Henry to his father, written April 23d, 1872, closes with: "I am sorry you are suffering with rheumatism; I hope you will be well soon. I am your son, most affectionately, Henry Baily." The younger son, Benjamin, seems to have been a sailor. A white lady acquaintance seems to have been a regular correspondent, and closes a letter to him, August 1st, 1871: "I fear I will become totally blind. I am your true sister, Hester Carpenter." Two sisters, Amy and Tama, were left in Virginia. We trust some one of his relatives will see these sad lines, and know the joyful end of this faithful veteran, who went to his rest after many years' service in the Lord's cause, in the 70th year of his age. A carpenter by trade, and died in his own house erected by his own hands. Sister Nancy Baily, his aged widow, has our sympathy.

M. HENSON,

San Antonio, TEXAS, Feb. 19, 1884.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

Dennis Edmonds, Pleasanton: "Have just closed a protracted meeting held for three nights. We reclaimed two backsliders, and thirty four came to the altar for prayers. Have started two churches—one at Rossville and one at Cloverdale. At the Twin Hill settlement we have bought a house for a school. There are four Sunday-schools on the circuit. My school was without a place of meeting for a time, but the frame is up for a building, and we will get into it as soon as possible. At present there are two day schools, and soon there will be four on the work. A pulpit is being put into the church at Pleasanton. The times are hard, but we pray for a good crop. All are trying to farm this year."

E. H. Harbert, Ebenezer, Marshall: "Since my transfer from the West Texas to the Texas Conference by Bishop Andrews, I have been so busy that I've not so much as had time to write. From San Antonio, the same week that conference adjourned, I arrived at my charge, Marshall, at the same time accompanied by my household goods. I found everything in good order, having been made so by the unselfish efforts of my predecessor, Rev. P. Morgan. There still remains a little debt not yet due upon our church. The church, spiritually, is in a good condition. Our presiding elder, H. Webb, is a very live and active man. No doubt the district will come up gaudly this year, both spiritually and financially. One quarter he has held for us, and notwithstanding the bad weather a large congregation met him. We believe much good was done. Our University (Wiley) is doing a grand work under President David and his able assistants. The influence of this school is felt for scores of miles around. It was much regretted by the students that Professor Webb was made a presiding elder. Professor Coleman has come and filled his place. We shall let you hear from us soon. My impression is that in Marshall we have a noble people. Many bad things have gone out (and most of them true) about Marshall, but she still has many good things that can be seen. Look out for them in my next."

W. H. Davis, Columbus: "My third year in this place opens up very pleasantly. Indeed, I returned from conference and found a host of open hearted friends to welcome my return. Our first work was to pay off a debt on the parsonage of $40. The 12th and 13th of January Presiding Elder P. M. Carmichael held our first quarterly conference. His advice to the members of the quarterly conference was rich, relative to their relation to the pastor. Sunday, at 10 o'clock, the Sabbath school met. Just here I will say that the Sabbath school was not what it had been, the weather being somewhat unfavorable and had been for some time, but we are waking up again. The elder conducted the review, and I must say that it was an example to the trustees if they will take it. At 3 o'clock he preached us one of his soul-reviving sermons, and everybody seemed as though they were drinking right from the fountain. At night he preached another glorious sermon, and administered the sacrament to ninety-seven persons. Collections for the elder $13.29. On Monday night we had the quarterly conference love feast, which was rich. Saturday night, February 2d, the sisters gave a grand leap year entertainment, and raised $50.30 for the purpose of repainting the church. Sister Maria Taylor was the chief engineer in getting it up, and great credit is due her and all that took part in it, though she was opposed, like every other good thing, and almost gave it up once, but I told her to go ahead, the Lord would help her. So he did."

M. O. Carnies, Oakland: "Our presiding elder, Rev. P. M. Carmichael, held our quarterly meeting January 19th, and we had an interesting time. The people all love the elder, and regard him a wonderful preacher. I never heard a sermon that did me so much good as his on Sabbath. Our preacher, Rev. E. E. Cooper, is a Christian gentleman. He understands his work and attends to every part of it. He is loved and respected by the people."

"Dear Editors—We often prove the truth of the Holy Bible. 'We know not what a day may bring forth.' I think I have read within its sacred pages words like these. A few weeks ago we prepared to keep jubilee with Rev. B. O. Watrous and wife. After spending a few days with them and enjoying their society, we have to record the fact that the aged preacher who has for so many years been instructing the people is now laid aside, having been struck down with paralysis. On the 10th inst. he preached with more than usual vigor, and on the 14th the attack came on. Those friends who were preparing to enjoy his presence and conversation will please write to Rev. J. K. Loggins, Brenham, or to Mrs. I. Howells, Whitman."

MISSISSIPPI.

I. B. Griffin, Starkville: "Our church at this place is in quite a dilapidated condition, and is likely to fall the first heavy storm or wind. We are preparing to rebuild. I have already taken a subscription of $125, which is to be paid on the third Sunday in March. We are moving on slowly, trying to get the hearts and minds of the congregation. We want your faithful prayers."

A. Britten, Willis: "I entered upon my present work the first of January. I found the church and people in good condition. Three or four of our sisters have made the church a present of a nice chandelier, and as we have no bell they propose to see if one cannot be secured. The people are doing well, and we hope to have a year of prosperity."

TENNESSEE.

John H. Coppage, Tullahoma: "I found no roll of members here. The sheep were scattered abroad. I made up a record of 76 members. There are two appointments. There is room for much temperance work here."

Little Rock Conference.

The sixth annual session of the Little Rock Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church met at Wesley Chapel, Little Rock, Ark., on Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 9 o'clock a. m., with Bishop Isaac W. Wiley, D.D., L.L. D., in the chair. The Bishop read the sixty-second Psalm; the conference joined in singing the second hymn in the hymnal, after which the Bishop offered a feeling and fervent prayer. A few verses of the first hymn were then sung, and Rev. R. S. Rust, D. D., led the conference in prayer. After a few preliminary remarks by Bishop Wiley, the assistant secretary of the last conference, Rev. Thos. Mason, called the roll, and 19 members and 8 probationers answered to their names, W. O. Emory was elected secretary, A. L. Richardson assistant, and A. J. Phillips and W. H. Higgins statistical secretaries; and H. H. McAllister conference treasurer. The usual committees were appointed. Visitors, Revs. S. W. Lewis, of the Cincinnati Conference; W. H. W. Reese, of the Arkansas Conference, and others, were introduced and invited within the conference bar; after which the 20th question was taken up, and L. W. Elkins, presiding elder of the Hot Springs district, reported his work, and his character passed. O. H. Smith, who had been transferred during the year by Bishop Hurst, from the Illinois conference, and who had succeeded Rev. L. G. Pollard in the presiding eldership of the Little Rock district, reported his work and his character passed. The elders of Hot Springs and Little Rock districts reported their work and collection, and their characters passed; after which the benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. H. W. Reese, of the Arkansas conference. The second's days session was opened with prayer by Rev. G. N. Johnson, after the Bishop had read, with introductory comments, the 12th chapter of Hebrews, and the conference, had sung the 728th hymn. The journal of the first day's session was read and approved, and the 20th question was resumed. Rev. G. W. Sams, presiding elder of the Argenta district, reported his work and his character passed. The elders of the Argenta district then reported their works and collection, and their character passed. Probationers of each district reported their works and collections, and those who had passed their examinations in their studies were continued. Wm. Pope was discontinued. J. P. Mack was discontinued by his own request. Rev. A. E. P. Albert, assistant editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, Rev. Dr. G. W. Gray, President of the Little Rock University, and other visiting ministers were introduced. G. G. W. Taylor had withdrawn. A. W. Decker was transferred to the Erie conference. The relation of J. G. Thompson was changed from superannuate to effective. Bro. Thompson had done good and effective work as a supply during the year, in consequence of which the conference decided to change his relation. G. W. Babers and R. Boone were elected elders, Conference then adjourned, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. E. P. Albert. Friday, the third day's session, was opened with scriptural lesson read by the Bishop, and the singing of the hymn, "O for a Faith that will not Shrink," etc., by the conference. Prayer was offered by J. G. Thompson. The reading of the minutes dispensed with, the Bishop called up the following brethren: Edward Pinket, Seth Neal, Edward Spencer, H. C. Dunlap, A. L. Richardson and Meshack Lockman, who, after being impressively, instructively addressed by Bishop Wiley, were admitted into full connection. The transfers of O. H. Smith from the Illinois, and G. W. Gill from the Texas conferences were announced. The hour having arrived for the election of delegate to the General Conference, the conference proceeded to balloting, resulting in the election of G. W. Sams for delegate, and W. H. Crawford for reserve delegate to the General Conference. The lay conference elected A. L. Richardson as delegate, and Mrs. Susan Johnson reserve. The committee on periodicals made its report, endorsing and commending the SOUTHWESTERN and its editors; and pledging the hearty support of the conference in the spread of the circulation of the paper. Rev. A. E. P. Albert, assistant editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, addressed the conference, thanking them for their resolution, and their appreciated commendations, and urging upon the brethren the great necessity of transforming and animating their generous resolutions into solid action in the way of securing cash subscriptions for the paper. The remarks from Bro. Albert were well received; they seemed to have inspired the brethren, and several of them, W. O. Emory, G. W. Sams and others spoke of the worth of SOUTHWESTERN to our church and people, urging the conference to greater effort in seeking to place the SOUTHWESTERN in every home under the influence of our church in Arkansas. The report was unanimously adopted. Benediction by G. B. Donnelly. The fourth day, Bishop Wiley read 4th chapter II Cor.; conference sang 316th hymn, and B. McCain led in prayer. Temperance, Church Extension, Missionary, Freedmen's Aid, Sunday-school and other reports were read, discussed and adopted. Temperance and Freedmen's Aid interests especially elicited interesting and profitable discussions. The conference pledged itself to raise $1000 for a scholarship in the Philander-Smith College, and in the furtherance of this determination each pastor pledges to pay $1, and collect an average of 50 cents from each member as a centennial offering. Dr. Rust offered one of his characteristic addresses upon the adoption of the Freedmen's Aid report. Such a one, with others that he delivered during the conference session, as doubtless will have highly gratifying effects upon the plans adopted to push forward the interests of the Freedmen's Aid Society in the conference. Wm. Read was elected to deacon's orders. Revs. D. H. Upchurch and T. B. Ford, of the Arkansas conference, and others, were introduced. Benediction by Dr. Rust. Conference Sabbath was a day of glorious experiences. At 11 o'clock Bishop Wiley preached an able, impressive and soul reviving sermon to a crowded house. He read the 92d Psalm, sang the 8th hymn, and a fervent prayer was offered by Rev. J. G. Thompson. The Bishop read the 1st chapter of I. Thess.; the congregation joined heartily in singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' name," etc., after which the Bishop preached an exellent sermon from the 1st chapter, 5th verse of I. Thess. We wish we could give a synopsis of the sermon for the benefit of our readers, but time and space will not allow, and even were the time and space available, we fear that we could not make cold types, though they be in a Christian press, bring out the full force and spirituality, with which the divine message was accompanied as it was delivered by the Bishop. Three great evidences of the divine origin of Christianity were shown to be in the church. 1. That the Gospel comes not only in cold, dead words, but in power, in the mighty power of divine, absolute truth. 2. It comes with the Holy Ghost, in the powerful manifestations of all His affairs. 3. It comes with much assurance; so much so that one may know and be assured of the fact that he is born of God. Glorious sermon, long may it be a source of blessing to all who heard it. After the sermon Edward Spencer, A. L. Richardson and Wm. Read were ordained deacons. At 3 p. m. Rev. A. E. P. Albert preached an impressive and interesing sermon, at the close of which Bishop Wiley, assisted by several elders ordained the following persons to elders orders: Robt. Boone, Geo. W. Babers and Wm. H. Higgins, who was elected to elders orders since last year. At 7 p. m. the centennial services were held. Rev. G. N. Johnson led in the devotional exercises, and Dr. Rust presided. Bishop Wiley delivered the principal address, bristling with many interesting facts in the history and triumphs of our Methodism. Rev. A. E. P. Albert referred to the origin and development of Methodism as the greatest fact in the history of Christianity since the Luthera reformation. Dr. Rust concluded with a telling address, animating the whole house and eliciting hearty applause from the assembled multitude. Monday morning, 18th inst., conference convened at usual hour. Prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. W. Reese, of Arkansas conference. Conference Treasurer reported, showing marked increase in the benevolent collections. Rev. Dr. W. H. Vernon, District Superintendent of the American Bible Society for the State of Arkansas, was introduced and addressed the conference. The committee on education reported, at which time Rev. Thos. Mason, President of the Philander-Smith College, addressed the conference upon the work and brilliant prospects of the college. The conference tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. Adeline M. Smith for her gift of the $10,000 with which the college was built, and for the $1000 or more which she contributed toward the building of the Industrial Home in connection with the college. Dr. Webb, of Oak Park, Ill., who was acquainted with Mrs. Smith, and who assisted in directing her attention to our needs at Little Rock, by invitation addressed the conference. Russell Green was located at his own request. Peter Humphrey was granted a supernumerary relation. E. A. Carr was elected and ordained a deacon, and the following were admitted on trial. J. H. McAllister, S. J. Brown and J. L. Frazier. Several resolutions of local importance were passed. Votes of thanks were extended to the railroads, and to the good people of Little Rock for appreciated favors and generous hospitality; and to Bishop Wiley for his impartial administration, his instructive and fatherly advice and inspiring addresses and sermons. The management of the Freedmen's Aid Society was endorsed, and Dr. Rust commended for his faithful services and remarkable success. Van Buren was selected for the seat of the next conference. After the reading of the minutes and singing the old conference parting hymn, "And let our bodies part," etc., the Bishop led in fervent prayer, made a few appropriate closing remarks, read the appointments, and the conference adjourned with the benediction by the Bishop. We will give statistics in a subsequent issue. The following are the appointments:

Three Minute Talks—No. 4.

I have heard it often remarked that the colored people, under existing circumstances, require, in order to their proper edification, a style of worship different from that generally observed among the average white congregations. It was alleged, in support of this claim, that the colored people, as a rule, show a strong preference for a whining tone in preaching and praying, and the singing of quaint, sentimental ditties, which shock and repel persons of cultivated taste. I refer to this matter because, whether well founded or not, it deserves consideration. The standard of a people's worship is always of vital importance It concerns us not only to have a suitable object, but to strive after the most appropriate manner. I do not believe our people are incapable of maintaining a calm, thoughtful and dignified habit in the sanctuary, or of appreciating the propriety of having every part of the service rendered in an intelligent and reverent manner. In those churches where discreet pastors conduct the public exercises, and where the audience is composed largely of persons who have been brought in contact with a better civilization, you will find that the dolorous whine and empty ditty are not countenanced. There the preaching is characterized by thought, simplicity and naturalness, the audible praying by devout, Scriptural words, laden with penitence or fragrant with praise, and the singing by a judicious selection of hymns pure in sentiment and appropriate in tune. The atmosphere that encircles the meeting, undisturbed by harsh, discordant sounds, sheds a sacred, hallowing influence all around. I hardly need say that this is not true of every place. In too many cases, objectionable features connected with public worship still obtain footing. Sometimes the preachers are either too ignorant to discover the impropriety of a repulsive tone or an obsolete manner, or too weak and indolent to attempt the needed reform, leaving the people to grope about in the old ruts. I am persuaded that there is, here and there, room for improvement. The more intelligence we get from the schools and other sources, the more of it are we bound to employ in the proper worship of God. I press this point the more urgently because, if our people cling to any practice which must, from its nature, excite pity or contempt among educated persons, it will serve to strengthen the position of those who clamor for the continuation of separate churches, based on color. Our churches must be as tasteful in appearance, and their services conducted with as much intelligence and propriety, as other churches located around us. We want nothing in our preaching, praying and singing, tone and manner, that is peculiar to us, save only as it is peculiar to the best English-speaking churches of Methodism. Those who would revive the old plantation style of address, and unimpressive manner of worship, for the purpose of transferring them to the present time, cannot be counted on the side of progress. Two decades place us at a considerable remove from the dark past. We have come to an era of light that confers higher privileges than what was our boon in former days. We are not called upon to part with the old time religious enthusiasm, nor to repress with chilling restraint the soul's joyous emotion, but to strive, as far as possible, to present ourselves before the Lord in the most acceptable manner, scrupulously avoiding whatever may cause unwholesome aversion in the minds of persons of sense and piety.

D. W. HAYS.

Hot Springs District.

Dear brethren of the Hot Springs District, Little Rock Conference—I give you below the amounts asked of each charge for the following causes, viz: Missions, Church Extension, Freedmen's Aid, General Conference Expenses, and the Episcopal fund. I hope it will all be collected, and the district be able to make a better report at next conference than ever before. If we use enough energy we can collect every dollar of it. Let us "aim high, will strong and work hard, and we will surely succeed." Begin at once to lay these matters before the people, and push the claims of the Church, and give the people a chance to give to the Lord. I wish to call special attention to the amount asked for General Conference expenses. This should be your first collection, and every dollar of it ought to be collected by the 15th of April.

Explain the claims of the Mission Society to your Sunday-schools, and give the children a chance to do something for the Master in the great cause. See that your official members own a DISCIPLINE and take the SOUTHWESTERN, and READ THEM BOTH, and half the work is done. This land must be redeemed to Christ; and remember, Brother, that much depends upon how you do your work and present the claims of the Church.

Centre Point—Missions $15; Church Extension $5; Freedmen's Aid $10; Episcopal Fund $2; General Conference Expenses $1—Total $33.

Fulton—Missions $10; Church Extension $5; Freedmen's Aid $5; Episcopal fund $1; General Conference Expenses 50c—Total $21.50.

Hot Springs—Missions $15; Church Extension $6; Freedmen's Aid $10; Episcopal Fund $2; General Conference Expenses $1.25—Total $34.25.

Lewisville—Missions $5; Church Extension $2; Freedmen's Aid $2; Episcopal Fund 50c; General Conference Expenses 50c—Total $10.

Monticello—Missions $2; Church Extension $1; Freedmen's Aid $1—Total $6.

New Edingburg—Missions $3; Church Extension $2; Freedmen's Aid $1—Total $4.

Paraclifta—Missions $15; Church Extension $5; Freedmen's Aid $10; Episcopal Fund $2; General Con-eral Conference Expenses $1—Total $33.

Peytonville—Missions $2, Church Extension $1; Freedmen's Aid $1—Total $4.

Pine Bluff Station—Missions $15; Church Extension $5; Freedmen's Aid $10; Episcopal Fund $2; General Conference Expenses $1.25—Total $33.25.

Pine Bluff Circuit—Missions $5; Church Extension $2; Freedmen's Aid $3; Episcopal Fund 50c; General Conference Expenses 50c—Total $11.

Texarkana Stat'n—Missions $10; Church Extension $10; Freedmen's Aid $3; Episcopal Fund $2; General Conference Expenses $1—Total $26.

Texarkana Circuit—Missions $3; Church Extension $2; Freedmen's Aid $2; Episcopal Fund $1; General Conference Expenses $1—Total $9.

Washington—Missions $10; Church Extension $4; Freedmen's Aid $8; Episcopal Fund $1; General Conference Expenses $1—Total $24.

Grand Total—Missions $110; Church Extension $50; Freedmen's Aid $66; Episcopal Fund $14; General Conference Expenses $9—Total $249.

Cut this out of your paper and save it for future use.

Roman Catholic and Protestant Polities.

One of the semi-religious papers has suggested—and the suggestion has been reechoed by a portion of the daily press—that the interference of the Catholic clergy in politics is fair and quite unobjectionable because the Protestant clergy do the same thing. If ministers uphold the common school system in the pulpit and urge its maintenance as one of the duties of their flocks, why, it is asked, should not priests urge their flocks to overturn it, and even distribute ballots to such Catholics as are willing to do their bidding? The Protestant clergy discuss nearly all the prominent topics of the day in the churches now and again, and do instigate their congregations to take a particular line of action at the polls. They have done so with regard to slavery, with regard to the late war, with regard to temperance, with regard to marriage and divorce, with regard to donations of public money to Catholic institutions, and there is no sort of doubt that, if our common school system should be seriously threatened in the interest of any party or denomination, they would make their churches resound with exhortations to vigorous opposition. The conclusion is, therefore, that the interference of the bishops and priests in the decision of questions of contemporary politics is but part of a legitimate game of church against church, in which all ecclesiastics have a right to participate so long as they violate no positive law.

This has so much the look of being "a broad view" that it will doubtless find favor with a great many sentimentalists, as well as with some hard-headed people who plume themselves on their love of fair play, and think everybody is entitled to a hearing, and that as long as a priest or anybody else refrains from physical coercion, his efforts to persuade people on any subject ought not to be resented. In reality it is, however, a very narrow and one-sided and misleading view, and furnishes a good illustration of the way people are imposed upon by names. It is a deduction from an assumption which has no foundation in fact, viz., that a Catholic priest and a Protestant minister are both pastors of the same sort, and stand in the same relation to their flocks.

We have no doubt that for the purpose of political agitation the Catholic clergy would be very glad to have this notion of their character and functions gain currency, but it would be a very unfortunate thing for this community if it were allowed to do so. The Protestant minister addressing his congregation does so as an American citizen, whose highest allegiance is avowedly due to the American government, and who acknowledges that his highest political duty is to obey the laws of the land. He addresses them, too, as a fellow-citizen, and as in all respects a man like themselves, whose duty it is to lead them in certain religious exercises, in which, however, they take part, or may take part, as fully as he does. Some of his functions, such as the administration of the sacrament, are peculiar to him, but they do not clothe him with supernatural authority for other and different purposes. The ecclesiastical tribunals, too, to which he is amenable are composed of American citizens, and are only in part clerical—the laity are fully represented in them. Though last, not least, the sermon or other address of the minister to the people always has been in the Protestant church, and is now more than ever, a discussion of some topic by a man of exceptional qualifications in the presence of the congregation, and by no means an utterance of the divine oracles. If the audience do not like his methods or do not agree with his conclusions, they dismiss him, and provide themselves with another orator, and the attention they give him is the attention of indulgent critics rather than of disciples. They are guarded by tradition, by education and by temperament, from ascribing to his words any authority beyond what the force of his arguments and their general estimate of his character and ability give them. His preaching a political sermon, or his offering political advice in the pulpit, therefore, has never been seriously objected to on the ground that it was likely to exert an unhealthy or unlawful influence on his flock, or force upon them considerations which were likely to separate them in thought or feeling from the rest of the community, or to weaken their allegiance to the state. What has been said against it is that it has a tendency, by presenting the minister to the world as a partisan debating subjects on which his authority was not specially weighty, to lessen his influence, and diminish popular respect for his office, when he came to speak of things purely spiritual.

The position of a Catholic bishop or priest is widely different. He is, in the first place, appointed, or removable at pleasure, by a foreign prince who claims paramount jurisdiction, by divine appointment, over all the governments in the world, in all matters which he chooses to pronounce spiritual or pertaining to the spiritual, and who holds himself able, when speaking under certain conditions—to the absence or presence of which nobody can testify but himself—to decide absolutely on the right or wrong of every question of human interest. In the second place, the bishop or priest, though nominally an American citizen, is in his ecclesiastical character clothed with an authority so tremendous and supernatural, and belongs to an organization so vastly transcending the state in power, importance and duration, that his citizenship inevitably seems a trifling and insignificant thing. He has no fixed domicile, and cannot have. Neither his will, his reason, nor his interest has anything to do with determining the place of his abode. He is in New York to-day, but he may to-morrow be transferred to Patagonia or China by a power which in his eyes bears about the same proportion to the State or the United States as God Almighty to a black beetle. Nor is he bound to the political community, as the Protestant minister is, by those ties of family to which patriotism owes so much, if not all, of its force. He has neither wife, nor children, nor home, and the great object of denying them to him is to prevent any distraction of his devotion from the interests of the church, or any strong sympathy with the purely secular hopes or ideals or repugnances of the community in which he is quartered.

Moreover, he does not discuss in the presence of his congregation; he does not debate with them, or balance arguments, or seek to persuade or convince them. He hardly even instructs them; he promulgates the law in the name of the church, and the law armed with sanctions of the most terrible and imposing character. He has no doubts on any of the problems of the universe. If he refrains from speaking on any knotty question of the day it is not because he has nothing to say, or no solution to offer, but because he considers the matter indifferent, or one around which the feeble reason of his flock may be safely allowed to play freely. It is true that when he speaks he does not always speak or profess to speak the mind of the church; but then, even the obiter dicta of persons who are the daily and exclusive exponents of the mind of the Judge Eternal are hints which a worshipper, even if strongminded and educated, will not feel it safe to disregard. They are hints which the ignorant worshipper is sure to take as the utterances of supreme wisdom. The conduct of a good Catholic in the discharge of his public duties must make either for or against the interests of the visible church. If it makes against them, he is hindering the sole means provided by Almighty God for the salvation of mankind from everlasting damnation; and of these interests who knows so much as the clergy? Who else, indeed, knows anything? Whenever, therefore, a priest advises a Catholic how to vote, or tells him what the welfare of the church requires, even if it be in the street, it is absurd to suppose that the layman treats it as the advice of a fellow-citizen, to be taken or left in his discretion. Common prudence, if no other consideration were present, would require him to regard it as a voice from the other world, which might save or ruin him.

It will be, in short, a sore day for the United States when the people of this country allow themselves to be seduced into the belief that the church of Rome has become reconciled to republicanism, or to liberty of thought, or to anything else which recognizes the existence of any rule of conduct, in small things or in great, not furnished by herself, or that the Catholic clergy have the least intention of putting themselves on the same level with or using the same weapons as the Protestant clergy on the school question, or any other question which is likely to affect their own power, either nearly or remotely, directly or indirectly. It must not be forgotten that the Protestant church is a body of sects, without fixity of organization or discipline or purpose or doctrine—part of the state, and blended with the state in a thousand ways, and changing in beliefs and composition from generation to generation; while the Catholic church is a vast machine, belonging to no country, submitting itself to no authority, asserting itself against all authority, and served by a body of ecclesiastics who have severed all earthly ties in order to serve it more effectually, and who are governed by orders more completely than any army; and that its policy, designs and motives are veiled in the strictest secrecy, and that no pledge or promise of any of its agents can bind or conclude it in any manner. The duty of the state towards these agents is therefore plain, and settled by much experience, and that is to legislate exactly as the secular interests may seem to require, but to make no agreements or treaties with them; and to be affected by no concessions or compromises they may offer, and not to be frightened by any use they may make of such phrases as "religious liberty" or "equal rights." The policy to which they have adhered for ages is to ask for everything, including the government of the country by an archbishop, but to take what they can get, and always after a rebuff to play the martyr, and, when further gains are hopeless, to settle down cheerfully until the public irritation has subsided, and then try again. The bishops and priests die, and come and go, but whoever they are, and whatever they may say, we know that they do and must believe the whole of our political and social fabric, our government, our marriage, our education, our religion and manners, to be a monstrous and beastly revolt against God and his ministers. Any priest who professes he does not so regard them may be doing his duty, but any American voter who is led into carelessness or indulgence by these professions is not doing his duty. No church occupies or can occupy the same relation to the state as the Roman church, and it may therefore be properly made the object of extraordinary vigilance and distrust.—Nation.

Wesley and Mysticism.

One observation is worthy of emphatic record,—that while few, if any, modern public teachers have treated more of the principles of the spiritual life, or held up a higher standard of them—of justification, regeneration, sanctification, and the evidences and tests which apply to them—few, if any, have been more exempt from the the taint of mysticism. He threw to the winds the mystic doctrines while returning on the ocean from Georgia; and it is a noteworthy fact, that except the early and comparatively brief period of his spiritual awakening, and of his intercourse with the Moravain brethren, the minute record of his life, presented in his journals, contains hardly an instance of that introspective and hypochondriacal anxiety which weakens most religious biographies. We meet in this wonderful autobiography with occasional and brief ejaculations of prayer and praise, but with no self-anatomization. It is vigorous with the cheerful moral health of his own mind throughout, however marred by the narration of disease in other minds.

Methodism spread so rapidly, and so was much in contrast with the the religious teachings of the times, that it was natural enough it should come in contact with morbid consciences almost everywhere; some of the characters prominent in early Methodism were doubtless subjects of mental as well as of moral disease; but Methodism was not responsible for the fact. It found such sufferers scattered throughout its course; if in some instances they sought in it excitement which could only exasperate their malady, it nevertheless, in most instances, brought them the relief which they could not find in the heartless religious formalities of the age. And, above all, the practical character of Wesley's own genius was so impressed upon his discipline, that religious melancholy was usually, sooner or later, dispelled by the energetic and beneficent practical habits to which his followers were trained. Without designing it, he established a religious system which, while it could not fail to attract diseased minds, was singularly adapted to cure them, in both its hopeful theology and its active discipline, and its history records not a few affecting cases of chronic mental disease in which life was rendered, not only tolerable, but useful and holy, and death itself joyful, by the moral support of the Gospel as taught in its doctrines and embodied in its regimen.—Dr. Abel Stevens.

Is your Life Worth a Dollar?

Perhaps that seems a high price for it, considering how poor your blood is, and how your whole system is prostrated, debilitated, and enfeebled. People have been heard to say, under such circumstances, that they would not give the toss of a copper for the choice between life and death. But when it comes to actually drawing near the grave, a man naturally draws back, and says he does not want to die. Life is very precious, and even to a broken-down man it is worth saving.

One dollar will buy a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters. That one dollar may start you on the road from misery to recovery. A man must take a very mean view of himself who is not willing to invest that much in making one serious effort to rescue himself from deadly debility, and to step into the enjoyment of solid health. Brown's Iron Bitters vitalizes the blood, tones the nerves, and rebuilds the system. Its work is well known. Invest that dollar in a bottle 8

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the SAVANNAH MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR,

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found,

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
TO
Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, for emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrant Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1884.

We are indebted to Rev. O. H. Smith, presiding elder of Little Rock district, for the full account of the dedication of the Adeline Smith Industrial Home, connected with our Philander Smith College at Little Rock.

The Sunday-school department of the Book Concern continues to issue its list of tracts under the general title of Home College Series. One hundred have already been published, containing short papers on a wide range of subjects, biographical, historical, scientific literary, domestic and religious. They are written for old and young. They may each be read in an hour, so those whose leisure time is limited, and yet desire to use the same, have an opportunity if they will improve the minutes by reading the Home College Series, obtain quite a liberal education. They are sold for five cents each, or $3.50 per hundred, by Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, New York.

To any one desiring to have at hand a complete treasury of information concerning Methodism or the Methodist Episcopal Church in particular, we commend the "Methodist Centennial Year Book." It "furnishes the church with the fullest information possible concerning the present condition of Methodism" in all its various branches "in all parts of the world." This is our centennial year, we want to make it a great success, this book comes to us burdened with a series of facts and figures that will be of the greatest service to us in presenting the claims of the church to our people. Every preacher should have it, and make himself familiar with its facts and figures. It is for sale at 33 Matchez street, New Orleans. Price $1.50.

We have received and examined with great pleasure a little manual prepared by Mr. Joseph Longking, entitled Ligh to the Path; a compend of Bible teachings concerning God and the creation, fall and restoration of man. It is intended for a class of young people. We think that it would be a fine text-book for an evening exercise in the family, with the father and mother as teacher. It presents in a clear and comprehensive form the doctrines of the Bible as we receive them. It offers an excellent opportunity to see that our children have clear views of the doctrines taught in the Holy Scriptures, and that they are able to give a reason for the hope that is in them. It is published by Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, New York, and is sold for 25 cents.

Nearly every issue of the daily and weekly press of New York, whether secular or religious, gives the public a fresh mess of Dr. Newman's controversy, and are promising more as fast as they can get the information, but exactly how God is to be glorified in this matter does not yet appear. It is evident that there are turbulent elements in and around the Madison Avenue Congregational church. Nothing, however, has been charged against Dr. Newman's character. Out of 217 pew-holders 100 signed the memorial to have him remain. Of the 45 who protested against Dr. Newman's pastorate, twenty nine contribute nothing to the support of the church. The paying portion of the church and congregation desire to have him retained, and will doubtless stand by him to the last. Zion's Herald, we think, states the matter correctly when it says that the serious evil comes of "the vicious form of the Congregational polity which permits of two governing bodies—the church and the society." It is one of those unfortunate disturbances that is liable to arise in most any society where there is one man who is determined to rule or ruin.

The Apaches are again committing their depredations in Sonora.

God's Plan.

God evidently has a plan that relates to every creature He has made. The happiness and usefulness of the members of the human family depends largely upon their observance of this plan. They are to go as He leads. If the door is closed they are to patiently stand and wait till He opens. They are never to hurry till His plan ripens. All the defeats (and they have been many) that individuals, nations and churches have experienced have been because of a determination on their part to carry out their plan without reference to God's plan. So far as it relates to human conduct and duty God's plan is not obscure. It is so clearly outlined that "the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein." As it relates to the unity and oneness of all who are in Christ, God has a plan, and there can be no real, permanent success only in the observance of that plan. He is "the vine," they are "the branches." The following prayer of our Lord is significant, "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through this world; that they all may be one as thou Father art in me and I in thee, that that they also may be one in us, that the world may believe thou has sent me. I in them and thou in me, that they may be perfect in one." Just here let us halt for a moment, and take our soundings. Is not the division of our work here in the South on the color-line, the erection of schools from which persons are to be excluded merely because of their color, one of those plans of men that has no reference whatever to God's plan? Keeping our eyes on the Divine plan we learn that "by one spirit we are all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Gentiles, bond or free." That there is "one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." Here we get one view of the plan. This "One God," who is the "Father of all—above all, through all, and in all," has a variety of children; some of them are pale faced and have flaxen hair, while others are yellow, brown and black, and have curly or woolley hair. Is it His plan that there should be churches and schools from which his brown skinned and curly-haired children should be excluded? or, rather is it not His plan, by His own indwelling, to kill out and obliterate all unholy prejudice on account of color, race or previous condition? Studying the "plan" we learn that the whole church, though composed of different materials, is "fitly framed" and "builded together." By mortises and tenons different material may be used, different kinds of timber may be employed, but these different kinds of material so used and employed, make one united, harmonious society. Our colored members are not a mere addition to the church, but a part of it; they constitute a part of the building that is to be "for an habitation of God." Hence "as many as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." That is, they have put on His sentiments, His opinions and His characteristics; they imitate His example, they copy His spirit, and become like Him; then "there is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." All are on a level; there will be no favoritism on account of birth, or rank, or nation, or color or any external circumstance; and no man shall be put under disadvantage because of his color or previous condition. This we believe is God's plan, and like lilies pure and white, He will in His own good time unfold it. We do not wish to be misunderstood, so we distinctly say that we have never for a moment looked upon the division of our work into conferences colored and white, or the erection of churches or schools from which persons were to be excluded, because of their color, as any part of God's plan. It was simply a surrender to caste, and as it relates to the question of Christian brotherhood, the sentiment of the church has been turned backward, and now we are told that we must present the Gospel as men will receive it. Nothing could be more fatal. It is simply an aim to please men, to make the enemies of God appear to be at peace with Him when they are not.

Bishop Haven at the Texas Conference.

We know of no man in the history of our American Methodism whose name is mentioned with more tenderness and love by our people throughout the South than Bishop Gilbert Haven. No matter what others may say of that dear man, they love him. In their estimation his speeches, sermons and acts that related to their welfare all pointed in one direction. At the session of the Texas conference in 1878 he presided. During the examination of the character of the elders, certain things relative to two of the men were brought out that were in no way ornamental to the Christian character. The Bishop gave what we thought was a just and merited rebuke, assuring the conference that in the country where he came from, men accused as these two men had been, if guilty, would be sent to the penitentiary, and not to preach. The next morning he opened conference by reading the 91st Psalm and singing "A Charge to Keep I Have," and then requested a colored brother to lead in prayer. The prayer was homogeneous, some of the sentences were specimens of an honest and artless eloquence that seemed to flow from his lips as fresh and sparkling as a mountain cascade. "O, Lord, dou am honest, great an' holy; notting dat am nu clean an' dishonest can tuch de. O, Lord, come an' teach all classes an' colors de lesson ob honesty; make um honest wid dare tongues, dare feet, dare hans an' dare heads. O, Lord, make um honest inside an' out, in de dark an' in de light. O, Lord, sweet Babe of Bethlehem, come and bress our Bishop; front an' fight his ebry battle; send him threw dis world like a pigeon on de wings ob de eagle, an' when de race am run, an' de last battle am fought wid dat ole serpent, de debil, an' dar am no more for him to do in dis world, let him mount de chariot an' hab a short ride home; an' den, Lord, on de plains ob glory, himself all covered wid glory, let him ground his arms near de throne ob de Lamb, an' lib, an' rest, an' shout, forever an' ever." This prayer was uttered with a well-controlled and musical voice, with a power and pathos no one could forget. At the close a volley of "amens" rose from all who were in the house. In after years we came to know this man; he could not write his name, knew but little of books, was as artless as a child, but was as truly taught by God as the fishermen of Galilee. He mounted the chariot of the Lord and crossed over the river before the Bishop. No doubt they both rest on the other shore.

An Appeal for Aid.

Our brethren living in the Ohio valley have made an appeal to Methodists in behalf of the Methodists who have suffered by the flood. They say: "It is impossible to give even an approximate estimate of the damage done. But there is one class of losses which cannot be relieved from funds appropriated by Government, either State or National, or from contributions by the public at large. Many churches and parsonages, submerged in part or wholly, have been greatly injured and rendered unfit for use until repaired at a very considerable cost. Some of our ministers have lost largely, in some instances much more than, with their means of support, they are able to bear. The improvement of many of our people will render it next to impossible for them to repair the damages done to their church property, and will make it impracticable for them to give a support to their pastors.

Many of these devoted people lost by last year's flood nearly all they possessed, and were just beginning to repair the waste of twelve months ago, when this flood came and swept every thing from them. We can not expect such persons to do much to repair their churches or to support their pastors. They will find their own burdens all they can carry. It is a time for Christian charity to come to the rescue of suffering Christians. Churches and religious services are as precious to these poor people, who have lost all, as to any others.

We, therefore, appeal to our ministers and Churches, everywhere, to send money to aid the interests to which we have referred. As the waters subside the damage wrought is found more and more to transcend what had been anticipated. Judging from the information at hand, it is probable that not less than $50,000 dollars will be required to afford the necessary relief."

The committee asks for contributions for the distressed Churches and people. Send money to J. M. Walden, D.D., 190 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio. The appeal is signed by our leading ministers living in the Ohio valley.

The Christian Neighbor is publishing some "War Sketches," evidently written by some clergyman of the M. E. Church South. We make the following extracts as illustrative of the demoralizing influence of war upon a Christian community.

My two boys—twin boys—in their sixteenth year, were forced to go into this reserve force, and were sent, in company with others, first of all to Augusta, Ga.; and whilst there, hungry and comfortless, they were found by a former servant of mine, named William, with whom they had been brought up; and who entertained a sincere affection for them, and who supplied their wants to the best of his ability. It was a little thing, to be sure, and has no further significance than simply to illustrate the times through which we were passing. From this place (Augusta, Ga.,) their command was ordered to Darlington, C. S., to guard prisoners at the camp near Florence. Whilst there I paid them a visit, and witnessed some scenes which greatly shocked my feelings as a man and a Christian. There usually occurred from twenty to thirty deaths amongst the prisoners in twenty-four hours. In the morning these dead bodies were laid out, side by side, under a shed prepared for the purpose. There I saw them in every position, as the Angel of Death struck them. Their heads were generally thrown back, eyes wide open and staring at you, an arm thrown up, as if in agony, and arrested in that position by the grim monster—their bodies twisted in every conceivable position—shirtless—bosoms open and exposed—an old coat and an old pair of pantaloons their only covering. I went to the cemetery; there, after having their names and command recorded, they were brought piled up on a wagon—no coffin or other covering but that already described; a long wide pit had been dug; they were taken out by a detail of their own men and laid side by side without ceremony by their own comrades; a few black-jack branches were cut and thrown over them, and then the pit was filled, and little mounds, with head boards numbered, indicated their command — and without funeral service of any sort, they were buried. ††

Mormonism, as a religion, we regard a delusion; in its polygamous system it is a gross and detestable immorality. But it is doubtful whether any religious sect in this country evinces more zeal in the propagation of their faith, or, in proportion to numbers, are more successful. Their missionaries are in Great Britain, Germany, Switzerland, Scandinavia, and all through the Southern, Middle and Atlantic States of this country, preaching the Mormon gospel in the highways and by ways of country, town and city, receiving no salary and expecting no pecuniary reward. We know of no propagandist seemingly more determined and more persevering. In this country they are having great success in making converts in North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia. The poor, illiterate whites are easily led to embrace the Mormon faith. Another argument in favor of a thorough system of common ro free schools.

Our Congregational brethren are giving special attention to what they call the sin of caste in the Methodist Episcopal Church. We give them credit for doing the best they can to get it out of the church. Here we certainly wish them the largest measure of success, and are ready to co-operate in this work. But here is a fact we would like to have our good brethren who are so anxious about our purity explain: At the late session of the Texas Annual Conference, held at Paris, Texas, Bishop Andrews presided. He had his home with a local preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church who was attending the Congregationalist meeting in that city, and was anxious to have the Bishop preach once in the church where he worshiped. He spoke to the pastor, who seemed pleased, and said certainly nothing would gratify him more. A day or two after he saw the local preacher again, who said he had changed his mind as to the matter of allowing the Bishop to preach in his church. It was a known fact that Bishop Andrews was in the city presiding over a colored conference, and he thought if he should allow him to occupy his pulpit the influence would be bad. We would like to know whether it was Christ or caste that led this man to change his mind and not allow the Bishop to preach in his church? If it was caste, we suggest to our Congregational brethren the propriety of of pointing one or two of their guns in that direction for a season.

The Northwestern makes mention of the awful fact that three colored persons were recently murdered near Cincinnati by colored men and their bodies sold to a Medical College for $15. And then in illustration of the maxim "that a doctor must live by his profession even if he makes work" says:

"Some physicians are thought to be careless as to sanitary regulations, and take little pains to prevent the conveyance of infectious germs from one patient to another. It is an ugly thought that some doctors spread disease, but there are few persons of wide experience among the sick who do not believe it. We believe puerperal fever, for instance, is often thus spread. The sanitary authorities put up their red signs to show the outside world that there is "Scarlet fever here," and pupils in the public school, who live in houses infected with this disease are rigidly excluded; but some physicians pass from house to house, unsuspected that their errands to cure are often missions to kill. We occasionally hear about ministerial incompetency, but we tremble at the spectacle presented by the rough and uncultivated crowds in some medical colleges. We hope the happy day will come when the public will make it much more difficult to obtain leave to practice medicine."

We have always taken Chicago to be a very wicked place, but we are astonished beyond measure when we are told "that some of the physicians pass from house to house, unsuspected that their errands to cure are often missions to kill." New Orleans is bad enough, but we are not so far gone as that would indicate. Our doctors belong to the human family.

PERSONAL.

—James, eldest son of Philip Phillips, died at Fredoria, New York.

—Mrs. Mary Brown, widow of John Brown, died in San Francisco on the 29th.

—Bishop Hurst delivered a very effective address at the recent Prohibition State Convention held at Des Moines, Iowa.

—Rev. H. W. White, presiding elder of Lexington District, Lexington Conference, after three weeks of illness, has recovered, and hopes to resume his work in a few days.

—Dr. La Roy Sunderland, of Quincy, Ill., formerly a well-known Methodist preacher and anti-slavery reformer, who is now eighty year old, has recently been made a member of the Society of Science, Letters, and Art in London, and has received a diploma in consideration of his discoveries in psychology and hygiene.

—General Stone (Stone Pasha), who had charge of the Khedive's army in Egypt, will deliver a lecture in the Methodist Episcopal Church in Flushing on the evening of March 5. The General has taken up his residence in Flushing. He is a devout Roman Catholic, but cheerfully gives his lecture, entitled "Egypt and the Soudan," in aid of our church.—New York Advocate.

—The Fort Worth, Texas, Gazette makes mention of one of those pleasant events we love to notice. The friends of Rev. A. A. Johnson, Presiding Elder of the Dallas District, Austin Conference, in token of their appreciation of his services in behalf of the church and the cause of Christian education, have presented him with a fine gold watch and chain. We think that his friends did a nice thing for our brother.

—For some days we have been anxious to get some definite news as to the real condition of our old friend and brother, Rev. J. S. Inskip. In the last issue of the Christian Standard we are assured that he "is improving and sweetly resting." Rev. George Hughes gives a short account of an interview he had with Brother Inskip, and though he was unable to speak he found him jubilant. Brother Hughes says: "I am not without hope that he may rally from this attack, and such is the hope of his attending physician." Personally we owe a debt of gratitude to J. S. Inskip we can never pay. He will live in our memory and love forever.

—The late Dr. S. Wells Williams went out to China half a century ago as a printer in the service of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. He afterward became Secretary of Legation for our Government at the Court of Peking. His influence was very great both with the American ministers and with the Chinese. A man of pure life, of eminent Christian character, and of devotional nature, he never failed to command the respect of his fellow-men. The news of his death will be received by many in China—both foreigners and natives—with sincere regret.—New York Advocate.

—Zion's Herald says: "Fearing that Bishop R. S. Foster, who has been confined to his house for three months with a kind of malarial fever, would not be able to meet his engagement at the People's Church, the pastor obtained the provisional consent of Rev. L. T. Townsend to preach in his place. But the Bishop was not only able to preach, but on no other occasion in New England has he made so profound an impression by his preaching. Inspired by the great audience filling the auditorium to its utmost limit, the Bishop met the expectation of his friends in such a manner as to make the occasion one long to be remembered."

—Hon. W. H. Hunt, the American Minister to Russia, died at St. Petersburg, Russia, Feb. 27, 1884. Mr. Hunt was born in Charleston, S. C., in 1824. He graduated at Yale College, and came direct to New Orleans and commenced the study of law in the office of his brothers, Randell and Theodore. In 1844 he was admitted to practice. In his professional practice he was very successful. At the breaking out of the rebellion he espoused the Union cause, and of necessity withdrew from active life. In 1876 Mr. Kellogg appointed him attorney general. In 1878 President Hayes appointed him to the office of Judge of the Court of Claims. When President Garfield was forming his cabinet he selected Mr. Hunt as the Secretary of the Navy, which position he held until Mr. Arthur came into office, when he was sent as Minister to Russia, in which position he died. Mr. Hunt was married four times. He leaves six sons and one daughter—all of his second marriage. His wife and daughter, and one of his sons who was acting as his secretary, were with him at St. Petersburg when he died. Here in New Orleans Mr. Hunt was regarded as a warm-hearted, genial and gifted gentleman. His remains are to be brought back to this country.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

D. Frison, Anderson: "I was well received by the people, and I have labored to improve the Sunday-school. Elder Pullam held our quarterly conference, and preached to and exhorted the brethren. We ask for prayers for grand work to be done here."

S. S. Riley, Flatonia. "Sabbath-school is doing well. We have 150 or 200 books in the library. The teachers are S. S. Riley, E. Derry and H. Simms."

MISSISSIPPI.

S. Harris, French Camp: "On my second round I collected $2.15. The people are very poor."

LOUISIANA.

W. R. Butler, Columbus: "I reached my work after a two day's ride. People were badly scattered. In one church there was no class-leader. I was welcomed. The people want a safe leader and a better knowledge of the doctrines of our church. We are 60 miles from a railroad. Pray for my success."

At Union Chapel, New Orleans, Bro. Priestley has entered upon his third year under the most encouraging circumstances. He has a united church. The first quarterly conference was all that could be desired. The most perfect harmony prevailed. The reports showed that a good work was going on The collections of the classes were as follows: No. 1, $4.55; No. 2, $9.20; No. 3, $4.10; No. 4, $3.95; No. 5, $3.90; No. 6, $8.90; No. 7, $23.95; No. 8, $5.85; No. 9, $6.75; No. 10, $7.20; No. 11, $6.65; No. 12, $10.40; No. 13, $2.05; No. 14, 65c. The report showed that these leaders had made 911 visits during the quarter, talking and praying with their members. The leaders who reported the most visits reported the largest collections. The leader of class No. 7, with 52 members had made 133 visits, his class collection was $23.95. The leader of class No. 6 had 55 members, had made 44 visits; his class collection was only $8.90. The true service for Jesus consists of the bestowment of our best gifts without regard to their value. If we have anything valuable give it to the Lord, and he will pay back again. All of the time or service we give he will reward us. Our brethren at Union Chapel are not of the fussy, noisy, talkative and debating class. They seem to be swift to hear, slow to speak but strong to do. Rev. Solomon Johnson, a deacon in the A. M. E. Church was present, he had been received into the church by Bro. Priestley. There seemed to be a determination on the part of the members of the quarterly conference to take hold of the Sunday-school work and do what they could to increase its usefulness.

Rev. H. Wright, has been sent back here, as pastor of the colored Methodist church at this place. He has a large and influential congregation among his race, and he is very much liked by all.—Natchitoches Review.

Rev. John Gregory's Misfortune.

MR. EDITOR—I wish the public to know that Bro. John Gregory has lost his mind. Perhaps his friends and relatives would like to know this. Brother Gregory was a local preacher in our church, but his occupation as a barber prevented him from attending church since he moved to this city. He resided formerly in Houston. Last Friday night, between 9 and 10 o'clock, he came to my room and earnestly requested me to baptize him; said he had been baptized in slave times, but never had felt satisfied at the way and manner it was done. Not knowing the circumstances in the case, being urged to grant his request, I did. Afterward he told me that I had saved him; said God told him to come to me and tell me to fit him up to go preach, and if I didn't do it God would kill him. I tried to quiet him, to little or no purpose. Sunday morning at the Sunday school, he refused to let the children go when they had been dismissed. Now I felt quite sure this dear brother had lost his mind. At three o'clock I had reached the middle of a funeral sermon, when he arrived, rushed into the pulpit with rapid, long strides, and tossed his hat and walking cane aside and took charge of the pulpit. Failing to quiet him, the brethren led him out of the pulpit. I told them to deal gently with him; that I was now fully convinced in my own mind that this poor brother was severely afflicted with loss of mind. Early this morning he was arrested and lodged in jail, as the paper states, for his own safety and that of others. Poor Brother Gregory, may he soon recover.

Yours Truly,

M. HENSON.

Little Rock Conference Report.

To the Bishop and Conference:

We, the Committee on Books and Periodicals, beg leave to report: That the Christian press under God next to the pulpit, is the mightiest weapon in the hands of the Church for the overthrow of sin and Satan, for the promotion of Christianity and Scriptural holiness.

One of the grandest and most efficient departments of the Christian press is that under the care and management of the Book Concern of the M. E. Church; therefore be it

Resolved, 1st, That we continue our unqualified support to the spread of healthy Christian literature among all our people, and that we commend and urge upon their favorable consideration the adoption and use in churches and Sabbath schools of the publications of our Book Concern.

Resolved, 2d, That we congratulate the Rev. L. P. Cushman, Editor, and Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B. D., Assistant Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, upon their vigorous and successful management of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Resolved, 3d, That we fully endorse its tone and policy, and that, re-adopting it as our official organ, we pledge ourselves to faithfully use every effort for its larger circulation among our people.

Special Invitation.

One of the official circulars of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church contains the following paragraph:

It is the desire of the Board to maintain pleasant and continuous relations with those whom it aids or has aided. It, therefore, proposes to send its printed reports and other documents to those whose post-office address is duly furnished for that purpose. It also hopes to find in each such person an active promoter of its interests, and will be pleased to be furnished with interesting incidents of their lives for the encouragement of others.

Being now about to issue very important documents preparatory to the Children's Day of our centenary year, an examination of our books has been made, from which it appears that we lack the present address of not less than 200 persons of the more than 1,000 who have received aid from our funds since 1873.

Our special invitation, therefore, is addressed to all such persons, requesting them forthwith to send us their present post-office address in letters (when possible) rather than on postal cards.

N. B.—1. Members of Annual Conferences whose names are printed in the official minutes for 1883, and students now attending any institutions of the Church, are not included in this invitation.

2. Teachers, ministers, and others knowing any of the persons referred to, are requested to call their attention to the present invitation.

Address, REV. D. P. KIDDER,
Cor. Sec., 805 Broadway, New York.

Memorial of the Louisiana Educational Society.

The following has been adopted and ordered forwarded by President Louis T. Bush:

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

We beg leave to lay before you, on behalf of the State of Louisiana, the following statement of facts, and to submit this memorial.

The report of the Superintendent of Public Education of the city of New Orleans for 1881 showed a total school population (six to eighteen years of age) of 61,456; a total enrollment in the public schools of the city of 24,401, and an average daily attendance in December and January (which were the months of largest attendance) of 17,135.

Although the number of educable children has largely increased since then, the superintendent reports for January, 1884, the enrollment to be only 14,482, with an average attendance of 11,070.

With an allowance of 10,000, in private and parochial schools (which is a large estimate) we still have 36,974 children in New Orleans receiving no educational instruction whatever.

The census of 1880 showed an average attendance of 15,190 (which included the months of most meagre and the largest attendance). Thus you will see at a glance the large decrease in the number being educated, although the population is steadily increasing.

A corresponding retrogression exists throughout the State, and it may be safely affirmed that of the 273,845 school population of Louisiana (census of 1880), not more than 30 per cent of them attend either public, private or parochial schools.

In the fifteen Southern States, including the District of Columbia, the census of 1880 shows that there are 2,702,835 (white and black) of the 5,703,216 school population, not enrolled in schools, and notwithstanding the efforts made by the people of these States, and the generous contributions from private sources in the North for educational purposes, the number of children unenrolled in the schools, and the illiterates continue to increase.

The State and city have done much toward public education, but the illiterates are such a large proportion of the population, and poverty is so wide-spread, that the taxable property cannot bear such a burden as must necessarily be imposed to provide for and sustain public schools.

We are aware that in so far as ignorance is the source of pauperism, crime and a want of thrift, the State is chiefly interested and the Federal Government indirectly only, but there is a common ground on which Federal and State interests meet and blend. Good government is necessary for both, and it is equally the duty of both to see that the citizen is made capable of performing the duties of citizenship intelligently, fearlessly, honestly. Said one: "Honest enough, brave enough and keen enough to resist corruption, defy violence and defeat fraud."

Both are alike interested in making the masses of the people sufficiently intelligent to understand what constitutes the greatest good for the greatest number; and to comprehend also the converse of the proposition; that the good of the greatest number is the highest and best interest of the individual citizen.

We believe that the very life of the republic and the preservation of the liberty it vouchsafes depend upon the intelligence of its people, the universal education of its citizens. That as their illiteracy increases, so do the dangers to our country multiply.

In the words of Senator Blair: "Education, physical, intellectual and moral, is the primal necessity." The fathers and founders of our government so considered it. They thought that a republic could stand only in the intelligence and virtue of its citizens.

Our danger is imminent and increasing. France in 1870 realized that it was not the needle gun, but educated Germany which so quickly brought her to defeat and submission. She was taught a bitter lesson by which she is now profiting. Since then she has largely increased her taxation for public schools, made elementary schooling free, and attendance compulsory. Let her history teach us to educate our children, be they white or black.

But this can only be done with the liberal aid of the national government, and unless it comes to our assistance the condition of our educational work must grow steadily worse.

We appeal to Congress for that help—and for the very life of the government.

We believe that a very large sum is necessary to meet the great need of the country. A bill before Congress proposes to give $15,000,000 for the first year, and to decrease the appropriation $1,000,000 each year during a period of ten years, dividing it according to the number of illiterates in each State.

We trust that some such measures may meet your approval. Some such measures are necessary to stay and roll back the tide of illiteracy in this and other States of the South, which now finds no barriers strong enough to resist it. We believe it to be the duty of Congress to make some such appropriation, and on behalf of our State we ask it to do so.

Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, declared the necessity for and the importance of public education. Said the latter in his inaugural address of 1817: "Let us by all wise and constitutional measures promote intelligence among the people, as the best means of preserving our liberties."

Presidents Grant, Hayes, Garfield and Arthur have severally recommended it, and President Garfield said: "All the constitutional power of the nation and of the States should be summoned to meet the danger by the saving influence of universal education."

With our poverty upon us and dangers before us, we appeal to Congress to do all that can constitutionally be done to aid in the education of our youth, so that we may read the fruits of industry, integrity and intelligence.

The Daily Christian Advocate.

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest It is the closing General Conference of the first Century of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-extended work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religious bodies, some of them from beyond the sea, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, (representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demands of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerous pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received up to the hour of going to press.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, extending through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value, as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issued at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May, 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issued on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an ample and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough canvass of their congregations. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

The Housekeeper.

COOKIES.—Take one heaping cup of sugar, twelve tablespoons of melted butter, six tablespoons of hot water and a teaspoon of soda Mix quickly, with flour enough to roll; roll thin, and bake in quick oven on well-greased tins; keep in a stone jar.

APPLE PUDDING.—An excellent pudding is made of tart apples stewed, and then put in layers with fine cracker or bread crumbs. While the apples are still hot stir sugar and a little butter in with them. This should be baked for half an hour. A little sweet cream is a good addition, but it is good without any sauce.

ABOUT TOMATO SOUP.—Tomato soup with beef stock instead of milk is very appetizing; to one quart of stock allow one pint and a half of stewed tomatoes which you have sweetened and salted to your taste; add an onion sliced, which may be removed before serving the soup. Let the soup simmer gently and not boil hard.

CORN BREAD.—Proportions—First, half pound butter; second, half pound sugar; third, one dozen eggs; fourth, two quarts milk; fifth, two pounds white Indian meal; sixth, one pound flour and two and a half ounces Royal Baking Powder. Mix the above ingredients one after an other as they are numbered, and be sure and mix the baking powder in with the flour before putting it in the mixture. Bake in small moulds or in a square pan, in a hot oven.—Christian Mugwl, Pavilion Hotel, Islip L. I.

BONNE FEMME SOUP.—Cut a thin slice [illegible] pan with a good allowance of butter. Take care not to let the onion get brown, and when it is half done throw in two or three handsful of sorrel, one lettuce and a small quantity of chervil, all finely cut; add pepper, salt, a little nutmeg, and keep stirring until the vegetables are nearly done. Then put in two tablespoonfuls of pounded loaf sugar and half a cup of stock or broth free from fat. Let the mixture reduce nearly to a glaze, when about a quart of stock or broth of the same kind as that used before should be added, and after the soup has given one boil it can be put aside until the time of serving. Meanwhile prepare about a dozen and a half very thin slices of bread about one inch wide and two inches long, take care that they have a crust along one of their sides. Dry these slices in the oven. When it is time to send up the soup first remove the superfluous fat from it then set it to boil, and when it boils take it off the fire and stir into it the yolks of two or three eggs beaten up with a quarter of a pint of cream or milk. Pour the soup over the slices of bread and serve in three minutes.

ANTS.—A correspondent of the Tropical Agriculturalist says: "Take a white china plate, and spread a thin covering of common lard over it. Place it on the shelf or other place infested by the troublesome insects. You will be pleased with the result. Stirring up every morning is all that is need to set the trap again."

OYSTER STUFFING FOR ROAST TURKEY.—Grate as much good stale bread as will fill the turkey, season it well with butter, worked into the bread, salt, pepper, and a little summer savory. Moisten it slightly with oyster liquor, and add as many oysters to it as you choose. Stuff the turkey and roast it in the usual way. Serve the thickened and strained gravy with oyster sauce with it. A turkey weighing seven or eight pounds should cook at least three hours, and a very large turkey should cook at least four. Baste every five minutes.

BONE FELON.—The London Lancet tells how to cure a bone felon. As soon as it is felt put a drop of ammonia over the spot a fly blister the size of your thumb nail. Let it remain for six hours, at the expiration of which time directly under the surface of the blister may be seen the felon, which can instantly be taken out with the point of a needle.

AN INSTANT REMEDY FOR POISONING.—If a person swallows any poison whatever, or has fallen into convulsions from having over-loaded his stomach, an instantaneous remedy is a heaping teaspoonful of common salt and as much ground mustard stirred rapidly in a tea cup of water, warm or cold, and swallowed instantly. It is scarcely down before it begins to come up bringing with it the remaining contents of the stomach; and lest there be any remnant of poison, however, let the white of an egg or a tea cup of strong coffee be swallowed as soon as the stomach is quiet; because these very common articles nullify a large number of virulent poisons.

A Cure For Small-Pox.

"I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man, wrote Edward Hine to the Liverpool Mercury, upon the statement that the worst case of small-pox can be cured in three days simply by the use of cream of tartar. One ounce of cream of tartar dissolved in a pint of water, drank at intervals when cold, is a certain, never-failing remedy. It has cured thousands, never leaves a mark, never causes blindness, and avoids tedious lingering."

To Consumptives.

"Golden Medical Discovery" is a concentrated, potent alterative, or blood-cleansing remedy, that wins golden opinions for all who use it for any humor, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the formidable scrofulous swelling or ulcer. Internal fever, soreness and ulceration, yield to its benign influences. Consumption, which is but a scrofulous affection of the lungs, may, in its early stages, be cured by a free use of this God-given remedy. See article on consumption and its treatment in Part III of the World's Dispensary Dime Series of pamphlets, costs two stamps, post-paid. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Birmingham is still on the boom. New blocks constantly going up, new business houses appearing in gorgeous array. To this city are coming multitudes of eager minds—eager for the wealth of her unlimited resources, eager for the benediction of her moral, social, political, educational advantages. Some meet with disappointment as do men in other lands of search. What we mostly need at present is a first class college. As it is our young men are obliged to go abroad for acquiring knowledge of the sciences, &c. We hope the fundamental principles (proper education) of success in both private and public life will receive immediate and due attention from the the moneyed men of our advancing city.—Weekly Review.

A Wonderful Substance!

The results which are attending the administration by Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, of their Vitalizing Remedy for Chronic diseases, give new surprises to both patients and physicians every day. Nothing like these results has heretofore been known in the treatment of disease. If you have any ailment about which you are concerned, write to them for information about their new Treatment and it will be promply furnished.

Hundreds of colored people are leaving South Carolina. The M. E. conference, at Sumter appointed a committee to investigate the causes of the exodus, and to protest against the policy of the colored people so often changing their homes.

Cured When Physicians Give up.

"Our family physinian gave up our child to die," wrote Henry Knee, Esq., of Verilla, Warren, Co., Tenn. It had fits. Samaritan Nervine has cured the child.

My Evening Star.

BY MRS. LOIS CORNELL.

At eventide I saw a star
Well known and much admired.
Its sun had just retired,
And I could see afar
Its glory-gate ajar.

My star in youth I'd chosen well,
The light of my life's morning.
And then serenely dawning
As now when anthems swell,
"Beloved, it is well."

My star on earth I see no more,
It passed the valley's shade,
And now shall never fade
In radiant distance o'er
The blissful azure shore.

Be thou my star at day's decline,
Dear Savior of my soul.
The gleaming of the goal
Along my pathway 'll shine
With evening light divine.

The Copiah County Case.

The testimony thus far taken by the Senate sub committee in New-Orleans tends to show that a veritable reign of terror prevailed in Copiah County, Miss., before the last election. The shot-gun policy was in full blast, and there is no room for doubt as to the political character of the outrages that were unquestionably committed. As Senator Hoar remaked the other day, it is an insult to intelligence to assume that there are two sides to such a case. The leaders of the Republican and Independent movement, including the Matthews brothers, appeared to have been among the most respectable men in the county. The sole offense of the murdered Matthews was his determination to exercise the political rights which are the heritage of every American citizen. He had been warned by the Hazlehurst mob not to vote, and he was shot down in the most cold-blooded manner at the polls by a man who had professed to be his friend and had shared the hospitalities of his home.

The murder of Matthews was but the culminating incident of a canvass that had been characterized throughout brutal violence and intimidation by an armed mob. Negroes have been whipped and shot and driven into the woods in mortal terror. Meetings had been broken up and threats of bloodshed had been made as a means of carrying the election. These hideous barbarities had been countenanced and encouraged by prominent Bourbons; including Congressman Barksdale and the editor of the leading local newspaper. The only excuse that was or can be given is that the Independent and Republican movement had become so strong as to have a prospect of success in Copiah County, and the Bourbons were determined to maintain their ascendency at whatever cost. Nor can it be pretended that the intelligence and character of the county were on the Bourbon side, for the Independent leaders compared most favorably with the red-handed cut-throats who succeeded in carrying the election and making a burlesque of local self-government.

There can be no manner of justification or extenuation for the outrages in Copiah County, and it will be an act of folly for Democrats in Congress or elsewhere to endeavor to defend them. By doing so they will assume a terrible responsibility, for it is in the power of the Democratic Party of the country to do much toward repressing such exhibitions of barbarism in the South. They are revolting to every sense of humanity and political decency, and a party that is willing to profit by them deserves nothing but condemnation from a free people. Men of Mississippi especially ought to denounce them and do everything in their power to prevent their repetition, for they cannot fail to work a lasting injury to the State.

It is not easy to see what the National Government can do to remedy the evil, which is an outgrowth of a state of society and the character of a people which have been brutalized by generations of slavery. In the national elections the Government has the right and the power to defend citizens in the exercise of their privileges and to punish the violation of national laws, but it cannot intervene to compel a barbarous community to conform to the methods of civilization. It is well to have such cases as this investigated and to have the facts laid before the people. The public sentiment of the county may at least be aroused and the forces of progress and civilization may receive an impetus even in the benighted communities of the interior of Mississippi. If the enlightened and order-loving North should insist that any political party which is capable of resorting to such means of establishing its power anywhere and under any circumstances, or which countenances and defends such atrocities, is unfit to be trusted with the administration of national affairs, the responsibity for keeping alive the sectional issue will lie with those who insist on disgracing the institutions of a free republic.—New York Times.

What it Did For an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 18, 1878.

GENTS—A number of people had been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In one case, a lady of over seventy years, had been sick for years, and for the past ten years has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles away, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbors, and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use. W. B. HATHAWAY.

A Michigan girl told her young man that she would never marry him until he was worth $10,000. So he started out with a brave heart to make it. "How are you getting on, George?" she asked at the expiration of a couple of months. "Well," George said, hopefully, "I have saved $22." The girl dropped her eyelashes, and blushingly remarked: "I reckon that's near enough, George."

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this pader. n44-14t

What will you think of your beautiful wife thirty years from now?—that is the question," says Mgr. Capel. "Oh; bless you, Monsignor, she'll be all right. The conundrum is What will she think of us?"

We need a party whose chief planks shall be, equal rights, temperance laws, legislation in the interests of farmers and working men, abolishment of chaingangs and convict leasing, first class public schoolss.—Atlanta Elevator.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. je14-1y

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to inquire for my people. My mother, a sister and brother were brought to Tennessee from Virginia. Mother is Mickie Abbott, and sister was Betty Abbott. Mother's children were Pompey and Dolly. We are here together. Father was James Henry Flood. I have not seen him in 34 years. Mother belonged to Ben Abbott, near Lynchburg, Virginia. I am the son of Mickey Abbott and may be addressed at Jasper, Tennessee.

POMPEY BROOKS.

Mr. Joseph Means, of Columbus, Miss., wishes to find the whereabouts of his sister and three daughters, who were taken from here by Prof. Rob. Means some time before the war. His sister's name was Millia Means, and his daughters were Annie, Phillis and Louisa Means. The last we heard from them they were with Mr. Jno. Pickett, Shreveport, La. Any information will be thankfully received by Mr. Joseph Means, Columbus, Miss., who married Char. Blewett. L. L. SHUMPERT.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my brother. The last time I saw him was in McKinley, Ala., in 1867; he went from there to Mobile and thence to New Orleans. I have not heard from him since. His name is Henry Smith, but is sometimes called Henry Clay Smith. He used to belong to Mr. Martin Smith, in McKinley, Ala. Address me at Bastrop, La. ARMSTEAD SMITH.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me to inquire for my relatives. My mother's name was Tina; she belonged to a man named Thompson D. White, who lived near Brownsville, Tenn. She had six children, viz: Phoebe, Judy, Mary Eliza, William, Elijah and myself, Bob—three girls and three boys. Sister Phoebe, the eldest, was sold in 1845 or 1846, I don't know who to. In 1847, my brother Elijah and I were sold to Shugars McElmore, who took us to Holly Springs, Miss., where he sold my brother to a farmer and me to a trader, who brought me to Texas. I have never heard from any of my relative since the sale at Holly Springs. Address me at Davilla, Milam county, Texas.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

"I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, two years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, and TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have cleaned me out nicely. My appetite is splendid, food digests readily, and I now have natural passages. I feel like a new man." W. D. EDWARDS, Palmyra, O.

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION.
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Bound in cloth, gilt, 272 pages, and portrait. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price, 60 cents.

The new council of Salt Lake City Utah, elected under the Edmunds law is composed of defiant polygamists Mormons who rejoice in their iniquity.

The City Council of Atlanta has adopted an ordinance that no convict labor shall be employed on any piece of work contracted to be done for the city.

The Supreme Court of New Jersey ordered a mandamus to issue against the Trustees of the Union District School of Burlington for refusing to admit the children of a colored man named Pierce in May last.

The Straightout Republicans of Virginia, propose to put an electoral ticker in the field, if the Mahone delegation is seated in the National convention.

An election in Norfork, Va., on the 21st for a State Senator and two delegates resulted in the election of Coalitionists. This is looked upon as important, as it breaks the Democratic two-thirds majority in the State Legislature.

For the guidance and warning of navigators, the Government maintains 755 light-houses and beacons on the sea and lake coasts, besides 972 beacons on the Western rivers. There are 29 lightships anchored or moored at spots where it is impossible to lay the foundations for brick or iron towers.

No fewer than 30,000 women make a living in Paris by the production of artificial flowers, and the majority of them are said by an admirer to be real artists, imitating nature almost to perfection. At present there are many of these women out of work, owing in part to flowers being out of fashion and partly to competition in England, Germany and America.

It is believed that Arabi will be back in Egypt before long, the views held by him for the permanent improvement of his county being identical with those of Gen. Gordon. The latter thoroughly believes in Arabi, and never conceals his opinion. He subscribed to the fund raised for his defence.

The National Greenback Committee voted to hold the Convention for the nomination of President and Vice-President at Indianapolis on May 28. There was no meeting of the committee, the decision being reached by correspondence. The call is issue by Jesse Harper, of Danville, Ill., Chairman, and Lee Crandall, of New-York, Secretary. There is a general sentiment in favor of Butler for President.

The Portuguese appear determined not to let their supremacy, always more nominal than real, in Central and Southern Africa be destroyed without a struggle. A good deal of useless mystery has surrounded the preparations in Lisbon for an African exploring and commercial expedition, patronized by the Government, and more especially by the Ministry of Marine. The expedition will be commanded by an officer of the general staff, Enrique de Carvalho, who knows the country well, and his instruction are to make new and strengthen old alliances with the Portugese Government, especially in the rich province or kingdom of Angola, estimated to contain between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 inhabitants. The merchants of Oporto are expected to help in the work.

Pamphlets.

Devin L. Hall, [illegible], N. Y., offers "Have [illegible] troubles."

Thousands Hastened to their Graves!

Relying on testimonials written in vivid glowing language of some miraculous cures made by some largely puffed up doctor or patent medicine has hastened thousands to their graves; believing in their almost insane faith that the same miracle will be performed on them, and that these testimonials make the cures, while the so-called medicine is all the time hastening them to their graves. We have avoided publishing testimonials, as they do not make the cures, although we have.

THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS of them, of the most wonderful cures, voluntarily sent us. It is our medicine, Hop Bitters that makes the cures. It has never failed and never can. We will give reference to any one for any disease similar to their own if desired, or will refer to any neighbor, as there is not a neighborhood in the known world but can show its cures by Hop Bitters.

A LOSING JOKE.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill-health, and of his inability to cure her, jokingly said: "Try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.

FEES OF DOCTORS

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe."

GIVEN UP BY THE DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die, from Kidney and Liver trouble."

Sometimes we can only sing a psalm, or offer a prayer, or speak a kind word, or give a tender look, or a warm grasp of the hand. It is enough in the eyes of the just Saviour that we do things as little as these, if these should be the only things we can do. A young lady who had been thrown from a carriage was ill in bed for ten years; but her hands were free, and with her free hands she knit little gloves for poor children. It was only helping to keep warm some little fingers that would, otherwise, have been very cold in winter. But it was all she was able to do, and it was done with a loving heart, and as a service of the Lord. No one is so humble, or poor, or weak, as not to be able to do something. Even a child can serve the Lord.—

A Fortune

may be made by hard work, but can neither be made nor enjoyed without health. To those leading sedentary lives Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a real friend. It stimulates the liver, purifies the blood, and is the best remedy for consumption, which is scrofulous disease of the lungs. By all druggists.

The first drink makes a man feel anxious for the second; the second brings a smile to his face; the third has a volnble effect; the fourth, he is still more sociable; the fifth produces dignity; the sixth a stern expression of countenance that means beware; the seventh, he becomes pugilistic; the eighth, he fights and gets thrashed, and all subsequent drinks have no effect but to delay the hour of sobriety.

The New York Tribune says: "It is a fact of some little interest that the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans was not celebrated in the city where the battle was fonght. The day was a legal holiday, and the banks were closed; but we have the word of the local papers for it that there was nothing to show that it was the sixty-eight anniversary of Jackson's famous victory. In former days it was the grandest of all the holidays in that city. It is said that there are hundreds of persons still living there who heard the noise of the fight, and many in fact who took part in it, which can easily be, seeing that it occurred less than seventy years ago. This was certainly a strange example of popular indifference to historic memories."

The Church will be glad to know that the wisdom of placing the support of the Bishops upon the churches has been amply vindicated by the result. For the quadrennium, so near its close, the collections from the Churches will be sufficient to meet the entire Episcopal claim. No mortifying deficiency will be reported at Philadelphia next May. This shows the estimation in which our people hold our Episcopacy as an institution, and our Bishops as their chief pastors. And surely if abundant labors, and fidelity to a great trust, and efficiency in a work demanding much wisdom, be worthy of commendation, that estimation is not misplaced.—Pittsburg Advocate.

The temperance work of the South goes bravely on. Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith and Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson have gone to attend W. C. T. U. conventions in Georgia, Alabama, Louisana, and Flordia; Miss Henrietta G. Moore, of Ohio, to help organize, and Mrs. Angela O. Davis, of Cincinnati, a most magnetic speaker, is working in Alabama in the interests of the W. C. T. U. Thus the best gifts are the brought to altar and the hearts of the dear women everywhere are awakening to labor for the salvation of home.—Union Signal.

A learned Bostonian writes: "Although the Indians did not know how to swear when the white man came, they soon learned to swear and had sufficient words in their language for the purpose. Eliot, in the Indian Bible, used the Indian word Osh (my father) for Creator, etc., and the early missionaries when addressing the Indians, used Gosh, (your father). The Indians soon saw that that was the necessary word for profanity and adopted it. Gosh is used to some extent now, and perhaps some pious people who say 'gosh' are not aware that it is downright swearing in the Indian language."

The fact is, our literature is cheap, dogged cheap, books, papers, all, and if our people are not a reading people it is their own fault.—Pittsburgh Advocate.

DR. SCOTT'S ELECTRIC CORSETS AND BELTS.

NEW PRICES $1.00, 1.50, 2.00, 3.00

A GREAT SUCCESS.

SENT POST-PAID ON TRIAL.

A GOOD Live Canvassing Agt. wanted in your town for these splendidly advertised and best selling goods in the market. Liberal pay. Quick sales. Satisfaction guaranteed. Apply at once.

N. B.—Each Corset is stamped with the English coat-of-arms and the name of the Proprietors, THE PALL MALL ELECTRIC ASSOCIATION.

WHY EVERY MAN AND WOMAN, WELL OR ILL, SHOULD DAILY WEAR EITHER THE CORSET OR THE BELT.

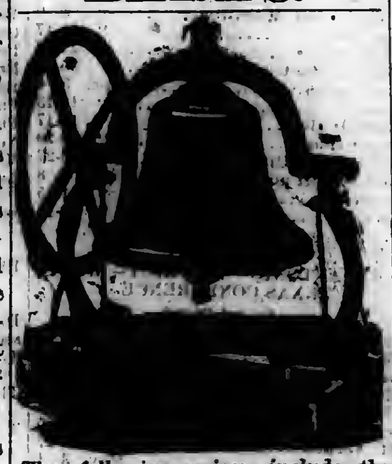
Probably never, since the invention of Corsets, has so large a demand been created as now exists for Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets and Belts. Over 3000 families in the city of New York alone are now wearing them daily.

If you have any pain, ache, or ill feeling from any cause, if you seem "pretty well," yet lack energy and do not "feel up to the mark," if you suffer from disease, we beg you to at once try these remarkable curatives. They cannot and do not injure like medicine. Always doing good, never harm. There is no shock or sensation felt in wearing them. There is no waiting a long time for results. Electro-magnetism acts quickly; generally the first week, more frequently the first day, and often even during the first hour they are worn, their wonderful curative powers are felt.

The mind becomes active, the nerves and sluggish circulation are stimulated, and all the old-time health and good feeling come back. They are constructed on scientific principles, imparting an exhilarating, health-giving current to the whole system. Why electro-magnetism has this remarkable power on the human body, science has not yet fully demonstrated, but professional men assert that there is hardly a disease which Electricity or Magnetism may not benefit or cure, and they daily practice the same, as your own physician will inform you.

The Celebrated Dr. W. A. HAMMOND, of New York, formerly Surgeon-General of the U. S. Army, lately lectured upon this subject, and advised all medical men to make trial of these agents, describing at the same time most remarkable cures he had made, even in cases which would seem hopeless.

The corsets do not differ in appearance from those usually worn, as we substitute our flat steel magnetods in place of the ordinary corset steels. They are all equally charged, differing only in quality and design. They are elegant in shape and finish, made after the best French pattern, and warranted satisfactory in every respect. Those who have tried them say they will wear no others. Most of the above applies equally well to the Electric Belt for gentlemen.



The prices are as follows: $1, $1.50, $2, and $3, for the Corsets, and $3.00 each for the Belts. We now make all these goods in Dove and White only. They are sent out in a handsome box, accompanied by a silver-plated compass, by which the Electro-Magnetic influence can be tested. We will send either kind to any address, post-paid, on receipt of price, with 20c. added for packing and registration, and we guarantee safe delivery into your hands. Remit in P. O. Money Order, Draft, Check, or in Currency by Registered Letter. In ordering, kindly mention this publication and state exact size of Corset usually worn, or, where the size is not known, take a measurement of the waist over the linen. This can be done with a piece of common string, which send with your order. Make all remittances payable to

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON X. March 9. PAUL AT CORINTH. (Acts xviii, 1—17.)

Paul went from Athens, soon after his great sermon on Mars Hill, to Corinth, the head city of that region. It was a large, rich and wicked city. Paul found there a Jew, Aquila, and his wife, Priscilla. They had lately come from Italy, because the emperor had ordered all Jews to leave Rome. This command was very cruel but the Jews have been treated in the same way several times. Once, thousands of them were compelled to leave pleasant homes in southern Spain within a certain number of days, by the Roman Catholic king Ferdinand. As Paul was a Jew, and they worked at the same trade, tent-making, he stayed at Aquila's house. Among the Israelites parents were expected to see that their children were taught some trade. It was a great advantage to Paul, as he traveled on missionary journeys, that he could earn his own living as a mechanic. On Sundays he went to the Jewish Church and talked about Jesus, but the Jews would not believe what he said about Christ being the true Savior of men, and talked very roughly and wickedly to him, so he concluded he could do more good by preaching to the Gentiles. A man named Justus lived next door to the synagogue. He let Paul and all who wanted to hear Paul preach come into his house, and there Paul went on telling the people about Jesus. A revival began, and many of the Corinthians joined Paul's new Christian Church. One day the Jews raised a mob and took Paul before the proconsul Gallio. When [illegible] Paul had not been [illegible] to drove the mob of Jews away, and was very much out of patience because they had troubled him when there was no need of it. At another time when Paul was discouraged, Jesus spoke to him in the night and told him not to be afraid; that he was with him and would not let any one hurt him. He also told him just to go on and preach the Gospel; so he stayed in Corinth a year and a half.

MARRIAGES.

February 3d, in the church, Dick Spencer to Gracie Wynes. On 13th, at the res[idence] of the bride, Lewis Carrington [illegible] Gandy: also, on the 14th, George [illegible] to Nancy Estes. We wish them a [illegible] life.

I. B. GRIFFIN.

[illegible]ville, Mississippi.

[illegible] Gardner, Tenn., Feb. 17, Mr. Tony [illegible] to Miss Eveline Featherston, both [illegible] members. May God bless them [illegible] many happy days.

J. L. MASSEY.

DEATHS.

In this city, Feb. 13th, Martha Perce, after passing through a long and severe spell of sickness, died in full hope of everlasting rest. She found Christ a precious and forgiving Savior during the long and [illegible] months of her sickness, and was [illegible] the day before she fell asleep in [illegible]. Our prayers and sympathies go [illegible] to the sorrowful ones left behind. [illegible] have passed from this home during [illegible] in this city.

S. A. COWEN.

[illegible] Springs, Miss.

Sarah Cephas died in Carrollton, Feb. [illegible] having testimony of her conversion [illegible] reconciliation with her Redeemer. She was a member of Clinton Street Church and Sabbath School.

Sister Betsey McClay died in Marlin, Texas, January 25, 1884. Sister McClay was an earnest, active Christian, loved and respected by all who were acqnainted with her. She leaves a kind husband and six children to mourn her loss. May the Lord sustain them in their great trial.

D. HUMPHREYS.

A citizen of the Quaker City, Mr. F. Freed, living at 122 Vine St., recently spoke as follows: "Being afflicted with a distressing cough, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup was recommended to me for relief. I am happy to say that a few doses not only gave me instant relief, but effected a complete cure."

NEW BOOKS.

ANIMAL AUTOMATISM, and Other Essays. By Thomas Henry Huxley, F.R. S. New York, J. Fitzgerald, 20 Lafayette Place. Price 20c.

This is No. 53 of the Humboldt Library, and contains five essays: 1. On the Hypothesis that Animals are Automata, and its History. 2. Science and Culture. 3. Elementary Instruction in Physiology. 4. On the Border Territory between Animals and the Vegetable Kingdom. 5. Universities, actual and ideal. For sale by newsdealers or the publisher.

TEA AND COFFEE: Their Physical, Intellectual, and Moral Effects on the Human System. By Dr. A. Alcott, with notes and additions by Nelson Sizer, author of "Forty Years in Phrenology," "How to Teach," "Choice of Pursuits," etc. 16mo, 118 pages; paper, price 25 cents. Fowler & Wells, Publishers, 753 Broadway, New York.

Dr. Alcott's work on the use of Tea and Coffee, first published many years ago, has done much to call attention to the effects of the use of these articles. Part First opens with the history of tea, showing its properties. The origin of the use of coffee is also given, with its effect both on the body and the mind. It is the opinion of eminent authority, that even a moderate use of these articles produces diseased conditions; and we would recommend those who are using either of the above articles with the thought that they are not harmed, and also those who have not acquired the habit, to procure this little work and read what is said on the subject. The publishers will send it on receipt of price, 25 cents, in postage-stamps.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The editors of St. Nicholas are gratifying the spirit of adventure and heroism which all boys have (and which is appealed to by the blood and thunder style of literature,) by furnishing sketches of "Historic Boys,"—some as wonderful as fiction, and all true. Papers giving the boyhood of Marcus Aurelius, Harry of Monmouth, afterward Henry V., and Giovanni of Florence, afterward Pope Leo X., have appeared in late numbers of the magazine. Among the others promised are: The Boy-Viking (Olaf of Norway); The Boy-Crusader (Baldwin of Jerusalem); and The Boy-Chieftain (Brian of Munster.) Had the boys of this series died before manhood they still would worthily rank as Historic Boys.

From its inception, The Current has had sincere and patriotic pride in an earnest effort to give opportunity, voice and place to the work of Southern writers, realizing that out of this splendid field were certain to be developed some of the brightest writers of our time. That the response to this cordial out reaching has been extraordinary, is evidenced by the remarkable literary fact that, of the nineteen contributors to The Current of March 1, eleven are Southern writers.

Electra for March opens with a paper on Monteagle, the Southern Chantauqua, and is followed by tempting literary selections.

The March Outing and Wheelman has a snow scene for a frontispiece, and a mixture of winter and summer in its contents. The leaves from Mr. Chadbonrne's Journal of his entomological studies on a bicycling tour give a solid modicum of science to the number, set off by butterfly pictures. Outing has a broad and attractive field, and one that is steadily gaining attention from the public. It is filling it increasingly well.

Our Little Men and Women (Boston: D. Lothrop & Co.,) for March has "Tommy and the Donkey," and a number of little stories and fine pictures.

The Power of Electricity.

We refer our readers to the very large and handsome advertisement of Dr. Geo. A. Scott in this issue. The Doctor is now selling Electric Corsets and Belts at the usual price for the same articles without the Electric qualities, which alone is worth the price asked. Medicinally it acts magically, relieving sufferers without their being cognizant of its working. See advertisement for further details.

Conference Notices.

Ye Must Be Born Again

Ask a Roman Catholic if he is born again, and his reply is, "What do you mean!!

WANTED!

FIVE THOUSAND BIBLES,

To place in the hands of Roman Catholics in Chicago.

Inducing Catholics to read the Holy Scriptures is the only way; under God, to prevail on them to accept Jesus Christ as a personal Savior.

No power on earth could, in any manner, be necessary to my conversion, had I not read the Word for myself, one year ago.

My experience of one year is, that all Catholics whom I approach will give me their undivided attention while I read passages for them from the Bible. They are astonished beyond measure, and say, "My God! how is it that we have been so blind?"

I visit my Catholic brethren at their homes; they introduce me to their friends, In this way I get their confidence. I read and pray with them.

My Irish name commends me to numbers of my countrymen of the intelligent class, and is a great help in my endeavors to bring the gospel to this warm-hearted and generous people.

Will you assist me in this noble and holy cause? Yours, in Christ,

R. H. MOLONEY.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250 000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $.50,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Bates F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of rich subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

Episcopal Methodism is on dress parade this year, celebrating her centennial as an organized body. The church exhibits her glorious history in no brighter light than in that of present achievements. Let every Methodist stand in line.

The Central Christian Advocate of March 5th has nearly three columns of condensed revival news. May the flame spread East and West, North and South, till all our pastors can speak of special revivals. The church needs to be endowed with power from on high.

In a lecture in Baltimore Rev. Henry Ward Beecher said that among the Mormons, numbering 250,000, not an Irishman or Irish woman could be found, though many other nations were represented. He does not think that legislation will remedy the Mormon evil, but missionaries will.

Rev. O. H. Smith, the presiding elder of the Little Rock district, Little Rock conference is a transfer from the Indiana conference from whence he came last year upon Bishop Hurst's transfer. Bro. Smith is a graduate of the Asbury University, in Indiana, and has been connected with the Methodist ministry for the last twenty years. During the years of his ministry he has served seven years as principal of the Rockport Collegiate Institute, and six years at the Thorntown Academy in Indiana. With his scholarly attainments, his experience, and his general adaptability to our work, his presence among our people in Arkansas is bound to be of great value in building up our work there. We wish you much success, Bro. Smith.

Rev. H. W. Bennett, of Upper Iowa, writing to the Northwestern makes the following pleasant mention of the Louisiana Annual Conference:

I was proud of the Louisiana conference. These colored men have spanned a mighty chasm. They presented themselves in conference with about the same tardiness that the white man does, and they transacted business inteligently and expeditiously. They looked, acted, and talked well, exceedingly well. They are a great prophecy for the state. They are not perfect; in fact, it occurs to me that there are some white conferences not yet attained unto this grace. They surprised and pleased me, and gave me some enthusiasm for our Freedman's Aid society. The Louisiana conference in mixed, and so ought all our conferences to be; that is, there should be no division on a color line. On the floor of God's house we are all brethren. On the line of his judgment grace, and not color, is influential.

Proselyting is making converts. We read in the Bible about those who compassed sea and land to make one proselyte, but the person was not made much better by the operation. He was more the child of hell after than before. We want to make proselytes, but proselytes that are not improved in their moral character by the operation will not be worth much to the church. We want something more than numbers and wealth. We know of churches great in numbers and great in wealth, and yet they are ghastly spectacles of spiritual decay, and moral corruption. We want converts with the love of God abiding in their hearts, who will be a source of strength to the church.

The Republicans of Louisiana, have put a clean State ticket in the field. This is acknowledged by Democrats and is a source of congratulation to the Republican party in general. The sugar planters, had they assembled and nominated a ticket to best unite all elements to conserve their interests, could not probably have selected better standard bearers. At any rate they will realize the wisdom, whether they support it by their ballots or not, of using their influence to insure a free and fair election in Louisiana next April. If they imagine they can ask bread of the national tariff party, and give stones to its local organization here, they will be disappoined. Those Democrats who cried out so bitterly against the corrupt practices and arbitrary course of the present State administration, have now an excellent opportunity to give some tangible evidence of the sincerity of their convictions.

United States Marshal J. R. G. Pitkin to a City Item reporter said. "To have carried a hod to aid the Northern Democracy in building a structure within which she can receive no hospitality nor industrial encouragement, is proving a fatal folly to Louisiana. There is a distinct protective tariff party, a distinct internal improvement party in this nation; its purposes in other regards have been wantonly misinterpreted at times in the South, but here within Louisiana it would be a hundred fold better party if many of her good citizens had put themselves in stout accord with that national party, maintained its purposes and their own material interests, been less devoted to the label "Democracy," and remembered that it is better by a transfusion of fresh blood to reinvigorate an enfeebled body, eliminate its bad humors and rescue it for practical service, than to throw bricks at it and benumb it beyond all power of service. To contribute every resource to a national party that won't help the State, and to war against a national party that historically pledges succor, and even grants it under fire, is just what Louisiana has done. Her planters should be candid next week in convention here to the full measure of the title of their American industry to American protection."

The Kenney strict propibition bill passed the Iowa State Senate by a vote of 34 to 11, the same as that by which the Donnan bill was passed. The Kenney bill was passed by the House a few days ago. After passage by the Senate the bill was enrolled and signed by the Governor.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Dedication of Little Rock University.

The dedicatory services of the new University building were held in the chapel on the afternoon of Friday, Feb. 23. Dr. Rust presided, and Bishop Wiley made the principal address. The house was crowded, and many distingnished guests occupied the platform. After singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," Dr. Stowe, of Chicago, offered prayer. A chorus of students then sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and Dr. Rust made an introductory address, brief, strong, and eminently appropriate. He said that the meeting was one for congratulation, for rejoicing, for thanksgiving. Could the benefits which will result from the establishment of this noble University in this enterprising city be fully appreciated, no eulogy on this occasion would be deemed extravigant. The erection of this spacious, well arranged and thoroughly built edifice upon this commanding site, with its ample grounds, demands public recognition and rejoicing. Not a school edifice will be built in this part of the country for years to come, but will be the better for this beautiful building. Its influence will be almost boundless, and will sweep over the land in constantly increasing circles of light and love. Long established custom has sanctioned the setting apart by religious services of houses intended for the worship of God, and I know of no reason why buildings consecrated to the education of our youth should not be formally dedicated. The school-house and the church are similar in object and influence. The one aims at the spiritual interests of the people, the other aims at their temporal and eternal weal. One seeks to reclaim the hardened adult, the other so to train our youth that they may be fortified against the alluring vices of life. The mission of one is to cure evil, that of the other is to prevent it. We owe our prosperity as a nation under God to these instrumentalities of culture and morality. More arguments, and weightier, may be adduced in favor of education than in favor of almost any other interest connected with the welfare of man. The body, the intellect, the soul, time and eternity advocate the claims of this noble cause. There is not an evil that inflicts its curses upon humanity that can be removed without its assistance.

Bishop Wiley began his address by stating that one of America's greatest problems was education. We have many minds, many views, many classes and many phases of natural life. All these must be moulded into one, for the safety and permanency of our institutions. Every man who votes is a king and every man is a voter. How can we best prepare him for citizenship? Not by education, not by religion; but by both. The American nation in ignorant hands, could not endure. If all were educated, and not guided by religion, the result would be the same. Education by the public schools, however well done, would not be complete. The public school is one of our dangers. It is a powerful instrument, with two sharp edges, and yet we dare not throw it away. We cannot introduce the religious sides of education into the public school. Catholics say; no religion there; Jews and infidels say the same, and they have a right to their opinion. Education alone tends to make a nation of skeptics and infidels; but the people will not allow God and the church in the common school. We must therefore have church schools. The State dares to provide only secular schools. We come to aid in the work of education, not by interfering with your common schools, but we want the boys and girls coming from a secular school to find here a place for higher and religious education. The church is willing to spend its money for the education of the heart. Because of this we erect this school here, and we may say to Little Rock, 'Do the best you can with your common schools and then send the pupils to us and we will put on the crown of honor.' I now touch what may be a delicate point. We from the North have come to the South, and some are silly enough to be offended, and wonder why we should bring our money here. Some will say, 'It is because you of the North think yourselves far beyond us. No, we are citizens of one country; we are brothers in love. It is because we are interested in the future of this great nation that we would offer you here an opportunity for securing the religious element in the higher education of your children. We love you and we want you to love us. We want you to understand us. We want to get rid of prejudice and meet hand to hand and heart to heart. On the basis of education we can agree. Education is one thing North and South. I like Little Rock; there are both Northern and Southern people here. It is just the place for us to meet and get acquainted. We must meet here, and if we meet we mingle. We put this school in the center of the meeting, and it links us together as brothers. We come, believe us, with good intentions. We are as open as the day. Here we, two peoples of two sections, but one in reality, and in common destiny, may come to know each other.

Bishop Bowman was next introduced. He discussed briefly the definition of education. We are apt to overlook the practical bearings of education. All education is more or less industrial and moral. Industrial, in that all statists show an educated man to be worth more than an ignorant one for any kind of labor. An educated mule-driver is worth one-fifth more than an ignorant one, in better use and care of his team. If educated labor had prevailed in the South for the last fifty years we should not now see land abandoned to the pine trees after having been cultivated only through the first two inches. So, also, education is naturally moral. It naturally brings with it a little of heart culture, and so there is less crime among the educated than among the ignorant. There is not a college graduate in Sing Sing. I approve of the plan of education. It is an honor that I greatly prize that I opened the doors of old Asbury to women, and great good has resulted. I rejoice that in this university boys and girls can learn together. God's blessing upon it.

Hon. J. H. McLean, of St. Louis, was the next speaker. He spoke eloquently of the great destiny that lay before this new institution. Governor Berry followed with a hearty speech of welcome to the University and its work. Judge Rose came next, endorsing the Governor's remarks, and adding some thoughtful words on the general subject of education and heartily endorsing the University enterprise. Col. Roots rose to emphasize the practical value of learning and to thank Dr. Rust for the great benefit he had conferred upon this city. Rev. T. B. Ford, of the Arkansas Conference, made an excellent address, reviewing the history of the enterprise in which he had been laboring so many years with his brethren of the conference. Rev. T. C. Carter, of Chattanooga, added a friendly word, and spoke encouragingly to the students. Dr. Gray proposed that the meeting subscribe a thank-offering to a clock and bell and other needs of the school. Dr. McLean immediately offered to give the clock and bell as a memento of his visit to Little Rock, and the audience added about $400 more.

The whole service was a grand success, and will be long remembered. Dr. Rust was at his best, and his presiding was inimitable. He was the inspiration of the occasion. When Gov. Berry welcomed the University to Little Rock so warmly Dr Rust turned round and said, "Why, Governor, I want to shake hands with you." This brought down the house. Bishop Wiley's address was a profound study in statesmanship, and was given in his own classic, elegant style. Bishop Bowman was present almost accidentally, yet elicited the closest attention to his remarks. All the speakers were at their best, and the audience was closely sympathetic. On the platform were the visitors, together with representatives of the trustees and of the Arkansas and Little Rock Conferences.

Another Generous Gift for the South.

Mr. John D. Slayback, of New York City, has contributed $5,000; through Dr. Hartzell, to the Freedmen's Aid Society, to aid needy schools among the white membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This generous gift is made by Mr. Slayback with a view of helping our white people in the South in their heroic and benevolent efforts in establishing institutions of learning.

A Washington despatch to The Daily Graphic says that General Logan "seldom appears in the Senate chamber nowadays, takes no part and shows no interest in pending business, but spends all his time in his committee room, surrounded by his clerks. Here he holds his interviews with the strangers who come to see him," and here, as is affirmed, the Logan Boom is being industriously worked up. All of which goes to show that there is a man more shrewd than he, at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, who sees that this is not a good year for candidates to boom themselves. Chester A. Arthur has keener sagacity than John A. Logan. And it should pass to the President's credit that he so well comprehends public temper to-day, and so cheerfully harmonizes his own therewith. He may have learned many things since he tried to force Roscoe Conkling on an unwilling people. Nothing so much commends him for renomination as the fact that he does not openly seek it; and if he fails to receive it there will be some reason not now apparent on the surface of things. —American Reformer.

The Howard Co. Case.

Last Saturday the Howard county appeal case was brought before the judges of the supreme court on a printed brief, taking exceptions in the case of Henry Car, Lige Thompson and Julius Johnson, convicted of murder in the first degree, for alleged participation in the Howard county riot last August. The exceptions were upon the following grounds.

1st. The grand jury was not a lawful constituted body, being only 15 instead of 16, as the law required.

2d. A material witness for the defense was excluded.

3d. The jury that convicted them were not duly sworn. The oath taken being to return a verdict according to the law and testimony, instead of law and evidence which is void, says the statute.

Indianapolis is amazed and indignant at the disclosure made in the News that for years past the course of history taught in the public schools has ceased with the close of Buchanan's administration, and that of the glorious and stirring events of the last quarter of a century the children, so far as the schools are concernad, grow up entirely ignorant. Naturally and justly the people are greatly exercised over the discovery. The News says: "If this is our school education, the less we have of it the better. The fibre that can not teach the history of the war is a little too limber for anything. We agree at all points in the view that contemporaneous history cannot be written in detail. Passion and prejudice must necessarily enter into contemporaneous accounts so as to prevent a proper perspective. We cannot see all things in their true proportions. But to [illegible] this an excuse for omitting all allusion to the war because, forsooth, many still live who fought on opposite sides in it is such an infamous thing that condemnation goes to the verge of execrating it."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

R. Weaver, Jacksonville: "My first quarterly conference was held at Piney Grove. Elder Smith gave a grand lecture to the members. On Sunday he preached, and a large number of members of sister churches were in attendance. Collections $8.10. Pray for us."

A. Arnold, Centreville: "My Sunday-school is sadly in need of books. Our pastor is well liked and is going to teach school at one of the churches."

A. C. Culbreath, Huntsville: "The work on this circuit is going on finely. Have organized two Sunday schools, raised $31 to buy an organ, and have 10 subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN. We have bought church and quarterly conference record books."

J. C. Mays, Victoria: "Our first quarterly, which convened on the 16th and 17th, was one of much strength to the church and people of Webster Chapel, in Victoria. On Saturday evening, three o'clock, conference opened, roll was called and most of the members responded to their names. Business passed off very quietly and satisfactory. Our elder is one of those men who understands his business and spends his time as though it was precious—right. Sunday-morning he was with us in Sabbath-school, and I am very sorry to say that so few of our folks were out to join with us in witnessing such a grand lecture as he gave. Our Sunday-school is not as lively as I hope it will be by the next quarterly. Sunday afternoon I was requested to preach on the subject of faith. I did so, but not as well as I think I should. Elder's collection was $17.05. At eight o'clock p. m., the elder was in our pulpit, with a heart full of timely thoughts. He preached a loved, wise, and, I trust, an effective sermon to our people. He partly engaged in representing Christ and us with a grape-vine and its branches. Sacrament was administered to only ninety-three persons. O, for hearts to love our God, and to partake of the death and sufferings of His Son! Monday night brought us into a lively love feast meeting, and Tuesday morning our elder left for Goliad. Pray for his success."

TENNESSEE.

G. C. Harden, Lawrenceburg: "I arrived on this work Dec. 8, 1883. I found it in a good condition. Rev. James Summerhill stayed on this work three successive years, and left it with a good record. This little town bids fair for the future. There are but two churches for colored people, the M. E. Church and the A. M. E. Church. They have a church here but are not making much progress. Our church is in a prosperous condition; everything is looking bright for the church at this place. We have a high school for the purpose of assisting the preparatory school at Morrison. This school is tanght by Miss Emma Hopkins; she is doing a good work, and is under the supervision of the Methodist Church. The first quarterly conference was held by Elder J. Price; the reports show the brethren had been working for the Master; 28 of the members paid their quarterly dues; total collection for the elder $10.45. The elder preached a wonderful sermon, which called several mourners to the altar and who joined the church; all partook of the Lord's supper. The elder stayed over three days with us, visited the school and gave some good thoughts which will strengthen their minds. They have paid the pastor $29, and have everything on all the benevolent collections."

J. J. Barr, Spain: "Elder Jesse Price held our first quarterly conference. Many sinners came to the altar. We paid elder $5, pastor on missions $1, on Church Extension 10c. We are trying to raise money to buy a nice church, to cost about $500, which is to be paid in March. We desire help from all friends."

National Aid.

BY L. M. HAYGOOD.

We approach this all-important subject, not with partisanism, sectionalism or under the opinion that class legislation is always best, but under the conviction that governments or corporate bodies have the right to enact laws for the well-being of those concerned when it does not infringe upon the rights of others; that our government has as much authority to aid with money from the treasury in the education of its people as it has to call them forth to withstand any other invading foe. I think no one conversant with the history of nations will for a moment question the authority of nations or governments to call the people from their homes, to sacrifice their lives on the altar of their country when necessary. The opposite of this is the foe of republicanism and the friend of anarchy and absolute despotism. For the protection of governments in many countries every man has to serve his country a certain length of time. By this they never want for soldiers prepared for the country's service at any time. We simply affirm that the United States government is responsible for the illiteracy of its subjects. Some of the best men of the nation are now advocating strenuously national aid for educational purposes. In fact it is the question of the hour. No other government now existing will ever feel the effects of the illiteracy of its subjects as ours must feel it unless national aid is given. Many reasons can be given, but we mention a few going to show the necessity of our government giving every boy and girl the benefit of a common school education, if no more. 1. Our country is constantly receiving immigrants from China, Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, Denmark, Italy and France—in fact from nearly every country in the world. These do not always leave their own country because they are too well qualified for citizenship there, but in too many cases the opposite is true. They mostly come because our country is an asylum for the oppressed. Their little ones must grow up among us and take their places alongside of those "to the manner born." But they are mostly poor people who have scarcely enough money to pay their passage to this country. But the more cogent reasons are that, before and since the war, bitter opposition, and in many instances fraud and oppression have came down so heavily against the public school system as to make it of very little if any service in some localities. The idea that every man and woman must educate his or her child himself, by employing a private teacher or sending them to private schools has had much to do with the state of educational affairs of to-day. On account of this idea the poor white people of the South, after cotton ceased to be king, were found to be deplorably ignorant; literature and culture were to be found strangers because money-making was rampant. Opposition to our public school system came also somewhat from the fact that the child public school system was conceived and born north of Mason and Dixon's line. As a result of this, when the smoke of battle cleared from the sunlit hills of this glorious and salubrious soil, the keen eye of the philosopher saw—indeed such eyes were not required—a deplorable state of affairs as to education. For miles and miles no school-house could be seen, and in many instances it is so even until now, for it has only been a few years since the idea of general education dawned on the South. Beside all this, as the smoke of battle ascended toward heaven, from among the dead and wounded, from cities, hamlets, plantations and rice swamps, amid the clanking of chains and riven shackles, perfectly empty, emerged four and a half million colored people. These were ignorant, homeless, friendless, and outcasts seemingly from every body save their God. The government met them and clothed them with American citizenship, so far as voting was concerned. Now we see these two classes, the freedmen and poor white people, clothed with authority, but not even yet in their right mind. If there was any difference in qualification for office between these two classes of American citizens it was in many instances simply in color and previous condition. And yet the black and the white arm is holding the helm of the ship of State. If the government don't come to the rescue with money from its treasury to educate those arms the ship's progress and safety will be dubious, if it is no now. Both these classes are crying for help in their desperate efforts to guide this ship. In such a condition is it any wonder that these should be found simply tools in the hands of demagognes, and unprincipled political tricksters? If national aid is not given will it not be reasonable to expect that at no distant day, if we have it not now, we shall find these men essaying to be statesmen, with no more idea of true statesmanship than Satan has of purity? We must keep in mind, and so must this government, that here the majority must rule, for in every true republic the voice of the people is the voice of God. What, I ask, under such circumstances, is the duty of the government? Suppress their votes because of their illiteracy? Defraud them of their franchise by corruption and deception? To all of which I answer no! lest other republics cry to us Ichabod! But open the United States treasury to them, and then compel them to educate themselves and children; at any rate, see that each has a common education. This is the only feasible way I see out of this deplorable state of affairs, and this for many reasons: 1. Because in some localities ignorant parents are made to believe they can't do without their children's labor the best part of the year, and hence they get little or no time in school. 2. Because in some localities the school houses are so poor that no one can teach or learn in them except in summer, and then it is so warm that a philosopher can hardly think clearly, not to say study books. 3. Because in some localities the school term only lasts one or two months, just long enough to escape the promised penalty and reach for the promised money. 4. But often school terms are shortened because of the poverty of the people, and therefore insufficient funds to carry the school on longer. Therefore the government should in some proper and beneficial way open its treasury. It is no valid objection to national aid for educational purposes to say if this was done nine-tenths of the money would go to the Southern States; nor that this would be class legislation. For the reasons that a good government is one of the the people, by the people and for the people; that does the most good to the greatest number that needs it. The reports of the Commissioner of Education, the thinking men of the nation and common sense teach, that the illiteracy among the people is almost wholly confined to the two classes before mentioned and therefore the government should feel itself called upon to step in and lend a helping hand. Let national aid be granted, and in a few years race and caste prejudice, fraud and ruffianism at election precincts, vice and repudiation of debts will vanish as the hoar frost before the rising sun, and morality and patriotism will take their places, and this God-blessed country will then become in reality what it now is in name, "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Opposed to Caste in the M. E. Church.

Our delegates should spare neither pains or expense in the endeavor to make themselves familiar with every phase of our Southern work, past and present; since they will be expected to treat intelligently as well as promptly all measures bearing upon it, which may come before the General Conference. Ignorance of its history will not only render them vulnerable at many vital points but expose them to merited shame. A cursory study of the outlines will not suffice; the details must be thoroughly mastered so that vague theories can be met and borne down by plain facts. Fine rhetoric and persuasive speech are excellent weapons, but are not to be wholly relied upon unless accompanied by ample knowledge and sound logic. Some measure looking to the fixing of a definite course to be pursued by the church in the future, regarding what some style the white and colored work, will no doubt be proposed. The matter will require dextereous handling because of its importance and because of the wide diversity of opinion among those interested in reaching a satisfactory adjustment. I think our delegates should insist upon the view long ago espoused by the SOUTHWESTERN, which demands that there shall be no color-line drawn in any of the schools or churches over which the Methodist Episcopal Church has supervision. They may not insist that there be a coerced mixing of colored and whites. That is neither desirable nor practicable. It rests solely with the election of individual preference to determine the kind of school or church which a person is to patronize. But they may, with great propriety, contend for the removal of every barrier intended to protect caste in the church. They have a right to insist upon an open door to all, on the same conditions, and I for one hope they will exercise it with uncompromising firmness. They can not accept any measure the tone of which is uncertain or equivocating. If expediency is to be preferred to principle, they will see that the fact is stripped bare of false guise. If there be either schools or churches from which any are to be excluded on account of color, they will require that they be plainly indicated by geographical location or by name. Such a distinction published broadcast will prevent any colored person from intruding upon forbidden ground, and render it unnecessary for any white person to rush into the columns of the newspaper with a cruel "be gone!" But I hope the plan finally adopted will be in harmony with the teachings of Christ, and one that will, twenty years hence, entitle the church to as much honor as is now paid her for her bold stand against slavery before the late war. I incline to the opinion that the General Conference, by purging out the leaven of caste and taking a proper stand in favor of the common brotherhood of the races, will do itself more credit and confer a more lasting good upon our people than by the election of a colored Bishop under the circumstances which now exist. The recognition of the manhood of two hundred thousand members concerns us vastly more than the elevation of one to the bishopric. The first ought to be bestowed as our just due without delay; the latter, a thing of lawful expediency, may be entrusted to time and merit for its consummation. I do not say it should be long-postponed on that account. I suspect there are those who concede the justice of our plea, but are ready to charge us with taking in proper discretion for earnestly pressing it just now. They will tell us that we will retard rather than hasten the object we seek by precipitant action; that a much better way would be to suffer on without complaining, get education, character and wealth, and then wait until an enlightened public sentiment moves spontaneously toward according us the right to enter the schools and churches from which we are now excluded. They will tell us further, that we will be thought uncharitable to doubt the friendship or call into question the motives of those who, while they sympathize with us, are yet unprepared to join us in opposing the prejudice and caste spirit of the times; that having been liberally aided ourselves we ought now be satisfied to have others aided in the same way under whatever policy decided upon in keeping with the prevailing sentiment, and that we ought to consider the fact that our church must of necessity abandon the field, without a white membership here to act as a conservatory for the colored membership. Such counsel will, no doubt, receive all the attention it deserves, but none ought to be surprised if we refuse to be guided by it. I believe it misleading, and, in spite of the candor in which it is claimed to be offered, insulting to our intelligence. It takes too much for granted and overlooks important principles, dear to every man who feels within his bosom a devout reverence for justice and fair play among men. We ask not for honeyed words but for right treatment—treatment due to men, no better nor worse for the mere accident of color. Is there anything untimely or rash in this? It requires no unusual acumen to discover how utterly preposterous is most that is doled out to us from our brethren on the other side. Many of them, I know, would take it unkindly if told they were unfriendly to us, and yet they hesitate not at giving their influence to a course which aims a deadly blow at our sacred privileges as members of the same church. We have never claimed that we wanted to be forced into any social circle or crowded into assemblies of whites, whether in schools, or churches or elsewhere. We ask simply that the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the membership of which we constitute a respectable minority, pronounce itself straightout against color-caste in all its forms. Here we stop.

D. W. HAYS.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 28 1884.

Arkansas Conference.

BY W. H. W. REES, LITTLE ROCK.

This body of men, numbering about 40, represent some of the grandest heroism known to Methodism. They have endured toils and hardships during the past year in this State that will make their names immortal. Swimming rivers, fording streams, traveling immense distances on foot, through dismal swamps, and dense forests, climbing mountains, and sleeping in the most humble homes; all this revives the early struggle of Methodism in planting the church on the farthest frontier, and the church actually relives part of its history.

The conference met this year for its twelfth annual session, in the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Little Rock, Wednesday, Feb. 20th. Bishop I. W. Wiley, L.L. D., presided, and Rev. T. B. Ford was re-elected secretary. The reports show a handsome increase in the membership throngout the conference and a gain of nearly fifty per cent in the benevolent collections over last year. The conference gave last year for these enterprises of the church $289.96. This year $557.79. This represents earnest effort on the part of the ministers, and increased liberality on the part of the membership. Our church is certainly gaining rapidly in this State, and we are anticipating a time of great success in this, our centennial year of organized American Methodism.

The "Little Rock University," built under the auspices of the Freedman's Aid Society of the church, was dedicated during the session of the conference. The chapel of the university was thronged on Saturday at 2 o'clock p. m. with the "elite" of the city, and members of the conference. The students occupying the gallery. Dr. Rust, the secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society presided with dignity, and was very happy in his introductions of the different speakers. The programme was well arranged, and was carried out successfully. We have space only to mention in this connection the names of the speakers, (all of whom did credit to themselves and the occasion). They were, Bishops Wiley and Bowman, Gov. Berry, Judge U. M. Rose; Senator McLean, of St. Louis; Col. Logan H. Roots, of this city; Rev. T. B. Ford, Rev. T. C. Carter, A. M. editor of the Methodist Chattanooga; and Dr. Geo. W. Gray, the president of the University; Dr. Rust made a felicitous speech introducing the services, and Dr. Stowe, of the Book Concern, made an earnest and forcible prayer. Dr. Gray in his speech suggested the need, of the University, and while he was talking Senator McLean arose and interrupting the Dr. said: "I will present the University in token of my appreciation of the grand work it is doing, and as a little memento to perpetuate my visit to this beautiful city, a tower clock and chimes for the building." The cheering that followed this announcement continued several minutes.

The name of every person present was taken with whatever amount they chose to give as a thank offering to the University, and $500 was raised in less than 20 minutes, after which Bishop Bowman offered a beautiful and impressive prayer, and the building was thus consecrated to the purposes of higher Christian education. The singing for the occasion was furnished by the chorus choir of the University, under the management of Mrs. Kerr and Miss Williams, teachers in the school.

Rev. W. M. Lndwick, J. P. Singleton, and W. J. Powers, members of the conference, were granted the relation of supernumeraries in order to attend the University. This makes six of the ministers of the conference now in school here at Little Rock. The election of a delegate to the General Conference took place Friday morning, and resulted in the selection of T. B. Ford, ministerial, and W. J. Simmons as reserve. The lay electoral conference elected Frank Garland a member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Little Rock. The conference was favored with a number of distinguished visitors, among whom we will especially mention Bishop Bowman. He greatly endeared himself to the coference, by his speeches and his Sunday evening sermon which he delivered in the Methodist Church South, by request of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Jewell. The conference made a favorable impression on the community. The year promises well for the church in this section. Below we give the appointments:

Bishop Pierce on the Colored Man in the South.

We gave, a short time ago, some extended excerpts from an "interview" held with the venerable Bishop Pierce, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which deserves more thonghtful consideration than the hasty reader is likely to give. They throw much light upon the present status of the colored man at the end of the first twenty-one years of his nominal freedom. We were not of those who imagined that so sndden a transition from abject slavery to freedom because of a military necessity, would at once land the colored man in a political or social paradise. But we are free to confess that we hoped that in less than twenty-one years at least the cultnred, not to say the religious, element of the Sonth would so far have accepted the inevitable that, instead of still making the negro the victim of hate, most of the better class of white people would be ready to take him by the hand and give him a brotherly lift—at laest in those things in which such a lift must, like all deeds of charity, equally bless him who gives and him who receives.

It did not require, however, the studied utterances of so distinguished a man as Bishop Pierce, one so respresentative of the best culture and piety of the South, to assure us that our hopes of at least a formal recognition of the colored man's freedom and rights before the law had not been realized, if indeed any considerable progress in that direction had been made in all these years. The frequent massacre of unoffending negroes, and the brutal murders of white men by the score because of their sympathy with the negroes, had convinced us of this; but nothing else has of late appeared that so forcibly shows as does this "interview" the powerful backing which the inveterate prejudices and pride of the aristocracy give to the rnthless mobs that invade the few rights the poor negro is presumed to have under the Constitution and laws of the land.

We have often wondered at the silence of the pulpit and the press—religious and political—of the south when such murders as that of Matthews, at Hazlehnrst, Miss., or such wholesale slanghters as that at Danville, Va., have shocked the nation. We do not wonder any longer. The animus which instigates these wrongs finds its life-blood in such sentiments relative to the rights and proper sphere of the negro race as were given by this Christian minister to a reporter of a secular paper for publication. If race prejndices are approved by the senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a church which embraces within its fold governors and senators, jndges and legislators—much, in short, of the very highest social element of the South—what applications of them must we not expect from those who know none of the humanizing and restraining influences of the Gospel!

We shall be pardoned for republishing in this connection the entire paragraph to which we refer. It can not be epitomized:

> The negroes are entitled to elementary education, the same as the whites, from the hands of the State. It is the duty of the church to improve the colored ministry, but rather by theological training than by literary education. In my judgment, higher education, so called, would be a positive calamity to the negroes. It would increase the friction between the races, produce endless strife, elevate negro aspirations far above the station he was created to fill, and resolve the whole race into a political faction, full of strife, mischief, and turbulence. Negroes ought to be taught that the respect of the white race can only be attained by good character and conduct. Their well-doing and well-being all right-minded citizens desire, and would rejoice in. Agriculture and all the mechanical pursuits are open to them, and in them they might find lucrative employment. In these directions they may support their families, get property, and become valuable citizens. If negroes were educated, intermarriage, in time, would breed trouble, but of this I see no tendeucy now. My conviction is that negroes have no right on juries, in legislatures, or in public office. Right involves character and qualification. The appointment of any colored man to office by the government is an insult to the Southern people, and provokes conflict and dissatisfaction, when, if left as they ought to be, in their natural sphere, there would be quiet and good order. The whites can never tamely and without protest submit to the intrusion of colored men into places of trust, and profit, and responsibility. There never can be stability and good order except when intelligence and virtue preside and direct the affairs of the country. The negro ought to be protected in all his rights of person and property by the righteous administration of the laws. He is entitled to respect and kind consideration in all his pursnits and wants while he himself is upright and industrious and well-behaved.
> Read this carefully. The negro may obtain elementary education—he may learn to read, probably, but all higher education would be a calamity to him; it would elevate his aspirations above his proper station. Negroes have no rights on juries or in office. Then, of course, they have no right to vote. Their attempts to vote and hold office are insults to the Southern people, which these resent; hence conflict and blood-shed. The negro shonld be taught "how to attain the respect of the white race" and that, it seems, is not by ob taining an education and acting the man among men, but by doing menial service for the white man. Farming and the trades are open to him—but the professions never. "The whites never can tamely submit to the intrnsion of colored men into places of trust and profit and responsibility." If "the whites never can submit" to that, then the blacks are to be forever crushed.
> It is such teaching as this from the pulpit and the press of the South, as well as from the stump, that breeds the violence which has driven the negroes from the polls, and the white men as well who do not accept such opinions. Gloomy indeed will be the day when, by any untoward influences, the national government shall fall into the hands of men who teach and who follow snch doctrines as these! If men, on acconnt of color may be disfranchised by violence, why may not unfortnnate or poor white men? Is it any wonder that the entire South is almost a unit against the colored man, if those who profess to be guided by the teachings of our holy Christianity say that any adequate recognition of the manhood of the negro is an insnlt, and that white men can not tamely snbmit to it?
> We have entire confidence in the ultimate Christianization and elevation of the colored popnlation. The vast improvement which has been made, even under the disabilities created by the prevalence of sentiments we have just condemned, is an earnest of the fnture. Such teachings, and snch violence as they will be held to excuse, if they do not engender, may delay but cannot prevent the advancement of a race of people that is anxiously set npon advancement. Philanthropists are usually not the men to lose faith in God; and if there is any promise which history shows to have been verified along the ages, it is that the expectation of the poor shall not perish forever.
> Through what fires or floods this nation may yet pass in reaching the goal where men have eqnal rights to life and its dnties and enjoyments, we know not; but we believe that an honest, determined policy on the part of the nation to deal justly with God's poor—white, black, and red—would avert the sore calamities which a neglect of duty is sure to bring upon it.
> We leave each voter to determine for himself what is his dnty as a citizen at the polls or elsewhere. But we do not hesitate to say that it is the dnty of our Church to continue her labor of love; to afford facilities not only for elementary education, but for every grade; to improve the colored ministry not only by theological trainiug, but by every thing that can elevate and ennoble; to preserve fraternity in the spirit of true Christianity, and accept such as may be offered in the same spirit; enduring all inevitable ostracism and opprobrium, yet continuing to work.
> It may take anothert twenty-one years, it may take a hundred, to obtain friendly co-operation and fraternal greeting on the prat of those who still believe that negroes and white men—of the same character and culture—have not the same rights. But as pioneers in philanthropy we must work on. Nothing of late has shown this to be more necessary than has this pro nunciamento from the venerable Bishop Pierce; for if men of such eminent piety entertain views so detrimental to God's poor, so utterly at war with progress, what can we expect from the ungodly? A zealons Church will not only carry that pure form of Christianity which recognizes a brother in an African, but will plant elementary schools, academies, colleges, and nniversities; and it will enconrage all holy aspirations for whatever belongs to culture, noble manhood.—Western Christian Advocate.

Prayer Answered.

Dr. J. P. Newman in a recent sermon said: "In New Orleans I was smitten with yellow fever. I buried the first victim, and from July to September I tended the sick. I buried that noble young lawyer, Vice-president Hamlin's son. At last my turn came, and I was stricken down. During my sickness I was attended at night by a negro nnrse sent to me by General Sheridan, and in the day time by a devoted lady who was a member of one of the Churches in the city.

"When I recovered I gave wages where wages were due, and rewards where rewards were due, for you mnst not give wages where rewards are due. Then I went afterward to Washington as chaplain of the United States Senate. One day as I was in my study the thought came snddenly to me to reward that lady. The answer was, 'You did.' 'Trne, but not enugh,' I said to myself, and I wrote a check and sent it at once.

"At that moment the lady was kneeling by the body of her dead sister, praying that God wonld send her a friend. She had been redneed to poverty, and what I sent her came in time to defray the funeral expenses. You may relegate such a thing to the law of coincidences, bnt we are praying every day that God will administer just snch a law of coincidence as this."

If Prince Bismarck were not looking for an opportunity to express his thorongh contempt for the American Republic and his hatred of all liberal ideas in political government, he wonld have passed over in silence the comparatively unimportant resolution of the House of Representatives concerning the death of Dr. Lasker. The Chancellor's explanation, as made in a commnnication to the German Minister at Washington, is that the resolntion expressed an opinion regarding the effect and object of Lasker's political activity which he (Bismarck) could not accept. The resolution declared that Lasker's services "materially advanced the social, political, and economical condition" of the German people. Bismarck declares that this was not trne of Herr Lasker, consequently he retnrns the resolution. The act is that of an ill-mannered absolntist who seeks an occasion to advertise his dislike of everything emanating from a popular government. The resolntion was kindly meant. It was not a matter of great moment, and its return is a bit of superfinons impertinence which our people can regard with unrnffled composure.—N. Y. Times.

The publishers of the Richmond, Va., Enquirer heartily roocommond Dr. Bull's Congh Syrup and say, "It has been well tried in our office and composing room, and has cured our city editor of a very bad case of Bronchitis."

A Minister's Predicament.

Daniel Webster had an anecdote of old Father Searl, the minister of his boyhood, which is too good to be lost. It was customary then to wear bnckskin breeches in cold weather. One Sunday morning in Autumn, Father Searl brought his breeches down from the garret, but the wasps had taken possession during the summer, and were having a nice time of it there. By dint of effort he got out the intruders and dressed for meeting. But, while reading the Scriptures to the congregation, he felt a dagger from one of the enraged small-waisted fellows, and jumped around the pulpit slapping his thighs. But the more he slapped and danced the more they stung. The people thought him crazy, but he explained the matter by saying: "Brethren, don't be alarmed; the word of the Lord is in my mouth, but the devil is in my breeches!" Webster always told it with great glee to the ministers.

An application for a patent for an adjustable dog's tail has been made to the United States Patent office. The applicant claims that all dogs who, either by nature or accident are minus a tail, encounter great difficnlties in turning sharp corners, as their centre of gravity is thrown too near the fore legs, and consequently they must go slow or lose their balance. The adjustable dog's tail will restore the equilibrium. Whether the patentee hopes to make a fortune on the patent is not stated.—Boston Journal.

Better than Gold.

So easily is a cold taken that not infrequently one is at a loss to tell when or how it has originated, and is prone to expect it will go HEALTH as lightly as it came. Perbaps it may go easily, if belped a little; but every cold that comes is liable to stay. It may happen just at a IS time when, from other causes, the normal strength of resistance in the system bas been lowered. A little inattention or delay may give it a dangerous BETTER hold. Let it once become firmly seated, and the work of dislodgment will be very diffienlt. The simple Coryza, or cold in the head, may THAN develop into a Catarrh, and is indeed exceedingly likely so to do. That such is the case is evidenced by the fact that seven persons out of every GOLD. nine, in the Atlantic and Mid- dle States, have catarrh in a severe form. Or, if it does not take that turn, the little cough that is at first but an annoyance, is almost certain to become dry, hard, racking and constantly recurrent, worrying in waking bours, banishing sleep, and momentarily weakening the patient. The larynx, vocal cords, and tonsils, become inflamed. The inflammation extends into the bronchial tubes. "Laryn- AYER'S gitis" and "Bronchitis" are the easiest words that the doctor, called in about that time, will use. The trouble goes on working down the CHERRY bronchial tubes to the lungs, nltimately threatening Pulmonary Consumption. Or, perhaps, the malady assumes the quickly PECTORAL fatal phase of Pneumo- nia. Just about as unwise a thing as an ordinarily sensible person can do, is to neglect a "little" PRESERVES cold or cough and give it a chance to develop in any of these ways. And when it comes to the treatment of children, neglect is criminality. All HEALTH. the dangers to be feared from colds and coughs may be averted, in the very outset, by the administration of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a medicine ineffably beneficent, which allays the coughing, soothes to refreshing rest, and brings back health.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Is the only medicine that can be relied upon to break up a cold and cure a cough, and is invaluable in the treatment of all affections of the throat and lungs.

The following are samples of what people say who know it:

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."—PROF. F. SWEETZER, (Maine Medical School) Brunswick, Me.

"AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL affords more relief in cases of Whooping Cough than any other medicine."—DR. ARTHUR Y. COX, St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for 20 years. It is a wonderful remedy for Throat and Lung Diseases."—L. GARRETT, Texana, Tex.

"My children have taken AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for Coughs and Croup, and have found it give immediate relief, followed by cure."—MRS. J. GREGG, Lowell, Mass.

"I find nothing else so efficacious as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in the treatment of Colds and Coughs, and have used it in Croup, Asthma, and incipient Consumption, with great success."—DR. J. H. WILSON, Centerville, Iowa.

"My wife, troubled with violent coughing, hard and dry, for 30 years, got so low I thought it would kill her. She took AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and is entirely cured.—G. M. CARR, French Camp, Miss.

"Several members of my family suffered severely with Influenza. All were cured by AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in a few days."—HENRY RUSSELL, Somerset, N. J.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitons routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1884.

We are indebted to Bro. E. S. Lewis, of the Little Rock University, for the report of the dedicatory services in another column.

The March number of Guide to Holiness is, we think, one of the best yet issned, of this deservedly favorite magazine. We advise onr people to secure this monthly. Any one longing for constant commnnon with God will find it a help to them.

Rev. Dr. Vernor, District snperintendent of the American Bible Society, in Arkansas, in the conrse of his address to the Little Rock conference said, that the society had pnblished and distribnted over 42,500,000 copies of Bibles, and had made three thoronghly and systematic canvasses of the United States and Territories, for the pnrpose of scattering among the people the Word of God.

The fortieth annual report of the New York Association for the improvement of the condition of the poor, shows that the Association expended for the year 1883, $27,103.65. The Governor in his recent message says that in the State Asylnms and Almshouses there were 10,270 lunatics and 15,000 inmates of penal institutions. Of the 390,000 immigrants landed at Castle Garden this year 1,273 were returned to places whence they came, 69 being lunatics.

Hot Spring, Arkansas, is so much infested with ropers, steerers, sharpers, humbng doctors, hotel drnmmers, and other strikers with pocket-picking and thieving propensities, that the mayor and city council, in order to protect visitors have fonnd it necessary to distribnte hands bills on every train, warning visitors to beware of snch schemers and to pay no money in advance until satisfied as to the responsibility of the parties. In addition to these evils, Hot Spings seems to be over run with gangs of gamblers, who have been ruling and running the city their own way, all to its shame and ruin.

The missionary zeal and devotion with which sister Hester Williams, superintendent of the Woman's Home Missionary Society for the Baton Rouge district, contributes to the general cause of missions, and manages her work, are worthy of imitation. During the last three years she has had a hen which she had set apart as a missionary hen. This hen she named Dorcas; from the eggs and broods of this hen she realized for and paid to the canse of missions $22.50. Darcas netted $6 10 for the last conference, and then died. The breed is not extinct however, a yonng and vigorous Dorcas Jr., will now continne to help replenish the missionary treasury. Sister Williams also cultivates one row of sugar cane, from which she realizes from $4 to $10 a year for missions. In visiting her work, she sometimes has had to ride on oxwagons, on hand cars and oft-times had to walk. Such faithful devotion to a good cause are worthy of mention. Every district and every church should have a score of snch faithful workers, workers whose faith is made manifest by their works.

The precarious condition of royalty in Europe is indicated by the facts that the guardians of the Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, have captured a man with a false beard, with several dynamite cartridges in his pockets, snpplemented by one hundred oiled revolver cartridges, a bottle of chloroform, a dagger, and two revolvers, all of which were intended for use against the persons of the Hapsburgs; while a solemn council of Russian officers recently assembled in the [illegible] palace of Gatschina, to consider the shattered condition of the Czar's nerves, resulting from the discovery of assassination plots against the lives of our American Presidents is much more desirable.

Race Prejudices.

We give elsewhere in this issne an editorial from the Western Christian Advocate entitled, "Bishop Pierce on the Colored Man in the South." We have carefully read this paper and so far as we understand it we approve of all our able confrere has said. We shall be pardoned if at this time we give all statement of our convictions. No donbt that most of the ontrages of the Knklux, the brntal murders, freqnent massacres, and wholesale slanghters of Negroes that have so shocked the nation are the outgrowth of race prejudices. Nothing but race prejudice could indnce so venerable a man as Bishop Pierce to say that the "so-called higher education wonld be a positive calamity to the Negro," that they "have no right on jnries, in legislatnres, or in public office," that "the appointment of any colored man to office by the government is an insult to the Sonthern people." It all comes of race prejndice. We lothe it whether in black, brown, or white. It is a harpy. Bnt the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch, South, is not the only church tinctnred with this sin. What but race prejndices divides our work here in the Sonth into what are called colored and white conferences? What bnt race prejndice leads the Freenmen's Aid Society (a society that is indebted to the Negro for its name and existence) to establish separate schools for the colored and white? True we say to the Negro he may be edncated, that he has a right on jnries, in legislatnres and pnblic offices. to any position of honor and trnst. Bnt by every school we erect from which they are exclnded merely because of their complexion we strengthen the prejudice which instigates all the ontrages, brutal murders, freqnent massacres, and wholesales slanghters to which they have been subject for the past twenty years. Gloomy indeed was the day when the dial went backward and race prejndice triumphed and our church work was divided on the color line. Gloomy indeed also was that other day when the Freedman's Aid Society yielded to this nnholy clamor and began the work of erecting schools from which the very people who gave it a name and a being are to be effectually exclnded. There is a fire in the front, and a fire in the rear. We hear a great deal said abont the difficulty of solving onr church work in the Sonth. That depends almost entirely npon the stand point one occupies. If we stand on the platform of the ten commandments and the Lord's sermon on the monnt all is right, and our sky is clear. If upon the platform of what is called Christian expediency, which is made of ninety-nine planks of race prejndice and one of Christian brotherhood, all will be dark, contradictory and confnsed. There is bnt one position for the Methodist Episcopal Church to occupy; standing there, there can be no doubt as to her complete triumph. It may take fifty years, it may take a hundred, with that we have nothing to do. We must stand by the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man and work on. Approving of, or yielding to race prejndice is full as hateful to God in the Methodist Episcopal Church as in the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch, South. And when we once yield we are on the road that leads us ontside of all humanizing and restraining influence of the Gospel. It is but the work of a few years and we shall reach the point where we can not only approve of all the unchristian utterances of the senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch, South, but of such murders as that of Matthews at Hazelhurst, Mississippi, and such slanghters as that at Danville, Virginia. Race prejudice divides our church work on the color line, lays the corner stone of all of the schools from which persons are educated because of their color, says Negroes have no right on juries, in legislatures or in any public office, justifies and approves of the ten thousand wrongs that have been inflicted npon the colored people for the past twenty years. The sinning is the beginning. It is no time to make a halt and return to our first love.

Little Rock Items.

Wesley Chapel, our new brick church in the ctiy of Little Rock, Arkansas, is a perfect little beanty, and not very little either, for it can comfortably seat nearly six hnndred persons. The corner stone was laid in 1881, and the church, throngh many difficnlties was completed for occupancy during last year. This church was built npon plans received from the Chnrch Extention Society. The steeple is not yet finished, and a few other improvements are to be made npon the outside of the building. With these finishing tonches, onr new Wesley Chapel takes her place in the front rank with some of onr best churches in the Sonth. The work done, when previonsly existing difficnlties and discouragements are considered, does real credit to Rev. W. O. Emory, the former pastor, who enconraged and snpported by his faithfnl band of Christian workers and friends has accomplished these results. The work has grown spirually, and mnch good has been done during Bro. Emory's three years' pastorate there. The Sunday-school is one of the best in the State of Arkansas. Bro. Emory goes this year to Pine Bluff, where he doubtless will snceed qnite as grandly.

The German membership of our church contibnted more to the snpport of the ministry and onr connectional benevolencies in proportion to their number, than any other people in the church. This we are told, is dne to the fact that every third German member is a snbscriber for the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Methodist Episcopal Chnrch owns over $120,000 worth of school and church property in Little Rock, Ark. This is far in excess of that owned by the Church Sonth, in that city. The Methodist Episcopal Church is in the Sonth, and is here to stay.

During his visit to Little Rock, onr assistant had the pleasure of an introdnction to Rev. W. H. W. Reese, pastor of Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, of that city. Bro. Reese is from the Des Moines conference, which he joined in 1869 when only 20 years of age, and from whence he was transfered to the Arkrnsas conference, by Bishop Hurst, last May. From 1869 to 1881 he continned in the effective traveling ministry, when he took a snpernnmerary relation, and entered Garrett Biblical Institnte, at Evanston, Ill., completing the three years' thological conrse there in two, a pleasanter and more polished Christian minister can scarcely be fonnd. Bro. Reese is in full sympathy with the best interests of onr work in the South, and enters into his work with an intelligence, a consecration, and a will force which commands the success which he now enjoys in his charge. In connection with his church work, he pnblishes a monthly paper, the Church Tidings, which serves to keep his church, and all its enterprises before the public, which he seeks to influence for Christ and the church. We are glad to inform our readers that Bro. Reese, who weilds a ready and brilliant pen, will contribute a half dozen or more articles to the SOUTHWESTERN dnring the next few months.

Questions Answered.

A snbscriber asks, if it "is his dnty as a Christian to pay for the snpport of a preacher who chews and smokes tobacco?" Answer—Ministers as well as laymen are not proprietors, bnt stewards. They are both accountable to God for the nse of their money. We can not see how any Christian, much less a Christian minister can indulge in a habit that not only takes his money, bnt is a positive injury to his body; but we know that they do. So we advise our snbscriber to stand by his pastor. To us the nse of tobacco is a low, mean and filthy habit, and we exhort all of onr people to throw their pipe and tobacco away but we do not feel like throwing an otherwise good man away, because he uses the filty weed. Bear with him, he may repent and reform.

A brother asks which is the worst, "a minister in the pulpit with a quid of tobacco in his mouth, or one coming ont of the pulpit with a lie in his mouth?" Answer—Both are nnministerial, but there is a great difference between a lying preacher and one who uses tobacco. One needs converting grace, for no matter how noisy or talkative a preacher may be, if he is a liar he cannot be a child of God. Of all liars in the universe the most contemptable is that man who calls himself a Christian minister. The woof and warp of his moral natnre is rotten. While the man who uses tobacco needs a little more grace, he should learn "first principles" and "go on unto perfection." It wonld seem that a real deep and clear Christian experience would save him from the nse of tobacco.

Another wants to know "Is a minister has a right to go to a person's home who is in good health, and receive them into the church, while we have service every Sabbath at the church?" Answer—His discipline gives the form of receiving persons into the church, and it supposes that the members of the church are present, to state their objections, if they have any; while we have a little delicacy in saying what a minister has or has not a right to do, we cannot see what could indnce a sensible Methodist preacher to go to a private resilence and privately, or by stealth, receive a member into the church. We advise that all snch work be done in an open frank way.

Editorial Correspondence.

We have jnst reached Alexandria, on onr return from the Little Rock Conference, which convened in the city of Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 13th, with Bishop Wiley in the chair. Leaving New Orleans Feb. 11, at noon, on board the Texas & Pacific Railroad train, we expected to get to Little Rock in time for the opening of the conference session, bnt in consequence of a wreck on the railroad beyond Marshall, Texas, we were delayed there abont twelve hours, and did not reach Little Rock until the evening of the 13th of Febrnary. After leaving New Orleans, from Cheneyville to Shreveport we had the pleasnre of sojourning with Rev. J. W. Hilton, who had spent his first Sabbath with his people at Franklin on his new charge, and who was now going up to move his family from Shreveport to Franklin. He seemed to be fnll of enthnsiasm over his reception at his new charge. Stopping over at Marshall, Texas, we fell in with Rev. Mr. Gunner, former editor of the Paris, Texas Informer, who was on his way to New Iberia to take charge of the Congregational Church there. Bro. Gnnner we fonnd to be a very agreeable gentleman. He is a graduate of the Talladega, Ala., College, and is a printer by trade. This he learned at the Talladega College. Notwithstanding the many difficnlties attending colored journalism, and the prejudices of the whites in Texrs, we were pleased to learn of his snccess in the permanent establishment of his paper, which he has since sold ont to an enterprising company of young and intelligent colored men. When we reached Texarkana, Bro. Fuller, of the Little Rock Conference, boarded the train, on his way to conference, and with him we pleasantly made the remaining portion of our jonrney to the "City of Roses," arriving at Little Rock Wednesday-Feb. 13, at 6 p. m. The evening was bleak and cold, bnt hurrying, on the street cars and throngh the freezing mnd, to the Wesley Chapel parsonage, we soon fonnd onrself in comfortable and agreeable qnarters, in Rev. W. O. Emory's Christian home. Bro. and Sister Emory spared no pains to make our stay most pleasant and profitable. Wednesday night the conference sermon was preached by Rev. W. H. Crawford. He preached an excellent sermon, showing how, as co-workers with God, in bringing the world to Christ, the ministry was honored of God. Next day we met, for the third time, the Little Rock Conference. This conference is comparatively work, but its weakness is not that of declining age, but rather that which is inseparable from infancy to maturing manhood. It is yonng, vigorons and progressive. This is only its sixth annual session. Every session, however, shows signs of progress in the men as well as in their work. With the exceptions of Revs. L. W. Elkins and O. H. Smith, presiding elders, and Thos. Mason, President of Philander Smith College, this Conference is composed entirely of colored ministers. The white work is in the Arkansas Conference, from which the Little Rock Conference was separated, on the color-line, six years ago. The conference session was one of the best in every way. The Church Extension, Missionary, and Freedmen's Aid anniversaries were observed with much pleasnre and profit. Dr. Rust was on hand, and contributed in no small measure to the general interest of the session. He was full of his old-time fire, and nnder the inspiration of his words of bnrning eloqnence the conference was moved to the determination of raising one thonsand dollars, this year, toward the establishment of a free scholarship for the benefit of the ministry, in the Pilander Smith College. The object is a grand one and deserves snccess. Bishop Wiley's sermon, instrnctive addresses and fatherly advice were received with joy and gladness by the brethren, who, after receiving their appointments, scattered to different parts of the great State of Arkansas, with consecrated pnrposes to do and dare for the Master. Dnring the conference session we had the pleasure of visiting the Philander Smith College, in company with the members of the Little Rock Conference, all of whom were invited to visit the school. Bishop Wiley, Dr. Rnst, Dr. Gray, President of the Little Rock University, Bro. G. B. Donnelly, and the writer addressed the school. The impression which we obtained by our visit to this school makes ns sanguine of the greatest measure of snccess for our church in Arkansas. Philander Smith College was built last year, throngh the liberality of Mrs. Adeline M. Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., widow of Philander Smith, who contribnted $10,000 toward its erection. Sister Smith is a faithful member of our church at Oak Park, as was also her husband, who died a year or two ago. This institution, dedicated to the canse of Christian education, Sister Smith had erected as a monnment to the cherished memory of her deceased husband. May the ministers, teachers and scholars gradnating and going from this institution reflect credit upon the name of Philander Smith, and honor the Christian benevolence which gave birth to the idea of having such a school in Little Rock. The Lord bless Sister Smith, and multiply unto ns many more such friends as she has proven herself. The college is a beautiful and snbstantial brick bnilding, four stories high and splendidly located on a hill overlooking the whole city. It is only five or six hnndred yards from Wesley Chapel, our new brick church recently completed here. The chapel, recitation rooms, dormitories and other apartments display such economy of space and convenience as indicated the presence of a master mind behind the plans by which the bnilding was erected. When President Mason took charge of Walden Seminary, ont of which has grown the Philander Smith College, three years ago, he found there only fonrteen students; now, including a small branch school at Forest City, Ark., he finds on the rolls of the institution over 250 students. Marvelous growth! The faculty is constituted as follows: President, Rev. Thos. Mason, A.M.; Prof. H. B. Fry, A.M., and Miss Des Elms. In connection with, and adjoining this college building, we have here also the Ladies' Industrial Home, which will serve as a boarding hall for lady students who will there be instructed in the arts of the kitchen, the laundry, and general honse-keeping. This bnilding has just been completed at a cost of $1800, the gift of Mrs. Adeline M. Smith. The Home was to have been dedicated during conference, but in consequence of the floods in the Ohio, which delayed the arrival of Mrs. Dr. Rust and Mrs. Smith from their homes in the North, the dedicatory services were postponed to a future day. Rev. Dr. Gray, President, kindly invited us to visit Little Rock University, bnt our time being otherwise occnpied we failed to visit that institution. We learned, however, that it is on the highway to snccess, gathering in, and educating the white children of of Methodism in Arkansas and neighboring States. Among others forming the faculty of this University, is the scholarly and accomplished daughter of Bishop Wiley. Before leaving Little Rock, we had the pleasnre of visiting the which also met in this city, Feb. 30th, Bishop Wiley presiding. This is onr white conference in Arkansas. Quite a nnmber of the colored members of the Little Rock visited this conference, together with the writer. They were all cordially received and introduced. The conference is made np of a splendid body of ministers, all of whom seemed to be encouraged with the prospect of growth in their charges. It is composed of abont fifty traveling ministers, and represents about four or five thousand members. Leaving Little Rock Wednesday, Feb. 20, at noon, in company with Revs. W. H. Crawford and S. Johnson, we arrived at Hot Springs about 4 p. m., and preached in our church there at 7 p. m. We were made welcome here by Bro. Crawford, the retiring, and Bro. Johnson the new pastor, and were very pleasantly entertained by Bro. and Sister Armstrong, substantial and faithful members of our church there. Hot Springs is a wonderful place. Built, as it is, in monntain hollows and on hill tops; abonnding in springs of boiling waters, having wonderfully curative properties; with a climate that seems to rejnvenate the old, that bids the rheumatic to throw away his staff, and skip abont npon the pedestals given him by nature, it attracts the attention of people from all parts of the country. The permanent population of the place is abont five thonsand, bnt in consequence of its well-known reputation as a health-giving resort, it is estimated that it has an average floating popnlation, made np of visitors, of ten or twelve thonsand annually. We have a nice church, and an excellent people there, while the Sunday-school is said to be the best in the State. We were pleased to meet many of the subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN there, whose words of appreciation we enjoyed, and hope ever to merit. After taking a comprehensive view of the city, noting its street car lines, telephones, telegraphs, electric lights, beautiful hotels, bath-houses, parks and public buildings, etc., we boarded the train for Malvern, Marshall, Texas, and other places. From Malvern for a distance of abont fifty miles, we had the company of Rev. E. Roberts, formerly of Rust University, who was from the Little Rock Conference on his way to his appointment at Washington, Ark. Bro. Roberts is a good man, and an earnest-hearted Methodist preacher, who for the last four years has been studying at Rnst University, Holly Springs, Miss., preparatory to his present work in the ministry. We bespeak for him much snccess. We arrived at Marshall, Texas, Thursday night, about midnight, Feb. 21. Failing to make connection there, we laid over until next day noon, when we left for this place. Our failnre to make connection, however, was not very disagreeable, as it affarded us the privilege of visiting Wiley University, where we met the students and professors in their morning devotion. By reqnest of President Davis, we led in the devotional exercises, and then addressed a few words of encouragement to the school. The political and race tronbles in the State during the past year seem to have had an unwholesome effect upon the school, but notwithstanding that fact the future opens up with signs of promise. About 175 have, thns far, been enrolled this year, some of whom are in the collegiate, college preparatory, academical and primary departments. The club system of boarding is in vogue here. By this method students manage to board themselves for abont $5.65 a month. —marvel of cheapness. Who is too poor to get an education under snch circumstances? The faculty is composed of Rev. W. H. Davis, President; Profs. A. M. Kilgore and N. Coleman, Misses E. A. Parker, L. Van Sycles and Mrs. Jennie Goodby. During our short stay in Marshall we called on Rev. R. H. Harbert, the pastor of our church there, and had the pleasure of forming the acqnaintance of himself and his devoted family. He gave us assurances of his hearty appreciation of the SOUTHWESTERN, the evidences of which he intends to exhibit shortly in the form of a long list of cash subscribers. Leaving Marshall, Texas, Friday, Feb. 22, at 12 m., we arrived here at 11 p. m. same day, and have since commenced npon our first quarterly of of the La Teche district. A.

The Louisiana Republicans.

The Republican State Convention assembled in Odd Fellows' Hall, New Orleans, at 12:30 on March 5, and was called to order by General Badger. Col. A. J. Dumont was elected temporary chairman, and Wm. Vigers, secretary. Hon. A. H. Leonard was appointed chairman of the committee on credentials, and ex-Gov. Pinchback of the committee on permanent organization. A recess was taken until 4.45 p. m., when permanent organization was effected as follows: President, W. P. Kellogg, of Iberia; First Vice-President, P. B.S. Pinchback, of Orleans; Second Vice-President, A. Dejoie, of Orleans; Third Vice-President, Pierre Laudry, of Ascension; Fourth Vice-President, C. C. Antoine, of Caddo; Fifth Vice-President, John Ray, of Ouachita; Sixth Vice-President, Oscar Holt, of West Baton Ronge; Secretary, Wm. Vigers; Assistant Secretaries, J. D. Kennedy and G. R. M. Newman. Sergeant-at-arms, J. H. Lawlor, with assistants, P. Z. Canonge, R. L'Official, R. D. Taylor, Geo. Green, Randall Johnson, A. De Rocha.

After adoption of an order of bnsiness, the following delegates-at-large were elected to the national convention: Wm. Pitt Kellogg, P. B. S. Pinchback, A. S. Badger and A. J. Dumont.

On the second day a committee escorted President Kellogg to the chair, and he delivered a strong speech, which elicited a storm of applause. He thonght the best policy of the party was to nominate State and Congressional tickets for maintenance of discipline, whether there was hope of an election or not. Men should be nominated who would see that civil rights were protected, the ballot-box kept free, and ample provision made for the education of all children of the State. The Republican party, he maintained, drew itself nearer to the interests of the people than the Democratic party, either in antecedents or in policy. It conserved the industrial interests of the country. In discussion of the tariff he declared that the Democratic party was committed to the placing of sugar on the free list. He advocated the repeal of the internal revenue system, which would relieve the country of the surplus revenue without interfering with the protection of sugar. He thought it was time the people of Lonisiana should vote for men who would maintain the vital interests of Louisiana without regard to the dictates of Democratic caucuses. He hoped to see Lonisiana and Pennsylvania Congressmen combine against the Morrison tariff bill which took 20 per cent off the sngar tariff. The hope of Louisiana was in the sentiment of the planters, who wonld, he believed, see to it that no one was elected to Congress, withont reference to party affiliations, who wonld not pledge themselves to snpport the sugar interests of the country independent of caucuses. He eulogized the Repnblican party as the originator of the grand idea that every man was eqnal before the law, and he hailed the dawn of a universal sentiment for harmony between the races and education of the negro as an inseparable part of the body politic. He also advocated the Repnblican party as the friend of pensions, and for its liberality in river appropriations.

The election of the following delegates to the national connection was annonnced:

First district—W. B. Merchant and R. F. Guichard, of Orleans; alternates—L. P. Smith and Felix Faguet, of Orleans.

Second district—P. F. Herwig, of Orleans, and Henry Demas of St. John; alternates, M. Galliand and W. J. Wilson, of Orleans.

Third district—Geerge Drnry, of Assuuption; L. A. Martinet, of St. Martin; alternates. A. Davis, of St. Mary porish; Thomas A. Cage, of Terrebonne.

Fourth district.—A. H. Leonard and Wm. Harper, of Caddo; alternates, W. P. Peck and A. J. Smith, of Bossier.

Fifth district—Frank Morey, of Madison, and E. W. Wall. of Concordia; alternates, John. W. Cooke, of West Carroll, and E. O. Neal, of Tensas.

Sixth district—L. J. Souer, of Avoyelles, and Clifford Morgan, of Pointe Coupee; alternates, B. V. Baranco and Oscar Holt.

Also the following as members of the State execntive committee:

First district—J. M. Vance, of Orleans; A. E. Miller, of Plaquemines; John Barrow, of the seventh ward; P. Craig, of the third ward.

Second district—Michael Hahn, of St. Charles; T. B. Stamps, of Orleans; P. F. Herwig, of Orleans; C. F. Brown, of Jefferson.

Third district—W. B. Smith, of St. Mary; J. J. Sullivan, of Ascension; P. B. Johnson, of Terrebonne; C. A. Roxborongh, of Iberville.

Fonrth district—A. R. Blonnt, of Natchitoches; W. I. Kelso, of Rapides; A. H. Leonard, of Caddo; A. J. Smith, of Bossier.

Fifth district—J. H. Dinkgrave, of Onachita, C. J. Brown, of East Carroll, W. G. Bobe, of Madison, and J. W. Green, of Tensas.

Sixth district—L. J. Soner, of Avoyelles, Clifford Morgan, of Pointe Conpee, Frank Delaney, of West Baten Ronge, and Lonis Desmarais, of St. Landry.

A committee of seventeen on resolntions, Gen. Badger, chairman, was appointed.

Qnite an animated discussion followed on the propriety of making nominations, which resulted in the passage of a resolntion for a committee of thirty, appointed by the chair, to present a State ticket to the convention. At the evening session President Kellogg announced this committee as follows: W B Merchant, chairman; P B Pinchback, L J Soner, A J Demas, A H Leonard, Henry Ducos, Theo Fontelien, T B Stamps, L E Bentley, W B Smith, Michael Hahn, Wm Harper, Charles Decuir, J Neeson, Frank Morey, E H Cripps, F J Burns, Parker Lovering, F Demarest, P F Herwig, Geo Swazie, John W Cook, J W Ball, George Drury, Abe Davis, Cain Sartain, J M Vance, Felix Fagonet, Pat Creagh, B V Baranco.

After a recess the committee made the following report, which was adopted:

For Governor—John A. Stevenson, of Iberville.

For Lieutenant Governor—Wm. M. Burwell, of Orleans.

For Attorney General—John H. Stone, of East Feliciana.

For Secretary of State—F. W. Leggins, of St. Mary.

For Superintendent of Public Education—Ben F. Flanders, of Orleans.

For Treasurer—A. F. Duperier, of Iberia.

For Anditor—Claudius Mayo, of St. Landry.

Also the following resolution:

Resolved, That the State Central Committee be empowered to fill all vacancies occurring on the ticket by death, resignation or otherwise.

The Resolutions and Address are briefly summarized:

1. That we reaffirm the principles adopted by the Republican National Convention of 1880, and we invite the cooperation of all the political elements which favor protection to home industries and material aid in the maintenance of the Mississippi levees.

2. Judicious protection should be extended to our manufactnring interests, and we especially commend to the people of the nation the continued protection of sugar and rice, on which depend the livelihood of 400,000 people of this State.

3. It is the dnty of government to legislate in behalf of American commerce.

4. American shipbuilding and shipping should be encouraged.

5. Labor and industry should be encouraged and protected.

6. The nation should maintain a powerfnl, effective and active force of naval cruisers.

7. This government should adopt a more vigorous and determined foreign policy than the Monroe doctrine.

8. Every citizen should take an active interest in maintaining the purity of the ballot.

9. No favoritism or predjndice in legislation for or against any religion or creed, consistent with public morals.

10. National as well as State education shonld be encouraged.

11. The rights of the colored people should be respected.

Also adopted:

Whereas, the Repnblican party, both State and national, are pledged to the maintenance of the public credit by the recognition and payment of all legal obligations;

Whereas, the Repnblican party of Lonisiana, threugh its representatives in the Constitntional Convention of 1879, placed itself on record as, being in favor of a continuance of this policy by voting unanimously in favor of a just settlement of the public debt of the State; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Republicans of Lonisiana, in general convention assembled, adhering to the past record of the party on this important subject, and believing that a final adjnstment of the debt is necessary to secure the permanent prosperity of the State, and in accepting Act No. 96 of the session of the Legislatnre of 1882, submitting a State debt amendment to the Constitution of 1879, which provides for the payment of a rate of interest acceptable to the crediters of the State, to wit: 2 per cent per annum for five years after 1880, and 4 per cent thereafter; that this desirable result will be best and most quickly reached, therefore this convention nrges the acceptance and support of said act npon the Republican voters of Louisiana.

Also adopted:

Resolved, That the Republicans of Louisiana regard with earnest solicitude the approaching presidental election, and recognizing the importance of unity and harmony among the Republicans of the North, upon whom depend mainly the continued supremacy of the Republican party so essential to the South, hereby declare it to be, in their jndgment, the duty of the delegates to the National Convention from Louisiana to cooperate with the delegates from the other States of the Union to the end that the nominees for President and Vice President shall represent the best sentiment of the Republican party of the natlon, and combine, in the highest degree, wisdom, experience, statesmanship and fidelity to the paramount principles of our party, and that will invoke the united and hearty support of the entie Republican and progressive people of the nation.

Jndge Hahn introdnced Col. John A. Stevenson, who frankly accepted the nomination for Governor and thanked the Convention for the honor conferred upon him. He was received with applause.

Facts and Figures That Do Speak.

Johnstown, New York, is a small manufacturing town of 1,600 inhabitants. In May 1882 the Excise Board refused to grant licenses, and the results are stated as follows by the Law and Oder Society. From May 1882 to June 1st, 1883 eight months 30,520 gallons less of beer were sold than during the same period of the year before under license. The sale of distilled liquors in the same period were under license, 10,200 gallons. No. license 1,160. During the same period the arrests for drunkenness were: under license, 17; no license, 3. The town criminal expenses were, under license, $2,475; no license, $407; under license, there were 32 places where liqnor was sold; no license, not any. It is evident that prohibition does prohibit, and that where it prevails crime, immorality and poverty gradually disappear.

—With deep sorrow we learn of the death of Rev. J. S. Inskip, President of the National Association for the Promotion of Christian Holiness and editor of the Christian Standard. Bro. Inskip died at his home, Asbnry Park, N. J., Mar. 7. We had earnestly hoped that a life so valnable might have been prolonged.

—Rev. J. C. Tate, oldest member of the East Tennessee Conference, died suddenly of heart disesae, at his home near Crossville, Tennessee, Thursday night Feb. 28th. He went to bed feeling as well as nsual, about 11 o'clock his wife heard him breathe heavily and called to him but got no answer. She proceeded at once to examine him and much to her snrprise fonnd that life was extinct.

—Hon. Geo. H. Foster and wife, members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Milwaukee, Wis., who have been spending a few days in the city gave us a pleasant call. Bro. and Sister Foster evince great interest in our Southern work. The appearance of the scholars at the New Orleans University pleased them, but they thonght that the buildings were a disgrace to the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch. And we may add that this is the opinion of nearly every intelligent layman who has seen them.

A. Brown, Hubbard City: "To the preachers of the Waco district: Dear Brethren. Remember the district conference was changed from Waco for some very essential causes, and it will be held a few miles from Hubbard City. We would like you to get here just as near as possible at the same time because we shall have to meet you at the depot with vehicles to carry you ont to the church. We are preparing foryou, and I am going to do my best to make you as comfortable as possible; and, dear brethren, please come prepared to help ns both temporarily and spiritually."

TENNESSEE.

E. Provine, Athens: "The Conference Board of Church Extension of the East Tennessee Conference met at Knoxvile ou the 19th of Febrnary, all the members present bnt one; also Rev. S. J. Harris, presiding elder of the Morristown district, and the writer. Three applications for aid by donation were confirmed by the board for the following points on the Chattanooga district: for Cleveland circuit, Cleveland, Tenn., $250; for Big Spring circnit, Bnrkett's Chapel, $100; Chattanooga circuit, Pleasant Grove, near Chattanooga, $200. I was the gnest of Rev. B. H. Johnson and wife; they made my visit pleasant while in their city. Bro. Johnson and wife are loved by their members; this is his third year at the Mabrey Street Church. His charge will be hard to fill, for from what I gathered from some of the members he has done earnest work. I am now at Athens, Tenn., with Rev. A. Roach, pastor of Sweetwater circuit. He called the people together for the purpose of hearing a lecture on Temperance, from Rev. Mr. Coleman and Rev. Dr. Calwell, of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church. The result of the meeting was that 22 persons signed the pledge not to drink."

The attempt of King Oscar H. to brush aside the chartered rights of the Norwegian people seems to have met with merited discomfiture and rebnke. The snpreme tribunal before which the pliant instruments of the King's arbitrary policy had been impeached, has adjudged Prime Minster Selmer guilty of violating the Constitution, and, as this was a test case, we presume that the other Ministers will be successively convicted. However galling to the nominal ruler may be this outcome of his long strnggle with the Storthing, it has probably averted civil war and the complete partition of the Scandinavian peninsula by relaxing the strain that threatened to snap the thread which binds the free Norwegians to the house of Bernadotte.—New York Sun.

WANTED!

FIVE THOUSAND BIBLES,

To place in the hands of Roman Catholics in Chicago.

Inducing Catholics to read the Holy Scriptures is the only way; under God, to prevail on them to accept Jesns Christ as a personal Savior.

No power on earth could, in any manner, be accessory to my conversion, had I not read the Word for myself, one year ago.

My experience of one year is, that all Catholics whom I approach will give me their undivided attention while I read passages for them from the Bible. They are astonished beyond measnre, and say, "My God! how is it that we have been so blind?"

I visit my Catholic brethren at their homes; they introduce me to their friends. In this way I get their confidence. I read and pray with them.

My Irish name commends me to numbers of my conntrymen of the intelligent class, and is a great help in my endeavors to bring the gospel to this warm-hearted and generons people.

Will yon assist me in this noble and holy cause? Yours, in Christ,

The Daily Christian Advocate.

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest It is the closiug General Conference of the first Century of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-exteuded work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religions bodies, some of them from beyond the sae, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, (representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demands of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerons pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received np to the hour of going to presi.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, exteuding through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value, as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issned at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May, 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issned on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an ample and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough convass of their congregatious. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our conntry in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational doenments ever given to our people, and shonld be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Panperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book shonld be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. E. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

That pennyroyal when distributed in places frequented by roaches will drive them away.

That wild mint will keep rats and mice out of your house.

That five quarts of boiling water poured on a package of pearline will make an excellent soft soap. Let it remain over night to harden.

That lime sprinkled in fire-places during Summer months is healthy.

That leaves of parsley, eaten with a little vinegar, will prevent the disagreeable consequences of a tainted breath by onions.

That flowers and shrubs should be excluded from a sick chamber.

That oil paintings hung over the mantle-piece are liable to wrinkle with the heat.

Old boot tops, cut into pieces of the required size and lined, make good, thick iron-holders.

To prevent hair falling out, wet it thoroughly once or twice a week with a weak solution of salt water.

Machine oil stains can be removed if, before washing, the spot is rubbed with a cloth wet with ammonia.

Stoves may be kept looking nice for some time by rubbing them thoroughly with a newspaper every morning.

Kid boots may be nicely cleansed with a mixture of oil and ink; the oil softens the leather and the ink blackens it.

A little glue dissolved in skim milk and water will restore the stiffness and lustre to crape and make it look like new.

SOFT GINGER-BREAD,—if eaten while fresh and warm, may well take the place of a more expensive cake. One egg, one cup of molasses, one-third of a cup of melted butter, one-half cup of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of ginger, two and one-half cups of flour, and a little salt; dissolve the soda in a very little hot water. Bake in a buttered tin.

FRENCH BEANS SAUTE.—String some French beans whole, or if very large, cut them in two across the middle. Boil them in plenty of water, with salt to taste, and when done drain them dry. In the meantime cut one or two onions into thin slices lengthwise. Put them in a frying pan with a lump of butter or dripping, and keep stirring until they are a golden brown color; then add the French beans, with pepper and salt to taste, and toss the whole for ten minutes, adding the least drop of stock and a very little vinegar or lemon juice. This is a most excellent way of cooking old French beans. The length of time required for boiling, of course, quite depends upon their toughness. The above can be made with canned beans.

DIET FOR INVALIDS.—A fowl should first be served freshly roasted or boiled. For the next day a leg or wing can be warmed up for the invalid, with some nicely prepared potato snow, and spinach or cauliflower. The breast and wing ought are best eaten cold. The scraps of meat from the carcass should be very finely minced—almost to a powder, in fact, and made into croquettes, or scalloped in French white china shells. All the bones must be carefully stewed down for many hours, in very little water, and some excellent strong broth will be obtained, which will, when cold, be quite a jelly. It requires flavoring with a little very thinly cut lemon peel, and some sweet herbs tied in a piece of muslin. This can either be eaten as cold savory jelly or warmed down. Either way it is very nice, and extremely nice. A sauce should be made in the following: Cut into small square pieces a pound of gravy beef, and place in a brown jar, with a little salt on it, and a teacupful of water. Tie down tightly with brown paper, and bake for five or six hours in a slow oven until all the goodness has been extracted.

TURNIPS IN WHITE SAUCE.—Boil some turnips like pears; make a good white sauce, which is added some stock. Boil the turnips in this until they are tender. When the sauce is well reduced (after taking out the turnips) add to it a little powdered sugar, and, at the moment of serving, add a small lump of butter and the yolk of two eggs.

BEETS FRIED IN BATTER.—Cut a well cooked beetroot in slices and then place between each two slices a thin layer of force-meat, composed of finely chopped onion, parsley and any herbs that are liked, with pepper, salt and a little mustard. Dip those double slices into a good batter and then fry them in plenty of dripping until they are a good color. Serve very hot, and with a little salt scattered over.

ROAST PORK.—To insure the crackling being crisp and eating short, care must be taken not to put the joint too near to the fire at first; it should be placed at some little distance, if not the crackling would harden before the meat would be warmed through. If very lean a little good salad oil should be rubbed in before putting down to roast, and it must be kept thoroughly well basted during the time of roasting.

Is Cotton King?

Within a few years it is probable that grain exports from India and Australia will grow in magnitude sufficient to rival the grain products of this country in foreign markets. Gold for the first time has, within the past week, been exported from England to Australia in settlement of trade balances for wheat. The only problem to be solved in India, in regard to exports of wheat and corn, is that of inland transportation.

Time will ultimately settle this question as English capital, under grants of Parliament, will find it profitable to build railroads extending to the vast grain-growing areas of India. When that period arrives, cheap transportation and cheap labor, together with a genial climate and fertile soil, will each and all contribute toward an active competition with the United States for supremacy in food staples.

It is not the part of wisdom or sound commercial policy to shut our eyes to facts so self-evident of demonstration, but to prepare before hand for the competition inevitable.

The unprecedented abundant harvest in this country, for the three successive years inclusive from 1878 to 1880, and the bad harvests abroad gave such an impetus to our exports of grain and breadstuffs, and so rapidly increased values therein, that other products which hitherto had added so largely to our national wealth were to a great degree lost sight of in the newer industry of wheat raising which so rapidly sprang into prominence.

Cotton, which by general consent was styled king because so long our chief export was relegated to rear, and grain growing to the front. Is there to be a reversal of the order in the near future and cotton exports again they take the lead? Facts will serve as the best guide for enlightenment. By universal consent it is admitted that the cotton grown in the cotton belt of the United States is unsurpassed for quality and has no rival in this respect in other cotton growing countries. The principal commercial varieties aside from our own are those known as Surat, Madras and short stapled Egyptian, all of which are inferior to our middling upland. Manufacturers of cotton goods abroad admit they cannot produce fine fabrics exclusively from Surats or Egyptian short staple fibre; they must necessarily use our longer staple entire, or mix it with the others. It is also well understood that the most perfect system of cotton cultivation is found in the United States

Great Britian has at various times experimented in cotton culture, hoping somewhere in her dominions to find climatic and soil influences favorable to its growth, so as to be independent of our product. The attempts have not met with adequate success, and have been abandoned. Facts, therefore, demonstrate that the United States has no successful rival in cotton raising.

The growth of this industry at this point claims attention. In 1790 the first exports of American cotton abroad were 500 bales, which were increased the following year to 4,500 bales, from which period the shipments continued to enlarge until 1821, when the value of our raw cotton exports amounted to $20,157,000. In 1840, they amounted to $63,870,000; in 1850 to $71,984,000; in 1850 to $191,806,000; in 1870 to $237,027,000; and in 1883, to $247,328,000. The total value of our exports of raw cotton and cotton goods combined for 1883 were in round numbers $280,000,000. The total value of bread and breadstuffs exported for the corresponding period were $208,040,850.

The American cotton belt is not only enlarging in area but also in productive capacity. The time is not far distant when home consumption and foreign demand will require an annual product of ten million bales. This amount can, under improved cultivation, be easily grown on the old area denominated the "cotton states." There need be no fear but that the acreage adapted for cotton culture in the above will be sufficient to supply all demands for the same material for the next fifty years, leaving out of consideration the large uncultivated tracts beyond these limits awaiting tillage. The cotton yield in this country for 1880 was 5,761,252 bales; for 1881, 6,80,5-750 bales; and for 1882, 5,456,848; and for 1883, the unprecedented crop of 6,949,756 bales, than half which was exported.

While the fact cannot be denied that India is bidding fair to rival America in wheat exportation, it is equally true that India cotton cannot maintain successful competition, because of inferiority to the American staple.

The Indian farmer with the rude accessories of labor, using a crooked stick for a plow and crushed by a tax that destroys the incentive to toil, nevertheless manages to raise eleven bushels of wheat to the acre.

When this rude mode of cultivation is exchanged for the improved methods of agriculture soon to be introduced, and the 150,000 square miles of wheat-growing land in British India, as yet unavailed of, are accessible for tillage, the farmers of America will awake to the knowledge that they no longer have undisputed supremacy in wheat culture.

In the two years closing with 1883, Indian exports of wheat amounted to 80,000,000 bushels, which means an actual deficit at the port of New York of the sum of $100,000,000. On the other hand, our exports of raw cotton are yearly increasing, and we have no fear of losing supremacy.

The South is pulsating with new life and energy. Manufacturing industries are rapidly multiplying, capital is increasing and worn-out cotton lands are being reclaimed and brought under cultivation. The consumption of cotton is steadily enlarging at home and abroad. The long silk Sea Island staple as well as the upland, growing in the cotton belt of America is without a rival.

May it not happen, therefore, in the future history of our exports that cotton will be once more King?—From American Grocer and Dry Goods Chronicle, Feb. 14.

Gentlemen—Having been a sufferer for a long time from nervous prostration and general debility, I was advised to try Hop Bitters. I have taken one bottle, and I have been rapidly getting better ever since, and I think it the best medicine I ever used. I am now gaining strength and appetite, which was all gone, and I was in despair until I tried your Bitters. I am now well, able to go about and do my own work. Before taking it, I was completely prostrated.

*The New Hymn.

BY JAMES G. CLARK.

Father, bend Thine ear and hear me
While I call to Thee in prayer,
Let Thine angels linger near me
In my time of grief and care;
Like the sun upon the river
Let Thy love upon me shine,
Till my life shall sing forever
In the boundless deep of Thine.

Father, when my lips are pleading
For the weary march to end,
Homeless, lonely, torn and bleeding,
Let me find in Thee a friend;
When like leaves my hopes are falling,
And despair has filled my breast,
Let me hear thy low voice calling—
"Come and I will give you rest."

Father, let Thy Spirit guide me
Through the darkness and the blast,
Let Thine angels walk beside me
Till temptation's power be past—
Till I view the heights supernal
Tow'ring o'er life's changing sea,
Till I tread the vales eternal
Where the blest are led by Thee.

Only a Baby

One sultry day last summer, at a time when children of the poorer class in Philadelphia were dying by the scores every week, a bloated old man staggered up the steps of a physician's dwelling. The boys shouted after him "Old Bourbon," the name by which he had been known in the locality in which he lived for many years.

"The baby's worse," he said, standing hat in hand when he met the doctor coming out.

"You've been here for me every day for a week," explained the doctor. "I cannot go again to-day. I told the child's mother there was no chance this morning. It was dying then."

"Won't you come now?"

"No; I have not a minute to spare. There are patients waiting whom I can help."

"Old Bourbon" followed him to his carrage door, twisting his rag of a hat in his shaking hands. "She's—she's all I got, doctor."

But the doctor, with a pitying nod, drove away, and the old man, nearly sobered by his keen distress, crept home to the attic where his little grandchild lay dying. Whatever nursing or kindness little Mary had known had come from "Old Bourbon." Her mother had six other children, and went out washing every day. The poor drunkard and the innocent baby were left to form a strange friendship for each other. She called for him now feebly, as she lay on her mother's lap.

"Daddy! daddy! Come to me!"

He kneeled down and put his finger into the tiny hand. The tears ran down his bloated cheeks.

"God, leave her to me! God, leave her to me!" he muttered.

"Daddy, come to Mary!" she cried once more, and the little soul, whose taste of life had been so bitter, passed on into the unseen

It was only a baby. Its mother, who had six other half-starved children to feed, shed few tears over it. The doctor sent in a certificate of its death with a dozen others. In a weekly bill of mortality there was an item, "Of cholera infantum, seventy." That was all. Her record was ended. The world had done with her.

But an old trembling man crept next Sunday into the back pew of the little mission church, not far from the attic in which he lived. He stopped the clergyman when service was over.

"Why, is this you, Bour—I beg your pardon. What is your real name?"

"John Black, sir. I want to take my name again. I'm thinkin of signin' the pledge 'n' pullin' up for the rest of the time left," stammered the poor wretch.

The clergyman was wise and helpful. John did "pull up." He lived but a few months after that,' but he did what he could to live a decent, honest, Christian life in that time.

"The Lord is merciful, John," his friend said to him, as he lay dying.

"I know it, sir. I'm not much acquainted with him, but I've been tryin, to foller little Mary. I hear her always cryin', 'Daddy, come to me.' I'm comin,' an' I reckon He'll no turn me back."

Even the baby had its work to do, and had done it.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find my mother and sister. Mother was Millie Bradley, and I last saw her in Monroe, La. Sister was Mollie Bradley, and I was called Frank Bradley. I was turned over to Miss Minnie Hughes, who married Geo. Miller, living at the time in Bastrop. We all belonged formerly to Judge Purvis, New Orleans, and from him was turned over to Mrs. Copely, who sent us to Monroe, where we fell into the hands of Mrs. Ann Bradley. I now go by the name of Frank Dusin, and may be addressed No. 10 Villere street, Algiers, La.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother, sisters and brother. Mother, Jane Newsom, belonged to Randall Newsom, near Shelbyville, Tenn. She was taken South by Mr. Newsom when I was quite small and I do not know to what State they went. She carried three children with her—Angeline, Kate and Bud. I was given to Tilda Wiggins as a nurse, and I have not heard from her since the war. I should be glad to know whether she was dead or not, and to hear from the children. My name was Ann Newsom, but is now Ann Yeargin. Address me at Overall, Rutherford county, Tennessee.

G. L. YEARGIN.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my sister whom I left in Clinton, La., in 1831. She lived then 3 miles below Clinton, La.; and belonged to Frank Dixon. I belonged to Lon Allen Dixon and she belonged to Franklin Dixon, in 1831 I was waiting-boy in Clinton for Jim Bailey. At that time her name was Minerva; she then had 5 children, 2 boys and 3 girls, and was living about a mile and a half from Pretty Creek. I heard she moved up into Mississippi, and then moved back to Clinton or somewhere in that district. I have been living near Red River and Natchitoches ever since I left Jackson parish. As near as I can remember my sister's name was Minerva Pigs. She had two children by George Pigs, named Ben and Willie, who where about 7 and 8 years old at the time I left. I had a sister who was burned to death at Josiah Yarbra, in 1856. There were two sisters and two brothers of us, all of whom are dead excepting her and myself. I heard brother Noah, belonged to Thos. Dixon, but that he died since I left him in Clinton. My mother's name was Nancy; Manerva was my whole sister and Noah my half brother. Address me at Natchitoches, La.

CORNELIUS WASHINGTON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquiae for my brother who was sold to Rafe Phillips, of Macon, Ga., in 1857 or 1858, who brought him to Mobile, Ala. I heard that he was sold to the owner of a line of steamboats from Mobile to New Orleans, but did not learn the man's name. My brother's name was Anthony; we belonged to a man by the name of Varner, and lived at the Judian Springs, Butts county, Ga. There were 6 brothers and 4 sisters. I will give the names of a few of them, enough to satisfy my brother, if he gets this, to know that we are still living and anxious to hear from him. Father was named Merida, mother Jane, oldest brother Eli, next Granville, John and Anthony; sisters, Chaney, Amy, Adeline and Elizabeth. Preachers are requested to read this to their congregations, and especially those preaching in Louisiana. Any information concerning the whereabouts of my Brother will be thankfully received. Address me at Hot Springs, Ark., box 31.

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time, the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krekkiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

How to get Along.

Never stop to tell stories in business hours. It you have a place of business, be found there when wanted. No man can get rich sitting around stories or saloons. Have order, system, regularity and also promptness. Do not kick every one in your path. More miles can be made in a day by going steadily than by stopping now and then. Pay as you go. A man of honor respects his word as he does his bond. Help others when you can, but never give when you cannot afford, simply because it is fashionable. Learn to say "no." No necessity for snapping it out dog fashion, but say it firmly and respectively. Use your own brains rather than those of others. Learn to think and act for yourself.—Southern Churchman.

Character and Genius of the African.

The peculiar susceptibility of the Negro race, and the peculiar style of character and society which he will develop, can not very well be mistaken. In his savage state, as with all other races, the sensuous faculties are chiefly active, and the animal, or the demon almost, appear. Such was the Anglo Saxon, the grim worshipper of Odin and the pirate of the Northern seas. Bnt when the uatnre of the Negro is elevated and fertilized, he exhibits a style of character which is all his own. The artistic skill, the Grecian intellect, the Englishman's robust reason and broad comprehensiveness, or the Yankee's perseveraunce and right-handed cuuning, may never be his. The more exqnisite productions of art and geuius, the profounder discoveries of philosophy, the more magnificent works of science and mechanism, may be out of his range. Not his intellectual but his affectional uature may be the basis of his improvement and civilization. His family and social affections are strong and ardent, and unless toru away by violence, he would never have left his uative clime. His feelings are lively and volatile, gay as a child's, and tender as a woman's. There is uniformly in his nature a soft and plaintive tunefulness, not disguised even in the wild music of his native groves, bnt which is poured out, in all its quiveriug pathos, in Moraviau hymns. Above all, his religious affections and susceptibilities are deep and inextiuguishable, incapable of being cooled into creeds and forms, bnt moving in tumultuous throbs and gratefnl ecstasies under all exhibitions of Divine love. No people conld be so easily Christiauized as his. The first emancipation of slaves in the West Indian Islands, was amid a scene of prayer and devetion on the part of the slaves as morally sublime as anything we know of in history. And whoever has studied the characteristics of the colored population of the United States, whether as a slave or freeman, knows very well that there is no class of people whose natures respond more qnickly to the more glowing exhibitions of Christian trnth, or rather of Christian love, for that is what Methodism makes primary and fundamental, or is more easily moulded under its plastic power. The nature of the African is peculiarly open and susceptible on the side of the supernatural, making him pliant to all those iufinences which draw upward into communion with a spiritnal world. The question whether the African in his uative capacity is eqnal to the Anglo-Saxon is a question just about as sensible as another which is now mooted so much: whether the capacities of women are equal to those of man. It is just abont as sensible, that is, as the qnestion whether love is eqnal to wisdom, the heart equal to the head; or, yet again, whether a line is eqnal to an angle, or a pound sterling equal to a pound avoirdnpois. They are quantities of different denominations, and none but blockheads attempt to work them in the same equation. Every race of men is a different style of human nature from every other, bears its own stamp and snperscription from the Divine hand, and when unfolded and elevated will have its own style of character and society. For what other reason in the world were mankiud made to exist in distinct races, bnt that each may exhibit a distinct phasis of the common humanity that inlays them, and so unfold and fill up in each direction all its varied and glorious possibilities! In the character of the African, when unfolded by education, in the various Negro nations, and especially those more advanced and civilized, we see the germs and elements of forms of society unlike our own, yet presaging not less an auspicious future. His religion will never be a Calvinistic Christianity, hammered out into creeds in theological schools. Its emblem will not be the tough and gnarled oak of New England but the sleuder and luxuriant palm of his native groves. The value of his civilization will not be gauged chiefly by the "increased exports," nor will its trophies be picture-galleries, nor net-works of railroad, nor splendid architecture, nor climbing machinery. Whatever he has of these he will borrow from another race. His form of society will be a sphere of the milder and simpler virtnes, and shaped and controlled more by science. It may be such even as the Anglo-Saxon, with his present standard of moral value, would regard with scorn; and yet, in the jndgment of higher beings, a civilization founded on the feelings and sentiments, with their tropic exuberaunce, may exhibit as much of a trne and lofty manhood as one which is founded on intellect, with its transparent crystalization and wintery splendors.

Could Not Have Lived Many Days.

The following testimonials from Hon. H. P. Vrooman, of the law firm of Vrooman & Carey, Topeka, Kansas, is of so direct and positive a character that it can hardly fail to convince the most skeptical that in Compound Oxygen there resides a marvolous healing and restoring power:

"TOPEKA, KAN., June 27, 1872.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN: Gentlemen: In the interest of suffering humanity I send you for publication an account of the almost miraculous cure which your Compound Oxygen performed in the case of my wife. Her condition was a very peculiar one. She had a complication of diseases, Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, or Liver Complaint, as her physicians have always called it, and general nervous prostration. If you will refer to my description of her case you will see that she was suffering from severe attacks of colic and vomiting. These attacks first came once in two or three months, when she would vomit herself almost to death's door. Each time the attacks came at shorter intervals and were more severe, nntil she became so weak and exhausted that we are sure that she could not have lived many days longer had not your Oxygen Treatment come just as it did and saved her for the colic and vomiting had become almost perpetual, and her strength and life were nearly exhausted. We could see a change in her condition from the first inhalation, for she never had so severe an attack of colic afterward, and had more strength to endure the pain and retching. She continued to gain steadily, and for the past four years has had no severe attacks. If she is threatened with one she takes an inhalation or two and so escapes any severe paroxysms. I think it but right that we should make known to others what Compound Oxygen has done for us, and therefore send this statement for publication.

Very respectfully, H. P. VROOMAN."

Onr "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address, DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1100 and 1111 Girard St., Phila.

The Son of God lived till thirty in an obscure village of Judea, unknown; then came forth a matured and perfect man—with mind and heart and frame in perfect balance of humanity. It is a divine lesson! I would I could say as strongly as I feel deeply. Our stimulating artificial cultnre destroys depth. Our competitiou, our nights turned into days by pleasure, leave no time for earnestness. We are superficial men, Character in the world wants root — Robertson's Living Thoughts.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this pader. n44-14t

Josh Billings says: "Most men concede that it looks foolish to see a boy dragging a heavy sled up hill for the fleetin' pleasure of ridin' down again; but it appears to me that the boy is a sage by the side of the yonng meu who works all the week and drinks up all his wages Saturday night.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are outting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-1y

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON XI. March 16. THE COMING OF THE LORD (1 Thess. iv, 13-18; v, 1-8.)

Although Paul must have been very busy at Corinth in making tents with Aquila and Priscilla, in preaching and holding meetings at the house of Justus, he found time to write two long letters to his Christian friends in Thessalonica. These letters are printed in our New Testaments, and from the first our lesson is taken. Although it had been such a short time since Paul had left his Thessalonian friends, some of their little Church probably had died. So he comforts them by telling them that those who die trusting in Jesus will be raised from the dead, as Jesus himself had already risen from the dead. Their spirits were already there; but when Christ shall come at the last day to judge the world, at the sound of the "tramp of [illegible] their bodies will be restored to them; and then, they, with all Christians living will go with Christ to heaven, to live there forever. Some Greeks of Paul's time believed that the soul lived after the death of the body, but had not the Christian's hope of the resurrection. So when their friends died they had sorrow without any hope of ever seeing them again. But we know that if we love and serve the Lord on earth we shall live with him in heaven, and with all others who have loved and served him in all ages and all countries. Paul tells his brethren that no one knows when the end of the world will come, but when it does, it will be sudden and unexpected. It will be the end of the world to us when we die. We do not know when that will be. So we should be always ready. There is only one way to be always ready to die, and that is to love Jesus and do what is right every day and hour. To do this we must be Jesus's soldiers—not armed with swords or guns, but always having our hearts and lives full of faith and love and hope.

Sister Rose Sansen died Jan. 20, in full [illegible]. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss.

D. W. Tidwell, a member of our church, and of Wiley University, died Dec. 25, 1883. He was a faithful member, a fine [illegible] brother, and has passed to his reward.

R. WEAVER.

Jacksonville, Texas.

He had just returned from his summer vacation, and describing the beauties of mountain scenery to a lady friend, he asked: "Have you ever seen the Cats-kill mountains?" and she answered; "No! but have seen the Bulls-cough-syrup!"

NEW BOOKS.

Deterioration of the Puritan Stock, and its Cause, by John Ellis, M. D. Mr. Ellis, is the author of a number of works. In this he attempts to show by tables amd statistics that the Puritan stock of Massachusetts is fast dying ont.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Miss L. B. Humphrey opens the March Wide Awake with a frontispiece for a poem by Miss Burnham, entitled "Her Angel." John Preston True, follows with a merry school story, "The Stampede in the Second Dormitory." Then comes Margaret Sidney's article, "The Indian Schools at Carlisle." Very vivid in contrast is Edwin D. Mead's paper concerning "Queen Elizabeth and her Schoolmaster." The serials are delightful. There is also a long English story by Lady Dunboyne, and a story of some little folks in Cheyenne, Wyoming, by Mrs. Powelson, and a Pictorial Æsop's Fable, "The Donkey and the Lion's Skin," by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, "The Weaver of Bruges, by M. M. P. Dinsmoor, a biography of Johns Hopkins, the founder of the John Hopkins University, by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolon, an Emergency paper by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, a house-keeping paper by "The Next Neighbor," and two pages of original music, a setting of one of George MacDonald's songs by Jadassohn, the famous German composer. $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

Louisa M. Alcott's third "Spinning-wheel Story," entitled "Eli's Education," is a leading feature of the March St. Nicholas, and paints a true picture of the struggles of a country lad to obtain an education in the early years of the present century. Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney contributes a brightly written story, called "Girl-Noblesse." "Among the Mustangs" is the title of an entertaining paper on the wild ponies of the plains, by Noah Brooks. "Blown Out to Sea," by C. F. Holder, is a collection of anecdotes, reconnting some of the curions resting places made use of by weary birds which are driven by strong winds ont of their course in their long migratory flights, often extending many thousands of miles. "Wong Ning's Ideas" are some reminiscences and original opinions in his own words by a very "live" Chinese boy, living in San Francisco. Mayne Reid's serial "The Land of Fire," and W. O. Stoddard's "Winter Fun" increase in interest as they grow in length.

The Pulpit Treasury for March is worthy of its name. An excellent portrait of Dr. J. M. Buckley, Editor of The New York Christian Advocate, forms the frontispiece. Dr. Buckley furnishes the first Sermon and there is a sketch of his life by the Editor. Dr. M. R. Vincent gives an Installation Sermon, Dr. W. M. Taylor an Easter Sermon and Dr. Hovey an article on Saul and the Witch of Endor. There is a Funeral Service by Dr. MacIntosh, and Leading Thoughts of Sermons by Canon Liddon, Bishop Simpson and Dr. Flagg. Other articles are by President Gregory, Bishop Foss, President Bascom, Dr. T. L. Cuyler, Professor Brown, Drs. C. Stanford; H. M. Scudder and McKenzie. Rev. A. F. Schauffler gives Light on the International Lessons. $2.50 per year; Clergymen, $2.00; Single copies, 25 cents. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

The story, which has never yet been told in print, of how Wilkes Booth, the assassin of Preisdent Lincoln, crossed the Potomac, and where he spent his time from the night of the 14th of April until he was shot on the morning of the 26th, will be contributed to the April Century by George Alfred Townsend.

The nnmbers of the Living Age for February 16th and 23d, contain The Literary Life of Anthony Trollope, Edinburgh; The Copts and El Islam, Quarterly; The Inspiration of Death in Folk-Lore, British Quarterly; English Hegelianism and its Religion, Church Quarterly; A Study from Turgenieff, Scottish Review; Daily Life in a Mediæval Monastery, Nineteenth Century; The Literature of Introspection—two Recent Journals, Macmillan; Virgil and Agriculture in Tuscany, Longman's; The Corps Fuchs and German Students' Duels, Saturday Review; Winter Life at Spitzbergen, Nature; House with Secret Chambers and The Cliff-Houses of Canmede Chelly, Chambers; Deep Sea Lighthouses, Iron; The "Vagabonds" of Siberia, Globe; with instalments of "The Wizard's Son," "The Four Silverpennys" and "Beanty and the Beast." The subscription price is $8 per year. Littell & Co., Boston, publishers.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steelengraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends.....28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends.....28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits.....28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims.....28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims.....28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night.....26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's.....28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

The Methodist Messenger is a new unofficial semi-monthly paper, published at Charleston, S. C., in the interest, it says, of the southeastern conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Our old friend, A. Webster, D.D., is editor-in-chief, with a long list of associate, managing and corresponding editors.

The Richmond Advocate, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, mentions a town in which every family takes the Advocate. We would like to have any of our preachers tell us how many churches they know where every family takes the SOUTHWESTERN. We wait for the first reponse.

The Chinese in Denver, Colorado, are erecting a Joss house, or sacred temple. It is intended to unite all the discordant Chinese of the city. A part of their creed being that all who attend worship among them must be friends. We know of churches where this part of their creed could be adopted with great profit.

Harper's Weekly of the 8th inst., announces the return of Mr. Thomas Nast, to his old field of labor. His sojourn in Europe and Florida has resulted in his complete restoration to health. The patrons of the Weekly will now have the benefit of his pencil. The publications of the Harpers are all of the highest order, they employ the most talented and popular writers in the country. Harper's Young People is unsurpassed as a paper for little folks. It should be in every household where there are children.

The first Gospel sermon preached by Peter was followed by the conversion of three thousand souls. We gaze on the three thousand of our brethren, weak and simple by nature as we are, and our souls break out in adoration, Glory, honor and salvation, for now has this word of Gospel salvation come to us. Would it not be well for the church to pray, that God may come and breathe human life and hearts, that Pentecost may be repeated, and the spiritual favor of Methodism be wonderfully restored that leads on all of our charges may be converted by hundreds!

[illegible] given in Philadelphia [illegible] distributed among four hospitals of which the Presbyterian has one. At a meeting of the Hospital Board, when final action was taken, fearing lest the acceptance of the money, amounting to nearly $7,000, should be construed by friends as approval of balls and dinners, it was voted by 10 to 7 not to accept of the money. We believe that the Board acted wisely and that this decision will have a wide and happy influence. No doubt the so-called "best people" of the city were at the ball and did a good part of the dancing. This, however, is true, dancing has never been a source of religious strength to the spiritually minded. The influence is downward.

The New Orleans Journal of Education for March, in an article on the "Competion of Civilization," makes this distinctively Southern appeal:

"The Southern States have been sorely stricken, once in front by the edge of the sword, and worse still since, by the back-handed blow of national legislation. The question has been, and is still, a burning one; shall we sit down by the ruins and ashes of our civilization and weep, or shall we rise to the height of our manhood, and prove not only that "human endurance is equal to human calamity," as we have done, but that the energy of freemen is equal to all the emergencies of fate? There is but one answer. We will not succumb."

We have never seen any ruins and ashes of Southern civilization that any body should weep over. If there is anything for which a few tears might be in order, it is the absence, in many localities, of all deserving the appellation of civilization. To supply this void schools and churches are in demand.

With reference to the doctrine of the amalgamation of the races that is going on here in the South, and as discussed by Abel Stevens, D.D., and others the St. Louis Christian Advocate, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, says:

"But why discuss a matter of that kind. What probability is there of its ever being carried out? You could scarce find a decent man or woman in all the country that would think of such a thing. As a rule, the negroes, at least the better part of them, would oppose it. All decent white people oppose it, and when both parties oppose it what liklihood is there that it will take place? But then, you know, some people must have a hobby, no matter how ridiculous it may be."

That reads well, but what are the facts in the case. Amalgamation is going on at a fearful rate. Each of the great and small rivers that empty into the Mississippi has its own hue and color, but as they flow on toward the gulf these different shades are all lost, in one great and grand Mississippi. So these different races, once so unlike, are fast blending. True the civil law makes it a penal offence for a white man to marry a colored woman or a colored man to marry a white woman, but it does not in some of our Southern States define or parish adultery, nor illegitimacy, and the amalgamation of the races goes on. It is an easy matter to say that the "all decent white people oppose it." It is nevertheless practiced. Men may close their eyes and call it a "ridiculous hobby," still it goes on. Like it, or dislike it, no two people have lived together since the world began without blending. Amalgamation began when the Negro was a slave, and did not own himself. It has not been stopped since emancipation. The blending and blanching process is going on, and no power on earth can prevent it.

The French captured Baninh on the 13th. The Chinese escaped after suffering heavy losses.

The General Conference—Its Standing Committees.

BY BISHOP E. G. ANDREWS.

I. Introductory.

The General Conference of 1876 appointed a committee to devise for the conference of 1880 an improved plan for the organization of standing committees.

Having been one of the committee, the writer of this article has been led to study the defects of the existing plan and to seek a remedy for them.

The conclusions of the committee (in which some members did not concur) were not acceptable to the General Conference. They had the fatal defect: they proposed as the unit of representation on most of the standing committees the General Conference District. The scheme thus gave to a district having fifteen delegates the same representation as to a district having forty-three delegates. It required that, immediately after the assembly of the conference, the delegates from remote regions, as yet unacquainted with the capacity, the opinions, and the particular interests, each of the other, should proceed to fill numerous important committees. It tended to suppress the independent and healthful influence of each annual conference on the course of legislation. It opened dangerous possibilities of combinations whereby some conferences of a district, and particularly the smaller ones, might be excluded from the more influential committees. And it did not secure an equitable allotment of committee work to individuals. Such a scheme could not supersede the existing plan—which, accordingly, for another General Conference exhibited its usual weaknesses.

II. Provisions required in a new plan.

It is not difficult to state the characteristics of a good plan.

First. It will consume the minimum of time and produce the minimum of friction in the creation and organization of the committees. The greater part of two sessions was used in 1876, and again in 1880, in doing this work, and with much unseemly interruption of conference work by the retiring of committees for organization and their return.

Secondly. So far as each delegation is concerned, it will provide as far as practicable,

1. An amount of influence in the committees proportioned to its members.

2. The opportunity to assign its members to those committees to which their personal aptitudes and preferences or the interests of their conferences may incline them. In this opportunity consists the strength of the present system, and any new system must carefully guard it.

3. So much, and only so much, committee work as can be done regularly and intelligently. Let each delegation choose where it will work; but it is not necessary, in order to safe and wise legislation, that every conference should have a representation on every committee. None feel this more than the delegates of small conferences, who are distracted and worn out by the vain effort to be at three or six committees in one afternoon. And no surer way to fritter away their influence could be devised.

Thirdly. So far as the committees themselves are concerned, a good plan will aim at two things.

1. The possibility of a full and stable attendance. By the present plan discussions often proceed and votes are often taken in the absence of a majority; often many vote who have not attended the discussions; and sometimes votes are reconsidered by an attendance specially summoned for the purporse. Is it wonderful that the decisions of the committee often fail to command the respect of the conference?

2. The largest practicable size for the committee. Observation teaches that a committee so large as to be a fair representation of the General Conference saves the time of that body. Such a committee is the General Conference in miniature; its debates are real forensic contests, which satisfy with many the cacoethes loquendi; its conclusions, if reached by considerable majorities, are commonly received as final by the friends of impracticable measures, or if favorable, commonly carry the judgment of the General Conference with but little debate. Small committees would not yield these results.

III. A plan proposed.

I submit the following plan for the consideration of delegates-elect, and of those who may become such. It seems to me to meet, in some good degree, the necessities of the case. It is simple, easily worked, equitable, allows each delegation its choice in committee work, and promises large and stable committees.

Unlike the present system, it does not predetermine the number of any one committee. The number of each committee will be the result of the particular assignments by each delegation. But as in 1880 there were twenty-seven conferences that had six delegates, no committee, on this plan, could have had less than twenty-seven members. By the variety of choice which would naturally obtain in the delegations, some of the committees would probably be very large; and probably none would be as small as the number above given.

Perhaps the scheme will lead to the suggestion of a better one from some other quarter. If so, no one will rejoice more than the writer of this article.

PLAN: Let the General Conference, on the first day of its session, adopt the following order:

I. There shall be twelve standing committees, as follows:

1. On Episcopacy.
2. On Itinerancy.
3. On Boundaries.
4. On Revisals.
5. On Temporal Economy.
6. On State of the Church.
7. On Book Concern.
8. On Missions.
9. On Education.
10. On Church Extension.
11. On Sunday-schools and Tracts.
12. On Freedmen's Aid and Work in the South.

II. The first six of the committees shall meet on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday; the last six on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

III. As heretofore, the several delegates shall appoint their members to these committees, but with the following conditions:

1. No delegate shall be appointed to more than two committees, except as hereinafter provided, which two committees shall meet, as above provided, on alternate days.

2. Each delegation shall appoint one of its members to the Committee on Boundaries. (See Discipline, ¶391.) But when a delegation consists of but two members (one ministerial and one lay), its member of the Committee on Boundaries may also be appointed to two other committees, and may be permanently excused from attendance by the Committee on Boundaries.

[NOTE. This last provision can be omitted or changed, according to such change, if any, as the General Conference may make in ¶391 of Discipline.]

IV. As soon as practicable after the adoption of this order, and in all cases on the same day, the chairman of each delegation shall deliver to the secretary of the Conference a list of the assignments to committees made by the delegation; from which returns the secretary shall immediately proceed to enroll and publish the committees.

V. When each committee shall first meet at the time and place fixed for its regular session, it shall proceed (under the temporary presidency of a bishop) to choose by ballot a chairman and a secretary, and shall cause the names of these officers to be returned without delay to the secretary of the General Conference.

VI. Reserve delegates, when admitted to the General Conference, shall take the places on committees previously held by their primaries, unless it is otherwise ordered by the conference; and other changes in committees shall not be allowed except upon statement of adequate reasons to the conference.—New York Christian Advocate.

The Cumberland Table Lands.

DEAR BRO. CUSHMAN—I have been thinking for some time of giving my people general notice through the columns of your most excellent paper of what I think to be the interest of thousands of my people, who are homeless and houseless, simply because they do not know that they could do better. I am living in Cumberland county, Tennessee, on what is known as the the Cumberland mountains, and perhaps the most healthy part of the globe; it is where contagion never has been known to come; and in addition to all that, we live where land is cheap; any man can have a home of his own that can pay a dollar and a half to two dollars per acre for land; the land is perfectly smooth and level, and perhaps the greatest stock-raising country in the world; the whole face of the country is like a green meadow at least two-thirds of the year. Stock of all kinds that will eat grass lives and keeps fat without any expense to the owner except a little salt; and the land produces corn, wheat, rye and potatoes and all kinds of vegetables, such as cabbage, beans, and all other vegetables equal to any part of the globe; and the whole country is underlaid with stone coal and iron ore. With a lively prospect of a railroad, which will be commenced in the next few weeks, the day is at hand when this will be regarded as the garden spot of the world; and if the colored people will strike in time many thousands of them can procure good homes with a small amount of money. Let them send out a few representative men to view the country, and they will say the half has not been told. I live in Cumberland county, Tenn, eight miles east of Crossville, which is our county seat. I hope imperfections will be excused. Remember I was 40 years a slave and never a day in school.

Austin District Conference.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to say a few words in regard to the Austin district conference, which convened in this city Feb. 21st, in the Simpson Tabernacle M. E. Church. Our presiding elder C. L. Madison, presided. The session opened with religious exercises conducted by the elder. Rev. A. Foster, formerly of the Waco district, and W. H. Mosby, formerly of the San Antonio district, were introduced to the conference. The elder then delivered an address on the importance of the meeting, showing the many benefits to be derived when its objects are carried out fully, which was listened to with marked attention, after which the roll of the conference was called. Eleven traveling preachers and quite a number other members answered to their names. The writer was then re-elected Secretary and Rev. A. Foster, Assistant. The reports from the different pastors speaks well for a prosperous year for the cause of the Lord; most of them have begun to take their benevolent collections now, so as to enable them to come up next conference with all of their collections, and without excuses. I feel free to say that this district Conference has been one of great benefit to the Austin District. Last Saturday was a day long to be remembered; the conference love feast in particular, which was conducted by the elder. We had a pentecostal shower, and quite a number of souls spoke for Christ, both Methodists and Baptists. There was quite a manifestation of the Spirit of the Lord in all of the services during the day. Pray for our success.

Your brother in Christ,

H. SWANN.

Austin, Texas, Feb. 29, 1884.

From Shreveport District.

DEAR EDITOR—I commenced the round of my district at Monroe. The pastor and myself reached his appointment Feb. 16. The people received their new pastor, Bro. Chapman, with joy, as all good Methodists will do. They observe the Discipline. On Sunday the collection was $21.35. We administered the sacrament to 87. Quarterly conference passed off nicely. They promised the pastor $550, presiding elder $60, bishops $3, benevolent collections $30, conference claimants $3. I did not reach Ouachita City because the small pox was among the people. At Bastrop Bro. McDonald is making a good start. Quarterly conference was well attended; 15 members present. Arrangement was made to build a new church. They estimated pastor's salary at $650. Collection on Sundry was $31.30.

S. DUNCAN.

Attorney-General Brewster addressed, by direction of the President, a circular to district attorneys and marshals requiring them to be vigilant in the prevention of exportation of explosives.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

ALABAMA.

E. E. Carlisle, Talladega College, Talladega: "Rev. O. Nelson. of the Central Alabama Conference, arrived at Talladega March 1, and held his first quarterly conference at Kidsville, 7 miles from Talladega, after passing through very severe weather in visiting other churches in the district. The conference convened at 3 p. m., and we had a grand, good time together. I was greatly impressed by the excellent way in which older Nelson conducted his conference. Our conference was quite full. I do not think there ever was a conference held in Talladega county, presided over by a colored elder so creditably as this conference was. The elder preached an able sacramental sermon at 11 o'clock on Sabbath which was enjoyrd by all. The elder came to Talladega and remained three days after the conference during which time he visited the college and made an able and earnest talk to the children of the intermediate department. He also visited the theological department of the college, and expressed himself well pleased with the good work being done at this school."

TENNESSEE.

James Pickett, Franklin: "This has been a year of great suffering both with the preachers and the people. Some of the churches have been closed on account of the cold weather and high water. I have been prevented by the high water and sickness in my family from attending some of my appointments. At some of my conferences I could only meet the pastor and two or three brethren. Our new church at Springfield, worth about $700 has been burned down; this makes three churches we have had burned by unknown parties. How will men who burn God's house stand before Him in judgment! Thanks be to God the churches that have been closed are now opened, and the brethren have gone to work with renewed determination to do battle for the Lord. Rev. H. Primm, at Franklin has a meeting going on now; up to date four conversions, with 17 seekers at altar for prayer. Pray for us."

P. R. Woodson, Liberty: "I entered upon my work Dec. 6, 1883, and found a willing, working band of Christian men and women. Rev. W. Key held our first quarterly conference Feb. 9 1g. The weather was bad, congregation small, collection $4.75. I have secured four subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN; will send more soon."

LOUISIANA.

At Pineville, our church has recently been much helped and encouraged by a donation of $100 toward the completion of the church from the Church Extension Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and now before many days the church will be completed free of debts. The quarterly conference held Feb. 24 was both pleasant and profitable. Bro. Henry Johnson is doing a good work, and is, therefore much beloved for his work's sake. The church is alive and growing. Two penitents joined on probation, at quarterly meeting, and begged the prayers of the church. [illegible] and Rigolets, under the pastorate of Rev. [illegible] Hampton, are doing pretty well. Our misfortune at both of these points, however, is our lack of church properties, properly deeded to the Methodist Episcopal Church. These evils, therefore, are difficult remedy. We have churches at these points, but they are plantation churches, for which we can scarcely ever hope to secure deeds. The lands all around, for miles, being owned by the two planters upon whose places their churches are situated, and they being either unwilling or to sell or donate to us sites upon which to build in accordance with our deed of settlement. We see no ray of hope to build up our church and enforce our discipline in these parts. The best we can do is to continue our efforts and pray for future developments.

Rev. J. F. Marshall, at Alexandria, has been received with great rejoicing by the people, and has been welcomed by all classes and both races. Theee years ago he there completed a pastoral term of three years; upon his present return to Alexandria he commences another pastoral term under the most auspicious circumstances. The church and Sunday-school show signs of progress, and every spiritual and material interest is looking upward. Quarterly meeting held Feb. 25-25 were seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Already improvements to extent of $100, or more have been made upon the parsonage, the front gallery has been renovated; the back gallery has been enclosed into a nice room, all the rooms have been papered and painted, the flowers in the front yard have been trimmed and otherwise beautified, and the parsonage again looks quite new and attractive. Bro. Marshall, who had gone to Alexandria, to prepare the parsonage for his good wife to come to him, has succeeded admirably, and when Sister Marshall takes charge of her new home, she will doubt less agree with me upon this point. For these results great credit is due the enterprising trustees, and the liberal hearted members and friends of this charge, as well as to their very popular pastor. Our people at Alexandria have begun the year with the determination to make their centennial year, a year of jubilee, both spiritually and temporally, and we bespeak for Bro. Marshall and his people a year of remakable results for the Master.

TEXAS.

A. Alexander, Plantersville circuit, "Our first quarterly meeting was held Feb. 24 and we had a great time. Our elder was with us and preached three grand sermons. Sabbath more than 400 people were out to hear the sermon. At the administration of the Lord's supper 137 joined in that holy service. Our elder has an eagle's eye but a warm Christian heart. The collection was $14.15. We have received sixteen members this year."

MISSISSIPPI.

D. F. Dudly, Augusta. "This is my first charge as pastor. I found the church members all scattered and cold. I have taken in collection $3,15; have organized the Sunday-schools. The people have been neglected, but I hope by close attention to my work to bring the people out, and up to a better life. The brethren promise to go to work and build some new churches, then we shall see brighter and better days."
